Nobody's Right if Every- one is Wrong

The Year-in-year-out struggle between the California Faculty Association and the Cal State University Board of Chancellors has created more questions than answers, yet few if any of those questions concern the vital consumer student population who ensure the prosperity of the collegiate commercial market complex with each term's tuition.

By Stacy Benderman
Staff Writer

The battle between the Chancellor and the California Faculty Association stems from the CFA contract concerns and the crisis involving the lack of quality instruction facing the Cal State University system.

In a memo to Senate members and the Board of Trustees, Kegley expresses her distaste in the integrity of the Chancellor in regards to a letter written by him and sent to all CSU newspapers. In this letter, the Chancellor counters the claims made by the CFA about the conditions of students and faculty in the CSU.

He first cited that the average salary of CSU faculty is 20 percent higher than the national average. He also stated that the faculty salary increases total 23.5 percent compared to the national average of 14.9 percent. Chancellor Reed argued the salary increase of the last few years, and the proposed increase of six percent next year, may be the reason about only 1 percent of tenure track faculty choose to leave the CSU for another position annually.

Kegley refuted this claim by stating that the comparison of CSU faculty salaries with "national averages" is irrelevant. She said this is because, "CSU has a group of institutions with which its faculty and executive salaries are regularly compared."

Kegley also stated that the net gain of tenure-track faculty members in the CSU over the past five years is "miniscule at best." She said this gain does not provide for the need to hire more tenure-track faculty members to account for the expected surge of enrollment into the Cal State system.

Chancellor Reed stated that the CSU student faculty ratio has been maintained at a "low" 18-to-1 which "keeps CSU class size small." Kegley argues that the student ratio is closer to 19-to-1, which is confirmed by reports at USNews.com. While this may not seem like a large difference, many CSU students are in classes that are much larger than 19 students.

Chancellor Reed cites the Faculty Early Retirement Program, which allows faculty to "ease" into retirement, as a reason the CSU is prevented from hiring full-time tenure-track faculty to replace them. This causes them to hire one or two part-time faculty replacements to ensure that students have the courses they need.

Kegley said, "the FERP program in no way prevents the CSU from hiring full-time tenure-track replacements; it is the judgments of the CSU administrators that inhibit this process."

Chancellor Reed put it mildly when he said, "Many such issues in the bargaining are complex and can be misinterpreted." These figures can be very confusing, particularly when they so greatly differ, depending on who you hear them from. What is important is the students opinion of the quality of instruction here at Cal State. Students should consider these issues and ensure that their concerns are noted by all parties. After all, the CSU is here to provide an education to the students who attend, not to appease the concerns of whoever raises their voice the loudest. Whatever the outcome, we can be assured there will be more to add coming next academic year.

Cal State San Bernardino hosted the 12th annual Disability Awareness Night at the Student Union Events center last Thursday. Featured speaker, Dana LaMon, an administrative law judge who has been blind since the age of four, gave his "message of achievement" to the Cal State campus.

LaMon's personal life story focused on the self-image and achievement to motivate individuals and families living with a disability to confront and overcome the obstacles that disabilities can pose. "Never let limitation of others impose you...limitation is in its circumstances... do not look at yourself... look at potential to achieve your goal," he said.

Despite LaMon's blindness his experiences were not only a true inspiration but also a quite humorous. He said that building re-

Job Fair: A Gateway to Success

By Goldie Avalos
Staff Writer

A Job Fair was held last Tuesday in the Student Event Center for students and faculty interested in careers in social work.

The Social Work Student Association (SWAS) sponsored the agencies and businesses that came to Cal State. The companies supplied applications and shared information on the company with the interested students.

The agencies that were in attendance were community health centers, a probation facility for troubled youth, clinical services, adoption agencies, adult services and social services.

The San Bernardino County of Children's Services has representatives that recruit students from San Diego State University, UCLA and USC but find that their most successful recruitment is at Cal State San Bernardino.

Undergraduate and graduate students attended the job fair to look for prospective career opportunities.

Rachael Lozano, an undergraduate student majoring in Human Services, found that the job fair was helpful and it was a chance for her to "just get an idea of what's out there."

