Model United Nations and Arab League Take Top Honors in New York and Santa Rosa.

By Lafayette C. Hight Jr.  Staff Writer

The Cal State San Bernardino Model United Nations, received national honors for the sixth time in the past seven years, while the Model Arab League held on to its undefeated title for the twelfth year in a row.

The two groups are very similar. For the last 12 years, the Arab League has become increasingly difficult for the team, because "every team wants to beat," said Johnny Lambert, Graduate Student in the National Security Studies program.

Stanford University has refused to compete against CSUSB, and Stanford did not compete at Santa Rosa, because he served as the Secretary General for this year's competition. "Voting is done by secret ballot, and is done by students," said Lambert. "The voting sometimes is hostile, and has a bit of animosity...we have some healthy rivals."

All participating schools are assigned a country, and given topics of discussion. There are five committees, and two delegates per school are a part of each committee. In each committee, the participating students vote for three of the outstanding delegates in that specific committee. Of the 10 delegates from Cal State San Bernardino, five walked away with "Outstanding Delegate" awards and one "Distinguished Mention."

The message to women is drink less or not at all. Women who drink three or more alcoholic beverages a day are at a higher risk, 69 percent higher risk, of getting breast cancer than women who drink little or no alcohol. According to a report by the National Institute of Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism there is reason for concern.

The study suggested that there was no difference between wine, beer, or mixed drinks. And while scientists are still unclear on the exact causes of breast cancer, they have noted that alcohol increases hormone levels in women. High estrogen levels have been linked with the incidence of breast cancer. Young women on birth control pills should be aware of the potentially dangerous levels of estrogen that drinking heavily can cause. An other contributing factor in the way alcohol affects breast tissue. It causes calcium deposits, which can lead to cancer. Another problem according to the study, is that the consumption of alcohol promotes the use of other carcinogens (cancer causing substances), such as cigarettes. Add to that the fact that alcohol inhibits the absorption of essential vitamins and other nutrients, and we can see that heavy alcohol consumption causes cancer.

Center for the Study of Hate and Extremism

By Stacy Benderman  Staff Writer

The newly established Center for the Study of Hate and Extremism presented the Inland Empire Conference on Hate Crime last Saturday in Jack Brown Hall. Keynote speakers discussed a variety of issues plaguing our nation and their personal experiences.

Key speakers at the conference included Ismael Ileto, whose brother was killed by a neo-Nazi killer, Bonnie Jouhari, a civil rights activist who has been targeted by the KKK, and Morris Casuto, a legal expert on hate crimes and hate groups.

"This conference is good timing due to the rash of hate crimes," said Presd
Medical marijuana advocates were dealt a big blow on Monday as the Supreme Court voted 9-0 to strike down the medicinal use of marijuana. The Supreme Court ruled that the federal law criminalizing the drug as illegal has no exception for all people. The ruling came as a blow to many suffers and supporters of cancer and AIDS, among other illnesses. Advocates say that marijuana helps the ill patients deal with the pain and suffering of their debilitating diseases. Justice Thurgood Marshall issued a statement for the court saying, "In the case of the Controlled Substances Act, the statute reflects a determination that marijuana has no medical benefits worthy of an exemption (outside the confines of a government-approved research project)."

The ruling may not have an effect on medical marijuana use in certain states. This is because the ruling basically states that the U.S. government does not condone the use of medical marijuana. It is at the discretion of each state to initiate the law. If a state does not choose to initiate the law, however, that state may face losing funds from the government. Recreational voters in Arizona, Alaska, California, Colorado, Maine, Nevada, Oregon and Washington have approved ballot initiatives allowing the use of medical marijuana. In Hawaii, the legislature passed a similar law that the governor signed last year. "What gives the government the right to tell people that they can't use something (marijuana) to make themselves feel better when they have a disease or are sick," said Calif State student Robert DiPietro. Many advocates are extremely angry because they say that the only basis the government has in making this ruling is that marijuana is already illegal. Supporters of medicinal use are quick to point out the many positive facts and uses that marijuana possesses when used as medicine. They say that marijuana is the safest therapeutic drug known to man and that there is no record of death from marijuana use. They also add that marijuana is used for the treatment of 100 separate illnesses or diseases and is the best agent for the control of nausea in cancer chemotherapy or nausea disorders along with stopping the advancement of glaucoma.

