INTERCOLLEGIATE SPORTS

IRP Fireworks to Begin

by Steven Race

The fireworks will begin again this Thursday when the A.S. board will meet at 3 p.m., Nov. 4, in the senate chambers, to discuss the controversial issue of Intercollegiate Sports here at CSCSB.

The referendum issue began when the campus IRP (Instructionally Related Program) Advisory Committee passed a motion in its Oct. 12 meeting asking that a referendum be called to determine whether or not students are willing to raise their IRA fee by $10 per academic year. The increased fee would go to support the development of an Intercollegiate Sports Program here on campus.

Following that meeting, campus President Anthony H. Evans sent out a memorandum that said, "I request that you administer such a referendum, making reduction in the process that all California State and CSU codes, policies, and procedures applying to such referenda are followed."

An informational meeting will be held in the Student Union next Tuesday and Wednesday at both 12 p.m. and 8 p.m. in the SUMP to discuss the issue. Members from last year's Task Force on Intercollegiate Sports will be there to give both positive and negative views on what will happen if it's passed. According to Dean Wilson, the meeting is open to anyone who is interested and is mostly to inform everyone on the issue.

After the discussions have been completed, two polling places will be set up on Nov. 15-16 and will be open from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m., both days. "Resident students will be asked to vote at the location set-up in the quad area," said Dean Wilson.

The commuting students will vote at the other polling place in front of the library. At the polling areas, students will be required to show their student ID, and will be checked against a master list. The ballots will also be numbered consecutively to prevent someone from "stuffing the ballot box."

CSSA BACKS FEE DECREASE PROPOSAL

"To renew the State's commitment to higher education, it is essential for the Governor and Legislature to support the proposed fee reduction for the California State University system. "Since the passage of Proposition 13, the California State University system has been cut by some $171 million. Students have supplemented $100 million that reduction with fees increasing over 240 percent since 1980," Ed Van Ginkel, Chair of the California State Student Association, said today. "To propose a fee increase after such a large fee increase further demonstrates the erratic, nonsensical nature of recent student fee setting practices."

"Although we feel that our fees should be reduced even further than the $90, understand why the Chancellor has proposed that figure," Van Ginkel commented. "We commend her for following through with her promise to us and pledge our assistance in attempting to persuade the Governor to follow through with his commitment."

"It is essential, after the adoption of a new state law for setting and adjusting CSU student fees and a law whereby students cannot pay for other students to attend school, that the Governor and Legislature adopt Chancellor Reynolds' proposed fee reduction. Rejection of this fee reduction would only mean that the State really has no CSU fee policy," Van Ginkel continued.

The Governor recently signed a measure, AB 1251 which establishes a process for setting and adjusting CSU student fees by placing fees between 10 and 20 percent of the state support average per full-time student. The Governor also recently signed a measure, AB 1375, which states that the State shall provide sufficient financial aid for needy students and such aid will not be used from student fee dollars. "Although it makes little sense to substantially increase our fees and then reduce them moderately, we recognize that this proposed reduction is a logical, rational one and is necessary to comply with new state laws."

Visiting Placement Center Is An Experience

by Linda Riddell

We all know that the Career Planning and Placement Center helps to find jobs for those of us who are financially destitute. We are also aware that they counsel those of us who can't get it together, ever, and may never get it together, but who cares! Just going into that department in the Student Services Building is an experience in itself.

You get to meet such personalities as Lynn Moss, who handles the Educational Placement Program for our future teachers, and part-time work placement both on and off campus.

There's also Ed Schneider, who does the counseling. You may wish to see Lynn to start setting up placement files, compiling recommendation letters, viewing tapes on job openings for teachers, getting on the mailing list for the newsletter designed just for you. Don't forget, Lynn goes directly to those students who are working with her in the Educational Placement Program who are qualified at that time.

Ed has the ability to be extremely witty and at the same time present a perspective on your career abilities and limitations with intense gentleness and honesty. If that isn't enough, he motivates his clients with his assurance and belief that it's the positive attitude and drive to accomplish that will get you where you want to go, no matter where that is. He believes that the student should place more emphasis on marketing themselves with less concern for the market itself.

As for the real world out there, Schneiderman says the business industry and government employers look less for specific majors and more for skills. He states specifically four areas of interest: Verbal communication; written communication; math statistics; and computer knowledge. Besides giving you the continued on page 2...
GERMAN CLUB HEARS HANS VON HERWARTH

by Dennis Hatcher

Last Thursday, a small group of students from this campus travelled to USC to hear Hans von Herwarth speak on the subject “The Rise of National Socialism and German Resistance.”

Mr. Herwarth was a member of Germany’s Foreign Service in Moscow from 1931 to 1939. He became an officer in the German army in 1939 where he actively participated in efforts to assassinate Adolf Hitler. After the war, he worked with Konrad Adenauer, the first Chancellor of the new West German government. Herwarth also became West Germany’s first ambassador to Great Britain. He now holds a position as head of the esteemed Goethe Institute in Munich.

