President Evans to Retire in Summer of 1997

Dr. Anthony Evans, president of California State University, San Bernardino, is announcing his retirement, following a 14-year term of service at the university, effective in late summer 1997.

In a statement released this morning to the campus community, Evans, who turns 60 next week, gave two reasons for deciding that the 1996-97 academic year would be his last as president of Cal State, San Bernardino.

Since the state of the university is good and improving each year, the timing seems right. We have attained many of our goals, and the university’s overall growth and development have been so rewarding,” he comments.

A second reason is more personal,” he adds. I wish to spend much more time with my wife, Lois, whose health has been poor for more than a decade.

Evans states that his future plans include becoming a C.S.U. Trustee Professor and building a home in north San Diego County.

I have taken such a delight in my work here that it hardly seems possible that I have served...twice the national average for university presidents, he observes.

Noting that he looks forward to teaching again, Evans says he is proud of the state of the university as he prepares to leave.

“The faculty and staff are strong, student enrollments are relatively stable, and budgetary challenges are more manageable. I am so pleased that C.S.U.S.B.’s faculties are now truly superb and that donor and alumni support is growing annually. I am grateful that the university’s commitment to serving the region is firmly established,” he says.

In addition, he says he wanted, before retirement, to see the Coussoulis Arena fully operational, the completion of private fundraising for the Robert V. Fullerton Art Museum and the new building opened, and the launching of a fund drive for permanent facilities at the Coachella Valley Center, the Palm Desert satellite campus of CSUSB.

Commenting on President Evans’ retirement announcement, Vice President for University Relations, Judith Rymar, says, “His vision and forward-looking leadership have helped the university to come of age. Throughout the growth years of the 80’s and the budget challenges of the 90’s, Evans has insisted that we continue to serve the citizens of our region, offering them our very best.

“The enhancement of student life on campus, the expansion of our academic programs and our physical facilities, along with the growth in the university’s stature in the community, are among his most important legacies,” remarks Rymar, a 26-year veteran of the campus who has overseen university relations for the past 12 years.

Lou Fernandez, Vice President for Academic Affairs, says, “in the short five years I have been at C.S.U.S.B. the campus has undergone an incredible transformation. This remarkable change is due in most part to President Evans’ vision of what a regional, comprehensive university should be. He was as dedicated to his campus as any president I have ever known. C.S.U.S.B. will most assuredly miss his commitment and leadership.”

“As the chair of the faculty Senate for the last year,” states Teresa Morris, an associate professor of social work, “I have had the privilege to work closely with President Evans. I have found him to be a man of integrity who, in his quiet way, worked hard to protect faculty interests and promote the university in the local community. I wish him well in the future.”
Duke it Out!!

By Mark Wahner and Teresa Soldano
Chronicle Staff Writers

Recently, there has been a controversy at Cal State Northridge over their decision to invite ex-Klu Klux Klan member David Duke to debate on Proposition 209, against Affirmative Action.

Young Republican students have filed a petition to oust Vladimir Cema from his position as Student Body President, because apparently, he cast the deciding vote on whether or not to invite David Duke to speak at CSUN.

We asked students how they felt about this situation, and this is what they said:

Sarah Morgando
Freshman, Undeclared

"I feel the whole situation at CSUN is out of hand and wrong. If they are going to throw out the guy and get him to resign, they should get the rest to as well."

Daniel Kiddoo
Freshman, Undeclared

"I feel it is wrong for the Young Republicans to try top get the Student Body President to resign because it wasn't him alone that decided on bringing Duke to speak."

Craig Dean
Senior, Physical Education

"I don't think they should do that, because David Duke came to speak on Affirmative Action, and nothing else, and they should respect the decision the students made to invite him."

Angelia Smith
Junior, Bio-Chemistry

"I feel that unless they ask the whole panel to resign, that they don't have the right to single out Cerna. It was a panel decision, not the decision of Cerna alone."

Marcello Cabral
Senior, Communications

"I feel that who ever invited has the right to do so, it's money that's going to speaker's, whomever the speaker is. There will always be students protesting ant type of speaker. It just so happened this speaker was an ex-Klan Leader."

Donald Willis
Junior, Sociology

"I believe it was a good move to invite Duke to campus, as well as the opposing activist, because I feel a lot of people share his view on Prop. 209 subconsciously but don't know it."
Minority Scholarship Offered

From News Services

The Ronald E. McNair Post-Baccalaureate Achievement Program, known as CSUSB as the McNair Scholars Program, is seeking talented college juniors and seniors who are first-generation, low-income, and who are from a group underrepresented at the doctoral level.

Established in 1986 by the U.S. Department of Education and named for astronaut and Challenger Space Shuttle crew member Ronald E. McNair, the program encourages students to pursue graduate studies by providing opportunities to define goals, engage in research, develop skills, and build student/faculty relationships critical to success at the doctoral level.

During the academic year, program participants will receive the necessary support to identify graduate programs, financial assistance, and academic/personal qualities needed to excel at the undergraduate level, and gain admittance into a doctoral program. This will include GRE Preparation, Writing a Personal Statement, Soliciting Letters of Recommendation, Funding Graduate School, and an Intensive Summer Research Component including a $2,400 stipend.

