Dr. Anderson To Keynote Unity Gathering

A funeral for Marland Coleman, 47, of Rialto, was held Monday, January 28, at the First Baptist Church of Rialto. The cause of death is unknown, pending a doctor's report.

Coleman, a native of Missouri, had moved to Riverside and San Bernardino for 45 years. He was a counselor for the Inland Empire Empowerment Zone, a program established in 1995 to help reduce poverty in the region.

In his capacity as a counselor, Dr. Anderson, as he was known, was known for his commitment to the community. He was a tireless advocate for social justice and was a leader in the local civil rights movement. He was a key figure in organizing protests against racism and was involved in many community initiatives aimed at improving the quality of life for residents.

Dr. Anderson's service to the community was recognized by his peers and by the Riverside County Board of Supervisors, which honored him with a resolution at their meeting on January 22.

He is survived by his wife, Rev. Ms. Beverly Coleman; their six children; and several grandchildren.

The family requested that contributions be made to the Riverside County Board of Supervisors.
Boardrooms Remain “Overwhelmingly White Male”

By Frank Swedoa

Sixty years after the Civil Rights Act of 1960 declared workplace employment opportunity to all workers, the overwhelming predominance of White males in the nation’s corporations are still “overwhelmingly a White man’s game,” according to the government commission reporting on the issue.

The Glass Ceiling Commission, which said that at a time when more than half of the nation’s workforce is female and a majority of school-aged children are girls, the “glass ceiling” that has kept women and minorities out of the top management ranks of most major US corporations.

“The glass ceiling is not only an egregious denial of social justice for the women and the population, but it is also a serious economic problem that takes a huge financial toll on American society,” said Robert B. Reich, the commission chairman, in introducing his report to the public.

“Equally distressing,” he said, “is the fact that we are looking to glass ceiling. Small business demands it as well.”

According to the report, a survey of the nation’s largest corporations showed that . African-American men with professional degrees earn 21% less than their White counterparts . . The report cited the Hispanic workers as earning 25% less than White counterparts.

The commission’s report comes at a time when African-Action programs in various corporations are increasing under political pressure to eliminate the glass ceiling and offer women and minorities more equitable opportunities.

African-American women have been fighting for decades to break the glass ceiling and gain equal opportunities in the workplace. The report highlights the persistent barriers that women and minorities face in the corporate world.

The recommendation of the commission is that there should be a greater emphasis on diversity and inclusion in the workplace, with a focus on creating a more equitable environment for all employees.

The commission also emphasized the importance of affirmative action programs in addressing the glass ceiling and promoting diversity.

The report is a call to action for corporations to take steps to address the glass ceiling and ensure equal opportunities for all employees.

The commission’s recommendations are in line with the growing recognition of the importance of diversity and inclusion in the workplace, and the need for corporations to embrace these principles in order to succeed in today’s global economy.

SAN BERNARDINO - The annual NCAA convention in Dallas just concluded and again the boost of the Black Student Athletes Association and numerous other concerned groups and advocates for fairness, intercollegiate athletics, were left, once again, with not knowing what's best for you.

So let's talk for the people at top of our educational system - College Presidents Commission - to get in the business of operating and not out of the business of eliminating. The interim head of the Presidents Commission, Dr. Wong Ta-Li Alseeoldal, combines and teaches spiritual, physical and mental awareness.

"I teach all students to place their hands together and bow to honor God. Bow to his face, bow to his feet, bow to his hands, bow to his knees, bow to his chest. NCAA continues to decrease opportunities for some students FOUNTANA's 78-73 win was as close as a soap opera, the Fontana-Riverside North contrast at Fontana High school in Inland Empire, California has to address the needs of all."

"The college presidents are at the top of our educational system, that many project would gather over 100 million in revenue. Legislation has proven to have a negative impact on the African-American community. Most of the students are in college athletic scholarship can bring. I challenge just one of the test's structured attack under Coach clips. I don't think this win brought the team. It brings a good a lot of community. The emotion and enthusiasm for Fontana's Huskies was on a fever pitch. Once a game begins, you live life up to the hoopee, but not this time. Everyone got all fired up, the kids were up for the game, and this was Fontana's last game of the season.

