McCarthy Speaks At Cal State

Having higher education institutions facilitate economic development in both the Inland Empire and the state seemed to be McCarthy’s main goal. McCarthy asked administrators and faculty how Cal State was accomplishing better utilization of other college campuses, how their programs were facilitating area economic growth and what were some of the obstacles they have encountered. McCarthy’s intent is to show the taxpayers both the essential need for funding of higher education, socially and economically, and explain the advantages of California’s three level higher education system.

Dr. Frances Coles, chairperson of the Criminal Justice Program at Cal State, reported to McCarthy that her department was reaching out to community colleges and area law enforcement agencies when designing their programs. She added that the bureaucracy of the Chancellor’s office hindered development of new programs because of time obstacles. Dr. Bruce Golden of the English department concurred with Coles. He reported to McCarthy that channeling all new programs through the Chancellor’s office delayed considerably the implementation of a more applied English masters program recently.

Other faculty and administrators reported that progress has been made in reaching out to the community and coordinating with area campuses. Vice President, Gerald Scherba, informed McCarthy that he area math project is at Cal State this year. This project is designed to prepare area high school instructors for administrative roles.

McCarthy seemed pleased with the response of Cal State to area business needs. He asked that reports of the programs be sent to him.

Student Injured In Hit And Run

According to friends, CSCSB student Lee Cardon is in good condition despite the loss of a portion of his left leg. Lee was involved in a hit and run accident late Friday afternoon.

Lee was reportedly traveling home from Serrano Village from work on his moped when he was hit by a small pick-up truck which allegedly ran a stop sign at an excessive rate of speed.

Detective McKee, of the San Bernardino City Police Dept., said the accident took place October seventeenth, at 4:56 p.m. at the intersection of 40th and E Streets.

The truck involved, a small pick-up with a six foot bed. It is believed to be either light green or oxidized blue, and a 70’s model.

It is also believed the truck, containing only the driver, incurred minor front end damage due to the collision.

A $1,000 reward is being offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the driver.
Financial Aid
Funds Still Available

What do you receive if you apply early and accurately? According to Ted Krug, Director of Financial Aid, there are funds available.

This year the Pell Grant offers a maximum of $1,800 within eight weeks to on-campus students and $1,088 to students living off-campus. The State University Grant is still being offered within a six to eight week period for the amount of $408 to under grads and $358 to grads. The bank offers the Officer Lien Direct Loan Program and California Loans to Assist Students at a 12% interest rate. By applying early you can receive funds.

Several programs have exhausted their allotted monies for this year. These are: The National Direct Student Loan Program, the State EOF Grant, and the Student Emergency Loans. However, there is a waiting list anticipating the time when funds will again be available.

The Financial Aid Office will work together with the Housing Office in order to assist students who want to remain in the dorms but may need an extra period of time to pay fees. Ted Krug said, “From last year there has been a 30% increase in financial aid applications. We appreciate the extra attention, but our staff is working overtime, and students should not be discouraged over lack of funds. Remember, applications for the 1984-85 year will begin being taken on January 1, 1984. I encourage students to apply early and have correct information.”

Math Project

The second year of a special project for high school mathematics teachers has been funded at CSUSB by a $23,130 grant from the Chancellor’s Office of The California State University.

20 teachers from Riverside and San Bernardino counties are participating in “Academic Excellence in High School Math,” a program of work led at CTSC by Dr. Pamela Meisenhelder, an education and math instructor and supervisor of teacher education at UCR.

Helping to retain high school math teachers is a major objective of the project. Rekindling the teachers’ enthusiasm to help them prepare for administrative roles in education.

The teachers will attend workshops led by Dr. Robert Stein of Crellstone, the project director and chair of the Mathematics Department at Cal State, and by Dr. Pamela Meisenhelder, an education and math instructor and supervisor of teacher education at UCR.