Applicants for the McNair Scholars Program must be a junior or senior student at CSUSB, be a U.S. citizen or permanent U.S. resident, and be a first generation college student from a low-income family and/or belong to a group underrepresented in doctoral studies, including African Americans, Native Americans, and Latino.

If interested please submit the completed application packet and support documentation by Friday, November 1, 1996. Pick up applications in AD-143 or call (909) 880-7344.

Confidential Counseling Offered

From News Services

Adults facing issues such as depression, traumatic life changes, eating disorders and struggles with self-esteem or simply looking to make progress in their personal growth can make appointments beginning Oct. 1 with the Community Counseling Center at CSUSB.

The confidential, one-on-one counseling is conducted by Cal State graduate students under the supervision of the Psychology Department faculty. Edward Teyber, a Cal State psychology professor who has written a nationally-acclaimed book about children and divorce, serves as the center’s director.

A $10 fee is charged for each 50-minute counseling session. However, the center does operate on a sliding scale.

Child, family and couples counseling is not available. Day or evening appointments may be scheduled. While the center does not treat drug or alcohol addiction or those who may be suicidal, referrals will be made in such cases.

For more information, call the Community Counseling Center at (909) 880-5569.

Choir Rehearsals

From News Services

The San Bernardino-CSUSB Symphonic Choir is recruiting participants for its 1996-97 performance season and will begin rehearsals on September 17 at CSUSB.

Directed by Tamara Harsh, the choir does not require auditions and all voice parts are welcome.

The choir rehearse regularly on Tuesdays from 7-10 p.m. in the university’s Creative Arts Building. Participants are required to pay $15 per quarter if they are not enrolled CSUSB students, Harsh says.

Now in its second season of collaboration with the San Bernardino Symphony, the choir will be performing three programs this year.

Handel’s “Messiah” will be presented this fall, the choir will sing Andrew Lloyd Webber’s “Requiem” in concert with the symphony in May and perform “A Night at the Opera” in June, according to Harsh.

More information about the San Bernardino-CSUSB Symphonic Choir is available from Cal State, San Bernardino’s Department of Music at (909) 880-5859.

Cal State Carpool is Rewarding for Staff, Students

From News Services

CSUSB now has a rideshare program which will benefit every student and faculty member on campus. To be a part of the Commuter Services Program, you simply need to participate in an alternate mode of transportation a minimum of two days a week (on average).

Alternative modes of travel include: carpooling, biking, walking, and mass transit. To be eligible for the program, a registration form must be completed and monthly logs submitted.

Many incentives are available for participation in this program, including free bus passes, rebate on parking fees, preferred parking, and up to $15 per quarter for those who walk or bike and daily scrip points (issued quarterly).

Quarterly drawings are held for those who complete their monthly logs on a timely basis (by the 5th of each month). Once a student or faculty member has been in the program for six months, they can receive a gift certificate for recruiting a fellow employee.

A cause for concern which has arisen in response to this program is the worry that you may ride share and be called in on an emergency, or work late and have no ride home. CSUSB offers a Guaranteed Ride Home (GRH) that ensures you’ll have transportation when you need it, and with no extra cost attributed to you.

If you are registered in the program and you or your driver becomes ill or injured, an immediate family member becomes ill or injured, or you are unexpectedly required to work overtime, you are eligible for GRH (other emergencies considered). In this case, call 880-5913 to set up a ride.

To receive a registration packet or if you have any questions regarding alternate modes of transportation, contact 880-7433.
Women's Resource and Adult Re-Entry Center.

Margaret Dodds-Schumacher, (topright), is the new director of the Women's Resource and Adult Re-Entry Center. seeks to acquire private funding to enhancement of a $150,000 auditorium in recognition of a $150,000 pledge from Anheuser-Busch, Inc. was dedicated on October 1, 1996. The Anheuser-Busch contribution is part of a larger capital fundraising campaign by CSUSB called Partnership 2000. This plan seeks to acquire private funding to improve facilities, enhance existing programs, increase scholarship funds, add instructional equipment, and make other general improvements.

"We are pleased to be able to help these students with their education," said Michael Bernardi, Vice President and General Manager of Anheuser-Busch Sales, Co. In the past, colleges and universities have relied primarily on state and federal money for these types of projects. But the belt-tightening in state capitols and in Washington, D.C., has forced many of these institutions to look to the private sector for assistance. Now large companies such as Anheuser-Busch and others are sought out to augment shrinking governmental budgets.

Bernardi stated, "Anheuser-Busch recognizes that corporations have a responsibility to give to the communities in which we do business. We applaud Cal State, San Bernardino's Partnership 2000 program and its attempts to improve the quality of education it provides for the students."

We are grateful to Anheuser-Busch for its generous donation to our institution. Their gift has been an integral part of our plan to enhance the educational experience for our students at Cal State, San Bernardino," said Judith Rymer, Vice President of University Relations.

CSUSB Ranked #1 in Minority Recruiting

By Tamiko Fletcher
Production Editor

In a recent report released by the California State University, the Human Resources Department ranked CSUSB number one in minority recruitment for faculty members.

