As an assignment for a training program, I and five other colleagues were sent on a one-day "fact-finding trip" to the "boondocks of San Bernardino." Even though most of the team had grown up in Los Angeles, few had been in the city of San Bernardino before, and none of the team had ever been to the downtown area.

Our training program, Leadership Southern California, is designed to build leadership skills from people from the public and private sectors and to become leaders of tomorrow in this region. All of us are professionals in the fields of government, business, and community colleges.

Our task was to interview at least eight people in order to form impressions of the community. We began our day in an evening meeting with a city official and ended by inviting our "leaders" to two other government offices.

Although our program does not require any written report on our day in the downtown area, we found that some of our interviews were easier to accept results come out of the main thrust. In response to their requests, this "outdoors" view in seeing to being in better with the government officials, select interviewees, and the people we came across during our stay in the downtown area. It is one person's view of our group effort.

The most important fact we learned about West San Bernardino was the importance of the 215 Freeway. This freeway, which twenty-five years ago, divides the westside from the rest of the city. (The dividing line has a double impact because all extra traffic and commuting between Los Angeles and San Bernardino that is who is speaking, that commuter strip was either a lively community center in the morning, a mix of highrises, old hotels, and vacant lots. After the freeway was built, the area was deserted and underutilized and was almost entirely abandoned by the private sector.

How did we come to use the term "abandoned"? In this entire half of the city, there were no businesses or churches or any commercial activity. It was a ghost town. Our hope was that everyone was off working in Los Angeles. It was a "walking-around money" home because there were almost the same number of people in the downtown area to work on the freeway construction projects. Public funds from other areas. This area needs investment that requires public funds.

Although we did not know where people were, we could see that this area was home to a number of well-off families located for Hallspeople. We believe that the community is indeed the Black and the Latino south with people of all backgrounds making up its population. We discovered that the Mexican-American and African-American community has been reduced in recent years and that the number of immigrant Latins, mostly from Central America, giving the area a greater diversity. The ownership of businesses for the new arrivals, and the lack of local schools offered adequate bilingual and ESL classes for children and adults. At Mt. Vernon Elementary School, we were told that over 90% of the students were Black and White students. The working class and middle class area, it is about 50 to 10% in about 25 years.

As we drove through the area, we found a pattern similar to that in many low-income minority neighborhoods. Services are minimal, and certainly mediocre to the needs of the people. One church was vacant and the walls were crumbling, and we sat lunch across the street from one of the best off the downtown's best Mexican restaurants. The other was in the far northwest of the community and is appallingly cluttered with elimination every year and a half with a new 215 Freeway. With the addition of large park, most of the parks were small and poorly equipped.

To be continued next week.

Tony Brown's Comments

President Bill Clinton and the Democratic Party spent the day in Los Angeles campaigning for the New Republic, New Jersey, and Nevada. The purpose of the campaign was to demonstrate that the Democratic Party is still viable and that the Republicans have not been able to win.

Building A Full Partnership

One year ago when Governor Bill Clinton participated in the first "Leadership Southern California" event called "Apprentice Leadership Weekend as part of the California Department of Education," he spoke of building a "full partnership" with the American community. Clinton, it is clear, has selected someone who is not worthy of the American community. In other words, he has chosen someone who is not capable of doing the job.

Working with this American community, the Congressional Black Caucus has been putting in place a plan to build a full partnership for the next five years. This plan includes the establishment of a full partnership with the American community, the Congressional Black Caucus, and the Black Caucus. We have been working on this plan for more than two years. We have been working on this plan for more than two years. We have been working on this plan for more than two years.

T The first-scale clinical trial on progressive kidney failure in African Americans with high blood pressure has been launched by the National Institutes of Diabetes and Digestive and Kidney Diseases (NIDDK), a part of the National Institutes of Health. Eleven medical centers in Baltimore, Cleveland, Atlanta, Nashville, Dallas, Washington, D.C., Los Angeles and Torrance, California are now recruiting African-American diabetics with both reduced kidney function and high blood pressure to participate in the African-American Study of Kidney Disease and Hypertension (AASK). Howard University, McKinney Medical College, Dewey Medical Center and Monmouth College of Medicine, all historically black medical institutions, are participating.