Outstanding Professor Awards

All students are cordially invited to participate in the nomination of full-time faculty members for the 1984 Outstanding Professor Awards. In making nominations, major attention should be given to teaching excellence. In addition, the Outstanding Professor Selection Committee will consider significant achievement in creative productivity or scholarly achievements in research and/or production and service to the campus and community.

If you want to see a faculty member nominated for the award, you may obtain the official petition form at any department office, at the Student Union information desk, at the College Library Circulation Desk, at the A.S. Board of Directors’ Office, or at the Alumni Office.

The deadline for submission of completed nomination forms is 4:30 p.m., Oct. 31, 1983.

Dr. Gannon To Return To Full-Time Teaching

Dr. Catherine C. Gannon, who has been associate dean of academic planning since 1976, has resigned her duties in order to return to full-time teaching.

In addition to her responsibilities as an associate dean and professor of English, she has been coordinator for the Evening Office. She was a co-author and co-director of the NEH Writing Enrichment Program. “She will be greatly missed,” said Dr. Jerrold Pritchard, associate vice president for academic programs.

Dr. Pritchard said the search for a temporary, part-time replacement continues.

The position has been redefined as associate dean, undergraduate programs beginning this fall. Dr. Gannon will continue to assist in pulling together parts of the WASC accreditation report. She will return to the classroom in winter quarter.

Dr. Gannon came to Cal State from Claremont Colleges where she had spent a year under a Carnegie Foundation fellowship for women faculty members interested in entering academic administration. After earning her Ph.D. at UCLA, she taught for five years at Purdue University.

The Evening Office is now open in the Pflaun Library to assist faculty and students who are on campus after 5:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday. The office is supervised by Steve Prouty, associate dean of academic programs.

Admissions counseling and assistance with various applications to make changes in academic programs are available.

Dr. Susan Meisenhelder and Dee Matthews, both instructors at Cal State, will cover testing strategies and provide sample questions.

For each course, reading and writing will be covered in the first two meetings, and math will be covered in the third and fourth.

Fees are $55 for four sessions, and $30 for two sessions.

Information is available from the Office of Continuing Education at 887-7527.

CIC Minorities Fellowships available

The CIC Minorities Fellowships Program will award more than 50 fellowships in 1984 to minority students seeking doctorates in a wide variety of fields in the social sciences, humanities, and science and engineering.

The fellowships provide full tuition and an annual stipend of at least $6,000 for each of four years. Sponsored by the Committee on Institutional Cooperation (CIC), the consortium of the Big Ten universities to which recipients have been admitted.

Students from under-represented minority groups who intend to pursue studies leading to a Ph.D. in the social sciences, humanities, and science fields covered by the program are eligible to apply.

A total of 25 fellowships are available in the social sciences, humanities, and science fields covered by the program.

For the deadline for applications for fall, 1984 is January 15, but students are urged to apply as early as possible in the fall.

Name Change

The weekly newspaper publication at Cal State San Bernardino, currently named The Paw Print, is considering a name change.

As the newspaper represents the student body, and is partially funded by associated students fees, the Publications Board decided a poll of the student body would be appropriate before changing the name.

At their meeting on October 7, 1983, the Board moved to ask the student body for suggestions. Suggestions for a new name should be turned in at the newspaper office before 2:00 p.m. Friday, October 14, 1983.

Those names, along with the current name, will be submitted, in poll form, to the student body on Tuesday, October 18, and Wednesday, October 19. The Publications Board will review the poll results and make a decision before the October 26, 1983 issue.

Upward Bound Plays Vital Role At CSUSB

by Steven Race

If someone came up to you and said that two words could play an important role in the rest of your life you would probably say something like, "You're crazy." But as unlikely as this may sound, there are two words that play a big role to students furthering their education.

Upward Bound plays a vital role here at Cal State. George Martinez, the new director of the Upward Bound Program, said that it was designed to help high school students from low income families enter and succeed at CSUSB. The program was started ten years ago and according to Martinez, one of its main purposes is to recruit sophomores and juniors from high schools, and to get them to participate in a weekend program held at Cal State every other Saturday.