Many doctors also agree that medicinal marijuana can be beneficial to some ill patients. "The Journal of Clinical Oncology" reported that 48 percent of respondents to a survey of cancer specialists recommended marijuana as medicine. Former Surgeon General of the United States Jocelyn Eldredge said that she backed the use of medicinal marijuana and that "Marijuana is beneficial to many patients." According to Dr. Little Orin, Professor of Psychiatry at Harvard Medical School, "Marijuana is one of the least toxic substances in the whole pharmacopeia."

Sexual offenders required to register at their crimes at current universities

Assembly Bill 4 by Assemblywoman Bates (R-Laguna Nigel) passed the State Assembly on May 21. "AB 4 requires sex offenders who plan to be on a college campus as a student or employee must register with law enforcement officials. This registration requirement will give campus police the information about sexual predators in the campus community that is available to other law enforcement agencies. Current law requires that sex offenders information be provided only to the local law enforcement agency where the offense occurred. Because the college may not be in the same jurisdiction as the offender's residence, the college's law enforcement personnel and community may have no idea that a convicted sex offender is on their campus. Legislation similar to the Bates bill passed at the federal level (HR 3244). According to HR 3244, States that fail to notify campus police about the presence of sex offenders risk losing federal funds.

Orange County Environmentalists seek to protect kelp from Catalina fishing industry

The Kelp Forest Coalition, an Orange County-based environmental group, called Monday for the waters around Catalina Island to be designated as a state marine park. Executive Director Stephen G. Benavides submitted the request in a 15-page proposal to the California Department of Fish and Game's Marine Life Protection Act evaluation team. If such a marine park were created, commercial fishing would be banned within three miles of the island, Benavides said. Within that boundary, a west-to-east no-take reserve would be created, he said.

Cuban Scholar in Residence at CSUSB

By Rika Yoshimoto
Staff Writer

Ceasar Lopez Nunez, the 1999 winner of Cuba's National Literary Award, is a scholar-in-residence at CSUSB from May 7 through June 9. While on campus, Mr. Lopez will be collaborating with professors in the Department of Foreign Languages and Literature and teaching a class in Latin American poetry with Dr. Maria Antonietta Gallegos-Ruiz.

Mr. Lopez distinguished writing career began as a student at the University of Havana and at the University of Salamanca. During the 1960s he worked as Cuban consul in Scotland and Ireland. After returning to Cuba, he founded the Cuban Union of Writers and Artist (UNEAC) and later worked with the Cuban National Council on Culture.

Mr. Lopez has taught at several universities in Cuba and served as adjunct faculty at the University of Glasgow, Scotland, the University of Catania, Italy, and the University of Clermont-Ferrand in France. He has been invited to make presentations in Mexico, England, Venezuela, and Colombia, as well as several Asian and African countries.

Mr. Lopez has published ten critical anthologies, two books of short stories, and thirteen collections of poetry. The most recent of which is entitled "Tercer libro de ciudad." He is recognized as one of the literary figures of his generation.

His stay at CSUSB is sponsored and organized by the International Institute, International Student Services, and the College of Arts and Letters.

Walk for Coyote Athletics

Michael Kovack, Director of Development, "hopes to raise about $15,000 for the athletic department."

By Carli Norris
Staff Writer

The Coyote Athletic department hosted the 4th annual walk for athletics fund raiser on Saturday May 19th. Coaches, players, administrators and volunteers joined together for fifteen laps around the track. The basketball, soccer, water polo, softball and tennis team were among the participants in the walk.

Members of the athletic administration participated in the event including athletic director Nancy Simpson. Each participant obtained outside sponsorships and donations to raise money for the athletic scholarship fund. Michael Kovack, Director of Development, "hopes to raise about $15,000 for the athletic department."

This event not only raises money for the athletic department, but it also allows members of the athletic department to develop solid community relationships.

The agenda for future events will include increased community participation. Plans are in progress for a larger and more elaborate fund-raiser. The date of the walk will move to mid or late September.