The C.S.U. system calculates the number of faculty hired within each individual Cal State University.

"...The system prepares a report every two years and they calculate the number of faculty at the different campuses and the recruited number of faculty and what percentages are in different ethnic groups, and in 1993-94 we had the highest number of minority faculty of all the C.S.U.'s," stated Dr. Fernandez, Vice-President of Academic Affairs.

The report, which reflects 1993-94 statistics, revealed that out of 39 appointments made, 46% were minorities.

CSUSB alone appointed 15.4% African American, 15.4% Hispanic, and 10.3% Asian faculty. Of these percentages, 15% were minority males and 31% minority females.

The recruitment of women was also another area the report studied. Out of the 39 appointments, 59% were women. This places CSUSB number 2 within the C.S.U. system for the recruitment of women.

This is the first time more women were appointed than men to C.S.U. faculty positions since the survey has been taken. A total of 290 women were appointed to tenure-track appointments compared to 265 men according to the C.S.U. report.

Overall, the number of appointments within the C.S.U. system total $55. Of that group 29% were white males, 19% minority males, 18% minority females and 35% white females.

The report is useful to show the rate of hiring on campus and track the percentages of male, female, and minority hiring and show what departments minorities were appointed to within the C.S.U. system.

WR&ARC Welcomes New Director to Campus

From News Services

California State University and the Women's Resource and Adult Re-Entry Center would like to welcome their new Director, Margaret Dodds-Schumacher. Schumacher has graduate degrees in Theology and Counseling Psychology, and is currently a doctoral student at Fuller School of Psychology in Pasadena. She has special interests in dreamwork; women's spirituality; adult development; adult learning processes; and a commitment to reducing conflict, building coalitions with people with diverse opinions, and creating a more peaceful, less violent world.

Law Protects Communities from Convicted Sex Offenders

By Teresa Soldano
Managing Editor

On Wednesday, September 25, Governor Pete Wilson signed Meagan's Law, which will help prevent innocent children and adults from becoming a victim of a sexual predator.

Meagan's Law was the result of the tragic murder of 7-year old Meagan Kanka of New Jersey, who was brutally raped and murdered by a convicted sex offender who had recently moved into her neighborhood.

This law will grant local law enforcement the discretion to proactively warn a community about particularly dangerous sex offenders, but mandates that they must make information on all registered sex offenders available for the public to inspect. It will set up a CD-ROM at all sheriffs departments and police departments serving more than 200,000 residents. The CD-ROM will allow the public to inspect photos, physical descriptions, and the location of all registered sex offenders. As well, it expands the Attorney General's Child Molester Identification Line (1-900-463-0400) to include information about registered sex offenders in the state who have assaulted adults as well as children.

Since her murder, New Jersey was the first state to implement a public notice law, and the federal government has implemented a law this year that requires public notice of convicted sex offenders. This law will bring California into compliance with the federal version of Meagan's Law.

"Every Californian has the right to know if a dangerous sex offender is living within striking distance of their children or families, just as every Californian has a right not to be a victim of a crime," said Wilson.

"With this bill, Californians will be armed with useful information that could save many innocent lives that might otherwise be lost," he said.

Some facts on sex offenders, from the Department of Justice:

- There are approximately 66,000 registered sex offenders in California, according to the California Department of Justice.
- Of those, more than 38,000 were convicted of some type of sexual assault on a child.
- More than 57,000 of those registered sex offenders would fall under the provisions of the law.
- Convicted sex offenders have some of the highest recidivism rates of all violent offenders—nearly 78% of all convicted sex offenders released from prison are back in custody with a new prison term or parole violation.

Station Wagon Bursts into Flames in Campus Parking Lot

By Kristen DiCicco
Chronicle Staff Writer

Police and fire departments responded to a report of a vehicle fire Thursday, October 3.

The vehicle which was parked in the lot near University Hall, was the second vehicle fire within the year.

The owner of a Dodge Aries Station Wagon, Tania Valdez, shut off her engine, as smoke and flames emerged from underneath the hood of the car.

An investigation of the vehicle revealed that the fire was a result of a fuel leak. A rubber hose connecting the fuel filter to the carburetor had split due to corrosion.

Captain Darrell Hess of the San Bernardino City Fire Department stated that this is a common type of vehicle fire. "Regular maintenance on lines can prevent this from happening," he said.
Respected CSUSB Professor Dies

From News Services

Dr. Fred Kellers, Professor Emeritus of Physics at CSUSB, died July 17.

Louis Fernandez, Vice President of Academic Affairs stated, "For several years he was the Chair of the Department of Physics and a valuable member of the School of Natural Sciences. He should also be remembered as a strong supporter of the general education program and programs that assisted minority students and students with disabilities."

In a memorandum released July 24, Fernandez, referring to Kellers, stated, "For several years he was the Chair of the Department of Physics and a valuable member of the School of Natural Sciences. He should also be remembered as a strong supporter of the general education program and programs that assisted minority students and students with disabilities."

Professor Halpern Honored for Contributions to Education

By Jared Schultzman
Chronicle Staff Writer

Newly christened Chair of the Psychology Department, Diane Halpem, was still moving into her office when I went to talk to her about her recent honor. The National American Psychology Association has decided to give her an award for her Career Contribution to Education.