During the academic year, the Upward Bound Staff consisting of Martinez, Denise Benton; secretary, emphasizes instruction in the basic skills of Math, English, reading and science. Personal and career counseling, tutoring, cultural and social activities, and assistance with financial aid and college admission forms are also included as part of the program.

During the summer, high school students in the program spend six weeks living in the dormitories here with full room, board paid and a stipend awarded. Instruction is provided in a small classroom by high school and college teachers in languages, math, reading, skills, self-development, social studies, natural science, and computer science. There is also tutoring, counseling, physical education, and special interest courses that are available. "It's really a good program. Denise is a real good advisor and is also a former Upward Bound student, I am relying on her," said Martinez.

There is a criteria that Upward Bound students must meet. It includes maintaining a 2.0 g.p.a. in high school work, come from a low income family, or be the first person in your family to attend college, and be willing to perform.

The next step for the staff is to talk with your parents about the program and if you are still interested, sign you up for the program.

The Upward Bound Program is also planning a one day Career Orientation Workshop in the middle of November. The high school newspaper staff from San Bernardino, Cajon, Eisenhower, San Gorgonio, Colton, Redlands, Bloomington, and Fontana will be invited to cont. on page 10

Greg Baugh Keeping Busy These Days

Promoting Associated Students’ dances, expos, and films are only a few things keeping Greg Baugh busy these days. As the new A.S. Activities Chairperson, Baugh is responsible for coordinating most of A.S. sponsored activities.

A junior Criminal Justice major from Redlands, Baugh pushed for a free admission to A.S. dances and movies. As students have already paid A.S. fees at registration, Baugh feels charging for these events would be unfair. Therefore, admission to A.S. dances and films will be free this year.

Before taking over as Activities Chairperson this year, Baugh was involved in the Black Student Union, Committee for Clubs, Activities Committee, Search Committee, and church activities.

Baugh can be reached through the Associated Students Office in the Student Union.

CSMA

Uncle Elmo Returns

By Greg Timpany

The CSMA (Cal State Marketing Association) is sponsoring an Uncle Elmo food fest on Oct. 11. From 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Uncle Elmo will be on the outside patio of the Student Union. For the benefit of the Nite-Crew he will move the entire library, and extend his business hours from 5 to 8 o'clock. This promises to be a real event, so come and witness the return of Uncle Elmo and his Traveling Hotdog Stand.

On Oct. 12 the CSMA will be sponsoring its first seminar. Mr. Jim Steinmeyer, the Advertising Manager from Fleetwood Industries Inc., will be the speaker. For the unaware, Fleetwood Industries is the Inland Empire's only Fortune 500 company. At this time, Mr. Steinmeyer is scheduled to speak at 1 p.m. in the lower commons, but this is subject to change. The CSMA will make every effort to publicize any changes in time and location.

In the past events file, the CSMA held its first meeting on Sept. 29. Despite the slightly inclement weather the meeting was highly successful, and promises to be a harbinger of things to come. Also on the evening of Oct. 1, the CSMA held its Fall Toga Party. Again, the weather was a factor, but those who were able to attend were treated to an evening of food, drink, and other interesting activities. All factors considered this year promises to be the best ever for the CSMA.

New Outlet For Aspiring Writers

by Linda Riddell

Interested in writing plays, television sit-coms, novels, or maybe comic strips? Whatever you are interested in writing, you now have an outlet for your talents. Mark Parker and a few associates are developing the Creative Writing Club, so that all those creative imaginations can reinforce one another and eventually bring creative writing to the masses. Mark states that the preamble of this club stems from the sincere desire to bring prose and poetry to all people and to relieve that uncomfortable feeling so many people get when they hear the word "poetry."