Festivities plan to include carnival type booths, back to school activities, fund raising events and other entertainment activities for Cal State students and outside community members. "It will be a great chance to get the community involved," stated Kovack. The activities will hopefully increase audience participation for the athletic events and programs.

Rumor Has It

By Claire Benson

"It's just a goal," That was the comment Luis Portillo gave when questioned about the moving of the Coyote Statues from in front of the coliseum area to the front entrance of the University. The rumor on campus was that ASI was going to spend $10,000 dollars for the Mascots change of residence. No, that is not going to happen. The athletes for one were not happy with that suggestion. Taiwan Ambassador discussed China/U.S relations on Campus

By Rika Yoshimoto
Staff Writer

Jason C. Yuan, Director General of Taipei Economic and Cultural Office in Los Angeles, spoke for an International Lecture Series Program at Cal State San Bernardino last Tuesday. The lecture was held in the Panorama Room (Lower Commons) and focused on "a Triangular Relationship in the New Century" with discussions on the political and economic issue between Mainland China, Taiwan, and United States.

Mr. Yuan introduced the history of the Republic of China and discussed cross-strait relations in terms of banking, tourism, journalism, and the policy, US - Republic of China trade relations, and the role of the US in the trade relations. Though many faculty anticipated in the lecture, more than half of the student participants were graduated and undergraduates from Asian countries, paying particular interest in the China/Taiwan conflict over political issues. Participants asked sensitive questions about Taiwan's independence from China and the lecture turned out to be a "debate."

"Not so many people know about Taiwan as a country because Taiwan is a small country. The land is about 1/10 of California and the population is only 2/3 of California," said Jason C. Yuan, Director General of Taipei Economic and Cultural Office. Though it is small in size, Taiwan has a potential for economic and political growth. To culture young generation as university students is a great treasure for Taiwan and the United States future, he said. Prior to Mr. Yuan's post in Los Angeles, he served on numerous diplomatic posts throughout the world. International Lecture Series Programs was sponsored by International Student Services of CSUSB and Inland Empire Chinese Association.

Breast Screening Coming to CSUSB

By Amy Stabbs
Staff Writer

Some things in life are free. The CSUSB health center is offering free mammograms to female students. The campus student health center received a $20,000 grant from the Susan G. Komen Foundation's Inland Empire Affiliate. For the second year in a row the foundation will fund a CSUSB Collegiate Breast Cancer Screening project for eligible enrolled female students.

Certain qualifications must be meet in order to be eligible for this program. To qualify, female students must have no health insurance or high health insurance deductibles. Students must also live in Riverside or San Bernardino counties. Women 40 years and older automatically qualify. If you are under 40 years of age you are eligible for a free office visit, checking if you have any abnormal findings. If the nurse recommends further attention you qualify for this program. The grant benefits eligible women. Funds available provide preventative and diagnostic screening. This preventative care helps ensure and promote good health.

According to the National Breast Cancer Foundation 43,500 women will die from cancer this year. Approximately every eleven minutes a woman dies from breast cancer. Women of all ages should schedule regular doctor appointments, and conduct self-breast examinations to prevent and detect any cancerous or abnormal findings. In 1982 Nancy Brinker founded the Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation in honor of her sister. Komen died from breast cancer at the age of 36. The Komen Foundation is a national organization whose headquarters is located in Dallas, Texas. The network functions through the help of volunteers working together to fight breast cancer.

Eligible Cal State students should take advantage of free mammograms while available funds provide this service. Act now and take care of your body, students should not delay preventative test screenings.

Do You Have What it Takes to be an Honors Student?

The Honors Program enriches the undergraduate educational experience with opportunities including special academic advising, integrated honors courses, participation in lectures, concerts and art exhibits, extensive library privileges, honors colloquia and seminars. Most honors courses fulfill the general education requirements of the university.

Who May Apply?
1) Incoming freshman with SAT scores of 1100 or ACT scores of 26 and in the top 10% of their graduating class. 2) Transfer students with an overall GPA of 3.5. 3) Continuing students with an overall GPA of 3.5. 4) Faculty-sponsored students with academic potential.

How to Apply?
Students must submit the following documents: 1) The standard application and materials for admission to CSUSB. 2) An essay stating your reasons for enrollment in the program. 3) A letter of recommendation from a teacher or counselor who is familiar with your academic achievements.

