A recent attack on a Japanese woman by two black men, one of whom was charged with a hate crime, has drawn attention to the issue of racial hatred in America, civil rights leaders said Friday.

"We're seeing a disturbing trend of repeated acts of violence, especially against Asian-American women," said David H. Hu, president of the Asian-American Legal Defense and Education Fund.

Two black men wielding baseball bats and a Japanese woman sitting in her car at a Compton intersection smashed the car window and hurled racist and anti-Japanese epithets at the woman.

The incident, which happened last March but was not reported until this week, is one in a series of hate crimes against Asian-Americans in the Los Angeles area that have sparked outrage and concern.

"We need to take this seriously," said Hu, who added that the case illustrates the need for law enforcement to investigate all incidents of hate crime.

In 2009, four men pleaded guilty to shouting racial slurs and using a baseball bat to attack a couple in a car.

The men had been charged with violating California's hate crime law, which allows for increased penalties for crimes motivated by racial, ethnic, or religious bias.

"We need to ensure that these laws are enforced and that people who commit these acts are held accountable," said Hu.

The incident is one of many that have sparked calls for stronger enforcement of hate crime laws and increased funding for law enforcement agencies.

"We need to invest in our police departments and provide them with the resources they need to investigate these crimes," said Hu.

In May 2009, 91-year-old Minori Honda was attacked by a group of men who hurled anti-Japanese epithets and beat her with a baseball bat.

"We need to support our victims and ensure that they are provided with the resources they need to recover from these acts," said Hu.

The incident is one of many that have sparked calls for increased funding for victims of hate crime.

"We need to support our victims and ensure that they are provided with the resources they need to recover from these acts," said Hu.

McMahon and Martin McGuire, who were charged with conspiracy to commit hate crimes, pleaded guilty to their charges.

"We need to ensure that those who commit these acts are held accountable," said Hu.

In January 2010, 87-year-old Tim Ueno was attacked by a group of men who hurled anti-Japanese epithets and beat him with a baseball bat.

"We need to support our victims and ensure that they are provided with the resources they need to recover from these acts," said Hu.

The Democrats Will Have To Stop Jerry Brown

Republican often remark that the secret to their electoral success is a strategic weapon: The Democrats are weak

Party observers and two recent presidential elections have proven this perception to be true. The Democratic presidential nomination process almost always leads to the selection of a candidate who is seen as a political fringe candidate, a fact which is usually a byproduct of the public's general reaction.

This perception would not have left me as I watched the recent Democratic debate, which has been the sixth that the Democratic nominees have had over the years. The 2005 Democratic debate was one of the most prominent of any party's final debate.

All eight candidates either publically or privately included in the debate, focusing on the economic crisis in the U.S., stating it was three percent.

But in America, as in America, we have to address the economic crisis.

Jerry Brown, however, is the only one who can begin the discussion about "Gov. Moonsteam" as he has the skills and the background to bring up the rich pockets of the rich and the urgent crisis of the small mustard. Watching the six pack on J. one had to be grateful to Brown to see and be grateful for the domination was as much as his background, as he let the people Finance politicians.

Therefore, the chairman and others vigorously called for debt forgiveness. Dr. Sullivan, in an extraordinary statement, pointed out that "if we were to spend the two percent of Israel, Pakistan, and Egypt, they can certainly give the debt to sub-Saharan or Black Africa.

Specifically, the proposal is for forgiveness of 80 percent of government debt, 20 percent would remain for twenty years. The interest on the 20 percent and the fixed revenues on the 80 percent would go for the construction of schools and health services.

Further, it was stated that these countries were not deliberately avoiding payment of the debt. Someone economist can calculate the exact size of the new debt burden. The interest of 102 percent of its gross national income, and over 30 percent of its national exports.

In addition to the strain which has almost immobilized the nations of Africa, they have been traumatized by international "price fixers," who have offered for less than their valuable exports of gold, silver, coffee, cocoa and its important items.

We join this group in calling upon the eight large nations - United States, United Kingdom, France, Japan, Canada and Germany - to lift this debt burden so that these countries will not be crippled further.

It is well-known that sub-Saharan Africa is not treated in the same way that other non-Black nations.

