LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

DIRECTOR:
(Handwritten Response to Testimony Article)

This is to respond to your comment in the Black Voice News on Thursday, April 16, 1992. I would like to make it clear up front that this is not an attack on my race, but rather a way to improve our community. I have been an active participant in my community since I was 15 years old, and you were present at my 18th birthday. We have been together over 22 years, which is a rarity in itself to have something that stands the test of time. I think about the incident and how it affected me, and I back her and stand beside her in whatever action she seeks or takes.

In closing, I would like to say that the incident in Los Angeles is a wake-up call to all Americans. It is a tragic event that has touched the lives of many. As Americans, we must stand together, not only as a nation, but as a community.

Sincerely,

JOHN E. JACOB

When the (Frederick) Brown trial was over and the jury acquitted the four White police officers, whose act of brutality against a Black motorist Rodney King was witnessed by the nation and the world, it was thought that they were experiencing a triumph of the law and another place.

But as the right campaign and Freedom Marches of the 1960’s continued, and the Supreme Court decision of Brown v. Board of Education was made, the failure of tribunals in the deep south to meet even the minimums of Black men in asanas was overwhelmed by the public.

Black citizens was usual and customary.

Do we have to be pushed before we change?

Knowing what we are up against is an important element in this process. Understanding the uses of money, inflation, governmental securities, mutual funds, bonds, and the full spectrum of financial services and opportunities which are open to us in our community. We simply need to know.

Self-help begins with self-preservation. The only way to get from one to the other is by action. Determining where we are and where we want to go is an important element in making the transition worthwhile. As many of us have painfully discovered in filing for bankruptcy, divorce, medical care or financial aid, if we were to have acted when we should, our suffering would have been shortened.

A couple preparing to purchase a home monthly asked the question, What is the difference in the relationship or duty owed by real estate licensees to sellers and buyers.

In order to answer the question we must consider several elements. First, the nature of the relationship owed by a real estate to his or her clients or customers.

According to Civil Code Section 2225. An agent is one who represents another, called the principal, in dealings with third persons. Such representation is called agency.

When a seller and real estate license to undertake the task of selling the seller's home and signs a listing agreement, an agency relationship is created. The agent owes loyalty to the principal (seller) and a duty owed to a fiduciary relationship which the law compares to the duty owed to a beneficiary by a trust under a trust (Civil Code Section 2226 et seq.).

In most real estate transactions, the estate broker acts as an agent for someone else (principal) who seeks to sell or purchase (exchange etc.) from a third party. From the

The television industry can do better than they are doing for children by bringing more value content and character training to the public. I realize they are striving to provide the most useful program (the so-called "good news") but I think they are not making a profit if no one is listening.

The academic loophole too, is open. I'm told that many private school systems are now being closed because of the lack of students. This is partly due to the lack of support we see in the education system. We must do something to make sure that the children have a good education.

We need to go not further than the nearest classroom to find who is interested in this type of training. We need to develop a values program that will enable a child to surmount the challenges of life with a clear conscience.

The support of the prayers of a host of our sources God will never be obstructed by human limitation of power. As I continue my work on the map. This is a prayer I keep with me at all times.

State Controller Gray Davis was in town recently to meet and greet the church-going community in one of his stops around the state. Davis is in the midst of an election and the only candidate in his race mining their campaign to the people.

Davis got an ear full as he not only worshiped with congregations at four local churches, but fellowshipped following services with local residents.

His first stop was Amos Temple CMI. Rev. James Washington is pastor. Davis told the congregation about his record in the field of education.

The next service, Second Baptist, T. Elsworth Guest, pastor. Gray Davis again addressed the congregation and spoke about his stand on what is right for the constituents.

At New Hope Church, LeMar Foster, pastor. Davis was introduced and said he need them to win.

Later he said he did not take the people for granted and if it was necessary to ask for their vote. Many had questions for him. Many had comments on how his office helped in given situations. There was a social following the morning service.