What Is The Selection Process?
Members of the Honors Program are selected by the Honors Program Committee. Freshmen or transfer student applicants must first be accepted as university students; this is a separate procedure controlled and administered by the Admissions Office.

What Are The Program Requirements?
Students must maintain an overall 3.3 GPA to remain in good standing. Incoming Freshmen: 38 units over 4 years, to include Language and Meaning and the Honors Colloquium in the freshman year; the Honors Seminar in the sophomore year; a senior project in a department and sixteen additional units, at least eight in upper-division, from other honors designated offerings. Entering Juniors and Transfer Students: 15 units, to include the Honors Seminar; a senior project in a department and eight additional upper-division units from other honors designated offerings.
Survey Highlights of a Campus Christian Club

Over the course of this past school year the Alliance of Reformed Disciplemaking Ministries, International (ARDM), a Christian club on the campus, has conducted a spiritual survey among some of the male students at Cal State University, San Bernardino. This survey is not scientifically accurate but was meant to provide two things: an opportunity to dialogue with students about spiritual issues and a chance to get a general idea of what students think about these issues.

Seventy-one male students participated in answering the survey, although every person did not answer every question. The results of this survey are summarized below.

1. Class:
   - 24% Freshman
   - 12% Sophomores
   - 34% Juniors
   - 17% Seniors
   - 4% Graduate Students

2. Are you now, or have you been, a member of any religious group or church?
   - 69% Yes
   - 15% No
   - 16% Used to be

3. When you attend(ed) services or meetings, what is the main thing you hoped to gain?
   - 21% Grow in relationship with God
   - 21% Learn something about life
   - 17% Have some kind of spiritual experience
   - 7% Know more about the Bible
   - 34% Other

4. If you were asked to explain your philosophy of life, would your answer be:
   - 49% Definite
   - 40% Vague
   - 11% No philosophy

5. What, in your opinion, is the basic problem of man (humanity)?
   - 22% Selfishness
   - 18% Ignorance
   - 11% Greed
   - 10% Sin
   - 9% Other

6. Does your philosophy of life include a solution for this basic problem?
   - 80% Yes
   - 20% No

7. Do you believe in a God that is both infinite and personal?
   - 88% Yes
   - 9% No
   - 3% Unsure

8. Who is Jesus Christ according to your understanding?
   - 80% Savior/Son of God
   - 4% Man in history
   - 16% Other

9. If you could know God personally, would you be interested?
   - 69% Yes
   - 17% Already do
   - 7% No
   - 7% Unsure

10. Have you come to the place in your spiritual life where you know for sure that if you were to die today you would go to heaven?
    - 53% Yes
    - 45% No
    - 2% Don't believe in heaven

Suppose you were to die tonight and stand before God and He were to say, "Why should I let you into heaven?" what would you say?

- 49% I was a good person
- 15% I accepted Jesus Christ as my Savior and Lord
- 7% I had faith in God
- 15% Unsure
- 14% Other

We would like to publicly thank all those who participated in this survey. We hope you found the results interesting. If you would like more information about ARDM, you may contact the local staff person, Jon Harbison, at (909)-794-8717.

Looking for the Future of the Chronicle

By J.J. EDDY
News Editor

With only four returning staff members, and few if any, staff writers, the future of the Coyote Chronicle appears to be in jeopardy. The hours are long, the pay is close to nothing and the recognition attained in becoming a member of the Chronicle is comparable to that of a communist distributing ‘free Cuba’ literature on the streets of Middletown, U.S.A.

It has been a crippled and unorganized year for us here at the Chronicle, after falling in debt the previous year to the Communications Department, (for the sum of $17,000) the entire staff, Executive Editor Kat Seigworth Jeremiah Newhouse included, disappeared and filed what we must have perceived as a sinking ship. Those of us who took over had no training, knowledge or clue about the operations and or critical position of the paper. We spent our days running around trying to find a new intake to plug us into the current of events and stories on campus, writing the majority of the articles late at night and by ourselves.

