Tom Hauser: Author of Missing

Tom Hauser, author of the controversial book "Missing", will speak at 7 p.m., Monday, Oct. 25, in the Student Union at Cal State, San Bernardino.

The film version of Hauser's story about a young free-lance writer killed in Chile provoked an official statement from the State Department objecting to the film's allegations that the United States had advance notice of and possible complicity in Charles Homan's death.

According to Hauser's story, six days after the right-wing military coup toppled the Marxist rule of Salvador Allende Gossens in 1973, Homan disappeared from his home in Santiago. He later was found murdered.

A lawyer turned-writer who had met Homan's father and wife two years prior to the Chilean incident, Hauser traces their search and frustrated attempts to discover the truth.

Collective Bargainer Needed

The California State Student Association (CSSA), representing over 300,000 students in the California State University system, this week launched a drive to recruit individual students who will represent for the University system's entire student population at upcoming contract negotiations between CSU management and labor organizations of academic and student service personnel.

The Higher Education Employer-Employee Relations Act (HEERA), which covers public higher education employees is unique in the nation, in giving students an independent third-party role at the bargaining table.

"This will be the first round of negotiations for 3 of the bargaining units; students are currently allowed to participate," stated CSSA's Collective Bargaining Director, Sharon Mills, who is also a CSSG alumnus. "Students have already participated in one set of negotiations between CSU and the Physicians, and were well received. The CSSA hopes for similar success in future negotiations."

Student representatives have the right to comment upon contract proposals submitted by labor and management during negotiations, and express concern that their counterparts see student interests in jeopardy.

The CSSA is seeking students who are interested in collective bargaining and knowledgeable of student issues. Direction on policy will be given by the Association's collective bargaining committee to help representatives analyze contract proposals.

Although HEERA has been in effect since 1979, voting for exclusive representation did not occur until early 1982," Paul Knepprath, the CSSA collective bargaining chairman said. "The CSSA lobbied to ensure that HEERA included students.

The CSSA hopes for similar success in future negotiations."

The student government at each of the University's nineteen campuses will choose one student nominee for collective bargaining representative. The actual representation will then be selected from among these nineteen by an ad hoc selection committee. Only four student representatives will be selected during the upcoming selection process.

The positions will be unpaid, but the students will receive special training and travel expenses for attending negotiation sessions.

Students wishing more information on CSU collective bargaining, or an application can contact Elise Traynum, A.S. President and collective bargaining representative, in the A.S. office or by calling her at 887-7494. The application deadline is November 5, 1982.

'82-'83 Student Aid Down

Costs at both independent and public California colleges and universities have climbed beyond the reach of State student aid programs.

This fall, for the first time in 26 years, the California Student Aid Commission will be unable to pay full fees for its neediest Cal Grant recipients at either the University of California or the California State University systems, according to Arthur S. Marmaduke, Commission Director.

Costs at both independent and public California colleges and universities have climbed beyond the reach of State student aid programs.

In order to meet its five percent State general fund budget cut, required of all State agencies, the Commission reduced grant aid to students proportionally, from $75 to $75 per student.

However, because of the substantial increase in UC and CSU fees, the State Legislature gave the Student Aid Commission an additional $1.4 million to assist students at these two institutions.

The Student Aid Commission's budget for Cal Grants, with the $1.4 million added for UC and CSU students, is $84,536,000 for 1982-83, as opposed to $85,157,000 for 1981-82. With federal funding of State student grants holding steady this year at $11 million, the overall budget reduction for the agency is four percent.

The Student Aid Commission annually awards 62,462 Cal Grants (new and renewal) for student financial assistance. Students must attend a college or university within the state. Last year 105,337 students applied for these grants.

The Commission directs the State's financial assistance programs for college and postsecondary vocational school students. These programs include Cal Grants, State Graduate Fellowships, Bilingual Teacher Grants, and the California Guaranteed Student Loan Program.
Does the Draft Waste Money?

The Central Committee for Conscientious Objectors (CCCO), the nation's largest draft counseling agency, has started a list of people interested in non-registration issues, to which the organization sends out regular bulletins on developments in the area of non-registration. According to the General Accounting Office, over 700,000 men have not registered.