The agencies had booths and tables filled with information regarding their business and a treat was offered for those who were interested.

Working to Overcome Addiction

By Amy Stubbs
Staff Writer

Battling addictions can be a difficult task. Many steps are involved when searching for the road to recovery. The good news is there is help no one needs to battle recovery alone. People can be addicted to several things such as; drugs, gambling, alcohol and food. When trying to overcome these addictions one must first realize and admit their powerlessness over a substance, and seek help. Many programs such as Alcoholics Anonymous and Narcotics Anonymous are non-profit organizations created to help individuals battle and overcome addictions.

Overcoming addictions is difficult but not impossible. When overcoming addictions one must choose to abstain and change deep-rooted behavior patterns. According to Russell Forrest, "Recovery is more than just abstinence," one must "Also attend to attitudes and behaviors that have kept the door open to intoxication." Forrest is a clinical manager of Hazelden's Fellowship Club, a halfway house for chemically dependent people in St. Paul. "Recovery requires a lot of blood, sweat, and tears" said Forrest. The path to recovery doesn't have to be taken alone. Recovery groups give support and are available for many different needs. Different programs are available for different addictions. Alcoholics can turn to AA for help. AA has provided Twelve Steps "recovery" process in which recovering people strive to replace unhealthy patterns with healthier and more satisfying behaviors. Support groups are available to help individuals deal with their problems. In these support groups you talk, they listen, they talk, and you listen. These programs help you see yourself more clearly and help comfort people as they realize they are not alone when battling addictions. Other programs such as NA have been created for those dealing with narcotics addiction. This program handles different addictions but unites with AA in two ways, "They admit their powerlessness over addictions, and their goal is to practice the Twelve Step program of recovery, one day at a time." No matter your addiction or problem help is available.

For help and information one can check your local phone directory, look on the Internet, or simply ask a friend or loved one for help. Those dealing with addictions should reevaluate their lives, admit their problems, and seek help. By gaining control over addictions people can live longer and happier lives, perform better in school and work, and establish better relationships with loved ones. No one should be a slave to their addictions, help is available and people should take advantage of these programs.

Cal. State San Bernardino ranks 27 nation-wide for bachelor degrees earned by Hispanics

17 California State University campuses are among Hispanic Outlook in Higher Education's 11th annual "Top 100," a national list of colleges and universities that conferred the most bachelor's degrees and Masters degrees on Hispanics, according to the latest report by the National Center for Education Statistics. Cal State San Bernardino ranked 27 on the list for Bachelors, and ranked 70 in Masters awarded.

CSU campuses in the "Top 100" are: San Diego State (5), CSU Los Angeles (8), CSU Fullerton (9), CSU Northridge (11), CSU Long Beach (13), CSU Fresno (17), San Jose State (24), CSU San Bernardino (27), CSU Dominguez Hills (28), Cal Poly Pomona (29), CSU Sacramento (31), San Francisco State (34), Cal Poly San Luis Obispo (37), CSU Chico (61), CSU Stanislaus (65), CSU Hayward (67), and CSU Bakersfield (72). CSU campuses in the "Top 100" in awarding master's degrees are: Los Angeles. (7), San Diego (14), Dominguez Hills (27), San Jose (28), Long Beach (34), Sacramento (41), Northridge (46), Fresno (51), San Francisco (53), Fullerton (57), San Bernardino (70), and Hayward (92).

Cal. Poly Civil Engineers Named 'Most Outstanding' in U.S.

Cal Poly's Society of Civil Engineers has been named the nation's preeminent American Society of Civil Engineers (ASCE) student chapter. It has been awarded the 2000 Robert Ridgway Award, the national society's top student chapter honor.

Simultaneously, the group continued an unprecedented six-year streak by winning the student competition in engineering analysis and design at the recent ASCE Pacific Southwest Regional Conference. The Cal Poly club claimed first prize in the five most heavily weighted events.

Cal Poly won the steel bridge, concrete canoe, technical presentation, surveying, and concrete bowling categories. The steel bridge and concrete canoe teams will go on to national competitions at Texas A&M University and the Colorado School of Mines.

