Marketing Winner

And now ladies and gentlemen, the winner of the Marketing Association's Spring drawing is none other than Elaine Irwin. Elaine is a junior and a Computer Science major. She lives in the Morongo dorm. Her guess of 485 balloons was only two off the mark. The total number of balloons in the BMW was 483. There were ten other people who were close, but not close enough.

The runners-up were Richard Stevens (486), and J. Lewis (486), followed by Harold Branstrator (479), Barbara Guyton (488), Ray Johnson (478), Maria Rogue (489), Jesse McDonald (489), Ron Burdette (489), Kandy ? (489), and last, but not least Lori Storer (476). Honorable mention goes out to Melvin Walker who guessed that there were "a lot" of balloons. We would like to say thanks to all those who did not participate.

The total number of guesses made was 666. The number is lower than we expected. We had hoped to get at least 1,000, but considering the level of student apathy we did alright. We would like to thank all those who did take the time to participate, and tough luck to those who did not participate.

The Spring Quarter is going to be a busy one for the Marketing Association. We are involved in a number of interesting projects. We would like to say thanks to those who did not participate.

DIALOG System Speeds Research For Students

Anyone who has done research in libraries has experienced the tedium of finding sources through card catalogs and periodical indexes. Now students, faculty and staff at Cal State, San Bernardino are able to by-pass much of the manual work by going directly to a computer for their bibliography of periodicals.

In the introductory stage in the Pau Library through June 30, the data base search service uses a system by DIALOG Information Services, Inc., a subsidiary of the Lockheed Corporation.

"We'll start off cautiously and perhaps be able to open the services to people from off campus eventually," said John Tibbals, head of external library operations and coordinator of data base search services at the college.

Patrons discuss the subject they are researching with one of the data base searchers in the Library Reference Department. Through the computer, the researcher has access to more than 150 data bases which contain more than 50 million records on subjects, including education, science, technology, social science, business, economics and humanities.

"The machine is doing in a few minutes what you would have to do manually by going to different sources. The machine is drawing on all those sources at the same time," Tibbals said.

He explained that the patron does not receive the entire document or article, but rather a bibliographic summary of the material.

To meet expenses in excess of the allotted $5,000, users will be charged a percentage of the cost of their searches after June 30. If they eventually become eligible for service, off campus patrons will be assessed the full cost.

"The machine is doing...what would take forever manually."

The charge for each search is determined by the time the phone call takes, and by the cost per hour for use of the data base, which can range from $25 to $300, Tibbals said. However, the typical search takes 15 to 30 minutes, with an average cost of $15 to $30, he said. Except during the introductory period, patrons would pay a percentage of this amount.

Bibliographic information is provided through DIALOG in two forms. One can either obtain a simple listing of sources or a listing that also includes a brief summary (or abstract) of each source.

To minimize the use of time on the computer, the patron can have the listing printed "off line" and sent through the mail, instead of being printed "on line" by the computer. The user can also determine at any point during the search how much the search has cost so far and can end it at that time.
Parents' Activities

Weekend Planned

We have observed that most of the parents or guardians of the residents of Serrano Village have never been to campus or seldom visit. It is our impression that most of the students would like to show off the campus and Village where they spend most of their time.

The Housing Office, Serrano Village Council, and Students Assisting Students (SAS) are planning their Second Annual Parents Weekend on April 22, 23, and 24 in conjunction with the College's and the Inland Empire's first major computer workshop and technical exhibit hosted by Cal State San Bernardino.

The students of Serrano Village are responsible for this weekend and will provide the leadership and support to make the parents feel at home. In a way it is a clear expression of thanks to parents for their love and care.

Living in Serrano Village enhances the college experience. The condominium-style houses feature five-bedroom suites, each with its own bath, study room, and living room. The Village Council spearheads planning for a variety of activities and parties. Village residents have their own solar-heated pool, volleyball courts and barbecue area, and the college gym, tennis and hard-surfaced courts are nearby. Whether you live on campus, you have an even better opportunity to participate in the more than 40 clubs and organizations and intramural sports.