Yet, now, here we are...with only two weeks remaining for the 2000-2001 school year, looking, waiting and hoping that there are enough students on campus who are willing to sacrifice their time and energy, to grab hold of spare wood and nails and take the initiative to help the remaining four editors to hammer the broken pieces of our ship, to provide the median that benefits the sanctity of the school. Everyone of us has a good idea, all of us have something to contribute. An opinion piece, art work, graphic design, poetry, fiction, music reviews, the possibilities are only limited to what your mind can develop.

It is not an easy job, no way in hell, but it can be a great experience and become a real passion. You hold a position which speaks literally to over 2,000 students and faculty in the San Bernardino area, you represent the voice of Cal State. Your voice has been hand capped, limited in its clarity, pitch and volume for this past year, but anyone of you can help balance and expand our frequency, to represent the diverse canvases of education, tradition, beliefs and cultures that make up the myriad of substance that is Cal State San Bernardino.

Let’s stand up for the CSU!

Popularity Poll Results:
The Coyote Chronicle in cooperation with the workers of the Coyote Bookstore conducted a popularity poll centered around the April 20 (4:20) issue of the Chronicle, individuals perception of that article, their personal use of Cannabis, and whether or not they would like to see coverage of this issue in the future of the Coyote Chronicle.

Here are the results from 169 of your fellow students. Of these students, 30 were freshman, 21 sophomores, 63 juniors and 55 seniors.

Out of (169) students polled, (118) had not seen the 4:20 issue of the Chronicle

Out of (118) students (12) smoked Cannabis and 106 did not

Of those (118) students (43) felt that Cannabis interfered with school work

While 51 believed that smoking Cannabis did not effect school work (17) had no answer

Out of (118) students (80) students would like to see articles relating to the issues surrounding Cannabis today (38) students do not wish to see any type of coverage. (2) had no answer

Out of (169) polled (51) students had read the 4:20 issue of the Coyote Chronicle. Here are their opinions on the same questions.

Out of (51) students (6) found the images of marijuana leaves inappropriate

(2) found it appropriate for the date (20) found it comical and (3) did not understand why it was done

Out of (51) students (13) currently smoke Cannabis (39) currently do not

Out of (51) students (12) believed that smoking Cannabis interfered with school work

While (35) students believe that it did not interfere

Out of (51) students (40) students would like to see future articles relating to issues surrounding Cannabis

While (9) students did not (3) students had no answer

(145) students polled did not currently smoke Cannabis

Out of those (145) 74% wanted to see articles on issues surrounding Cannabis in Future Chronicle issues

(225) had no desire to read further into the issue and (4%) had no opinion

(2) students polled currently smoke Cannabis.

Out of those (23) students, (99%) believed that smoking Cannabis does not effect school work. While (1%) students said that it did

(98) out of the (23) students smokers wanted to see more coverage of issues surrounding Cannabis

While (26) student smokers did not.

The results of this poll, though it is only a model for less than 5% of the school, do show that there is curiosity and willingness to learn about Cannabis, it’s medicinal properties, the future of 215 Compass Law in California, and a desire to cope with the generational barriers that have stereotyped a negative image of marijuana use.

As for the 4:20 issue of the Chronicle, the editors are pleased to report that most people took it lightly, and did not interfere. They were interested in issues surrounding Cannabis while (9) students did not (3) students had no answer

Out of (51) students (40) students would like to see future articles relating to issues surrounding Cannabis While (9) students did not (3) students had no answer

(145) students polled did not currently smoke Cannabis

Out of those (145) 74% wanted to see articles on issues surrounding Cannabis in Future Chronicle issues. (225) had no desire to read further into the issue and (4%) had no opinion

(2) students polled currently smoke Cannabis

This is why your class sizes are increasing and you find it harder and harder to find the courses you need to complete your major.

CFA California Faculty Association San Bernardino Chapter 5500 State University Parkway San Bernardino, California 92407

Dear Students,

FACULTY WORKING CONDITIONS ARE STUDENT LEARNING CONDITIONS

The primary mission of the California State University is your education, and the relationship most essential to your education is the relationship between you and the faculty. The California Faculty Association (AAUP/SEIU) -the union representing all 22,000 faculty in the CSU-is convinced that faculty working conditions are student learning conditions.