Bid-A-Zeta cooks up over $1000

Bid-A-Zeta is an annual event held every year to raise money for breast cancer. This year the Greek fraternities and a member from ASI showed up to support Zeta Tau Alpha fraternity. Every chapter was represented at bid-a-Zeta, but the Delta Sigma Phi fraternity had the largest supporting group in attendance. Bid-a-Zeta took place on Wednesday May 23, 2001.

The event raised over $1,000, with all money being donated towards a cure for breast cancer. The members of Zeta Tau Alpha stood in front of the seated crowd where there food of choice was announced to the audience. Bidding started off at $5, and the auction began, as the audience would raise their hands increasing the bid by $5 each time. Once finished, they moved on to the next item up for bidding.

relationships with others is a significant factor in creating a value system. A disabled person has great abilities to build the relationships. With those relationships, they can benefit each other; therefore, "they became less disabled," he said.

"What you see is what you get," LaMon said. Creating positive self-image is the key to achieve one's goal, depending on "what you see." The label system still exists in the world (people are tended to put labels to groups or individuals). Instead of looking at the word, "Disabled," look at your self, your ability and purpose, and you can achieve your goal, he said.

Retirees Honored for Years of Service

Dr. Karnig awards faculty and staff with recognition and congratulations on a lifetime of involvement with Cal State San Bernardino

By Goldie Avalos
Staff Writer

Retired faculty and staff were honored for their dedicated service to Cal State San Bernardino at a luncheon, hosted by the president, last Thursday.

The second annual President's Luncheon for Faculty and Staff Retirees was an event to honor current retirees as well as post retirees. They were personally invited by President Albert Karnig and his wife to a catered lunch in the Upper Commons dining room and were applauded for their numerous years of service.

"You leave an enormous legacy," Karnig said, as he spoke of their hard work and dedication to help build up the university.

Some of the retirees received an engraved mantel clock as an award for their outstanding work with the university for more than twenty years.

Jill Lewis, the administrative support coordinator for the management department, was awarded her hard work of serving 25 years to Cal State as she helped shape the Management Department to what it is today.

"I think it is a wonderful event...Isn't nice to be told you did a great job?" Lewis said in response to how she felt after being recognized for her work.

James Rogers, the chair and Professor of Management said Lewis' service to students has been her most outstanding job.

Lewis' retirement plans are to win a million dollars on the television show, "Who Wants to be a Millionaire?" or become a Wal-Mart greeter as an alternative, while other retirees plan on singing in a concert, hiking and spending time with their families during their retirement.

Report Offers the Preverbalial 'Free Lunch'

By Public Affairs
Special to Chronicle

Getting USDA surplus food to schoolchildren could be cheaper - $1.3 million a year cheaper in fact, according to a new report from the Institute for Social Research at California State University, Sacramento.

The eight-month, $100,000 study, which was completed on behalf of the California Department of Education, recommends privatizing the 40 percent of surplus food delivery now carried out by the department. The food is given to school districts to be used in school lunch programs.

The report estimates the private sector can deliver the food for $2.40 weighted average cost per case, compared to the $3.44 plus headquarters charges that it costs the state to deliver each case.

Nationwide, 39 states have fully privatized their systems for delivering surplus food to school districts, the report says. Just one, Montana, has returned to a partially state-run system.

"The state could feasibly privatize this operation, no question," says one of the report's authors, CSUS economist professor George Jouganatos. "Of course they have to be careful and reduce any risks from privatization by effective planning. Regardless of the location of the school district, each student has equal rights to this food."

Jouganatos and his co-authors caution that converting to a privatized system would have initial costs ranging from $165,500 to as high as $5.7 million if the state does not plan adequately for the conversion.

More information and copies of the study's executive summary are available by contacting Jouganatos at (916) 739-1132 or the CSUS public affairs office at (916) 278-6156.

Student Collapsed in Class, Never Recovers

By J.Eddy & Ana Cespedes
Staff Writer

Wednesday, May 23, a tragic accident occurred in the University Hall of Cal State San Bernardino. According to Sgt. Sarmiento, 21 year old Corinne Ann Flores, collapsed, stopped breathing and did not respond to the efforts of students, fire men and paramedics efforts to revive her.