There are new friends to be made from this area as well as from other countries and cultures. Students who live in the Village also tend to earn better grades.

If you haven't seen Serrano Village, we invite you to take a tour. Please contact Dr. Craig Henderson, Housing Director, or Sherri Deutchman, Assistant Director, at the Housing Office for more information (887-7405).

Hi!

I am Lee Ann Overstreet, and am a candidate for Associated Students President. Currently a junior in Political Science, I have attended Cal State San Bernardino since Fall 1980. I feel extremely close to the campus community and am quite interested in continuing to work for students through their elected body, the Associated Students.

Since Fall 1982, I have been the Executive Assistant to the President of the Associated Students. These past seven months have provided me with an invaluable opportunity to become aware of what exactly the responsibilities of the Associated Students are and what the Associated Students are capable of doing for the CSCSB student body. Being active in Associated Students has allowed me to become part of other campus committees and boards.

This year I have been involved in many campus and student-oriented organizations. I am on the Student Union Board of Directors and Chair of its Policy and Procedures Committee. I am Chair of the Budget Crisis Committee, a committee formed to make students aware of the fee increases and the decline in quality in the CSU system. President Evans has appointed me as one of two student representatives on the Intercollegiate Sports Task Force, a group which is investigating the possibility of introducing intercollegiate athletics to CSCSB.

As a member of the college community, I am naturally quite concerned about academics. I have maintained above a 3.5 GPA and am a member of both Phi Sigma Alpha and Phi Kappa Phi.

I have provided a brief background about myself to better help you in your selection for the office of Associated Students President. I am concerned and interested in the future of the CSCSB campus community and would greatly appreciate your support and vote on April 27 and 28.

Thank you,

Lee Ann Overstreet

M.A. In Chicago

by Mitch Slagerman

As the airplane bounced down the runway at O'Hare International Airport in Chicago on that cold and dreary April 7, I wondered what was in store for me. This was the first time I had attended a National Leadership Convention for Collegiate Chapters of the American Marketing Association. I have to admit that I was excited.

The purpose of the convention, which was held at the Hyatt Regency Chicago for the last five years, is to provide students with invaluable knowledge on how to properly manage a collegiate chapter of the AMA, an organization developed for the betterment of marketing.

Students from all parts of the nation attended, and I had the great opportunity to meet and exchange ideas with many of them. Just as important, Cal State San Bernardino received national exposure.

While I was in Chicago, there was so much to see, learn and do. I attended several sessions in which students expressed their ideas on various subjects of chapter management. Some of these subjects included membership recruiting, fund raising, and how to deal with the problems of a commuting college. Nighttime activities were quite interesting, too. Chicago is famous for its own Rush St., an avenue known for its numerous exciting bars and cabarets. Budweiser and Miller Brewing Companies were also very generous in providing libations at two different parties.

Overall, I feel the trip was very successful. I have returned to Cal State loaded with many ideas and plans that definitely will increase the activity of the college's Marketing Association. I am looking forward to attending next year's convention.

Anyone else interested in attending should consider joining the Marketing Association.

Attention! The June 11 ACT test has been cancelled due to last year's low enrollment. The test will be offered July 16 and August 27.

Rod Hendry
President

My name is Rod Hendry, and I am running for A.S. President because I am very interested in the development of this campus. In my administration under Elise Traynum has been good. It has pointed our campus in a positive direction which may either be maintained, advanced, or reversed, depending on our next administration. It is, therefore, important to cast your vote because who you put in office will determine the course of this campus. It is my wish that this momentus not be lost. In order to continue to advance, I propose that we keep two objectives in mind: the improvement of campus and services. This will be a difficult step, but I have been Chairman of the Committee for Clubs. I have represented Cal State at a Model United Nations conference at Oregon State University. I helped Philippine nationals with planning and organizing while on an International Summer Project with Campus Crusade for Christ. I have worked as Program Director at Arrowhead Springs High School camps, where I designed the curriculum and implementing them. As you can see, I have been involved not only with this campus but with the community as well.