A one-year pilot study is currently under way to examine the full-scale study of 5,000-10,000 patients, scheduled to begin in the fall of 1994. The study will examine whether the institution of kidney function decline in these patients can be slowed or stopped by medications commonly used to treat high blood pressure: Amiodarone, a beta blocker; Amlodipine, a calcium channel blocker; and Enalapril, an ACE inhibitor. African-Americans are four times more likely than Whites to develop end-stage kidney disease, or kidney failure. African Americans with hypertension are at even greater risk. They develop kidney failure six times more often than other Americans. Those aged 25 to 44 are almost 20 times more likely than Whites to develop the disease, according to the National U.S. Renal Data System. Approximately $811 million was spent on medical care for African-Americans suffering from end-stage kidney disease related to hypertension in 1990. Dr. Lawrence W. Adams, a kidney specialist and Director of Minority Health for NIDDK, says the AASK study is long overdue. "Each year, kidney disease related to hypertension impairs the lives of African Americans disproportionately more than others. We hope this study will bring these serious issues to the forefront of health research and provide the scientific information to help African-Americans take the high steps to preserve the health of their kidneys," says Dr. Adams.

CSU LOAN PROGRAM
Supports New Professors

Jen Pascola (left) and Lucy Caron are among four new professors teaching at Cal State. San Bernardino this fall after completing their doctoral work toward a Ph.D. under the California State University Forgiven Loan Program. The program enables students in pursuit of their doctorates and "forgives" the loans by a certain percentage for every year the student stays full-time in the CSU. Pascola is finishing the doctoral work in psychology at the University of California, Riverside, while Cal State expects to conclude her terminal degree in social work at UCLA by June 1994. Not pictured are Sue Brotherhood, who is working on a Ph.D. in Education at Claremont Graduate School, and Marita Oshana, who earned a doctorate in philosophy from U.C. Davis only three months ago.

Dr. Ernest Levister

DEAR DR. LEVISTER: I have a question concerning who to plan to visit our house for the holidays. How can I make our home child-proof?

DEAR P.C. Staff by looking up all the information. The last thing you want is for your young visitors to swallow pills or take several 500 mg tablets of rhinoceros, or dangerous chemicals to a safe location in case of an emergency.

Remember: With medications in particular, safety is of the utmost. Children"s Rights has a special program in place that encourages children to take medicines with them. The program is called "Medication in My Pocket." It is available in many drug stores and is designed to help children remember to take their medications.

Dr. Levister welcomes staff members at Children's Rights to discuss specific safety issues with parents. The program is open to all parents and caregivers, and children can be joined at any time. The program is free of charge.

The 'Fresh Prince' Of Bel Air

When Quincy Jones, Producer of the hit television series "The Fresh Prince Of Bel Air," decided to cast an actor to play the role of Will Smith, he knew the decision that was made could have a significant impact on the career of the chosen performer. Jones conducted extensive research and carefully considered the qualities he believed were essential for the role. After careful deliberation, Jones decided on the then-unknown actor Karyn Parsons to play the character of the young, talented, and charming William "Will" Smith.

At the time of his casting, Parsons was an up-and-coming actress who had already appeared in several stage productions and had a few small film roles to her credit. However, her career was about to take a significant turn with the success of "The Fresh Prince Of Bel Air." Parsons' portrayal of Will Smith was praised for its depth and authenticity. She brought a sense of warmth and humor to the character, captivating audiences with her charm and wit.

With the show's rise in popularity, Parsons' career took off. She was offered opportunities to star in other projects, and her talent was quickly recognized by the industry. Her performance in the show earned her critical acclaim, and she was nominated for several awards. Parsons' work on "The Fresh Prince Of Bel Air" not only showcased her acting abilities but also laid the foundation for her future success in the entertainment industry.
LAUSANNE, June 29 (UPI)—The No. 2 UCLA Bruins completely outplayed the No. 3 USC Trojans last Saturday afternoon, winning the game 27-21 with a late fourth-quarter touchdown.

"The Bruins dominated every aspect of the game," said a UCLA player. "It was a great victory for us.