This club seems to be one of the most substantially founded to come along in a great while to the Cal State Campus. For instance their immediate short-term goal is to establish a master's program for creative writing. With the new Communications Department opening in the near future, it seems a Creative Writing Department could find a very snug position between it and the existing English Department. However, the general consensus among the English Department Staff is that a Creative Writing Department could possibly detract from the composition department. But we all know Cal State is a college that believes in growth, and does not allow itself to become stagnant in its ideas.

Creative Writing is not just for English majors. Anyone from Computer Science to Business Administration majors who has had an urge to write can now expel those energies. Many Theatre Arts majors will look to creative writing as another dimension to explore in the arts, not to mention all those Psych majors with inquisitive minds and the desire to "put it all on paper!"

Some of the functions to be expected in the following year will be readings from poets and writers both professional and amateur. The club hopes to work with such local published writers as our own professors Larry Kramer and Larry Smith, who is replacing Rod Santos in the English Department.

Mark has suggested developing more interest in visual artists such as concrete poetry which one of our now graduated students, Juan Delgado, was noted for as published in the "Pacific Review." If you don't know what concrete poetry is, perhaps you should visit the Creative Writing Club on Wednesdays at noon in PI 227 where the meetings will be held.

Some of the club's long-range goals are to help promote the "Pacific Review" by soliciting more submissions of poetry and fiction and hopefully to promote the "Pacific Review" and all interests in poetry to the outside world; hence to awaken San Bernardino to the joy of reading good creative writing. Mark Parker can be contacted by calling 875-7324.

LET OMNITRANS HELP MAKE YOUR DREAMS A REALITY!

Whether you dream of being an artist or a computer programmer, it costs a lot to get an education today. But OMNITRANS can help you cope with those high costs by helping you save money on your transportation needs.

If you are used to driving your own car to school consider these facts: while it costs as much as $3,600* per year to drive your car, it costs only about $242 a year to ride the bus. That's a savings of over $3,000 each year!

And to help you save, Omnitrans provides convenient day time service to Cal State San Bernardino via Route 3 and Route 5.

The college newspaper encourages news releases. Releases should be submitted in journalistic form, typed and double-spaced. Good grammar and punctuation are also key factors in any written publication, so we suggest that the author carefully proofread the copy before submitting it. This will save time and avoid confusion for us and also provide you with the best possible article for your organization.

Interested parties having any questions should contact Lisa Beard at our office Friday mornings at this number, 887-7497.

The following are a few tips for improving basic journalistic writing skills:
1. Be certain to exemplify what you are publicizing.
2. Give the place or area where the event or activity will be.
3. Tell when the event is scheduled to happen, including dates, times and exceptions.

We sincerely appreciate your interest in the paper.
German Club's First Meeting

by Steven A. Waldman

The German Club's first 83-84 meeting will be held Monday, Oct. 17, which will feature a discussion concerning studying abroad. Also at the meeting, nomination will be taken for new club officers.

Ken Whitson, a CSCSB student, will be giving a lecture detailing his experiences when studying at the University of Heidelberg, West Germany. He will discuss the progress one has to go through to get into the International Program. The economical factor will be discussed for those who might have doubts about studying overseas. This lecture should help enlighten interested students who are planning to study abroad, or those who are interested but undecided.

After the lecture, the floor will open for nominations for new German Club officers. Everyone is welcomed to attend the lecture and participate in the nominations.

“MOST STUDENTS DON'T KNOW THAT ARMY ROTC LEADS TO AN ARMY OFFICER'S COMMISSION AT GRADUATION”

Besides studying for his degree in management, senior Scott Bacon is also learning what it takes to become an officer through Army ROTC.

I attended an Army ROTC Day during my freshman summer orientation. When I found out I wasn’t obligated to anything my freshman and sophomore years, I decided to try it. I enjoy ROTC. I'm learning things I normally wouldn't learn in college. Like leadership theories and tactics. The management training you receive is really good, too. It helped me a lot with my other management courses.