Herwarth began his lecture by explaining the political atmosphere in Germany in the early 1930’s. The fear of communism was rampant, during the post WWI and depression years after the crash of 1929. After tremendous instability brought about, in a large degree, by the harsh terms of the Treaty of Versailles which ended WWI, the German people elected the great hero and statesman, Paul von Hindenburg as their new president. His new “Weimar Republic” seemed to be leading Germany in the right direction; however, von Hindenburg was already in his 80’s and was becoming increasingly senile and unable to lead effectively. But von Hindenburg was coherent enough to denounce the Nazi’s as “vermin.” However, despite his opposition to Hitler and his new party, he was forced to select Hitler as his successor.

In the meantime, Herwarth and the small diplomatic corps in Moscow waited anxiously to see what the new Hitler government would do. Herwarth explained that in those days, the diplomatic corps from all countries were like a family—they ate at one another’s homes and discussed openly the changing political tides of Europe. Deep and lasting friendships were cultivated even among those people whom later would be enemies in war. As Hitler’s power grew ever stronger, Herwarth and the other German diplomats tried unsuccessfully to convince their English and French friends to resist him.

Herwarth further explained that there were many thousands of real democratic thinking people in Germany who were appointed in Hitler’s rise to power. The first real resistance to Hitler came from Protestant priests who were incensed in the concentration camps. But as Hitler continued to capture the imagination of the German people with his continuing successes in Austria and Czechoslovakia, opposition began to favor Hitler, or at least make it difficult to find those who were willing to resist him. However, there were still some who saw the criminality of Hitler’s actions, and were willing to act out of conscience to see him stopped. Herwarth was one of them.

With the change from a civil government to a military one in 1939, Herwarth joined the army since resistance to Hitler would now have to come from within. Here, he came to work with Major Claus von Stauffenberg, who would

by Carol Leish

On November 12, the “Budweiser Intramural Super Sports” will occur in and around the gym area. At the end of the day, there will be a get-together in the Lower Commons. This event is co-sponsored by Budweiser and the Intramural Department.

Co-ed teams will compete in six “exciting” events, according to the head of Intramurals, Joe Long. He says that every participant receives a t-shirt for their effort. Entry deadline is November 1 at noon in PE 122.

Children’s Auxiliary Center

d by Carol Leish

At the Novemberfest on Nov. 9, the Children’s Center Auxiliary will have a booth. There will be a bake sale and an educational toy sale. The center will receive 15% of the toy sales and any money which the Children’s Center can use to purchase toys at a discounted price. Enjoy the goodies and treat some special child to a toy to help support the Children’s Center.

Career Explorations Workshop

by Carol Leish

Are you feeling overwhelmed lately? Do you suffer from tension headaches, muscle tension, stomach aches, or test anxiety?

The Counseling Center will be conducting a stress management workshop on Friday November 11, from 1-4 p.m. and also on three consecutive Mondays, Nov. 14, 21, and 28 from 11-12 p.m.

The workshop is designed to aid students in recognizing their stress responses and how to facilitate their ability to evoke relaxation response thus enabling them to feel better and live a happier stress-free lives.

Graduate Assistantships

Several graduate assistantships will be available this winter for entering students in the School of Business and Public Administration at CSCSB.

The amount of the stipend earned by each student will depend upon the time worked. Hours are flexible and will continue through the spring quarter as well.

Prospective students interested in information about the assistantships may contact Jennifer McMullen, administrative aide in the student office, for further information. Her phone is 887-7531.

Graduate students who wish to enroll at Cal State for the winter quarter in January are urged to submit their applications, transcripts and other necessary papers as soon as possible.

The Recycling of a Club

by Teresa A. Spinak

Once upon a time, in an age far, far away, there existed an active Biology Club. After several years of dormancy, the club was re-activated with the transmutation of new life blood. The new life came in the form of enthusiastic students, with Dr. Richard Febn as a catalyst. On Wednesday, Oct. 26, a meeting was held and officers elected. The next meeting will be Wednesday, Nov. 2 at 11 a.m. in Biology 225. Interested students...of any major...are welcome. Planned events include a weekend field trip on Nov. 18, 19, 20 to ZZYX, establishing a recycling center, fund and fun raising.

In the future, there will also be guest speakers and presentations.

If it’s life and natural...it’s science. Come join us on Wednesday.