Ms. Flores collapsed shortly after 9:20 am, minutes after her philosophy class began in University Hall. Two students began CPR, while the instructor notified campus police and a third student phoned 911 via a cell phone.

Flores was taken to San Bernardino Community Hospital, where she was pronounced dead. She left behind a 6 month-old baby a fiancé and a loving family.

"This is a tragic loss for her family and friends. It's also a loss deeply felt by the university community," said Cal State President Albert Karnig. "we wish to express our condolences to those close to her."

The cause of death is still pending on an autopsy. The university will be gathering further details on the incident as they become available.

Student's who shared the philosophy class with Flores were met with counselors and psychologists, whose aim was to help the students cope with the shock and loss of their fellow student.

What Are You Doing Over the Summer Break?

By Patrick Kissell
Staff Writer

Final exams, late night studying and waiting until the last minute to write that term paper. Yes everyone, the end of the spring quarter is coming and we all know what that means: summer break. Whether you are going on vacation, getting a job, just being lazy, or even going to summer school, the idea of summer vacation gets just about everyone excited. So get out your bathing suits and the sun-tan lotion because summer break is only a few short weeks away.

As everyone knows, one of the great advantages to living in Southern California is summertime. The results of a survey conducted of Cal State students found that the majority of you will be spending your summer breaks here in

Some beach goers enjoy some fun in the sun

California. The number one activity that people will be involved in is going to the beach. The beach is great because it is a way for people to beat the heat while being outside and have a good time with friends and family, not to mention acquiring a great tan. Relaxing and being lazy came in a close second to the beach as the top things to do this summer. This is because another way beat the heat is to sit in an air-conditioned room in front of the television with school as far from your mind as possible.

Some students though are taking a different route this summer. Freshman

Renee Arnold is going to Germany this summer on a program through the University of California, Riverside, that will allow her to live with a host family while maintaining a job there. "This will be a great opportunity for me because not only will I learn more about the language, but the culture as well," said Arnold.

Others still are taking a different road, the one that not many want to take, but the one that is the most necessary. This is going to summer school or getting a summer job. Junior Kevin Sullivan said, "Unfortunately I won't be going on vacation this summer because I have to go to summer school and work." Many students find themselves in this predicament because they need to keep working to make money and cannot afford a vacation right now. But no matter which direction you are headed this summer, just remember to have fun, be safe, and keep cool in the blistering heat

Interest Rate Cuts May Affect You

San Bernardino Sun

Do you have a federal student or parent loan? A lovely surprise is coming your way, starting July 1. The interest rate will fall probably by a lot. You won't know the new rate until the end of May. But it's expected to drop by around 2 percentage points. If you make the right moves, you can lock in some additional discounts. Your total rate on student loans could dive to a little over 5 percent! So you'll want to act. This column lists several different groups of borrowers. Look through the list to find your situation and what, if anything, you should prepare to do.

Every July 1, the government changes the rate on student loans and PLUS loans for parents. It goes up or down, depending on the rate on short-term U.S. Treasury bills. Right now, you're paying 8.19 percent on new Stafford student loans and 8.99 percent on PLUS loans. The new, basic rate could drop to a little over 6 percent for students and 7 percent for parents. With discounts, you could pay even less. Here's how the rate cuts apply to different types of borrowers: "If you're out of school and repaying your original student loans. Your interest rate will drop automatically, on Stafford loans taken after 1992. Written notices will come out in June, saying what your new payments are. "If you have your original PLUS parent loans. Repayments always begin 60 days after you borrow, whether or not your student is still in school. Your rate will drop automatically, just as the student rate does. "If you have the monthly payments withdrawn automatically from your bank account. You can save another 0.25 percentage points. "If you want to consolidate your student or parent loans. After July 1, you'll be able to lock in a new, low fixed rate that lasts for the life of the loan. The exact rate will be announced at the end of May. Students might get around 6.8 percent on recent loans. (Earlier loans have different rates.)