"The federal courts handle about 30,000 cases a year at this time," stated Jim Feldman, attorney at CCCO. "So far, only eight of these cases have involved non-registrants. There is no way the courts can handle hundreds of thousands of new cases."

The names of these suspected draft resistors are obtained by matchingSelective Service registration lists with Social Security Administration files. IRS then mails the letters. The first mailing has been sent to 33,000 men. Roscoe L. Egger, Jr., Commissioner of IRS, has said IRS only plans to turn over 200 addresses to Selective Service out of those who don't respond to the warning letter because it seems unlikely the Justice Department would prosecute more than that number.

"People who receive these letters, or have questions concerning non-registration clearly need more information which CCCO can give them," attorney Feldman said. CCCO has started a list of people interested in non-registration issues, to which the organization sends out regular bulletins on developments in the area of non-registration. According to the General Accounting Office, over 700,000 men have not registered.

At this time the federal government has only indicted eight people for refusal to register. The government is currently only charging non-registrants who have turned themselves in, as the eight above. Warning letters from the Justice Department have been sent to some non-registrants turned in to the government by private individuals.

In addition to sending out periodic information on non-registrants, CCCO counsels individuals concerning their specific problems, and helps non-registrants find lawyers. CCCO also helps people in the military who are looking for discharges and does enlistment counseling, telling people considering the military the other side of the story from that which is given in the recruitment ads. For further information, please write to Carol McNeill, c/o CCCO, 2208 South St., Philadelphia, PA., 19146, or call her at (215)645-4626.

The Facts on Proposition 15

Proposition 15 campaign leaders charged that out-of-state munitions makers are trying to protect their profits with massive contributions to oppose the California handgun initiative on November's ballot.

According to the opposition campaign's own figures, a total of $565,000 had been pumped into the effort to defeat Proposition 15 by a dozen gun and ammunition manufacturers. All but one are located outside California.

Apparently, the industry funneled more than half a million dollars into California in less than a month. On July 22, when Citizens Against the Gun Initiative reported to the Secretary of State a total of $666,000 in contributions, only $64,000 was identified as munitions money.

The latest figures are contained in a CAGI ad in the September issue of American Rifleman magazine, a publication of the National Rifle Association.

At news conferences in Los Angeles, San Diego, San Francisco, and Sacramento, Yes on 15 leaders accused the gun makers of cynically trying to buy the November election. "The people who profit from an unrestricted trade in handguns have an obvious economic interest in the election's outcome," said State Chairman Victor H. Palmieri.

"They have little concern for the safety and well-being of Californians. What matters to them is profit."

Palmieri called attention to a recent statement by James L. Oberg, president of Smith & Wesson, which makes one out of every five handguns used to commit crimes.

Oberg replied, "I sell the handguns the market is demanding...I would have to say we are focusing on dollars more than anything else. Most of our motivation of what we do here is to supply dollars to our stockholders." Yes on 15 director John R. Phillips pointed out that Smith & Wesson alone has contributed $100,000 to the opposition campaign, while the largest single contributor is Sturm, Ruger & Co., which has given $170,000.

"This is a clear indication of how the opponents intend to finance their campaign blitz—not with small donations from individuals but with huge infusions of money from out-of-state gun merchants," Phillips said.

"The voters of California should be on notice. They can expect one of the biggest campaigns of distortion and deception on record."

THE FACTS on Proposition 15

It will:

—Strengthen existing laws regarding the registration of handguns.
—Require registration of all handguns with the Attorney General by November 2, 1983.
—Make registration information confidential.
—Enable law enforcement officers to track down the owner of a handgun used in a crime.
—Provide that after April 30, 1983, only registered handgun will be eligible for resale, and thereby limits the number to those in circulation on that date.
—Prohibit importation of handguns, except by law enforcement personnel and other exempted categories, after November 2, 1982.
—Impose a mandatory prison sentence of one year for engaging in the sale of blackmarket handguns.
—Establish civil liability for anyone who knowingly violates the registration requirement in transferring a handgun that is then used for wrongfully or negligently kill or injure someone else.
—Prohibit the Legislature from placing additional restrictions on the ownership of rifles and shotguns.
—Prohibit the Legislature from banning ownership of handguns without a prior vote of the people.