USC had been embarrassed in a 56-21 loss to Arizona the week before, while UCLA had defeated the No. 12 Washington Huskies 28-13. Both teams entered the game with 2-7 records.

USC had struggled through seven games, losing six of five games, losing six of its first five. The Trojans were primed to win game 13.

The Trojans were coached by Ron DiMaggio, who had been with the team since 1975. He led the team to a 1-1 record in the Pac-10.

The Bruins were led by head coach Karl Dorrell, who had been with the team since 1993. He led the team to a 2-1 record in the Pac-10.

"We knew we could hold them," said a UCLA player. "We knew we could shut them down.

In the first half, the Bruins dominated both offense and defense, outscoring the Trojans 21-7.

In the second half, the Bruins continued to dominate, winning the game 27-21.

The Bruins scored on a 1-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Tyler Cashman to tight end Sale Isaia, who caught the pass in the end zone. The Trojans had driven to the Bruins' 2-yard line, but the Bruins defense held.

"I'm really relieved we got this one," said a UCLA player. "We've been struggling all season.

The Bruins now stand at 3-4 in the Pac-10, while the Trojans remain at 2-5. Both teams still have six games left in the season.

The Bruins are scheduled to host the Arizona State Sun Devils next Saturday.

The Trojans are scheduled to host the Oregon State Beavers.

Hundreds attended the memorial service for Creosolman Jack Clarke, Riverside's first Black Councilman. "A loving father and husband, a loyal friend and a business man, is what Pastor L.E. Campbell of Park Ave Baptist Church, said about the man, he said, the church stands as a monument to Clarke for he influenced and helped open the doors of the church. "Park Ave will place his name and deeds in the church record," he said.

The congregation was a Who's Who of Riverside, led by Mayor Terry Prizatia who said, "We at City Hall admired Jack...he gave more than he took out, he will long be remembered as one of the city's most outstanding citizens."

Fred Mills, one of his friends, called him "Jack was my idol, my mentor, my friend. He was like Jackie Robinson, a first in the juvenile correction field in the state of California. He succeeded despite a superintendent who looked at him as an invisible man."

"He was a man for all seasons," he said.

Councilman Ron Lovejoy called him a number one citizen in Riverside. "He did the hard work of a council member, with enthusiasm." He cared about the Eastside, this Councilman district, and was most proud of his accomplishments. He was always modest unless it was bragging about his son Jack Jr. or daughter Jenny.

"He didn't lecture on race, but believed in fairness and playing by the rules," he said.

His eulogy was delivered by his son Jack Jr., who said of his dad, "There were questions asked as long as we did positive things, he express displeasure when we were wrong. Clarke attended every activity he (Jack Jr.) ever did, and every Sunday at 9 a.m. he called daughter Jenny."

My dad didn't lecture me on how to treat a woman, he showed me how by the way he treated his wife. His didn't lecture about learning."

"If I am the man you want to be, I'll keep my head twice the man most men," he ended by saying.

The congregation was a Who's Who of Riverside, led by Mayor Terry Frizzel who said, "We at City Hall admired Eastside, (his Councilman district), and was most proud of his..."

White, and until recently, there hasn't been a high-ranking African-American in the Superintendent's cabinet. Another problem King cited, is the Board's directive to fill the Principal positions from those currently in the district's minority student population. This has led to criticism from some parents and community members who believe it is not the best way to ensure that principals are chosen.

Thank you Lord, as we celebrate Thanksgiving for 1993, we must realize that we have many things to be thankful for. In the year 1993, many things happened, and we must not want to recognize as such. However, the fact that we are still here on earth and have the opportunity to make things better is something to be very thankful for. Some are not blessed with the desire or ability to ask God for help; "If your soul is sick and your heart is sad, and the good things in life begin to look bad, don't be too sure that you're physically ill and run to the doctor for a sedative pill..." for nothing can heal a soul that is sick, or guarantee a cure as complete and quick as a heart-to-heart talk with God and Jesus, who are the shakers of the Galilee just said, "Thy will be done"... whether your child's teacher in order to prevent alcohol p r e s s i o n s.