Professor Halpem was notified about the award about three months ago but won't be receiving it until August of next year when she'll make a presentation at the Awards Convention. Made up of about 140,000 members, the American Psychology Association only hands out this award once a year.

Professor Halpem has written a lot about higher education and ways to measure the education process. The Career Contribution Award is, in part, recognizing her work on the assessment of student learning; how students are different when they graduate and how to measure the change. She has also done work with critical thinking; trying to explain how adults think and attempting to teach them better ways of thinking.

After teaching for sixteen years and having many books published, Professor Halpem does not only deserve the award but she has earned it.

Professor Oversees National Council

From News Services

Dr. Cheryl Fischer, a professor of educational administration at Cal State, San Bernardino, is one of three to be elected to the executive board of the National Council of Professors of Educational Administration (NCPEA).

Her new, three-year term comes on the heels of work coming on the heels of work on the heels of work with the organization since joining it in 1991. She has chaired the Resource Fair and Reporter committees and served as a member of the Conference Host.

Fischer, a San Bernardino resident, has been with Cal State San Bernardino since 1990.

The NCPEA was organized 50 years ago by scholars, practitioners, students and business leaders interested in addressing the development and enhancement of educational administration preparation programs, related scholarship and the practice of educational administration.

CSUSB Awarded approximately $7.2 million in Grant Funding

By Tamiko Fletcher
Production Editor

C.S.U.S.B. faculty have been awarded 65 grants to date out of 144 requests submitted. The approved grant requests total $7.2 million dollars.

Last year Cal State San Bernardino submitted only 110 grants compared to the 144 grants this year.

Faculty members applying for grants are awarded funds from either state or federal agencies to fund research, student training, teaching purposes, equipment, etc.

"We submitted 144 grant requests this year," Faculty writing grants and other people writing grants asking granting agencies for money and this was an increase of over 50% over last year...we submitted a lot more grant requests this year than last year," Vice-president of Academic affairs, Dr. Fernandez said.

Grant proposals were accepted from the National Institutes of Health, The Department of Energy, California Department of Conservation and San Bernardino County among other agencies.

The National Science Foundation awarded a grant which will fund 3 instructional laboratories in the School of Social and Behavioral Sciences and the School of Natural Sciences.

The School of Education received the largest amount of grant funding awarded. The recipient of $2,266,554 for the period of July 1, 1995 to June 30, 1996.

The School of Humanities received $6,950 which was the lowest amount of grant funding awarded to a department.

Student programs such as the Ronald McNair Postbaccalaureate Achievement Program received $190,000 while the Upward Bound Program got $342,874.

While funding can be direct or indirect so can its effects. Though some funding may not go directly to student programs, money coming into the campus whether to fund faculty research or play ground renovation at the Children’s center improves CSUSB.

Sigma Gamma Phi, Cal State's First Greek Co-ed

By Brian Bailey
Special to the Chronicle

In the spring of 1991, Sigma Gamma Phi Fraternity was started here at California State University, San Bernardino in the Shandian Residence Hall. This new hybrid of Greek letter organizations was founded on the belief of the equality of men and women; for that reason Sigma Gamma Phi became the first co-ed fraternity here at C.S.U.S.B.

Like other fraternal orders, Sigma Gamma Phi has traditions, ceremonies, and an education program that bind its members, past and present, in a tie of camaraderie and friendship that last a lifetime. We at Sigma Gamma Phi stress academics, community service, and fun as the key to a balanced college experience.

Last year Sigma Gamma Phi’s overall grade point average was a 3.0, and the winner of last year’s coveted Scholarship Lamp Award held a 3.85 g.p.a. Sigma Gamma Phi has also had different members serve the university community as parking service officers, community service officers, University Ambassadors, Associated Students Incorporated (A.S.I.) chairs, on the Board of Directors for A.S.I., and for the 1994-95 school year, the president, vice president, and controller of A.S.I. were all members of Sigma Gamma Phi.

Sigma Gamma Phi has served the greater community in the last year by raising over $1000 for the special Olympics and donating an entire day of service to the Western San Bernardino Special Olympics Track Meet. As well, it held its annual fall retreat at the Pine Rose Cabins in Twin Peaks, its White Lily Formal in San Diego, and our traditional Memorial day weekend Bash at the Colorado River.

Once again it is time for the fall rush and we invite all students to come and take part in our events. The brothers and sisters of Sigma Gamma Phi would like to remind students that attending a rush event does not obligate a person to join.

October 14th-Monday Night Football at Jersey’s Pizza (on Kendall Ave. in the Stater Bros. Shopping center). Meet at 6 p.m.

October 15th-Scavenger Hunt/Bowling. Meet at the turnaround in the main entrance into campus at 7:30 p.m.

October 17th-The Open Smoker. It has nothing to do with smoking but its a nickname we've derived to describe our semi-formal/nice casual dinner at the end of rush week. It will be held at Sarrano Village Square at 8pm.

