Safe Sex Post Heart Attack

By Dr. Ernest Levister, M.D.

DEAR DR. LEVISTERS: I experience a heart attack every 7 weeks. Is it safe to have sex with my partner? H.A.

Dr. Levister:

A recent survey of 88 men with coronary heart disease who were enrolled in a long term cardiac program suggests that sexual intercourse poses little or no risk for people without ischemia (inadequate blood flow to the heart). As part of the study, the men performed exercise tests during which they rode a stationary bicycle while hooked up to an electrocardiogram. This is a machine that records changes in the heart's electrical activity. For 24 hours the patients also wore portable monitors that monitored the electrical activity of their heart while performing their usual daily activities.

All the patients were asked to have intercourse with their partners while wearing this monitor. Medications such as beta blockers, calcium channel blockers and nitroglycerin were stopped during evaluation.

The study showed most patients' heart rate was higher during the exercise test than during sex, presumably because the greater cardiac demands are on the bicycle test, more than 60% of the patients had evidence of ischemia during the exercise stress test - only 31% of the patients had ischemia during sex.

The study further suggests the percentage of patients experiencing ischemia or decreased blood flow to the heart was high during exercise and the elimination of medications during the evaluation.

Although the studies suggest sexual intercourse is safe for people with coronary artery disease, common sense should prevail for prevention. Taking cardiac medications as prescribed is important in the protection of your heart. Regular medical checkups are highly recommended. You and your mate should discuss this with your personal physician.

Together, We Can

...earth and good will toward man are the ultimate morality of the United States today. Its political reality hinges on moral foundations. Martin Luther King, 1963.

It is very important that the youth of today become aware of the important part each of them will play in helping make the world a better place to live.

"Your relationships with others are the most important things in life where you learn values. It's the responsibility of the family," Melba Moon, 1983.

As parents and teachers we accept responsibilities as parents, school administrators and school board members, we are taking an active part in supporting teachers by accepting responsibility for the following: (As directed by board policy.)

1. Understanding the goals for the education of all students as set forth in the State Curriculum and Evaluation standards for schools and school systems and the need of teachers in realizing these goals in their classrooms.

2. Recruitming qualified teachers with particular focus on the need for diverse teaching staff.

3. Providing a support system for beginning and experienced teachers in insure that they grow professionally and are encouraged to remain in the teaching profession.

4. Making teaching assignments based on the qualification of teachers.

5. Involving teachers centrally in designing and evaluating plans for professional development.

6. Supporting teachers in self-evaluation and in analyzing, evaluating, and improving their teaching with colleagues and superiors.

7. Providing adequate resources, equipment, time and funding to support teaching and learning as envisioned in this article.

8. Establishing outreach activities with parents, guardians, leaders in business and industry, and others in the community to build support for quality education programs.

9. Promoting excellence in teaching by establishing an adequate reward system, including salary, promotions, and conditions of work. Establishment of schools and school systems. "Modern schools aren't set up to help children develop themselves. They assume the children get this development at home. We are creating a generation of people who can't fill the vacuum of the mainstays of society," James Comer, Detroit News, January 9, 1989.

10. When you have taught a man to hate himself, you've really got it and gone," Malcolm X speech given as Economic Club, London 1965

The Hollingsworths purchased the property in 1990 and dedicated it to God for all He had done for them. They paid for the land first and then the cottages as the built them.

In this day and age most people don't accomplish what they have in this short time. How was it done?

God gave them an idea to help the youth in the inner city of Los Angeles. In testimonies on video, children and teenagers many of whom were on their way to troubled lives, were changed. They are now leaders in their schools and their grades have drastically improved. Many went from failing students to honor roll students. They now have a new lease on life and something to look forward to and the Hollingsworths, who have been and are multi millionaires are giving back. They train young people to work with the youth in a program named BOSS. "It teaches practical principles for starting a ministry or a business. The program teaches young people the relevance of God's work in meeting their needs for success," said Al Hollingsworth.

Hollingsworth explains the BOSS program is currently being conducted in major churches throughout the Southern California area. It takes 20 weeks at one session per week.

The program is free to anyone who will train to ensure its success. It is only available through a church.

Hollingsworth has BOSS programs internationally in Africa, Japan and Switzerland. The Hollingsworths are the nation's major packaging company. They have contracts to provide packaging for many local and household products. The have major warehouses in the west, midwest, east and south.

Infusion To Perform At McDonald's Gospelfest

Spirited Singers Compete For Winning Spot At McDonald's Gospelfest '95 Final Competition

S ix amateur gospel choirs, from communities and churches throughout Southern California, will spell spirits and bring down the house as they compete in the final even of McDonald's Gospelfest '95 — the Southland's premier gospel extravaganza throughout Southern California — this year, November 4th.