I’m pretty involved with the University, so I’m glad ROTC doesn’t take up a lot of time. It’s just a couple of hours a week. At the end of your junior year, you have to go to Advance Camp. It’s a lot of fun. You get introduced to everything the Army has to offer, tanks, helicopters, you name it.

In your last two years of ROTC, you receive $100 a month. The way I see it, ROTC is paying you money and you just give the Army back a little of your time. When I get out of the Army, my experience should make it easier to get a job. Corporations look for officers, because they have experience managing people and equipment. And I think starting salaries might be higher because of that experience.

For Scott Bacon, adding Army ROTC to his college schedule has really paid off. Because it actually added another dimension to his college education.

And Army ROTC can do the same for you.

For more information call 887-7273.

And begin your future as an officer.

ARMY ROTC. BE ALL YOU CAN BE.

Islamic Club

The Islamic club was founded to fill a spiritual void, and its purpose is to inform the CSCSB community concerning the principles of Islam. We also try to present an alternative to those who are dissatisfied with the religious and philosophical points of view offered by the community and other campus clubs. Members believe that at this time in history it is necessary to make clear what Islam can mean to the world.

The Islamic Club has become involved in the Student Union activities such as the carnivals, at which the members helped set up booths.

Dr. Rafi Khan is the sponsor of the Islamic Club. The president Zeba Quadri, and the vice president is Asrulsani Shahnaw. The total membership in the club at this time is fifteen, but with the new quarter just beginning there is great enthusiasm for a more abundant membership.

Islamic club members encourage anyone interested in the heritage and life style of the Islamic faith, to join them in this learning and understanding experience. The club meets once a month, and the specific time is published one week prior to the meeting.

The National Honor Society in Psychology, and 1982-83 Club of the Year, is all geared up for the fall quarter. This year's officers are Steven Coffey, President; Bob Miller, Vice-President; Sheryl Wilson, Secretary; and Judy Bullard, Treasurer. Psi Chi members are requested to pay their annual dues as soon as possible. Members can pay either $4 per quarter or $10 for the whole year.

This quarter Psi Chi is offering a speaker schedule that should have something to offer to all psychology majors. Being a psychology major or a Psi Chi member to attend the weekly meetings is not required. The fall schedule is as follows:

Secretary Sheryl Wilson, Treasurer Judy Bullard, and President Steven Coffey at the 1982-83 Club of the Year fists of their respective offices.

Bringing People Together

Clown passes out balloons at Club Fair

by Carol Leish

For students interested in spending time with other interesting people from all over the world, a good source to consider is the Shalom Club. The Shalom Club both enhances cultural and entertaining experiences and brings people together to share holidays. It brings the students and the community close together to share in festivities. Since 1978 the Shalom club has been an active participant in campus activities and in community and statewide events. This year the club plans to continue its support of the campus and community, including activities as dinners, trips to the Fairfax area in L.A., going to Westwood, and visiting and participating in events at other colleges.

Students who are interested should contact Sheryl at 881-2226 or leave their name and number in the Shalom Club box in the Student Union.

Health Corner

Now's your chance! Any health related questions you would like answered anonymously, general information questions, or suggestions concerning the Health Center, can be dropped in the box in the lobby of the Health Center. We will answer as many questions as possible each week.

What is a pap smear and do I have to have my parent's permission to have one?

A Pap smear is a screening test for cancer that was first introduced by a Dr. Papanicolaou. A smear is taken from the cervix (a part of the uterus) and examined under the microscope.

Parental consent is not needed for this test to be done.

Can cancer result if one does not douche regularly after menstruating?

Menstruation is a normal process and does not need to be followed with a douche. There is no relationship between a douche and cancer formation. It is best not to douche unless ordered by your doctor.

Is there anything I can do to avert a cold once I feel it coming on?

No. There are many different viruses that cause the common cold. Up to this time no medication has been developed that will prevent or cure a cold. The medication is intended to make you feel better. A secondary infection, such as sinuses, is treated with antibiotics.

My eyes blur and cloud when reading. What is this?