Lee Ann Overstreet
President

Hi! I am Lee Ann Overstreet and am a candidate for Associated Students President. This year I have been actively involved with the Associated Students as the Executive Assistant, and have gained insight as to how the Associated Students does and should serve its constituents. As your next President, I intend to apply this knowledge and experience next year.

This year I have been a part of many campus and student-oriented organizations. I am on the Student Union Board of Directors and Chair of its Policy and Procedures Committee. I am Chair of the Budget Crisis Committee, a committee formed to make students aware of the fees increases and the decline in quality in the CSU system. President Evans has appointed me as one of two student representatives on the Intercollegiate Sports Task Force, a group which is investigating the possibility of introducing intercollegiate athletics to CSCSB. My many involvements this year show that I am more than just a concerned student. I have a deep interest in the future of Cal State San Bernardino. President Evans has injected this campus with new life and opened doors for all of us. As your next A.S. President, I will keep those doors open and open many new ones.

What other reasons do I have for running? I enjoy being with people. I do more than just work with them. I listen to them, help them, and talk to them. When I am President next year, I will maintain a visible presence among my constituents.

As a member of the college community, I am naturally quite concerned about academics. I have maintained above a 3.5 GPA and am a member of both Phi Sigma Alpha and Phi Kappa Phi.

I have provided a brief background about myself to better help you in your selection for the office of Associated Students President. I am concerned and interested in the future of CSCSB and would greatly appreciate your support and vote on April 27 and April 28.

Roneet Lev
President

After graduation this year I want to devote next year to our college to work on the promotion of quality education and student life. In my four years at CSCSB I have watched and participated in Student Government. Next year promises to be a special one. We have a new college president, new spirit, and new hopes. It will be an opportunity for both students and their government to increase student input into college policy making.

It is becoming obvious that increases in fees and the possibility of tuition should preclude any unnecessary increases in student services fees. In the past A.S. has failed to take an opportunity to begin generating their own revenue. A first step would be the student ownership of campus vending machines. Other areas for change is modernizing our registration process and making more activities available to more students.

Without the involvement of all of us, the goal to bring new spirit and vitality to Cal State cannot succeed-care about your campus and your future.

Eugene Padilla
President

Much has been said in the last few days regarding the reasons that would compel student to run for an A.S. Office, as well as what qualifications this person would need to possess in order to persuade the constituency to elect that person to office. I fear that those conversations were only the tip of the iceberg, and so I will take this allotted time to voice my opinions on what I feel are the issues. I hope you will accept my apology for not accosting you with signs and posters as my counterparts have done. In the following words I offer you nothing more than simple facts, plain arguments, and common sense.

In my first year here I have made many observations. The main observation, that I saw first, seems to be the biggest problem on campus, and the one from which the others have grown their will. The problem is apathy. But this apathy is not an inherent characteristic of the student body. No, this disease is a legacy left to us by the policies of Dr. Price, and is spread by today’s over intrusive over controls placed there by him that continue to stand in our way by carrying on his policies. We now have an opportunity to change this direction. With Tony I have always been able to rebuild this institution into a college that is known for the accomplishments and quality of its students and not the integrity of the administration.