"McDonald's Gospelfest has been a meaningful presence in our community over the past decade," said Lindsay Hughes, chairman of McDonald's Gospelfest '95 and local McDonald's franchisee, "and again this year we are thrilled to see diverse talent and several prison performers, proving that gospel music truly reaches out to all ages and ethnic peoples.

Nurtured down from a record-breaking field of more than 80 entries, Infusion recently captured the title of McDonald's Gospelfest '95 winning group and will perform in the concert with six other choirs. Infusion members include Carl Washington of Monrovia, Dwayne Lundy of Arcadia, Shamala Smith of Colton, Cedric Clark, Cornell Clark, and Lenard Clark of Rialto.

Sponsored by McDonald's Operators' Association of Southern California (MOASC), McDonald's Gospelfest is dedicated to bringing together Southern California's best amateur gospel groups and choirs in a friendly competition to raise funds for community and educational organizations. Proceeds from McDonald's Gospelfest '95 will benefit Challengers Boys & Girls Club of South Central Los Angeles, and Black Educational Development Fund of the California State University system.

This year's event will be co-hosted by Paul Kidder, program director on KFPG-AM 1220 and host of numerous gospel music radio shows, along with Tnlma Hopkins, renowned television, film, and recording artist. For more information, call (909) 344-7000.

A slave is a person who was owned by another person. Slaves were considered the property of the owner, who was called a slaveholder or master. Slavery existed in the United States for nearly 250 years. Blacks were captured and brought from Africa to America from 1619.

Slaves were often separated and put to work for their labor. They received no pay for their labor. Many laws were passed to ensure that slavery continued. It was illegal for slaves to read or write to talk about; to draw; to hold religious services without a White person present. It was also illegal to own guns; to live in blocks; to speak; to sell; to buy; to sell good goods; to vote; or to marry.

Some of these laws were designed to keep the slaves in the south in slavery. They were often beaten to pay for their labor. Some abolitionists wanted to free the slaves. They received the idea from the English and the Irish. They went to the French. But those differences were never taken into consideration. No one could agree on the rights of the slave.

The American people started to talk about slavery. They thought that slavery had to end. Many laws were passed to end slavery. The United States for nearly 250 years. Blacks were captured and brought from Africa to America from 1619.

THE BULL: Abdul-Jabbar (217 yards) and Bruinis get third straight win, 33-16 over Cal

By LELAND STEIN III
BVN Sports Editor

PAUSED - Will the backstop hold? Take that question mark away from this sentence. The UCLA Bruins on a roll, rolled over their personal semantics, drilled California Golden Bears (3-4 Pac-10, 2-6 overall), 33-16 before 53,614 at the Rose Bowl.

While one streak was stopped, Cal’s five game winning mastery over the Bruins (2-3, 6-2), another streak just kept going.

This streak is being implemented by outstanding UCLA tailback Karlton Abdul-Jabbar. He rushed for 217 yards - the second consecutive back rushing - and one touchdown. Again he showed his stamina, by scoring for 170 yards in the second half. Last week against Stanford he gained 180 of his 261 yards in the second half.

“I have confidence in my offensive line, that no defense can control with us for a whole game,” Abdul-Jabbar said. “Also, conditioning and determination is a big part of what’s happening for me. There’s something special going on here, we want to end up at the big house (Rose Bowl).”

Added UCLA Coach Tony Dantonio: “Karlton is the most competitive player on this team, both in practice and in games. He’s a coach’s dream, a special person on and off the field.”

Conceded Bruin’s All-American tackle Johnathan Ogden: “Karlton doesn’t feel a whole lot. He just blurt through as opening … all we have to do is screen block.”

Also playing controlled ball and contributing is freshman quarterback Cade McNown, says Ogden about McNown, “He’s starting to make the right reads and doing everything asked of him right now.”

So what’s turned the Bruins season around? Explained Ex- UCLA Head Coach Choi Grass Thompsons “Breakout line in love we did feel want to have another year like last year. This team is better than a 5-6 record.”

Still Cal’s star linebacker Deantae Clemmons the ex-Riverside North star. “We may not have much of a novel chance, but we still have pride in our effort.”

Riverside’s Curtis Hobbs: IPRP Regional Champ

AINT AFRAID OF NO BULL: Riverside’s Curtis Hobbs III recently won the International Professional Rodeo Association’s Western Regional bull riding finals at Lakeside, CA. The 6-6, 265 ex-bareback rider, in only his 2nd year of challenging the bulls, is scheduled to compete in the "All Regional Finals" in Tennessee next month. Hobbs got his start in rodeo while 14 when the Biller visiational came to Corona. He used to South Central LA and under the apprenticeship of Leo Joho and Aaron Porter, learned the basics of bull riding. He obviously liked it: by Leland Stein

BVN High School Game of the Week

KNIGHT, BRYANT AND DEFENSE, LEADS RUBIDOUX BY RIVERSIDE POLY, 27-7

By LELAND STEIN III
BVN Sports Editor

RIVERSIDE - After a heart breaking loss to rival Riverside North last week, Rubidoux fnished its frustration into a focused and solid effort against Poly League foe, Riverside Poly.