SIX REASONS TO JOIN SIGMA GAMMA PHI (A CO-ED SOCIAL FRATERNITY)

1. Encourages Friendship and Camaraderie. The primary goal, and therefore one of the most meaningful benefits, is the development of lasting friendships and (the resulting) Brotherhood/Sisterhood. Sigma Gamma Phi provides this opportunity to create this bond which will last for life.

2. Develops Personality. The atmosphere of mutual helpfulness existing in the fraternity assists in the development of personality. You learn how to adjust yourself for the welfare of the group; on other occasions, you must take the lead in carrying through some project. You learn the value of service, of being vitally interested in others. Personality, after all, is the sum of total effect you have upon people.

3. Promotes Mutual Understanding. Fraternity life teaches members to seek grounds for mutual understanding and appreciation. Every individual is aware that he or she has faults, but each has the firm belief that somewhere underneath is a self that is very much worthwhile. When you take the time to look for that better self in others, you have more friends and your life is much happier, and more successful. The intimacies of fraternity life give assurance of deep and lasting friendships based on mutual understanding.

4. Assists in Orientation. Upon entering college, you find yourself confronted with a situation that is different from any you have previously known. This fraternity contains upper class men that, throughout experience, can guide you and assist you in orientating yourself to college life.

5. Encourages Scholarship. Good scholastic achievement by the individual helps insures his or her academic success and contribution as a student and as a member of the fraternity. Therefore, a goal of this fraternity is to provide and atmosphere to assist the individual in attaining academic success. No device can force you to study; the will to study comes from within, but it can be stimulated and inspired from without.

6. Broadens Outside Interests. Leisure time properly spent brings satisfaction and a refreshed self, eager again for work. Improperly spent, it leads to trouble and loneliness. Sigma Gamma Phi offers, through the members, an opportunity for wholesome companionship and refreshing activities.

If all of this appeals to you, please join us for the Fall RUSH activities listed below. See YOU soon!

October 14: Monday Night Football at Jersey’s Pizza, starting at 6 p.m.

October 15: Scavenger hunt along with Bowling. We request you meet us at the turnaround of the CSUSB campus located at the main entrance, behind the information kiosk, at 7:30 p.m.

October 16: Lasertag!!! Again, please meet us at the turnaround. Transportation will be provided for those needing it.

October 17: The OPEN SMOKER (just a name for the event) starting at 8 p.m. The location will be announced at the other RUSH events, so please join us for dinner and .... or call (909) 880-6317.

Congrats Greeks

Fall Rush 1996 was a great success. You all did a wonderful job........
Inadequate Funding Doesn't Stop Model United Nations Team

By Christina Olney
Chronicle Staff Writer

Due to budget cuts from the Institutionally Related Programs Board, the Model United Nations team will have to make do with inadequate funding this year.

Last year, our Model U.N. team overcame equipment disadvantages to win first place in international competition, beating such schools as Harvard and West Point Military Academy.

Despite having only three lap top computers and one printer to process all of their information, the team of 13 members managed to defeat Harvard and West Point. Other teams had computers for all their members as well as several printers to handle the load of the output.

Due to the success of last year's team, Dr. Ralph Salmi, the program's mentor, requested $14,951.02 to purchase more computers and printers as well as to help fund the team's other expenses, such as travel. I.R.P. gave them only $9,150.

"Giving the prestige and international recognition the team has brought our school, I was shocked that I.R.P. didn't give us the funds we need," said Salmi. "We need to remain competitive with other teams."

Another of our winning teams, Model League of Arab States is also suffering due to budget cuts. They have requested $6,430, which would cover only travel expenses. I.R.P. gave them no money. The students must pay for all of their own expenses.

"This rules out the students who don't have the financial means to participate," exclaimed Salmi. The I.R.P. has had a $10,000 budget cut of its own compared to last year so there is less money to go around. All but a few of the programs that I.R.P. funds have received budget cuts.

"The Model U.N. program had money left in its account from last year," said Pedro Garbergallo, I.R.P. Controller, "and that is why they didn't receive their entire budget request."

Model League of Arab States is not currently on the list to receive funds from I.R.P. Salmi applied to have the team of 13 members managed to be put on the list in June of last year, but the former I.R.P. controller, Christy Tobiason rejected their application.

"I was not involved with the decision to reject the application of the Model League of Arab States," said Garbergallo, "and I would have accepted them."

New Organization Promotes Spiritual Growth Through Judaism at CSUSB

By Audria Gazzar
Special to the Chronicle

Shalom! There is a new organization on campus called the Jewish Student Union (J.S.U.). Its purpose is to provide Jewish students from various backgrounds with a comfortable forum which encourages educational and spiritual growth, and to generate and awaken a sense of Jewish community on the Cal State campus.

As it is our goal to create both an educational and social network, we anticipate a myriad of activities and events ranging from guest speakers in the fields of politics, history, religion, and relationships, to dances, field trips, holiday celebrations, involvement in the local synagogue and even opportunities to participate in faculty advised research.

Any student from the CSUSB campus with an interest in Judaism may join our organization. Currently, we are a small, but diverse group of students including some from Orthodox, Conservative, and Reform backgrounds.

We encourage anyone who may be interested in becoming a member or simply learning more about Judaism to meet or become a member.