The CFA has grown increasingly alarmed at the threatened deterioration of working and learning conditions in the CSU. From 1994 to 2000, the CSU has added 35,000 students—an increase of 14%. During this same period, there has been a 24% increase in administrative personnel and the addition of 1,462 temporary faculty. During these years— as the student population grew by 14% and administrators increased by 24%— the system added one new tenure-track instructional faculty position!

This is why it sometimes appears that faculty are too busy to give students the individual attention they expect. The CFA and CSU administration are now entering bargaining negotiations for a new faculty contract. During these negotiations the CFA will submit a series of proposals aimed at protecting and improving faculty working conditions and student learning conditions. In case these proposals fail, the CSU also has begun preparations for job actions such as petitions, rallies, and teach-ins. If job actions become necessary to our defense of the educational mission of the university, we will fully discuss them with students and student leaders.

We hope you will join us in taking a stand for the CSU.

The CFA believes that students and faculty working together can be a powerful force for a better university. We welcome your suggestions about how we can work together for our mutual benefit.

Sincerely yours,

CFA Chapter President
Funkyard Music Festival
Upstate Jamband Festival Goes over Well in SoCal

By Matt Schoenmann
A&E Editor

It's got to be 2001 when a jamband festival goes off in Southern California. The Green on the Hill near Long Beach was host to the First Annual Funkyard Music Festival on Saturday.

Those of us who arrived at the noon start time were treated to an hour long set by promising trio soulive. The New York based band got the party going with their signature tune "So Live." Soulive is made up of guitar player Eric Krasno, Hammond B-3 organ player Neal Evans as well as drummer and former Greyboy Allstar Alan Evans.

To get what Soulive is all about picture Medeski, Martin and Wood with a bit more groove.

I know a lot of people who claim to have funky friends but Merl Saunders has got to have the funkiest friends of all. Veteran band Merl Saunders and His Funky Friends had no problem keeping up the funk and raised the crowd's excitement by performing a cover of Phish's "Julius.

Another Greyboy Allstar alum, Hammond B-3 player Robert Walter, was at the funkyard with his band The 20* Congress. The Greyboy Allstars made a strong showing, with Soulive and Robert Walters 20* Congress proved itself to be among the most promising new groups on the scene.

The band that most were there to see was psychedelic guitar hero Steve Kimock and his band. Kimock's band consists of guitar player Mitch Stein, drummer Rodney Holmes and Bobby "Bobzilla" Vega on bass.

The Steve Kimock Band opened up fittingly with Five Before Funk, a jam that gets the fans, as well as the band in a nice groove. Kimock then led his cohorts through an all to brief set of "Why Can't We All Just Santana," "A New Africa," "Better Get Hit In Your Soul," a "Pooka-Cissy Strut" jam, "Tangled Hairs," "Long Form Part One" and "Avalon."

The band jammed out the end of "Avalon" so that your hair stood on end and abruptly called it a night.

Not many people expected the evening to end at 10 p.m. as advertised, but that's the way it would be. Regardless, the Funkyard Music Festival was a success and everyone went away happy knowing that promoter Mark Lord assured them of the festival's return next year.

6/22 Mike Clark's Prescription Renewal
@ El Rey Theatre
Jennifer Lopez stars in the predictable "Angel Eyes." It's slow, predictable, and lacking. The opening scene, in a failed attempt to be enigmatic, revealed a plot that my five-year-old cousin could have figured out. It was so predictable, that on opening night, many of the moviegoers were calling the shots before they happened. There was not one surprising element of the film. "Catch," which I believe is one of the oddest character names I have encountered, is a combination of "Seth," from "City of Angels," and "Ricky Fitts," the gloomy stalker-guy from the 1999 film "American Beauty." "Catch" is in basically stalking Pogue, before their dramatic meeting, and from that point on the movie begins to follow a set course, typical of sappy romance movies. Girl falls in love with guy, girl wants and tries to change guy. Guy dumps girl, girl stalks guy to find out what he is all about. Girl regrets trying to change guy. Guy decides to change. They drive off into the sunset. Voila, you've got "Angel Eyes." I shouldn't forget how "Catch" manages to show Pogue that he is interested in her...he leaves a dandelion on her mailbox, along with his phone number. Sweet? Thoughtful? No. Not many ladies I know are impressed when guys pick up the first weed they see growing through the sidewalk, and present it to their love interests, with masking tape, of all things. But Pogue seems to be enthralled by this sort of thing. There are only a handful of one-liners and tension breakers that manage to get a few laughs, but the few action sequences are overshadowed as we continuously wonder if "Catch" is about to go postal, and why Pogue seems to adore this silent, dopey, mass-murderer type of guy.

