Economic Empowerment: Who benefits from the Black Dollar?

By James Clingman

We've heard it all before. Our money circulates no more than one time in Black communities before it goes into another community, where the rate is anywhere from three to seven times. We have also heard that African-Americans transfer approximately 90% of their annual income, compared to only 5% by other ethnic groups, leaving us with a measager "allowance" to share among each other.

The bottom line is that other groups of people gain more from our money than African-Americans. We do not give away the lion's share of a $30 billion annual income and sit back, amazed at why we are so far behind the rest of the pack in this country. In addition, we complain that we are not being treated fairly, which is a legitimate complaint. We are not treated fairly—by our banks.

Affirmative Action? We once had our own Affirmative-Action program, during the time prior to the Sixties, when all we had were vacancy positions to support. But as soon as we were given the "privilege" of spending our money at white-owned businesses, we quickly reverend the mandates of our own economies by turning our back on our businesses and "being fair" to the busi­nesses of others.

The benefits of our hard earned dollars began to flow, and even grew greater, to ethnic groups other than our own. Virtually everyone agrees that if we were to label the "Black dollar," except Black people, that is. New to find ourselves faced with the non-worse proposition of trying to control the Black dollar. The concerns we now live away from our neglect of our own economic systems.

Here are some very basic ways for us to begin to fight back and to reclaim our lost economy. First, we must look to largest repository of Black dollars in our communities; the Black Church. Think of the economic leverage we would have if the five largest Black Churches in our city would decide, esp one Sunday, that they did not want to sit by and exchange a shop dismal return. We would have, if their faith was replicated across our country. We would have, if we were to pursue economic empowerment, in just a few years.

The second is to use our legal power as our neighborhoods. For example, the take on the recent boycott of the Kroger store by Pete Hill (Cincinnati, Ohio) residents. They supported that panicular Kroger because they opposed a labor dispute. The people in the neighborhood decided on an economic solution; a boycott. It worked.

That's the key way any group of any consumer. Some people use the term "consumers," when it comes to African-Americans, as a demeaning matter. They try to suggest that because we are primarily con­sumers, we are at the mercy of the producer. That's simply not true. African-Americans have been and are the largest group of consumers in this country, relatively speaking of course, we are the most powerful group of consumers. African-Americans have the buying power in our pockets and purses.

In their latest move, when it comes to spending our power as our consumers, we would find ourselves sitting in the decision-making tables, in the board rooms of the companies we support. The Pete Hill group, as many before them have demon­strated, shows us what unity can accomplish. It's bad enough to know you're being mistreated by someone. But to sit back, or even decision-making tables, in the board rooms of the companies we work with, to have no way to get their support. "I didn't think we would have, if their faith was replicated across our country. We would have, if we were to pursue economic empowerment, in just a few years.

Our Bodies

By Dr. Ernest Levister, M.D.

Kombucha is a mushroom that produces for the stomach and bacteria. The colony which makes the Kombucha, or mother mushroom, is a symbiotic colony of yeast and bacteria. The colony which makes the Kombucha, or mother mushroom, is responsible for the mushroom's fruiting body, which is the fruiting body of the mushroom. The fruiting body is a large, round, brown structure that is typically found in the soil. The fruiting body is responsible for producing the spores that are needed to reproduce the mushroom. The fruiting body is also responsible for producing the fruiting structures that are used by the mushroom to reproduce.

The Knights Know How To Do It Right

By LEILAN STEIN III

RIVERSIDE - Recently, it came across an article that briefly mentioned the fact that the absence of a father and/or mother in inner city households is raising many kids lives.

The report noted that the "households that fail to provide a second parent are more likely to contribute to self-esteem, security and expectations in children."

It must be noted that this report is based on studies at all single family households that are moving overtime to enlighten on their children, but the facts say that more than one person are often times more likely to know when it is safe to drop-out of high school and turn to crime, and girls are them times more likely to be raped.

In the household of Blanche and Sam Knight Sr. both are proving that a solid foundation, coupled with a two parent household, can teach them the child's role.

Blanche and living the virtues of self-esteem and self-sufficiency. Blanche and Sam have implanted these ideals in their five offspring - Ryan, 28, Greg, 27; Tina, 26; Sammy Jr., 19, Darryl, 15, who, to their credit, have retained those life lessons and carry them with them as adults.

Are the Knights surprised that their kids have accomplished so much via athletics?

"No I'm not surprised," Ryan, 28 said from the very beginning, whatever they got involved in they worked real hard at it. Even in little league, they practiced in their own, because they know what they wanted to do and they just kept working at it. It just took time, they put the time in and paid off for all of them.