May this new academic year and the new Jewish year be filled with nothing less than wonderful growing experiences and a great deal of happiness. L'shana Tova!
Welcome To The Dollhouse Brings Unwelcome Review

By John Naghshineh
Special to The Coyote Chronicle

"Welcome to the Dollhouse" is a film that goes out of its way to show the ritual humiliation a teenage girl goes through at school and the surreal neglect she receives at home.

Dawn Weiner, the alienated teenager of the story, is constantly being harassed and called names like "ugly" and "dogface" by her classmates. She dreams of popularity, and the film hints at how a child starved for love may end up trying to please the wrong kind of boys.

Although the film deserves credit for going beyond a one-dimensional victim by allowing Dawn to identify with her aggressors at times, it disturbingly culminates when she accepts the advances of a creep who once threatened to rape her at knife-point.

Still, it's a serious treatment of a painful topic, and the film successfully raises your frustration level at seeing Murphy's Law single out this girl repeatedly wherever she goes. However, your frustration begins to tire out as the film clearly avoids reconciliation, or even a balance of emotion.

For a better take on the "everybody sh*t on everybody" theme (involving rape too, incidentally), re-watch the brilliance of "Saturday Night Fever" on video. If its the ugly, humiliated girl tale you're after, rent the uplifting and far more intelligent "Dogfight" with River Phoenix and Lili Tyler.

If SoCal has already dropped "Dollhouse" from its marquee, you haven't missed much. Keep in mind that Canyon Crest (in Riverside) is a great cinema to support since it brings in riskier films that most multi-plexes won't even touch, and offers you an excellent student discount.

Some Dirt on Dig

By Diahann Mathis
Graphics Editor

Dig's new album, "Defender's of the Universe," was released back in July of this year, and has already sold out above the rest. Dig's unique style has led them to release their sixth album. The band has toured with such bands as: Bad Brains, Garbage, Live, Rage Against The Machine, Rollins Band, and many others.

This new album not only creates distortion, but also allows brash and invitation, which gives Dig their unique style of punk rock. Melody Make's magazine says, "Dig's ideas are certainly left of center; this is a fully formed classic... that will have the kids ripping the seats out of clubs."

In this album, the song "Mood Elevator" deals with the notion that the whole world will soon be placed on Prozac and we'll end up killing each other with kindness. Check this one out, but remember to wear your Doc's.

Skankin' Sublime

By Diahann Mathis

According to "Amp X" magazine, the band described themselves as "Not a one-off blow up all at once, kind of band. Our goal is to create a long career of catalog pieces and a loyal and constantly growing fan base. And of course, to get lots of free beer."

Skankin' Sublime

Due to its name, the song "Date Rape" took over three years to be discovered by commercial radio, and left Sublime battling with producers and companies to prove their talent, which was discovered when music executives heard the remainder of their music.

Shortly after the debut album, the group emerged from the spotlight of stardom. The band began to open up for groups such as NO Doubt, Pennywise, and Guttermouth, who were all local So. Cal bands, rapidly emerging into the spotlight of stardom.

According to "Amp X" magazine, the band described themselves as "Not a one-off blow up all at once, kind of band. Our goal is to create a long career of catalog pieces and a loyal and constantly growing fan base. And of course, to get lots of free beer."

Shortly after the debut album, the group launched into their next album, The band was soon becoming one of LA and Orange County's most popular band. Audiences, ranging from the surfer and skater look, to the schoolgirl and boy look with an attitude. Sublime would pack in 5,000 to 12,000 people in one area dancing ranging from slam dancing to skankin' on the dance floor.

"Sublime" was released in May of this year, just after the tragic death of singer Bradley Nowell. This fatal event seemed to shatter the goals of the band, leaving their music and memories behind. Fortunately, however, the self-titled debut album rocked the charts with the unique sound of dancehall reggae, ska, psychedelic dub, Hendrix-influence, and late 80's hardcore punk. Songs such as, "Get Ready," and "Caress Me Down," both show examples of the group's life in a nutshell.

Most of the lyrics are formed in a bit of a twisted mind, and laced with the influence of drug use. It was the drug use that led to the ultimate demise of Nowell. This new album is a tribute to the memory of Nowell, (pictured here with his infant son, Jakob James Nowell.) Hopefully Nowell's death will illustrate the negative aspect of drug use.

KINESIOLOGY: A NEW NAME FOR P.E. MAJORS

By Nyma Cain
Chronicle Staff Writer

Physical Education majors have a new identity this year. They will no longer be known simply as "P.E. Majors." Beginning this Fall, college officials have changed the major name to Kinesiology and the department to "The Department of Kinesiology and Physical Education." For those of you who are saying "Kinesi-what?", it means "the study of human movement." Dr. Terry Rizzo, Department of Kinesiology and Physical Education Chairman, says that the change about due to the diverse area that encompasses the Physical Education field. Physical Education is not just a pedagogical discipline. Many P.E. majors plan to go into physical therapy, exercise science, sport journalism, sport management, and a number of other sub-disciplines. These are the primary students who will benefit from this change. Kinesiology has a more scientific connotation than does physical education. Physical Education is a term that is out-dated and implies that all P.E. Majors plan to teach some kind of physical activity. While many students do plan to teach, Kinesiology is a better umbrella term for a variety of areas available to the major.