I see two problems standing in our way. One is not in our control but is probably the easiest to attain. That is to move on campus to the concerns over support services that originate in the President’s office. Basically these controls should lessen themselves because President Evans himself has demonstrated stagnation and atrophy of the campus that these controls have caused. And do not expect the gate to simply be left open. An equilibrium will have to be reached, we have only to ask. And, this in turn brings me to the second problem confronting us; our own form of representation. Why is it that we, as a unit, should never be able to define the purpose and direction of our student government. Why, with it being so easy to create a club, then receive funds for that club, as well as have access to facilities on campus, is there so little interest in any new ones. The answer is always the same; politics, or if you like, personality conflicts, special interests, and backroom politics. Why, with all we have available to offer ourselves and one another, do we still have these stumbling blocks? Because of this one problem we continue to foster more apathy in an area where we can least afford it—ourselves! And it must be here that I state my own qualifications for the office of President. But first I must tell you that I can offer no promises that these problems can be overcome or insure you that I myself will not fall victim to these sweet fruits that can grow so easily. So let me be the first, the first to question my own words. Someone need only face his misabilities in order to overcome them. And so I admit that I am a human being.

The qualifications that allow me to handle the office of A.S. President exceed my birth. I have had interesting indoctrination into the world of politics by being involved in numerous local, as well as state and federal elections. These include the election of State Senators, Judges, various members of the San Bernardino County Board of Supervisors from my home district, City Councilmen and other representatives in my community. Most of these activities have left me with strong personal ties with these people. I find these experiences as only an asset to me should I win, and a resource I can use to help better the student population.

There is one subject that I have left for last, and that is the subject of sports. I see fielding a Basketball and Baseball team, Tennis, Golf or Swimming, and the sports should be open in a ratio of 1:1, men to women. But I see the sports paying and supporting themselves by charging admission and participation fees for the people who want to partake. I would not condone a student fee of any kind because not all students would be involved. If a student wants to contribute I see no reason why he/she couldn’t buy a season discount ticket. I would hope some kind of concession would be set up to sell to the crowds and the monies raised here could also help pay for the costs. What I cannot condone is separate dorm facilities for those on athletic scholarships or instructors forced to pass necessary personnel, but we must be willing to have is alcohol. Relaxed rules regarding its use any an increase in areas where it can be consumed, and this may be the hardest thing for the campus to accept. To let this community know, and us to admit that we do use alcohol recreationally on this campus.

I do not just want your vote. Because a vote is more. It is a commitment to yourself. A commitment that binds you to support as well as abandon, and if the need arises, to remove the person that you elected from office. Commitment! That is what I have outlined. If you doubt the ability to accomplish, just consider this: I’m tired of people who tell me something can’t be done and the only reason that they give me for it not working is simple; because they have never tried.
Hi, my name is Tom and yes that is my name on the back of my head. If you know nu*

Steve Wood
Treasurer

Since taking over the position of A.S. Treasurer, I have found that there is much more to the position than just keeping the A.S. accounts balanced. There are other responsibilities necessary for the position to run smoothly.

Having been for the past year the A.S. Treasurer, I feel that I have accumulated the necessary experience to handle the responsibilities needed for the position. Therefore, on election day, vote to re-elect Steve Wood for your A.S. Treasurer.

Robert Cassinelli
School of Humanities

We face increased fees, cutbacks in academic offerings, a movement in the State Legislature to impose tuition, and less financial aid availability. While the Board of Directors (our only officially recognized voice) has addressed itself to these issues on occasion, it seems to be notably remiss in this regard; except as some of the larger campuses of the CSUC system spur them to activity. The question to be answered is why must we be followers when we should be in the forefront of any campaign to ensure the State Government recognizes its responsibility to the future of this nation and that it is as Horace Mann said, "(The) schoolhouses are the republican line of fortifications."

Such a leadership role in the movement to keep fees reasonable seems natural for a campus which takes justifiable pride in the number of low-income and disadvantaged students who attend it. It is in our own best interests to be in the frontlines of any such battle against those who would deny us the opportunity to gain that which many of them have already attained. The English essayist Leigh Hunt wrote that "the same people who can deny others everything are famous for refusing themselves nothing." A characterization which seems most apropos of the current leadership of this State (and the Nation). The Governor wants to live in a mansion (say, a mausoleum) some 20 miles from his place of business, and yet he tells the CSUC/UC administrators to cut costs. Where can such cuts be made? And when are they made? And when will they be made almost inevitably in the academic and faculty areas? The Board of Directors can be an effective voice in these matters, only if it has effective voices on it.