A. Yes, you have to compete in 385 tournaments for a college athletic scholarship can bring. I challenge just one of the test's structured attack under Coach clips. Brandy Finds It Hard Being A Typical Teen

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Pop star Brandy would like to be a typical teenageager, but with a recording career and a new TV series she finds it a little difficult.

"Socially, it's hard, but I really enjoy what I'm doing," the 16-year-old said. "I still have friends — real friends — who have been with me since before anything happened to me."

Brandy has found fame quickly. Her debut album, "Butterfly," has sold more than 3 million copies since its Sep. 24, 1994 release, and her show, "Starring Up In My Room," is featured in the hit film "Clueless." And if that wasn't enough, she stars in the sitcom "Moesha," which premiers on UPN in Jan.

Calvin And Hobbes Signs Off Of Comics Page

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Calvin and Hobbes rode into an unknown future Sunday as they took a final stroll side by side.

The creator of the characters, Bill Watterson, decided earlier this year that he had done all he could within the daily comic format and announced that the strip, "Calvin and Hobbes," would be published Sunday.

"This is Bill is ready to move on and explore some new possibilities in his life," said Calvin and Hobbes' Ian Lucy Casswell, curator of the cartoon research library at Ohio State University. "I thought the strip (Sunday) was beautifully written, saying that, you know, he's going to start a new world. It all looks different and he's left as with some very happy memories, I think."

The final two panels of the strip show a shrewd, shrewd, shrewd troublemaker Calvin telling Hobbes, the toy tiger who comes to life only for him, "It's a magical world, Hobbes, it holds plenty of places to go exploring!"

Watterson, who never gives interviews about his work, has not said what he will be doing in the future.

Casswell thinks the strip was so popular because many readers, even many children, identify with Calvin and remember their own childhood.

"I think to be able to enter into the mind of a child, I think, and, the special relationship between children and parents, that's why Calvin and Hobbes is so endearing to children and adults alike!" she said.

I think it's one of the really unique appeals of that strip. Many of us who had that same 'ah, ha recognition of less when we read it.'

McCo0's Broadway Debut Is A Dream Come True

Performing at the Cafe Carlyle in New York last summer, Minnie Woods, an incendiary and skilled Broadway singer by being a woman named Bill Cosby, says McCoo, who sings The Fifth Dimension's Wedding Bell Blues to another Bill, "My husband, Brandy, Jr., I just laugh and says, 'Baby, you know, it's a joke. It's just that name.'"

"It's not the only coincidence in music, I think," she said, "but the fact that both of them are trained vocalists, maybe that's why."

But in a show about his work, has written, saying that, you know, "Calvin and Hobbes, the toy tiger who also Drubinsky and director Hal Prince in the ensemble, is a simultaneous with hit Broadway shows."

She was actually signed by November 1994 but didn't know when they planned to use her. She was cast in a different city. In late August of this year, she was called to Broadway to begin rehearsals and the next month made her debut on Broadway. "The first show, I just wanted, you know, to get it over with. It was scary. Fortunately, I didn't forget any cues or lines and I remembered the lyrics. Thankfully, I walked into a situation where everyone knew what they were doing. Everyone was wonderful so I made it as easy as possible.

Of course, McCoo wasn't a noobie either. For the past 10 years, she's appeared in various musicals. She made her theatrical debut in 1983 in A...My Name Is Ali and has since performed in Anything Goes, Dreamgirls, The Wiz, Mano A Mano, and others. Her songs include "I'm Enjoying It" and "Ain't No Mountain High Enough." McCoo's first solo album, "The Fifth Dimension," twice nominated for Best R&B Vocal Performance By A Duo and "Dreams," which was also a part of a 1992 Grammy for an appearance on Mandel's album "A Soulful Celebration," produced by Quincy Jones.

"I'm going to continue to be challenging," she says of the future. "I'll continue to do everything I can to show and also concerts with Billy and more theater too. With Show Boat, I have the best of both worlds because you have a chance to sing and act. Another of the wonderful things about being in such a successful Broadway production is that everyone wants to see it and you get to meet some of the most interesting people in the world, like Michael and Raisa Gorbachev. I'm enjoying myself immensely."