Available with the name change, Kinesiology students can look forward to future curriculum changes. Of course, such changes take some time to occur, (the name change alone has taken years to get approved), but eventually Kinesiology will split into two areas of focus: pedagogy and exercise science. Those students who want to teach will still take the appropriate classes, but for others who do not plan on a teaching career, exercise science will be their concentration.

Most of the faculty and students in the Kinesiology Department agree that the name change is long overdue. For years, P.E. majors have had the "dumb jock" stigma placed on them, and P.E. classes have been thought to be, as Dr. Rizzo puts it, "Jock Haven." Kinesiology better represents what the major is about, and more accurately describes its academic mission, which is not just teaching and coaching.

Kinesiology and Physical Education are both rooted in the scientific field and deal with more than just playing sports. Many of our fellow CSU colleges have already changed their name and curriculum, and all of them plan to do so in the immediate future. College officials anticipate the name change will shed some new light on the program and bring about a positive change in the image of Kinesiology students.

PRINCIPLES of SOUND RETIREMENT INVESTING

Americans are living longer than ever. So it's quite possible you'll spend 20 or 30 years or more in retirement. Can you afford it? Unless you're independently wealthy, chances are you'll need more than your pension and Social Security to support the kind of lifestyle you'll want.

How can you help ensure that you'll be in good financial shape? Sign up for TIAA-CREF SRAs — tax-deferred annuities available only to people in education or research.

SRAs are easy. No pain, no sweat.

The best way to build strength — physical or fiscal — is to start at a level that's comfortable and add to your regimen as you go along.

With TIAA-CREF SRAs, you conveniently contribute through your employer's payroll system. You can start with a modest amount and increase your contribution as your salary grows.

The important thing is to start now. Delaying for even a year or two can have a big impact on the amount of income you'll have when you retire.

TIAA-CREF

Voters Shouldn't Focus on Candidates' Clumsiness

By Jason Armstrong
Executive Editor

Well, here we are. Another election year is upon us, and as time dwindles into those few short weeks prior to voting, many of us are struggling to make that crucial choice. Let's see... Clinton? Dole? Who will help us to keep the most of our hard earned money? Who will keep our country safe, and improve foreign relations? Who will make the right decision about welfare? Affirmative Action? Abortion?

These are key issues that are extremely important to many Americans, and many do pay attention and remain informed as to a candidate's stance regarding them. But once in a while I run into someone who seems more concerned with a candidate's clumsiness or embarrassing moments, than with his personal integrity or ability to keep us safe.

Sure, we all know that Bob Dole fell from a stage recently when delivering a speech. I personally feel very sympathetic toward the man. He regained his composure the best he could, and continued to deliver his message. People, as of late, seem to find it extremely humorous to dwell on parodies of Dole's mishap (ie, shows such as Saturday Night Live), and use this as a further reason to target his age.

Yes, and we know that Bill Clinton did the pot thing but supposedly did not inhale. That is definitely one aspect of Clinton which has been on every tabloid and late-night T.V. comedy hour. Yes, it is funny. I will admit that. But I think there are more pertinent issues to focus on than the embarrassments of a candidate; we should all thoroughly examine their stances on important issues, and make a wise choice when we vote.

Affirmative Action Heats Up

CSU Northridge

By Lynne Fischer
Chronicle Staff Writer

Once upon a time, in a decade long ago, there was Controversy. Those who dared bring Controversy to the campus, those who risked ridicule by speaking out were considered heroes, champions of freedom. Freedom of thought, freedom of speech, and most of all freedom for each to individually CHOOSE what to believe. No issue was off limits, all issues were open for debate and intense scrutiny. It was natural that Controversy flourished on universities, it put fire in our bellies and forced us to flex and strengthen the muscles of our minds. It was 1966.

Fast forward thirty years to September 25, 1996 the campus of C.S.U. Northridge, has been awarded patriarch status and is being faced with recall petitions circulated by the College Republicans on campus. Republicans are angry at Ceama for his tie breaking vote in student council in favor of Duke's participation. Governor Wilson called Duke's participation an "...outrage", and Ward Connerly, Chairman of Yes on Proposition 209 was "...concerned and disappointed" in the student council's decision not to rescind the invitation to Duke. Although both Connerly and Wilson were invited to participate in what the student leaders had originally envisioned as a panel debate, both claimed full calendars. Connerly agreed to clear his calendar and participate only if the invitation to Duke was rescinded. Student leaders rejected

Connelly’s offer. (To Connelly’s credit he later said he believed the voters’ would be able to recognize dirty tricks when they saw them).
Did Cerna have a hidden agenda? Maybe. But I doubt it. His was the tie breaking vote so obviously others on the council were of the same mind. To suggest hidden agendas is to suggest conspiracies, let’s not go there either.

Singing Mr. Cerna out for punishment and blame is akin to censorship in an insidious form. Exposure to controversies either strengthen our beliefs or provide us catalyst for change, but either way they force us to ponder issues, search our hearts and to individually choose.