There are many causes for this condition. If your answer is not possible. You should see your ophthalmologist for an examination.

I jutter my leg a lot, especially in class. I don't realize I am doing it. Is this a serious sign?

No. This is a fairly common nervous habit. It has no serious results.

My hands and feet are always cold. My body is colder than most other people's. Is this serious?

This is not an unusual finding. Some people have a lower metabolism and the superficial capillaries in the hands and feet contract more readily to changes in temperature. This is not a serious problem.

No Would Be Nurses And Pre-Med Students At The Health Center
by Linda Riddell

After I had learned from a friend in my senior year at CS CSB that the Student Health Center was not just a bunch of nurses and nurses and pre-med students taking their required courses in the health sciences, I decided to give the place a chance and drag my wounded body over there for some of that health care! I assumed of course, that I would be greeted by student nurses and nurses assisted by student nurses-you girls might know what I mean, it's kind of like going to one of those 'beauty schools' where the students do all the work. It's cheap, and you walk out looking like it was cheap because students do all the work! But come on! We're walk out looking like it was cheap, and you walk out looking like it was cheap because students do all the work! But come on! We're desperate. I walked into nice room thinking I was probably in another student union lounge and asked the girl at the desk where I could find their little clinic, perhaps down the hallway and into the smallest cubicle of a room. The girl said "this is it" and asked if I had an appointment. "Oh, so this is where the vise grips comes in huh?" I thought. My boo-boo is alive and well today and she wants me to come back when it has turned to crud and I have to have the right side of my body amputated. "Oh, it looks as if we can get you in right away," she says. Well, started feeling a little relieved, some of the worry and anxiety began to dwindle down to mild palpitations. Although I just knew someone would look at my boo-boo and say I only had a week to live. Five minutes a woman in a white doctor's coat called my name. She looked like a nurse! A real nurse! I wonder what she did to deserve being succumbed to this job. Maybe never graduated from a school for all shaky hands could only cut jagged instead of straight lines with the 'ol' scalpel. Anyway, she didn't have a killer face and upon entering the examination room I didn't see the killer instinct in her eyes either. I did notice, however, the R.N. and General Practitioner on her little button. "Wow that's impressive," I thought. During the entire examination I realized I was conversing with a very bright woman with a great sense of humor. She answered all my questions and told me I wasn't going to die. That was exactly what I wanted to hear. When I asked her "What if my boo-boo is a bug bite, what do I do?" she replied confidently. "So if you would change your sheets once in awhile." I knew I had found home! I just can't remember when I felt so relaxed and comfortable in a doctor's offices being as friendly as they are here on campus.

Well, I had the initial consultation all the bucks I have spent in the last four years of school for all those doctors I went off campus when this has been available. When Nurse cont. on page 10

[Typing Services]

Do you have to spend five hours "Hunting and Pecking" on a rented typewriter for every five page paper? Typing services are popular because so many students do have to hunt and peck. In order to better use typing services, area typists have offered answers to the following questions:

Do most typing services accept handwritten drafts?
A handwritten rough draft is generally acceptable, although it must be readable.

Too many students think the typist can perform miracles. We all can do is type what we see. It is to the student's benefit to turn in a readable copy. It may take deletions, additions, etc., but they need to be clear.

Do you charge for grammatical corrections?
I watch for obvious spelling and grammatical mistakes and correct them as I go along. However, if it takes a lot of extra time to consult a dictionary or other resources, I charge extra. Remember, spelling and grammar are the student's responsibility-he/she is getting the grade.

How far in advance will you need the copy?
It is hard to say exactly how far in advance or how much notice is needed. On 25 pages or less the student will give at least 2 days plus calling in advance so I can schedule this generally works out fine. Anything over 25 pages I should be notified a week or more ahead of time that the paper will be coming and not that time can tell the student how much time I'll need to type it. However, during the spring when there is such a rush, typists generally get bogged down because so many students don't notify in advance or wait until the last minute. Therefore, at this time of year a student's should be particularly careful to plan ahead.