As a student and the parent of two potential students I am doubly concerned about the future. I spent 20 years of my life defending the rights of those who are fortunate enough to live in this country. I consider the right to avail oneself of a higher education as inalienable as any other right to which we may have guaranteed to us. I believe I can provide just such leadership if given the opportunity to serve you and myself.

Nancy Fraize

Hi, my name is Nancy Fraize. I am a biology senior with the sincere desire to represent the school of natural sciences on the Associated Student Board. Natural sciences includes varied disciplines of... chemistry, computer science, math, physical education, and biology. Each contribute important influences within the college campus. So, as I represent you, I want to speak for you and not just make personal opinions. This can only be done as I become more acquainted with my fellow students and more accessible. I would like to establish time to meet with concerned students.

Apathy of the student body is encouraged when students are not being informed of decisions. A bridge needs to be built between the students and the A.S. I plan to do this by posting the board agenda and minutes for meetings in each department. I want you to be informed of the issues that concern you. Please vote on April 27 or 28.

Andrew Wade
My name is Drew Wade and I am campaigning for member of the Board of Directors for the Natural Sciences. I am majoring in the Biological Sciences.

How many of you feel proud to be attending Cal State College at San Bernardino? Well, it may come to your surprise that some students have actually transferred to other colleges because they felt that our school doesn’t quite fill their expectations and needs. I for one disagree with them. I feel that our school, set on a beautiful landscape, is one of the best schools around. We have an excellent and notable teaching faculty, and a superior and efficient staff. I am very proud to be learning from the knowledgeable faculty, and to be associating with a fine and well balanced, down-to-earth student body. If you don’t share my attitude of our illustrious college, maybe you are dissatisfied with some things. I know that there are some problems, but they can be taken care of with a strong and effective student government.

Our school is young and has a tremendous potential for growth. A growth that will hopefully be geared in the best interests of everyone involved, and namely for the students. We have a responsibility to make the best of every moment in our school growth and development for ourselves, and for future students. It is up to us, the students, to make this college everything we would want, and more. Be responsible for making this college a gleaming mecca for the learned by becoming active in your student government and electing a responsible and effective body of student representatives. Come on out and vote for Drew Wade for the Board of Directors for Natural Sciences, and help build the pride that is deserving of our fine and great school.

LET’S DO IT!!!

Help Steve Winker:
keep student fees low!
maximize use of current student fees!
improve activities at Cal State!

Hi, my name is Greg Scott, currently your A.S. Vice President.

The Associated Students is, basically, the government of the students of CSCSB. As a government, it has two main responsibilities. First, it serves as the official voice and advocate of the students. Secondly, it provides programs and services for the students through the administration of the annual $20 A.S. fee. Since the Associated Students, is actually every student here, it is as Kronos Quartet Balances Both Controversy and Convention

The Kronos Quartet, an ensemble specializing in contemporary chamber music, will perform at 8:15 p.m., Wednesday, April 20 in the Recital Hall at CSCSB.

Kronos balances a devotion to both controversy and convention to provide its audiences with the opportunity to experience the full spectrum of 20th century music. Its repertoire reflects this dual focus and is expanded annually to include additional pieces from standard quartet literature, as well as a broad range of compositions by living composers.

To date, more than 125 new works have been premiered by Kronos, enhancing the quartet's reputation as one of the foremost contemporary music ensembles.

The quartet was founded in Seattle in 1973 by first violinist David Harrington. Now based in San Francisco, its members also include John Sherba, second violin; Hank Dutt, viola; and Joan Jeanrenaud, cello.

Kronos has been quartet-in-residence at the State University of New York Geneseo, University of Southern California, Schoenberg Institute and Mills College in Oakland. The group has performed throughout the United States in locations ranging from Carnegie Hall and NBC's "Today Show" to the Monterey Jazz Festival and San Quentin Prison.

