Many of the tens—male or female—would not have been discernible 20 years earlier, except to those who knew them best. Now it appears that although parenthood is often a means for the women to gain some measure of love, respect or control lacking elsewhere, they also become trapped by it. They no longer have the time, energy or freedom to pursue other interests or careers, or even to think about other interests or careers. They are trapped by the roles and expectations of others, and often by their own behavior patterns.

Our society has not yet come to grips with the fact that parenthood is a complex and frequently painful process, one that requires a great deal of patience and understanding. It is not something that can be done overnight, and it requires much more than just the ability to provide for one's family.

In conclusion, I would like to stress the importance of supporting and encouraging women who are considering or have already become mothers. This is not an easy decision, and it requires much perseverance and determination. It is a decision that affects not only the individual and her family, but the entire society. We must work together to provide the support and resources that are necessary for women to make the best possible choices for themselves and their families.

Business Profile: Ethnic Reams, Rolls, And Bags, Inc.

In 1990 when Pat Brazington went to a department store to buy a gift for her son's christening, they offered free gift wrap. She was surprised when the package returned with pink babies all over it. "I had an out of body experience," said Brazington. "You have insulted me and I want those babies off my gift," she continued. The management couldn't understand her problem. "I've never heard of ethnic wrapping under it." said the manager. "I searched for one year and never found the ethnic paper, bags, so Ethnic Reams, Rolls and Bags, Inc. was born," she said.

The business began to take off soon after opening and Brazington's husband quit his job. Recently they have entered into a deal with author Synthia Reams, Rolls, And Bags, Inc. to debut "Ensemble", an exciting mini gift bag. Synthia James has achieved national headlines in the art and publishing industries as a result of her vivid illustration for the cover of the captivating national best seller "Waiting to Exhale" by novelist Terry McMillan. Additionally the company can make special custom orders for clients. For more information call (214) 946-3772.

S.E.L.F. Adopts Grandparents At Local Hospital

S.E.L.F. (Self Education Law Enforcement Family), a program that mentors boys ages 9-12, held their Adopt-A-Grandparents ceremony at Pacific Park Convalescent Hospital.

The keynote speaker was Cheryl Brown, Co-Publisher of Black Voice News. Jeff Hill, founder of the group said, "Many of our boys don't have grandparents and many of the residents don't have grandchildren, so the idea was, 'Let's put them together.'"

Julie Beckwith, Hospital Administrator said, "This is wonderful, our residents have something to look forward to."

Carolyn Howard, Activities Director, feels, it is an outstanding program and she is happy that they chose Pacific Park.

Brown spoke of the idea of mentoring as one that is as old as Africa itself. She spoke of her experience in Pacific Park. Because her grandmother was one of the oldest residents, prior to her death two years ago. Music was provided by Ms. Statia Gardiner, 1993, runner-up in the Miss Black San Bernardino pageant.

Robin L. Helf, Ph.D., introduced dignitaries and made comments on the S.E.L.F. program.

Dancers of the program who were on hand were: Terrance McMillan, Honoree Bearwright, Lanor Taylor and Michael Kirby.

Lunch was provided by Nation Time Deli and Bakery. Each youngster, who was previously paired with an adopted grandparent, presented them with flowers to seal the new relationship.

Heart Problems Won't Stop Lewis From Following His Heart

Lewis had "dodged a bullet" in the playoff game. He said Lewis’ career might be over. On stage next: Lewis was taken to a hospital, during the game, where he spent a week undergoing tests. After reviewing the test results, 11 cardiologists agreed that Lewis had cardiomyopathy — a potentially life-threatening disease that causes the heart to beat less vigorously. A public statement was released in this effect.

Up next: A hospital where Lewis’ wife, Donna, used to work became the scene for the next act — end life I might add. One opinion — even though it was 11 docs’ who put through their brains on work — in order our career is just not enough, right? Of course not! But the result was obtained from the new doc’s were better than hoped for. Better yet, they were exactly what he hoped for.

The second opinion unison a condition called neurocardiogenic syncope. Big words, huh? Well, they are life giving words to Lewis. This cardiac problem is based in a nervous condition that causes the signals telling the heart how or when to stop up or slow down.

Based on this revelation of facts, it has been determined that Lewis will still participate in the game he loves without limitation. This is an unspoken diagnosis can treated with medication.

Lewis upon his release from the second hospital, immediately announced plans to play next season. "I just pass a fine time in my life," he said. Some people question the wide disparity in the two medical diagnoses. How can they be that different? Did Lewis and his doctors confuse the answer to what he personally wanted?