What is the usual charge per page. Also, is there an additional charge for footnotes?
My charges are $1.25 per page without footnotes and $1.50 with footnotes (there are exceptions when this varies, but that is on an individual basis).

A suggestion about footnotes and bibliographies-It is the student's responsibility to put these in their proper order and proper format.
Crowd Raves Over Return Of Kansas

by Greg Timpany

In a day where mindless New Wave music seems to be taking over, it is good to see an American band like Kansas continue to further "Progressive Rock-n-Roll." Touring in support of their new album "Rearview Measures," Kansas is thrilling Rock fans of all ages throughout the country. On October 1 and 2 they made their L.A. appearances at the Universal Amphitheatre. This was the band's first appearance in the area in over a year, and needless to say, they were very well received by a capacity crowd.

The band opened the concert with an excellent version of their current single, "Fight Fire With Fire," and then proceeded to delight the audience with a ninety minute repertoire of their greatest hits. Half-way through the set the lights dimmed, the the opening chords of "Dust in the Wind" brought the crowd to its feet. Despite the loss of violinist-vocalist Robbie Steinhard, the band members all gave inspired performances. Complimenting the music was one of Rock's most unique light shows. Also the acoustics of the Universal Amphitheatre deserve a band.

All these put together made for a truly remarkable evening.

Opening the show was "Shooting Star" who may prove to be one of Rock's most versatile and promising new bands. They performed music from their previous albums as well as their new album "Burnin."

The crowd was very impressed, and it was obvious the band made several new fans.

Moorefield To Open Music At Cal State Series

Ways in which music can describe things will be illustrated on the piano and harpsichord by Dr. Arthur Moorefield in the opening concert of the Music at Cal State series Wednesday evening, Oct. 12 at CSCSB.

The lecture-recital featuring four fairly large works will begin at 8:15 p.m. in the Recital Hall of the Creative Arts Building.

Dr. Moorefield, professor of music at Cal State, specializes in music of the German reformation and is an artist on the harpsichord, organ, and clarinet.

Robert Schumann's "Faschingsschwank aus Wien" (Carnival in Vienna) and "The Battle of Prague" by Johann Sebastian Bach's "Capriccio in B flat major" will be heard on the harpsichord.
Big Foot Nominated

by John J. Bruins

I love CSCSB. The campus is soothing and the people are great. All we need now is a mascot. It is true that a mascot should represent what we believe in our school, but we should also take into account the future of our teams. They are not only going to want the symbol of free and wild, but one of strength and power. The coyote does not represent strength and power, and the St. Bernard does not represent freedom. So why don't we work on an original third choice that we all can agree on. One mascot that comes to mind is free, wild, strong, powerful, and also happens to be very mysterious to many people: The CSCSB Big Foot.

Ratchet, I mean Nurse Vivian told me they could perform all the services any other doctor's office could perform including pap tests. I slapped my hand up against my heart. The dollar signs were spinning out of control by now, and I knew by this state that I could trust my heart to them. It's hard to believe I came out of there with a smile on my face, but it's honestly looking forward to going back—even if it's only to hear what of Nurse Vivian has to say!

take part in the workshop. The Upward Bound students will also be participating and speakers will be present to discuss many interesting careers. "There's a lot of students missing out; I would like to see them become more aware of the program," concluded Martinez.

Applications for the Upward Bound Program are available from high school counselors. Students can return the completed forms to their high school counselor or to the Upward Bound office here on campus. An Upward Bound counselor will contact applicants at their high school within a week to discuss the program. To contact the Upward Bound office, located in the Student Services building here, call 887-7200.

Good-Bye To James Watt, Say Hello To His Clone

Two weeks ago President Reagan stated that Interior Secretary James Watt was “doing a good job - case closed.”

Well the Watt case really closed when Senator Watt resigned in the face of a Senate no-confidence vote. After 2 1/2 very controversial years as the Interior Secretary, Watt bowed out blaming his unpopular environmental policies as the cause for the fury against him.