With Darryl as the last of the bunch, are the Knights feeling joy or worry? Maybe a little of both, as someone once said. "I'm happy with the outcome... it's a mixture..." like the empty nest syndrome, they're all ready to have a home life of their own.

Elected schoolboard member in the history of the basketball Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, 48, said when he started the five octave in 1963.

"Seeing them get their education, become training, able to take care of their families, and that they be happy are the benefits of a solid education," Sammy Sr., who was an all-American football player, pointed out.

Bruce Willis is that John McClane. Not wanting to repeat the story of the first Die Hard, Willis and McTiernan found the freshness they were looking for in a new Simon character. They were looking for a character that would be...a very personal and fresh. It fulfills the genre requirements of Die Hard while standing apart on its own.

...about the Greater Riverside Urban League dinner which honored the famous family.

There was a wonderful video that gave a Miller story. Mother Carrie Millie told of the time Reggie, feeling good because he got 39 points in a game. So, proudly and beautifully, she said, "Cheryl, what did you do?" Cheryl, not wanting to burst his bubble, covered her mouth and said 105, he was shocked with disbelief in a raised voice she said "105".

Each of the Miller children are successful in their own right. Darryl, is a scorer for Major League Baseball's (MLB) California Angels. Saul Jr. is an outstanding musician, he plays with the elite Air Force Band. Cheryl, was just inducted into the National Basketball Hall of Fame and is the Women's Basketball Coach at her alma mater, USC. Reggi is among the top three shooting guards in the National Basketball Association (NBA).

In making the presentation to the Millers, Board Member Cheryl Brown and the Miller's Pastor, Chuck Singleton, told of what they knew of the family. Like when Cheryl was young she told the family friend, Ben Tyson, that she wanted to be a wrestler. When he told her there were no women in the sport, she said it was ok she'd wanted to be a wrestler. She spoke of the love Saul and Carrie display in the Loveland church family. Every first Sunday he gives communion to the sick and shut-in. "Tammy, is loved by the youth at the Van Home Community Center, where she worked. She is a Sales Rep for Discipione, and over the the Slam Dunk Summer Program for the NBA.

The Jack B. Clodt, Jr. Quality of Life Award was given to Jackie Shropshire. She took over as executive director at a time when the league needed a leader with national experience. She fit the bill.

The Veronica J. Jordan Humanitarian Award was presented to long-time friend of the League and immediate Past Board president, Dr. James Erickson. Erickson was presented with an award for his outstanding accomplishments beyond the call of duty. He is the top volunteer. The Urban League award was presented to Regina Best, a student who has shown remarkable growth. By his own admission he was going the wrong way. The Urban League STAR program is responsible for turning the difference in the young man.

Each presentation was made by a board member and a community member. Others on program were, Virgil Woolfolk, Art Pick, Jack B. Clarke, Jr., Jim King, Urban League President, and Yolanda Nava, Interim Executive Director.

The masters of ceremony were Craig Oliver and Frank Corell, both were outstanding.

There was a silent auction, dancing and entertaining music was provided by Art of Sax, and the Miller Mariachis.

The event was sponsored by Miller Brewing Company. Co-Chairs, Rose Oliver, Ola Faye Stephens and Jacquelin Prom are looking forward to next year's program.

Love will not allow me to go down the street and take advantage of another man's daughter. Love will not allow a country or state to take innocent individuals and hold them for a year or more. (1977 it was 52). Love will not allow me to sell drugs to your son or daughter. Love will not allow a man or woman to kill another man in cold blood.

The example of love is found in the person of Jesus Christ. He demonstrated love by taking all the possible faults and failures of the world. This is the product with these words, a student from Prairie Union High School, 1977. I discovered this speech in some of my education files and I am taking this time to share it with those that are interested.

"We must work together, and practice this Christian LOVE. It is a person this practice eating, sharing and helping friendships, then it is best that you let and helping friendship, then it is best that you let and build a better world. Let us go together, Children LOVE. Let us go together, Children LOVE. We are going to take care of our children. We mean all children, regardless of color, creed or nation. As we work together, We can. "Love has no awareness of merit or demerit; it has found in the person of Jesus Christ. He demonstrated love by taking all the possible faults and failures of the world. The Negro Anthem."

United States. I can see a parallel between some of the Biblical states and countries as Babylon and Gomorrath, Rome and Greece. All of them were countries founded on the principle, "IN GOD WE TRUST." But as times and situations can change, people and countries, their principles can also change. As a result, they come to naught. But we the wicked ways, and seek GOD, He will not only heal, but spare our nation.

What is the answer? It is very simple, one that parents feed positive and loving thoughts into their children, they present positive and loving adults to our society.
