APPROVAL OF $1 MILLION
GRANT PENDING IN U.S.O.E.

A proposal which could result in a grant totaling over $1 million during five years for use in part by the College is under consideration by the U.S. Office of Education.

Last week, following review by the Department of Education, Wilson Riles, State Superintendent of Schools, forwarded a proposal for a five-year 14th Cycle Teacher Corps program to the U.S.O.E. in Washington, D.C. with the recommendation, "We find the proposal to be compatible with the criteria established by the Department and urge that it be funded."

Submitted jointly by the College's School of Education and the Redlands Unified School District, the project would provide faculty development for the College and the school district, the latter on all three levels, elementary, junior high and senior high school.

Under the program CSCSB would be able to provide development activities for CSCSB faculty on campus, including conferences, materials for audio-visual facilities, library materials, special consultants, etc.

If approved, $300,000 will become available the first year, effective September, 1979. The project would be directed by Joe Gray, Asst. Prof., Education.

Nathan Kravetz, Dean of the School of Education, states that the Redlands School District was selected as the cooperating district after numerous conferences with teachers and personnel in several districts.

CHILD CARE CENTER BLDG.
PLANS BEING PREPARED

The long-hoped for campus Child Care Center Building is nearing reality. Initial drawings are now being prepared for the facility and are expected to be submitted for review by College administrators soon.

The culmination of years of planning and negotiating with community organizations, the building has long been the hope of students and administrators of the College.

Funds for the center have been granted from community development resources of the City and County of San Bernardino, each contributing $75,000. The work of acquiring the funds and processing of leases and other legal matters has been in process for over two years.

The Child Care Building, to be located west of the Student Services Building, will be constructed in a U-shape, with much the same design and appearance as the Student Services, Fine Arts and Administration Buildings. The facility, expected to cost around $150,000, will provide space for about 50 children and will have an outside, fenced yard.

Following approval of the initial drawings, the working drawings are expected to be completed in about three months. The next step is advertising for bids.

SALLY WATSON, ACCOUNTANT,
RETIREES FROM CSCSB STAFF

Yesterday was the last day on the job for Sally Watson, one of the original CSCSB employees. Joining the College in February, 1965, she and former Accounting Officer John Fredricks comprised the entire accounting staff, then located in downtown San Bernardino offices at Arrowhead and Fifth Sts.

Even following the move to campus, posting was then done by hand; later book-keeping machines were added, and about four years ago the computers were put to use. Throughout all the changes Mrs. Watson maintained an enviable reputation for a singular knowledge of State accounting practices which made her advice invaluable.

The accounting staff now totals 12, supervised and trained by the veteran accountant. Now retiring after a career which included a number of years with the Department of Corrections and private business, Mrs. Watson will remain in San Bernardino. She has plans for a forthcoming trip to Alaska and other travels which she has been postponing.

A luncheon in her honor was held last Monday.

ARTIST BRUCE DECKER PUTS HIS LIFE ON DISPLAY

A unique autobiographical art exhibit illustrating the life of Bruce Decker will be on display in Gallery 2 beginning December 5. Mr. Decker is the Art Department Technician.

Titled, "I've Worn Many Hats," the exhibit is a collection of glass walking stick sculptures filled with memorabilia gathered at different times during the artist's life. Each glass shaft is topped with a hand carved wooden hat. The exhibit is part of a project Mr. Decker is working on toward his MFA degree at Claremont Graduate School.

The show will open with a reception on December 5 from 8-11 p.m. in Gallery 2 of the Fine Arts Building. All members of the College community are invited to attend the reception and view the exhibit at no charge.

The show will be open from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday-Friday through December 15.

CAMPUSWIDE CHRISTMAS PARTY
SET FOR DECEMBER 15 P.M.

This year the College will revert to its previous custom of holding a campuswide Christmas party. As a result of a survey conducted by the Staff Council, in which the majority of employees indicated they preferred one large party rather than separate parties for each building, President John M. Pfau has agreed to the change.

Employees are being contacted by Staff Council representatives to provide holiday cookies and other delectables or $1 donations to buy paper goods, decorations and punch.

Date: Friday, December 15
Time: 3:00 - 5:00 p.m.
Place: Student Union Multi-purpose Room

President Pfau states that regarding small office parties, he sees no objection, but urges that large building parties not be held.

"Vanities," a poignant comedy tracing three girls' lives from high school into womanhood opens tonight in the Theatre of the Creative Arts Building.

Lucy Chaille, senior theatre arts major, will direct this all-female comedy.

The presentation of this New York Drama Critics Circle Award nominee, by Jack Heifner, marks the first time a main stage production at the College has been directed by a student.

"Vanities" is often funny, but moves with power and raises some serious questions. The play begins in 1963 with three vivacious high school cheerleaders who hold beauty and popularity as their highest ideals. Later they are seen as sorority sisters, nervously confronting their futures. In 1974 they are reunited and each has separate and different lives.

Mary Kay Vincent, Nancy Meek, and Corrine Soto play the tri-leads. Others in the production include Jeff Hubbard, stage manager, Tina Ellis, costume designer, Don Gruber, lighting designer, Ted Betcher, sound designer, and Allen Evenson, set designer.

Other performances are set for December 2, 3. Curtain time for all shows is 8:15 p.m. Call 7452 for ticket information.
