LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor,

I wanted to suggest that the Black and Hispanic community need to support the Sun. Where do you go after you've failed to support the African American community? The Sun had been the paper of record for the African American community for years. But when you failed to support the African American community, the Black and Hispanic community need to support the Sun.

Sincerely,

Black Adoption Agency Opens

The Institute for Black Public Service (IBP), the first Black adoption agency in Southern California announces the opening of a new location in Riverside, an inland Empire Community.

The opening day consisted of entertainment, political and community leaders, foster families, and IBP supporters.

Since IBP began providing adoption services in Los Angeles in September, 1974, IBP has been the source of placement for over 500 adoptive and placements to date. IBP has placed more unattached Black children than any other agency in the 5 largest counties combined.

There are currently over 19,000 Black children in the Los Angeles county area alone and over 150 Black children in the Orange, San Bernardino and Riverside areas who are without permanent homes.

For the first time in California history, Black children are now the majority of children in foster care. Black children remain in foster care twice as long as any other ethnic group. The average length of stay in foster care is three years for Black children.

Based on these statistics, IBP is prepared to carry out the mission of finding permanent, stable homes for those Black children who are waiting to be adopted.

For more information about the IBP, please call (800) 367-6585.

BLACKS AND THE TYPE II DIABETIC

Deaf. Fasting. Type II Diabetes. What are the facts on diabetes and exercise? For years, small studies have suggested - but not proved - that exercise and diet activity may prevent at least some cases of non-insulin-dependent diabetes mellitus (NIDDM).

For example, the "Adult Onset" or Type II Diabetes, is believed to occur in over 12 million people in the United States. Diabetes may start at any age but usually appears after age 35, especially in people with Type I diabetes, also: "insulin-dependent" or "juvenile" disease, whose bodies do not manufacture any insulin at all, those with type II diabetes who use some insulin hormone but not often enough.

Evidence linking exercise to a decreased incidence of adult onset diabetes began emerging in 1974. Studies indicate that NIDDM occurs less frequently in physically active societies than in sedentary ones, and that incidence of the disorder tends to increase if a group of people become markedly less active.

New studies confirm that in fitness conscious states such as California and Florida the number of people with Type II Diabetes cases is not only lower than other areas or other countries, but the American Diabetes Association reports a twelve percent decrease in cases since 1990. Men who are over

Delta Savings Bank Files Civil Rights Lawsuit

A administrative law judge on Monday began a 10-day hearing against Delta Savings Bank and former vice president Steven Olson.

The hearing is being held in the Superior Court in Los Angeles to determine whether Olson is entitled to financial relief because he was not represented by counsel after he was fired in 1988.

Olson is represent leading attorneys in the case, and the judge is expected to render a decision in the summer of 1993.

Delta Savings Bank is one of the nation’s largest savings institutions, with assets of about $2 billion.

The bank filed a lawsuit charging Olson with civil rights violations, including racial discrimination.

The bank is seeking about $500,000 in legal fees, and Olson is seeking about $2 million in damages.

Olson’s lawyers say he was wrongfully terminated by the bank and that the bank discriminated against him because of his race.

The case is being heard by Judge Nathan B. Kanter.

MBA’s For Minorities:

Destination MBA Coming To LA

Destination MBA, a financial aid seminar for minority college students and graduates considering MBA programs, will be held November 15 and 16 at the Fairmont Hotel in Los Angeles.

The seminar is open and free to all interested individuals, though the program and refreshments are targeted to the students of the Hispanic, African and American MBA prospects.

Co-sponsored by the non-profit Graduate Management Admission Council (GMAC), the National Black MBA Association (NBMBA), the National Association of Hispanic MBA’s (NAHMA), Destination MBA is held annually in major U.S. cities. This is the 7th consecutive year for the seminar, which in 1992 will travel to ten U.S. cities.

William James, National Director of the program, said that attendees will have the opportunity to be exposed directly with minority MBA graduates and admissions, as well as with admissions, placement, and financial officers from various schools of business and management.

The Los Angeles seminar will be followed by MBA seminars in other major U.S. cities.

These five young men, J.A.E., D.O.C., Flame, Junesky and Caste have lived the hard rap approach with a positive message, energizing the state with synchronized dance routines and positive messages. They recently performed at a San Bernardino Valley College dance. Their EP which includes five songs, all having the word Watts in one form or another, presents positive messages. Their song's message is good because they make it clear that if some people in power were stripped of all their riches and connections and were sent to live in a poor neighborhood, they would never survive.