Team Super Sports

The annual Super Sports competition, sponsored by Budweiser, will take place at the P.E. facility all day on November 12. Teams made up of four men and four women will compete in volleyball, frisbee relay, 800 relay, obstacle course, 6-pack pitch-in, and tug of war, followed by a post-game celebration in the lower commons. CSCSB students, faculty and staff may participate. The entry deadline and organizational meeting for Super Sports is Friday, November 11 at 12 noon in the P.E. Conference Room.
MECHA FOOD DRIVE

by Jill Miller

The MECHA (Movimiento Estudiantil Chicano de Aztlan) Club is one of the more active clubs here at CSCSB. Its membership this year has about 25 students and 5 faculty members. Anyone who is a student or faculty member of CSCSB can become involved with MECHA, because it is not only open to Hispanic, but for anyone wanting to serve and support the school and the community.

MECHA has many activities planned already. They have had a flower and bake sale, and will be having a food drive on Nov. 18. Drop boxes for the food drive will be placed in the Student Union, Student Services Atrium, and the Housing Office. If you have can goods or anything to contribute, the MECHA will gladly accept them.

The MECHA club President is Marina Vasquez who is enthusiastic about the club and encourages people to become involved. Marina would like to thank the club members for their support, and especially to Don Rodriguez, the MECHA vice president for all his work.

If you have any questions or would like to become involved with MECHA club, please attend one of their meetings on Tuesdays at 3 p.m. in SU Rms A and B or call Marina at 887-7757 in the Student Union.

CSMA Provides

interested, the association will return to day meetings exclusively. A day meeting will be held on November 17 at 12 noon in Student Union Room A, with Dick Moss speaking on "Business and the Federal Budget Deficit."

Another Uncle Elmo's Hotdog Stand is planned for November 16 at 11:30-1:30 on the Student Union Patio, and from 5-8 p.m. at Library South. This is a great opportunity for good food and fun, so please put it on your calendar.

October was a busy and fun-filled month for all active association members. One of the main goals of the group is the combination of career and educational pursuits with just plain fun. Several members recently proved that this can be achieved when they attended the Marketing Research Conference in Las Vegas on October 2 through the 4.

On October 12, the CSMA presented two speakers from Fleetwood Industries, who discussed the advertising and marketing of Fleetwood, a Fortune 500 company. And on October 21, association members visited Contel (Continental Telephone) in Victorville. Both of these activities were extremely informative, providing insight into the real business world. All students who are concerned about their future success in business should remember that the Cal State Marketing Association can provide them with these important insights, as well as with vital contacts with the business community.

Affairs of the Heart, III

by Dennis Hatcher

Editor’s note: This is the final installment of a 3 part series dealing with love affairs between students and faculty at CSCSB.

Author’s note: I am indebted to the faculty members of this school who consented to be interviewed on this subject. I have deleted their names and any reference to their field of instruction to protect their privacy.

E. is a good-looking middle-aged woman who has been teaching at CSCSB for several years. Her husband is also a teacher, but at a different school. She is a soft spoken woman who weighs her words carefully and cautiously, yet her conversation is often broken by genuine laughter and broad, true statements. I had, at first, thought it would be difficult to speak candidly with any of the faculty due to the sensitive nature of the subject, and the fact that I am a student who has no business asking such things of learned professors. But I was wrong. E. came right to the point and was very open about some of her personal thoughts.

“I’ve been to lots of colleges,” she began, “and I can tell you it happens a lot.”

Health Corner

This is a weekly column. If you have any health-related questions that you would like answered, drop your questions in the box in the Health Center lobby.

My parents and friends are pressuring me to go out with someone, but I would much rather concentrate on studying. Am I "normal"? Is abstinence okay?

Normal is whatever is right for you. Everyone should set their own goals and priorities. If you feel good about yourself and these goals are right for you, stick to them. Parental and peer pressures should not be the primary reason for dating or not dating for abstaining or "giving in."

Recently I had a sore throat. My roommate got one soon after. Since I had been treated, I shared my medication with my friend. Both of us ended up having to see the doctor. Is it all right to share medications?

No, no! Even though you might have had the same symptoms as your friend, his/her condition could have been something totally different. You also had no way of knowing if your friend's physiological system could handle the medication. Another problem is the fact that you were given a specific amount of medication. By shortening the course of your treatment, you cheated yourself and did not fully recover. There is also one other really important consideration you may not be aware of. Federal law prohibits the transfer of medications to any person other than the patient for whom it was prescribed.

Is A.I.D.S. carried through the air, which would make it very contagious?

Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome (AIDS) is a poorly understood impairment of the body's immune system, which occurs in previously healthy individuals. The cause of AIDS is not yet known; researchers are investigating many theories. The research indicates that it is caused by an infectious agent and probably is transmissible through intimate exposure to body secretions or infected blood products.

Although no conclusive evidence exists, the most prominent risk groups seem to be:
1. Individuals who are sexually intimate with many different partners.
2. Intravenous non-prescribed drug users.
3. Individuals with hemophilia A disease and possibly those who receive large quantities of blood by transfusion.
4. Some native Haitians.
5. Individuals who are sexually intimate with a person who has AIDS.