The cancellation of the government debt would place these seven rich, northern nations in the forefront of helping humanitarian aid to countries that have long been exploited.

Rev. Leon Sullivan, the civil rights leader and founder of the Operation City Movement, recently received the Presidential Medal of Freedom. President Bush presented the prestigious award to Rev. Sullivan at a White House ceremony on November 17. Sullivan has been one of the most prominent figures in the civil rights movement, working tirelessly to combat racial injustice and promote social and economic equality.

Sullivan’s leadership has been particularly evident in his efforts to create self-help programs and job training opportunities for African Americans. He founded the Sullivan Foundation, a nonprofit organization dedicated to improving the quality of life for African Americans and other underserved communities.

In addition to his work with the Sullivan Foundation, Sullivan has been a vocal advocate for the rights of women and other minority groups. He has been a strong proponent of affirmative action and has worked to ensure that minority groups have equal access to education and employment opportunities.

Sullivan has also been a vocal critic of the United States government’s policies, particularly those that have led to the deterioration of inner-city neighborhoods. He has called for a more equitable distribution of resources and has been a strong advocate for community-based solutions to the problems facing urban areas.

Sullivan’s contributions to the civil rights movement have been widely recognized and celebrated. He has received numerous awards and honors for his work, including the Presidential Medal of Freedom, which is the highest civilian honor that can be bestowed upon a civilian.

Dr. Leon Sullivan presented his National's Highest Civilian Award to Smith's Food & Drug Center. Smith's Food & Drug Centers, a leading regional supermarket chain based in Riverside, has been recognized for its contributions to the local community. The award was presented by Rev. Sullivan to Mr. and Mrs. Bush at a ceremony in the store.

Smith's Food & Drug Centers has a long history of supporting the local community. The company has been involved in a variety of initiatives, including support for education, health care, and the arts. Smith's has also been a leader in recycling, with a recycling program that allows customers to donate recyclable materials to the store.

Rev. Sullivan praised Smith's for its commitment to the community and its role in making Riverside a better place to live. He called Smith's a model for other businesses to follow in their efforts to support their local communities.

Smith's Food & Drug Centers has been owned and operated by the same family for over 50 years. The company has 11 stores in the Riverside area and employs over 1,000 people. It is an active member of the Riverside Chamber of Commerce and supports a variety of local organizations.

Rev. Sullivan noted that Smith's has been a leader in the community for many years. He called the company a model for other businesses to follow in their efforts to support their local communities.

The Reverend Leon Sullivan, a civil rights leader and pastor of Emanuel of the Zion Baptist Church in Philadelphia, has devoted his life to the cause of liberty and justice. Reverend Sullivan founded Opportunities Industrial Centers of America, one of the largest and most prestigious job training organizations in the world. He later founded the International Foundation for Education and Self-Help. In 1971, Leon Sullivan was elected to the Board of Directors of General Motors, becoming the first black person elected to a board of a Fortune 500 company. He entered into the realm of public service through a position in the department of a U.S. Government agency, where he would work to bring about change for all people, the way to freedom.

Rev. Sullivan was chosen by members of his family, his wife, Grace, a son, Howard, and two daughters, Julie Sullivan Johnson, and Hope Sullivan-Hurley.

WHAT'S NEW IN THE NATION

For the week ending February 28, 1992. With the recycling of textbooks, and the magnitude of environmental impact, each member of the winning regional and national teams will receive a $1,000 college scholarship and their respective schools will receive up to $10,000 in college scholarships from their respective schools.

A number of schools have multiple teams working on projects. While rules limit each school to submitting only one entry, Ms. Bartholomew of Lourdes High School in Chicago, Illinois says, "the competition has developed into a class assignment. The faculty will be responsible for determining the best entry for submission." Mr. Alan Cockrell, Director of Youth Resources, Chandra Llewellyn, said that there are seven principles of NULITES which she works towards: 1. To strive for excellence 2. To work within neighborhood to further its development 3. To respect the mind, as well as the body, and the mind and bodies of others. 4. To celebrate young people’s heritage and culture as well as those of others. 5. To create a better future for their family, other people and themselves. 6.