Lopez doesn't wear any all-revealing clothing, alla Grammy Awards, and the only line from the movie worth remembering is her challenging "Catch" to "Kiss me somewhere I've never been kissed before." Only if you enjoy lengthy discussions about how Hollywood seems to continue producing films of an inferior quality, would I see this movie. If your reason for wanting to see this film is because you think that Jennifer Lopez is God's gift to acting, you are in for a big disappointment.

There have been about fifty studies since 1977 and all found a strong correlation between alcohol consumption and forms of cancer, such as esophagus, mouth, and colon. Other findings point to a marked increase in alcohol consumption in populations aged 18 to 29. This age group is the most likely to be taking oral contraceptives. It is also most likely to be under a considerable amount of peer and social pressure. Let us go over the four reasons one final time:

1. High Estrogen Levels in Women
2. Calcim Deposits in Breast Tissue
3. Use of Other Carcinogens
4. Poor Absorption of Essential Nutrients

NFL Owners Vote For Realignment

By Chris Walenta
Executive Editor

Well, times they are a changin'. On Tuesday, the National Football League and its owners voted to realign their divisions for the beginning of the 2002 season. They had to make their decision due to a June first deadline, which the NFL had placed for the owners to decide, had passed.

There are not tons of changes in the divisions. There will be 32 teams in the league starting in the 2002 season with the addition of the expansion Houston Texans. Under the current format there are 31 teams in two separate conferences, National and American Football Conferences. Each conference is broken into three divisions, West, Central and Eastern Divisions. There are three division winners awarded playoff berths along with three wildcard teams from each conference awarded playoff berths as well.

With the realignment come some other changes as well. Now there will be four divisions in each conference. There will be a NFC East, South, North and West. Just as there will be a AFC East, South, North and West. There will now be four division winners and only two wildcard teams from each conference.

Some teams, although they don't publicly admit it, are displeased with the decision to realign. "A lot of people wanted a lot of things. I think this is the best for everyone," according to Dan Rooney, president of the Pittsburgh Steelers. "I think it is good for the league. I also think it is good for the Seahawks," was the quote from Seattle president Bob Witsitt. Seattle was the one team that had publicly bickered about the upcoming realignment. But they must have finally agreed with the proposed deal because the vote for realignment was unanimous.

As you can see there were not tons of changes, but some rivalries are gone and some new ones will emerge. Overall the NFL is very happy with its changes and are ready to implement them at the beginning of the 2002 season.

Here is how each conference will break down

NFC

Dallas Cowboys, New York Giants, Philadelphia Eagles, Washington Redskins

Chicago Bears, Detroit Lions, Green Bay Packers, Minnesota Vikings

SOUTH
Atlanta Falcons, Carolina Panthers, New Orleans Saints, Tampa Bay Buccaneers

WEST
Arizona Cardinals, St. Louis Rams, San Francisco 49ers, Seattle Seahawks

AFC

Buffalo Bills, Miami Dolphins, New England Patriots, New York Jets

Baltimore Ravens, Cincinnati Bengals, Cleveland Browns, Pittsburgh Steelers

SOUTH
Houston Texans, Indianapolis Colts, Jacksonville Jaguars, Tennessee Titans

WEST
Denver Broncos, Kansas City Chiefs, Oakland Raiders, San Diego Chargers

As hated as he may be, Al Davis may have helped sway the vote in favor of realignment.

Which Division Will Be The Toughest

AFC EAST -- 15 %
AFC NORTH -- 4 %
AFC SOUTH -- 21 %
AFC WEST -- 19 %
NFC EAST -- 14 %
NFC NORTH -- 18 %
NFC SOUTH -- 4 %
NFC WEST -- 4 %