Loan consolidation needs a little more explaining. Special discounts often are available. To "consolidate" means that you combine all the different loans you took during your student years into a single loan, at a new interest rate. There are two main sources of consolidation loans: private lenders, such as banks, the Collegiate Funding Service (cfsloans.com or 888-423-7562) and Sallie Mae (salliemae.com or 888-272-5543); and the federal government, through its Direct Loan Consolidation program (loanconsolidation.ed.gov or 800-557-7392). There are two potential discounts, the U.S. Education Department told my associate, Dori Perrucci." 1. If you apply for a consolidated Stafford student loan within six months of leaving school. You save an additional 0.6 percentage points on the rate. Private lenders will consolidate two or more loans. The government's Direct Loan program will "consolidate" even a single loan. Right after school is the best time to apply. New graduates, take note!" 2. If you consolidate a student loan or PLUS loan through the government's Direct Loan program, between now and Sept. 30. You can get an additional rate cut of 0.8 percentage points. To keep this rate, you have to pay on time for the first 12 months. "On time" means no more than six days late. If you miss one payment date, the rate cut still applies to your first 12 months. After that, you'd revert to whatever your normal rate would have been on a consolidation loan.

I Want to Thank You...

By Monica Turner
Features Editor

Greetings from your features editor for the last two quarters. I have enjoyed my work on the Chronicle and my schooling at CSUSB. Other than that, I would just like to thank all of our readers (however small that number may be) for reading our paper. I would also like to say a personal thank you to the entire chronicle staff, so here goes.

John, stay cool and I hope you get to live with the Indians and become a Shaman. Who knows, maybe one day down the road, our careers will cross each other. Matt, what can I say about Matt. You are quiet at times, but you are cool. Keep listening to the techno and try not to drink too much (water of course). Chris, you know are you cool and I wish you all the luck in the world on your wedding. Oh well I just announced to everyone that you are off the market! Want some pizza with extra cheese?

Jason, thanks for being patient with me and all your help. I know I can be difficult at times. Jandi, thanks for being reliable and making sure our graphics were done on time. Dan, thanks for being our faulty staff leader, oh I mean faculty staff leader. Linda, thanks for getting me a check finally and being patient with all of us. And finally Jorge. Thanks for being so patient with me and making me laugh every week. But regretfully I have to inform you that you are indeed the weakest link, goodbye.

Why Don't We Have Football

By Chris Walenta
Executive Editor

I know we are only a Division II school and people like to label us a commuter college, but why the hell don't we have a football team here? I know that money gets dispersed in certain ways and because of certain acts and laws that have been passed we can't have a football team. But do you ever look at the fine line and wonder why we don't have a team to cheer for on a Saturday night?

The way money gets dispersed depends on the amount of students we have and then on the amount of women's sports and men's sports that are active. The amount that each gender gets towards sports is directly related to the percentage of students that are represented by that gender.

Currently there are more women attending school here than do men. Wouldn't it be an interesting idea to look at how many women or men attend school at night and don't give a damn about sports or participating in them? Why doesn't the school ask students when they register if they are going to participate in team sports that way the people who are actually going to play get the money towards the sports they plan on playing in?

Until you start asking officials these tough questions and start demanding answers to back up your questions you will still be sitting on your couch on a Saturday night rooting for some other college.

Opinions on Opinions?

By Jorge G. Salazar
Managing Editor

Huh? Dude...what? It never ceases to amaze me that there are few opinion articles in this university's campus newspaper every week. When people are so quick to mouth off and act like jerks. I think if you are capable of saying it, without using four-letter explicatives, write it down. Dude—Opinions have gotten to be like poor exam grades after a tough night of drinking, everyone has a few. Write it down. You can reach so many more students in a single article, than yelling at the top of your lungs from the fifth floor of the library. Students in mobs speak way more than the lone orator that stands on their soapbox and voices his or her opinion on Dolphin-safe Tuna or Earth-friendly laundry detergent. Be bold and let your voice be heard. Even if it is about parking, drugs use, your girlfriend, papers, dude anything. Do you have what it takes? Tell us.

What's up with these bands?

By Matt Schoenmann
A&E Editor

Walking through the courtyard one Wednesday I noticed that a band was playing in the courtyard. I saw no signs indicating who the artist was and the sound permeating from their instruments was nearly incoherent. Needless to say I did not stick around to find out who this band was.