Publishers As Advocates For Blacks

BY WILLIAM REED

A recent West Coast Black Publishers Association (WCBPA) conference revealed that, while Black publishers in this part of the country reflect an illustration of the views of African American electorate. The publisher's guest speaker, Ron Dellums, congressional representative for the 40 percent of Black Oakland and Berkeley, California districts where the campaign was held, added that Black publishers are more on target with the needs and feelings of the people. Blacks will cast their presidential ballots. In addition to their common theories of urban crime and corruption and alleviating Black poverty, Dellums said the publishers that, "Black Americans would be better off under a Bill Clinton Administration. The 21-year member of Congress and the Congressional Black Caucus, whose national fame comes from his expertise on America's defense and military spending, accost the Bush Administration of being the source of urban America's crime and violence problems. He said that under Clinton, Black Americans could expect more government attention to their educational and employment needs, along with higher visibility among federal policy and decision-makers. In contrast, Post Newspaper Group publisher, Tom Berkeley, and John Holoman, publisher of the Herald Dispatch, in Los Angeles, were openly supportive of such candidates as Ross Perot and President Bush. Also, many of the publishers' newspapers are covering the candidates of African Americans Lenora Palmer and Ron Daniels Berkeley, a successful businessman and resident of Delmartor district, has stated that, "Ron Perot's candidacy offers significant players in the November elections and to put in the White House a man with no built-in bias against full Black participation in the land." In addition to politics, the 22 Black publishers held workshops that WCBPA President Berme Foster said were, "Relevant to challenging our communities to shape a better future now." Foster, publisher of the Portland and Seattle Skanner Group publications, hosted Terry McMillan, author of "Waiting to Exhale"; Sister To Sister magazine publisher Janice Brown, actor Clifton Davis, and other African American corporate leaders who lead discussions on equity for Black women, Blacks and communities. The publishers and ministers and religious leaders. The former president of the NBC "Amer" T.V. Show told the Second Annual Black Press/Black Church gathering that it is in both groups' responsibility to bring the African American community "Access Success" works and God. Davis' worship session took us to many churches from Northern California, communities. The group's community leadership bonding and strengthened by lawyer, Brown, publisher of the Black Voice News, former church trustee in San Bernardino, CA, and Clifton Davis, publisher of the African American and Democratic state senator. B y now, you have at least heard about UC's Young African American youth club called Saturday Academy. But what do you really know about the program?

Saturday Scholar Nakisha Hoxie has interviewed the program's coordinator, her mother and a fellow student scholar and has written the 411 on the program.

Q: How did you become the Coordinator of Saturday Academy?
A: It was an idea that started about four years ago. People within the Riverside community wanted to explore ways to help the Black youth in school, who we found, were not graduating from school with the marketing, and speaking to other groups who might benefit from our program.

Q: What are the goals and objectives for Saturday Academy?
A: To train a highly intelligent group of young black leaders who will serve the community.

Q: What do you think is the difference between Saturday Academy and regular public school?
A: Obviously, the opportunity to study about ourselves through Pan African History.

Q: What are some important issues you would like to stress to all scholars?
A: To DARE to respect others, and to strive for excellence without excuse. Lastly, to be of service to family and community, particularly the African American community.

Q: What are your expectations for the Saturday Academy Scholars?
A: To study hard, help their parents, to graduate from high school with honors, and to go on to college.

Valerie J. Hoxie

Q: How many children do you have attending Saturday Academy?
A: Just one.

Q: What is your child's name?
A: Nakisha Hoxie.

Q: Did you learn about the Saturday Academy through the newspaper?
A: Through friends who had their children in the program last year.

Q: How do you feel Saturday Academy will help students get into college?
A: I believe that Saturday Academy will help with your college plans. It's in the field of humanities, and it builds your child's self-esteem. Saturday Academy will help students get into college.

The Hotline has interviewed the program's coordinator, her mother and a fellow student scholar and has written the 411 on the program.

Michael Jordan

Playing basketball has become an income supplement for superstars such as Michael Jordan, who openly acknowledges that he is driven by the prospect of insider trading and the annual ranking of the world's highest-paid athletes. In 1991 alone, salaries from professional endorsements, which are often worth millions of dollars, added $32 million to his income. In addition to playing basketball, Forbes listed him as making $40 million a year from his various business interests, which include real estate ventures and investments in technology and entertainment companies.