Instead of finger pointing let’s trust the issue to stand or fall on it’s own and trust in the intelligence of voters’ to reach well reasoned conclusions. Linking Duke and his beliefs to 209 does not invalidate the issue any more than linking Louis Farrakan with family values invalidates the ideals behind strengthening families in this country.

Does Controversy belong on campus designed to prepare us for the real world or on the university campuses? Absolutely. Our eyes became so accustomed to seeing the disturbing and true facts of our society, it is easy to miss that what we read are not always the truth.

If we do not learn to use our minds to support our individual beliefs, then we might as well accept censorship as a way of life and begin tossing our books on the bonfires now.

Beware of Quick Cash Scams at CSUSB

By Chad Boone
Chronicle Staff Writer

This article goes out mainly to college freshman who will hopefully never be swindled, but if tempted by something that sounds too good to be true, keep this story in mind.

A slave to the minimum wage income, I’ve always believed there must be a way to make my money faster and in less time.

With that notion in mind, my eyes became transfixed on that glorious bright neon flyer posted to a CSUSB bulletin board. "WANT TO EARN SUMMER CASH NOW! Up to $800 a Week extra income."

Sure in a heart beat!! I had always wondered and heard stories, but, like how all beginning actors must feel, I knew I would be different. In no time, my letter of request, along with a nice little fee for more information, had been mailed.

In almost less time, my confirmation response letter arrived, assuring me of the wealth to come. When I saw the guarantee for "your money back." I felt even more confident about shelling out a little extra bucks for a guide to all the best and worst mailing jobs which seemed worthwhile. Some three weeks later, I finally received my materials to stuff envelopes, but what they had failed to mention was that I had to provide my own stamps.

By this time I was screaming "bogus!" However, my optimistic side urged me on to invest in the stamps and be done with the mailing biz. "Investing to succeed" was sounding like a crock.

Get this! Out of the seventy freshly stamped publicity flyers I mailed, the company received one response, made perhaps by another young desperate person. I received a whopping $24, not even making up for the stamps and guide I had invested in.

Like the deer in the middle of the road I was blind sided. However, in spirit of John Wayne I dusted off my boots and saddled up in time to find myself looking through the classified’s in a particular claim that read, "Are you BROKE, take advantage of Management Trainee Career Opportunity."

With reserve, I interviewed and landed the job. In a nutshell, the job guaranteed me 30k a year by becoming a branch manager of my own wholesale fragrance company. The company was selling perfume at the wholesale cost making it cheaper and in stiff competition with department stores.

Before the glory was to be mine, I had to forgo the trenches of the training program, up to four to six weeks. It consisted of me selling perfume to friends and family as well as public solicitation. Completion of the trainee program and becoming a branch manager was strictly determined on how many bottles you sold.

I ended up as an assistant manager training other newcomers. I soon witnessed all the people I started with quit because they couldn’t deal with getting thrown off parking lots, out of stores, and that was the bright end of the spectrum.

It became clear the fragrance company was making money off all our friends and family, it didn’t really matter if we sold to the public, because it had made it’s income already and actually expected us to quit the so called training program.

Optimism can be tough when reality is beating you over the head. If independence was to be mine, it cost. Monthly rent, tuition and the aspiration of purchasing a car equals expense we all know.

By summer’s end, I realized I’d just have to go back to being a beast of burden to minimum wage. I bravely faced my fate, but I did get my car, the fruits of working at IH.O.P. so steadfastly.

Looking back now, I can say, it was easy to make these ill-conceived choices, considering my fear that the future brought no answers. When I saw the guarantee for "your money back," I felt even more confident about shelling out a little extra bucks for a guide to all the best and worst mailing jobs which seemed worthwhile. Employee's Line Up for Health Benefits

By Chad Boone
Chronicle Staff Writer

The 4th Annual Employees Benefit's Health Fair, held in front of the administration building on October 2 was a success, according to Diana Gones, the Department Benefit's Director. Staff, faculty and administrators were provided with the opportunity to change current health or dental plans for special rates and benefits, or just browse.

The Assistant Benefit's Director, Melodie Neil remarked, "Right now we have an open enrollment period, so employees who are on health plans can, if they are thinking of changing plans or have specific questions, speak with agents from various groups so they can make the best informed choice."

Representatives included all health carriers, as well as new participants such as Sam's Club, Fedco, Price-Costco, and Bally Total Fitness. The event also included blood pressure testing, raffle giveaways and refreshments.

Facility and staff (see photo) visit the Health Fair to sign up for new health and dental plans.

Macintosh. More flexible than ever.
We don't know how you'll fill in the blank. That's why we make Macintosh computers so flexible. To help you be the first to do whatever you want to do. And with word processing, easy Internet access, powerful multimedia and cross-platform compatibility, a Mac makes it even easier to do it. How do you get started? Visit your campus computer store today and pick up a Mac.

Leave your mark.
You're young, inexperienced and don't even have a degree.

We think you're ready to be a leader.

When you get involved with Do Something, you'll be helping to build your community. You can get involved in existing programs, or start your own with a Do Something Grant. For more information, go to the Internet community festival, http://www.webstock96.com and basically, do something good.