My first complaint is on behalf of the bands themselves. The bands receive no promotion whatsoever for their performances. Most artists play venues such as Cal State San Bernardino for the publicity they receive, not the money. Perhaps if these acts had more of an opportunity for exposure we could attract higher quality performers.

Another complaint would be that we don't appear to utilize the artists that we have on campus. Our Cal State Jazz Band has some fine musicians who would actually like to focus on music as a career, but apparently we aren't giving them enough incentives to perform for students. The jazz ensemble plays fanatics often, yet we can't seem to get them to perform anywhere on campus other than the performing arts building.

I, as a student, would enjoy some quality, intelligent music while I wait for my next class to begin. Hopefully in the upcoming year something can be done about this.

...And now it's time to say goodbye.

By J. Eddy
News Editor

The first year is behind me now, another notch to be etched on my belt of life experiences. It has been one hell of a ride, through both the ups and downs of the roller-coaster like existence of the Chronicle. Yet, regardless of the mood and the countless complaints that piled up on the desks of our office, I could always depend on my co-workers to be there, every Wednesday night, from beginning til end, week in and week out. Monica, Matt, Jorge, Chris, Jandi, Jason, Catherine, Bill, and Davin, you made the entire year worth all of the stress, blood sweat and tears. I thank you all deeply.

To our graduating senior, Jason Gallo, one of our copy editors who stuck with the Chronicle the entire year, I bid you a special farewell. As other Chronicle staff members, who had bigger stakes and large responsibility in the paper, abandoned ship, Jason stood topside and laughed in the wind, accepting the challenge of training a new group of rough edge editors, who had no prior experience in newspaper production. Jason helped get me through a lot of trying times, late at night, and in the blitz of twilight production.

Congratulations Jason on your graduation from Cal Satate San Bernardino, and for all of your hard work.

'Survivor' Makes Feature Film Debut

By Carli Norris
Staff Writer

Colleen Haskell will be the first member of the original "Survivor" cast to make her feature film debut in the new comedy The Animal starring Rob Schneider. The comedy is scheduled to premiere on Friday, June 1st.

The former Saturday Night Live alum re-teams with Adam Sandler of Happy Gilmore and Billy Madison as co-producers of this hilarious comedy. Schneider returns to his cunning comedy roots in this off the wall comedy. Schneider co-wrote and stars in this hilarious depiction of human experimentation. The plot begins with Marvin Mange (Schneider) involved in a near fatal car crash. His rescuer from this horrible accident is Dr. Wilder (Michael Caton, The Castle), who has discovered the genetic code that allow him to repair Marvin's mangled body with animal organs.

The once nerdy police evidence file clerk now possesses amazing animal instincts. On the outside, Marvin looks normal, but inside, he never knows which beastly behavior will emerge as he swings through the urban jungle.

The proverbial romance occurs between the former tree hugger Rianna (Colleen Haskell), and Marvin. "Colleen is a natural," says director Luke Greenfield. "She had the best attitude. I couldn't have asked for anything more."

Other cast mates include Hollywood veteran Ed Asner, Louis Lombardi, of television's award-winning series The Sopranos, and John C. McGinley who takes a comic turn as Sgt. Doug Sisk.

Ease on down the road.

'Ja' to Rule Cal State

By Lafayette C. Hight Jr.
Staff Writer

Making a Southern California stop as part of the "Rule 3:36" national tour, hip-hop artist Ja Rule will perform at Cal State San Bernardino's Coussoulis Arena next Friday night at 8 p.m.

"Rule 3:36," which followed his first album "Venni Vetti Vecci" is his second platinum album and features the tracks "Between Me and You," and "Six Feet underground."

The 24-year-old Ja (from his initials, Jeff Atkins) has been nominated "Best Male Hip-Hop Artist" for the BET 1st Annual Awards, to be held June 19, and as a moonlighting actor, will be seen in theaters beginning June 22 in the action film "The Fast and the Furious" playing a member of a secret society of street racers who are being investigated by the police. He will also co-star alongside Snoop Doggy Dogg and Ice-T in "Crime Partners" later this year.