Members recently completed their third European tour and have represented the United States at the distinguished Biennale de Venezia Festival in Venice, Italy.

The award, initiated in 1970, honors a young poet of exceptional promise of a more mature poet who has received insufficient national acclaim.

Schapiro established the award with a selection committee that comprised of poets John Berryman, Robert Lowell and M.L. Rosenthal.

High Road to China, starring Tom (Magnum) Selleck and Bess ( jealousy, carefree heiress forced to locate her eccentric father before the money runs out and destruction sets in. She hires flying ace Selleck, and two of his biplanes, and sets off for exotic lands and high adventure. Selleck's character is the strong, not very silent type. Remember when antiheroes would gladly suffer in silence? Selleck cruises through the film in one of two states: He is either drunk (or passed out), or ineffectually yelling at Armstrong. The plot is not very imaginative and, as a result, it is too predictable.

At first glance, High Road to China may appear to be a clone of the very profitable Raiders of the Lost Ark. However, High Road to China is different in some important ways. Whereas Raiders relied heavily upon endless, albeit creative, spectacular stunts and fast-paced action, High Road does attempt to offer deeper character development by having Tom and Bess speak more than two lines of dialogue in a row. I liked the chemistry created by Tom and Bess much more than the one dimensional cartoon-like characters portrayed by Harrison Ford and Karen Allen in Raiders.

High Road to China did have some wonderfully choreographed flying sequences, but at no time did the special effects overshadow the actors. To be sure, not everyone is going to like High Road especially if you are contrasted with Raiders. I think if High Road had been released first, it would have fared much better with the critics. Spielberg is a tough act to follow.

High Road to China and its principle actors are not going to garner any Oscar nominations, but the film provides good escapist entertainment.

Table For Five. This new Jon Voight film is a real tear-jerker. Voight tries hard to recapture a relationship with his children by taking them on a cruise to Egypt (where else?). Final grade: B-

Tough Enough. This macho fight film has no redeeming social value. For the actors, the film simply represents a paycheck, because it is certainly not art. Final grade: D-
Loans To Assist

Parents of college students, worried about those big bills they will be facing next September, will be lining up soon for an opportunity to spread out the payments—through a relatively new government loan program.

The California Loans to Assist Students (CLAS) program has been around for nearly a year. However, a substantial amount of capital for making CLAS loans just recently became available through a $121 million revenue bond sale, initiated by the California Student Loan Authority. Money from the Authority’s bond sale is providing private lenders with the funds to make CLAS loans in California.

CLAS loans are also available to independent students, and graduate students, and for them payments on the principal may be deferred until after graduation.

Students and their families apply for the CLAS loans through their own college financial aid offices. Applications are now available at California colleges and universities. More information about the CLAS and the GSL student loan programs is available from the California Student Aid Commission, 1410 Fifth Street, Sacramento, CA 95814, telephone 916-323-0435.

Diet Disorders

by Carol Leish

Is eating really a pleasure? According to Dr. Martha Kazlo from the Counseling Center, 10-30% of women have eating disorders. On April 6, Dr. Kazlo showed the film, I Don’t Have to Hide, a film which focused on anorexia nervosa and bulimia.

Women tend to be preoccupied with the idea of overeating. Even with normal women, slight weight fluctuations occur. Anorexics attempt to starve themselves, since they insist they are always too fat. Bulimia is characterized by binge-eating episodes followed by vomiting, abdominal pain and laxative use.

Women may attempt various diets to avail. Feelings of guilt, shame and low self-esteem push a woman farther into her turmoil of having this type of obsession. Binge-eating is expensive. Preparing and shopping for food interferes with work, personal relationships and activities.

If you are in need of help and support for these curable disorders, there is a Self-Help Group in the Student Health Center. Ask for Vivian or Dr. Kazlo in the Health Center. Remember, you can become happier and more satisfied with yourself and your better eating habits.