It won't:

—Take handguns away from law-abiding citizens.
—Prohibit a person who does not own a handgun from buying one at any time.
—Impose a mandatory prison sentence of one year for engaging in the sale of blackmarket handguns.

The following is purely fictional. No actual persons, living or dead, should be inferred.

- College Students: Young men and women embarking on a new beginning; learning, meeting new people and experiencing those things that prepare them for life.
- This is their story...
- Anne Wheeler arrived on the campus of Fibber University young, independent and very ambitious. All her life she had dreamed of becoming a writer. This was where she intended to fulfill that dream.
- Her first stop was at the school newspaper "The Fibber Weekly", where she applied for a job as a reporter.
- There, Anne met Nick Rossi, the head of the English department and advisor to the newspaper. Nick was a handsome, outspoken man with a very low opinion of women. When Anne walked into his office with a kind of cocky confidence, he was instantly turned off. Despite reservations, he hired her to do small errands. Anne was glad to get the job and planned to move up soon.

- Annes next stop was at her dormatory, Moosehead Hall. She began moving in and met her two roommates, Millissa Moore and Jennifer Aims. Millissa was a well refined girl with a wide-eyed innocence. Anne and Millissa became friends right away. Jennifer, however, was less than receptive. She was a very private girl and made it quite clear that her personal life was to remain just that: Personal!
- While Anne finished unpacking, Millissa met her boyfriend Matt Agretti at "Agretti's Pizza Bowl", a college hangout run by his sister, Gina.
- Matt and Millissa had only been dating a few months but together they had found endless love. They spent hours together. Millissa, however, was not being honest with Matt. He was proud and headstrong and took pride in how his family had survived the effects of poverty. Because of this, Millissa was afraid to tell Matt that she was from a wealthy family and even more afraid to tell her family that Matt was poor.
- Millissas fears were augmented by a mysterious man who watched her.
- In the meantime, Jennifer had good reason to keep her life personal. She checked into a motel just outside town where she had a secret rendezvous with John Colby, the school's dean. With Jennifer, John had found an escape from his stressful life. His wife Julia was an alcoholic, his 20 year old son was flunking out of school and his 16 year old daughter was caught playing tackle with four quarterbacks, two linemen, and a tight end. John knew however, his affair couldn't last forever.
- Later, Jennifer and John returned to campus to find that John's son had driven his Maserati up the library stairs and through the front wall.

Foreign Study Costs Down

Because the US Dollar has strengthened in recent months vis-a-vis the French Franc and the Spanish Peseta, Academic Year Abroad, an educational service organization which arranges individualized study in the Universite de Paris and the Universidad de Madrid, announces that costs will be greatly lower beginning with the spring semester of 1983. In France, for example, where the rate of exchange is the most favorable for Americans that it has ever been, the reduction is more than $800.00 per year, $400.00 per semester. Thus, the costs are often much less than the cost of a semester in an American university.

Applications for spring and fall 1983 are now being received by Academic Year Abroad, 17 Jansen Road, New Paltz, NY 12561. Students wishing a brochure and application should send two 20¢ stamps to the above address.

Legislative Internship Program

Interests in spending the Spring Semester Working for the Legislature in Sacramento?

Professor Jean Torcom, CSU, Sacramento, announced today that the Sacramento Semester Internship Program is now accepting applications for Spring 1983 from freshmen enrolled at all 19 state university campuses. Torcom, the program coordinator, explained that the state-wide program is a combined package of an internship within the state government and an intensive seminar in California government and politics. The goal of this total immersion into the political scene is to give the students a learning experience in public policy formation that would otherwise not be available to them.

Since the beginning of several years ago, interns have been placed in offices representing nearly every aspect of state government. Many program alumni, who now number over 300, are now working in Sacramento as lobbyists, consultants, of legislative staffs.

Interested students should contact their home campus Political Science Department. Each campus has a member of the Political Science faculty serving as the local representative to the program. Information can also be obtained directly from Professor Torcom through the CSU, Sacramento Department of Government, 6000 Jay Street, Sacramento, California 95819. The application deadline is Monday, October 25, 1982.

For further information contact Jean Torcom: (916) 454-6387 or 454-6202.