"We were frustrated after the loss to North, but we came back determined," said Rubidoux tailback Curtis Edwards.

Surpring themselves, both coaches and Poly, the Falcons took ap a very good game’s end and held on for a 27-7 victory at UC Riverside.

Rubidoux (2-1 in league, 6-2)

The Falcons first score came on a 31-yard Darryl Knight keeper with 7:34 remaining in the first quarter. Rubidoux added three unanswered touchdowns and led at half time 27-0. Speedster Orshawante Bryant also scored in the first, going 89-yards with a short Knight handoff. Edwards (5-yard punt) and Knight (5-yard punt) closed out the scoring.

"We started to jell,” Bryant said. “I think we can go all the way if we continue to stop it up and improve.”

Added Blanche Knight, Darryls mother: “Anything is possible if they continue to come together. They have a good coaching staff that disciplines the boys and keeps them focused.”

Poly’s assistant coach Dell Roberts says his team’s head "wasn’t in it,” and they just have to regroup and beat North.

Keymah To Produce One-Woman Play
By Susan Allan Weeks
Black Voice Entertainment

As she makes strides from In Living Color to the stage, T'Keyah Crystal Keymah has moved on to very successful film careers. We would expect nothing less from the leading lady T'Keyah Crystal Keymah. However, in the stage and television that are benefiting from this talented and versatile actress. If the memorable and acclaimed recurring roles on The John Larroquette Show didn't occur for her old and new fans then it must have been her award winning one-woman stage production, Some Of My Friends. Using her talents of character creation exercised during her In Living Color days, T’Keyah transforms herself into 11 distinct characters. This production garnered NAACP awards in the categories of Best Actress and Best Play. Plans are also in the works for a film version of this phenomenal performance. Fresh off of the stage of Robert Townsend’s The Five Hearts, T’Keyah quickly made her feature debut as executive producer of her first motion picture One Last Time. Teaming up with the extraordinary Bob Mandu, who wrote, directed, and produced the film has been exciting and challenging. This partnership has already lead them to the Houston Worldfest International Film Festival for the receipt of the Silver Star Award. But it doesn’t stop there. The movie has been picked again in the production of a television movie Circle Of Pain. This movie string on Showtime in February was written and directed by Mandu and stars Todd Bridges, Glyn Turner, and Anna Marie Hurdfield. With this busy schedule as actress, producer, singer and dancer it is difficult to imagine that this beautiful woman equipped with talent and tenacity finds the time to be charitable. T’Keyah sponsors a child through “Childreach” and is active with Concerned Citizens of South Central in addition to curing for bone cancer patients with “My Good Friend.” As you see she isn’t afraid to step up and take responsibility and charge of any situation or classification. With a book adn newsletter being published Ms. Keymah knows no road untraveled, no rock unturned, and there is no fear that she hesitates to reach for.

Laws Performs At Timber Creek
By Rena Police-Black Voice Entertainment

I vividly remember sometime back going to the Queen Mary, and watching (through binoculars) Ronnie Laws perform. Throughout his entire performance I remember thinking how smooth his sound and rhythm was. Well, recently I had a chance to see Laws perform, up close and personal, and I was pleasantly surprised to note that his sound had remained just as smooth as I remembered it. Siting back in the cozy atmosphere of Timber Creek, I thought, as I watched Laws play two sets at one time, ‘how far can you go.’ Laws included a tribute to Grover Washington, Jr. that seemed to captivate the audience. Laws then brought his 20-year-old daughter (Michelle Laws) out to perform, which she did, really did. Michelle is an up and coming artist, and does some background vocals on her dad’s latest album, Natural Laws. If you missed Laws at Timber Creek, don’t miss his new Natural Laws, available in stores now.

Revlon And Essence Magazine Announce Grand Prize Winner

Essence magazine and Revlon recently announced that Rena Hall of Dallas, Texas, is one of three women chosen from hundreds of applicants as a Grand Prize winner of the first Revlon/Essence “Beautiful Faces of Color” contest. The other two winners are (left to right) Hait (standing) and Venusia Webb, Revlon spokesperson and model. The contest winners enjoyed a trip to New York City, dinner with Webb at B. Smith’s and a photo shoot at Essence. Photos of all three winners will be featured in Essence magazine’s December 1995 issue. The contest, announced in the March 1995 issue of Essence, sought women ages 18 and older who projected the Revlon and Essence image and who boldly showed off Revlon’s “Mature” makeup look to the best advantage.