To a degree Watt is correct in his analysis of why he was forced out of office. His policies, including offshore oil leasing and exploration of federally protected lands, are unpopular. In fact, over 5 million people have joined Watt’s “stewardship” policies. These policies, however, are not Watt’s alone; they are sanctioned by Ronald Reagan. Thus Watt’s policies are really Reagan’s policies.

The great outcry of the Republicans in the Senate was not directed toward the destruction of the environmental policies espoused by Watt, but rather his diplomatic abilities. Although Reagan seemingly overcooked (orcondoned) Watt’s racial and sexist remarks, evidently the Senate Republicans could not.

The Senate Republicans have, however, overlooked Reagan and Watt’s exploitation of this nation’s scarce natural resources. They are not so concerned with natural resources as their political careers by dissociating themselves with Reagan’s diplomatically inept Interior Secretary.

Therefore, when it comes time to confirm Reagan’s choice for Watt’s successor, the Senate Republicans will not be looking for someone more sensitive to the environment, but rather just someone more sensitive to political diplomacy. So the oil and mineral companies, and you and I, can look forward to a clone of James Watt until the case is closed on Ronald Reagan.

Letter From The Editor

Ironing Out The Kinks

I would sincerely like to thank the many people who have written me and my staff constructive criticism on our first two issues.

Who said people were apathetic about their newspaper at Cal State? It seems a great number of students, faculty, administrators, and staff care about the quality of this newspaper as much as I do.

Suggestions ranging from aesthetic make-up of the layout to proof reading advice have been of great value as feedback and is essential to the improvement process of the paper. In time we can implement some of these suggestions in order to improve the paper. In the mean time, I would ask that you continue your suggestions as well as your patience.

My goal is to provide Cal State with an informative, as well as provocative, quality newspaper, however, the quality and informational value of this paper, while for the most part has been good, has lacked in several instances.

The September 28, 1983 issue contained several erroneous references. Among these errors include referring to the Cal State Marketing Association as the Marketing Club, incorrectly spelling the author of the hostage as Brandon Bean instead of Brendan Bahen, and incorrectly spelling the Midwinter as the Mid-Niter.

Corrections of the October 5, 1983 issue include incorrect spelling of the “Killer Dips” artists and also referring to Don Woodford as Dan Woodford. Also Emily Hanisko wrote that delightful article “Transfer Student Blues.”

Again, thank you all for your sincere efforts to help improve the paper. I have the privilege of having a dedicated and motivated staff, of which I am very proud. Their efforts, along with the campus community’s input, will go a long way in making this paper a viable, respected news forum.

In Defense Of Village S.A.S. Program

Many people probably felt very strongly about last week’s editorial concerning Mr. Race’s opinion of the S.A.S. program in Serrano Village, but may be none of you will say anything about it. I however, am not going to sit back and let it go unnoticed.

Mr. Race misunderstood the intentions of the S.A.S. program. In fact, he completely blew them out of proportion.

Sure Mr. Race, I thoroughly agree with you that college students are adults and some of these “adults” do not need the volunteer help of us “oldies” in the Village.

Although for your information Mr. Race, some new college students do have those normal freshman or new student anxieties and maybe could use a friendly helping hand when they first move in.

Students in the past have voiced their needs for more guidance when they first checked into the dorms. The needs were recognized (we heard the voice of our fellow students) and the Students Assisting Students (S.A.S.) program was instituted in Serrano Village. It was designed for the new students to help alleviate their anxieties when they move into a new place, especially those who are away from home for the first time.

S.A.S. is a volunteer program consisting of “old” students. The response from the faculty, staff and students concerning S.A.S. have been phenomenal, and many have urged the program to continue. I am sorry that you distorted the intentions of such a useful and well-organized organization.

Mr. Race, one friendly suggestion for you next time you want to criticize an organization’s worth, try looking into it FIRST.