Jordan's close relationship with Nike, Inc., for about $20 million is the beginning of a multi-year contract. This is a part of a program to boost the Kirkwood community. It is expected to be an income supplement for Jordan, says his agent, David Angel.

The following is a list of the top 15 money-makers expressed in millions:

1. Michael Jordan, basketball: $35.9
2. Evander Holyfield, boxing: $35.9
3. Arnold Palmer, golf: $35.9
4. Wayne Gretzky, hockey: $35.9
5. Ayrton Senna, auto racing: $28
6. Dan Majerle and Tom Chambers, Phoenix Suns: $17
7. Walt Disney, movies and TV: $17
8. Leon Karavos, auto racing: $14.5
10. George Foreman, boxing: $10
11. Magic Johnson, basketball: $10
12. Henry Aaron, baseball: $8.2
14. Dan Marino, football: $6.5
15. Dan Melo, basketball: $6.5

The tournament of world's highest-paid athletes

There is no such thing as an easy day, no self respect, and low self esteem is not the only reason for the rise of sports. The world of sports community has accepted Apartheid, a policy of the white minority rule in South Africa, back into the international sports community. The world sports community has accepted Apartheid back into the sports mix, including the Olympic family. Commemorative of the fact that I am wrong, but isn't Apartheid still the governing document? Has that much progress really been made or has there been a lack of levels for injustices changed?

Many of our young people feel this way. It is too easy to start. If we would all work together as a team for friendship and responsibility there would be no need to tell a lie, and all of the drug talk and money and mo-money. Together we can do a lot.
Proposal Seeks To Cut Car Taxes

TOPEKA, Kan.

A legislative committee today endorsed a proposal to cut property taxes on cars, pickups, motorcycles and passenger vans about 17 percent, but home and business owners could pick up the tab.

The Special Committee on Assessment and Taxation voted for a bill that would cut the property assessment rate for motor vehicles, a change that would lower the value of those vehicles for the purposes of levying taxes. The plan could save vehicle owners $36 million statewide.

However, the proposal represents a tax shift, rather than a "true" tax cut. That's because cities and counties could be forced to increase their property tax levies to replace the lost revenue, increasing taxes on real estate.

The committee endorsed the proposal on a voice vote, and the action automatically forwarded the plan to the 1993 Legislature.

"It gives some hope," she said, "but the committee's support gives the plan more buoyancy."

"It gives it some olive branch," she said.

The fees and taxes Kansans pay to register their cars are, on average, among the highest in the nation. Over the past several years, the Legislature has considered various proposals for decreasing vehicle property taxes, but supporters have not been able to round up enough votes.

Some past proposals would have imposed a uniform schedule of vehicle registration fees statewide, and they received opposition from lawmakers in areas with low property tax levies.

The committee's proposal would cut the assessment rate for vehicles from 30 percent of their appraised value to 25 percent.

A $10,000 car would be listed on the tax rolls at $2,500 instead of $3,000. If the property taxes levied in a city were 100 mills, the car's owner would pay $250 in taxes, instead of $300 under existing law.

"To me, it's a step that needs to be taken," said Glen Freut, a Topeka car dealer and member of Citizens Against Vehicular Extortion, a group pushing for lower vehicle taxes. "I think any relief at this time is appreciated."

Mrs. Waggon said she believes the proposal has support because Kansans hate paying the tax. She also said the committee's action means lawmakers from many parts of the state recognize that the problem is with the state's system, not with mill levies in individual areas.

However, some committee members are wary of the proposal because of its potential to increase property for the home and business owners.

Rep. Betty Jo Charlton, D-Lawrence, said that committee members apparently have forgotten the complaints arising from changes in the state's property tax system enacted in 1989.

Those changes, made by a constitutional amendment passed in 1986, shifted part of the tax burden from large businesses to home owners and small businesses by eliminating property taxes on merchants and manufacturers' inventories.

"The problem over the years has been the narrowing of the tax base," Mrs. Charlton said. "Here is another narrowing, another shift."

This is a tough problem even for bright kids.

It's not math or science that's keeping bright kids out of college. It's home economics. That's why giving to the United Negro College Fund is so important.

As the most experienced source in providing general operating support for historically black colleges, we've enabled thousands of deserving students to get a quality education.