There is no definite test available to diagnose AIDS early. To recap, AIDS is not carried through the air and is not contagious in this way.

I heard that much of the blood donated at large blood drives gets wasted or is ruined. Is this true? Should I just go donate at the local Blood Bank?

No, blood donated to large blood drives is not wasted. At the present time, only 1% of the blood becomes outdated. All of type A and type O blood is used; the 1% that is not used as whole blood is type AB, because it is a more rare type.

Blood can be stored at four degrees celsius for 35 days. Then the red cells must be discarded. The serum is drained off, frozen, and used. The platelets are also separated and used.

The Blood Bank is very short of blood at the present time, and more donors are needed. We try to have two Blood Bank drives a year on our campus. Any student, staff or faculty member who needs blood will be able to get it through our Blood Reserve Fund. If you want to donate other times in addition to our campus drives, simply go to the local Blood Bank in San Bernardino and tell them you want your donation credited to the Cal State Blood Reserve Fund.

Peter Pan-Special Performances Scheduled

So many people are eager to fly with Ruta Lee as Peter Pan in the San Bernardino Civic Light Opera production of "Peter Pan" that a special matinee has been added to meet the high public demand, according to C. Dale Jenks, Civic Light Opera General Manager.

The special performance is scheduled for Saturday, November 12 and is in addition to the matinee scheduled for Saturday, November 19. Both performances are set to begin at 2:15 p.m. in the California Theatre of Performing Arts, 562 W. 4th St., San Bernardino.

Ms. Lee, star of over 500 television shows, will be joined by the bright and lively Maureen McCormick as Wendy, the eldest of the Darling children and Bryon Webster will co-star as the menacing Captain Hook. "Peter Pan" will be presented for a limited engagement beginning November 11 and continuing through November 19. Curtain time for the evening performances is 8:15 p.m. The show is presented daily except Sundays.

Tickets are now on sale at the Civic Light Opera Ticket Office, 2079 North "E" Street in San Bernardino. Tickets can be ordered by calling 882-2645 or 825-9432.

Before We Put You In Charge Of The World's Most Sophisticated Nuclear Equipment,
We Put You Through The World's Most Sophisticated Nuclear Training.

It takes more than 16 months of intensive training to become a fully qualified officer in the Nuclear Navy. You begin with four months of leadership training. Then as a Navy officer you get a full year of graduate-level training unavailable anywhere else at any price.

Navy training is based on more than 1900 reactor-years of experience. Right now the Navy operates over half the nuclear reactors in America. And the Navy's nuclear equipment is the most sophisticated in the world. That's why your Navy training is and must be the most sophisticated in the world.

As an officer in the Nuclear Navy, you have decision-making authority immediately. You get important management responsibility fast. Because in the Navy, as your knowledge grows, so does your responsibility.

Your training and experience place you among the country's most qualified professionals. (No surprise that most of the men who operate the reactors in private industry started in the Nuclear Navy.)

It takes more time and more effort to become an officer in the Nuclear Navy. But the rewards are greater, too.

The rewards can begin as early as your junior year in college. Qualify, and the Navy will pay you approximately $1000/month while you finish school.

After four years, with regular promotions and salary increases, you can be earning as much as $40,500. That's on top of a benefits package that includes medical and dental care, and 30 days' vacation earned every year. More responsibility, more money, more future.

So, if you're majoring in math, engineering or the physical sciences, and you want to know more about a future in nuclear power, fill in the coupon.

Today's Nuclear Navy is an opportunity like no other in the world.

Liberals Fired by Reagan

A major event this week in Washington, D.C., was overshadowed by events in Grenada and Beirut. President Reagan, on the same day the news of the Grenadian invasion broke, fired three liberal members of the Civil Rights Commission. What would have been a major front page news story became a second or eighth page story. This possibly illegal presidential action was strategically timed by a very politically astute President to bury this behind international events.

Two of the fired commissioners, Mary Frances Berry and Blanilda Cardenas, have filed suit charging the President’s action was illegal. Their suit will focus on the provisions of the Civil Rights Act of 1965 which states that temporary commissions can not be fired without due cause. Reagan fired Berry, Barry, and Rabbi Murray Saltzman because they did not espouse his conservative anti-busing position.

Besides the possible illegality of Reagan’s action, the ethics of his stacking the commission with male conservatives is also questionable. This commission is intended to protect the minorities, but will these conservative really be able to represent minorities? Not once. Neither Berry, nor Barry, nor Saltzman?

Do you think the invasion of Grenada was essential to the United States' national security?

Political Science

I do not think the invasion of Grenada was essential to our national security. I know President Reagan thinks so, but I disagree with his reasoning. It is my idea that Grenada could become a Soviet base of power in the Caribbean which could be expanded to engulf the region. I disagree with his reasoning.