His third album, "Pain is

Ja Rule is set to play Cal State

Love," is slated for release in October.

Many Cal State students are looking forward to the different flavor that a hip-hop act will bring to campus, but others are dissatisfied. "I think that Ja Rule is cool, but f that," said Joe Bunnell, Senior Communications major. "I'm not paying 30 bucks...Tupac he will never be." Bunnell believes the admission cost is extremely high, compared to performances which were part of the recent "Up in Smoke Tour," in which each performance featured multiple artists like Dr. Dre, Snoop Doggy Dogg, Ice Cube, and Eminem for about the same price.

General admission is $30, and tickets for Cal State students, staff, faculty and alumni association members with proper ID are $25. Tickets are available through Ticketmaster, the campus Box Office or in Coussoulis Arena room HP-121. More information is available by calling (909) 880-7360.

CFA California Faculty Association

San Bernardino Chapter
5500 State University Parkway
San Bernardino, California 92407

Dear Students,

FACULTY WORKING CONDITIONS ARE STUDENT LEARNING CONDITIONS

The primary mission of the California State University is your education, and the relationship most essential to your education is the relationship between you and the faculty. The California Faculty Association (AUP/SEIU) -the union representing all 22,000 faculty in the CSU-is convinced that faculty working conditions are student learning conditions.

The CFA has grown increasingly alarmed at the threatened deterioration of working and learning conditions in the CSU. From 1994 to 2000, the CSU has added 35,000 students- an increase of 14%. During the same time period, there has been a 24% increase in administrative personnel and the addition of 1,462 temporary faculty. During these years -as the student population grew by 14% and administrators increased by 24%- the system added one new tenure-track instructional faculty position!

This is why your class sizes are increasing and you find it harder and harder to find the courses you need to complete your major.

This is why it sometimes appears that faculty are too busy to give students the individual attention they expect.

The CFA and CSU administration are now entering bargaining negotiations for a new faculty contract. During these negotiations the CFA will submit a series of proposals aimed at protecting and improving faculty working conditions and student learning conditions. In case these proposals fail, the CSU also has begun preparations for job actions such as petitions, rallies, and teach-ins. If job actions become necessary to our defense of the educational mission of the university, we will fully discuss them with students and student leaders.

We hope you will join us in taking a stand for the CSU. The CFA believes that students and faculty working together can be a powerful force for a better university. We welcome your suggestions about how we can work together for our mutual benefit.

Let's stand up for the CSU!

Tom Meisenhelder
CFA Chapter President

End of the Year message from the Editorial
Staff of the Coyote
Chronicle

The Members of the Coyote Chronicle would like to thank all of those who gave their time and hard work toward the paper, for free. We thank all of the staff in the Communications Department, especially Linda Sand, for all of their work throughout the entire year.

We appreciate all of the input, both negative and positive, from all students who took time out of their day to drop us a line and give us suggestions. All of your voices have been heard, and the returning Coyote Chronicle staff looks forward to implementing some positive changes in next year's paper. Our doors are open to every student who wants to participate in the paper. We can't survive without writers, photographers, graphic designers or artists, and we need as many students as possible to contribute their work, in all forms, to increase the coverage and diversity of the Coyote Chronicle. Only our imaginations can limit the possibilities.

Have you hit the 'Spot' yet? You know, the 'C-Spot', Coussoulis Arena. That's where the best events in town are held. Just in the last year alone there have been more than 20 different shows and 'happenings'. And, we're not just talking about the great Coyote basketball games, the variety is endless. From a Jo Dee Messina concert to Special Olympics to the upcoming Ja Rule concert, the 'C-Spot' has it all. Watch for flyers for future events. See you there!

X-COUNTRY TEAM LOOKING FOR A FEW GOOD RUNNERS

Were you a cross country runner or distance runner in track in your high school days? Did you compete in either or both sports at a community college or at another four-year school before coming to Cal State San Bernardino?

If the answer is yes to either of those questions and you have a yen to resume competitive running, the Coyote women's cross country team would like to talk to you.

Coach Tom Burleson said he has a solid group of returning letter winners to build upon for the 2001 fall season but good programs are always looking for good people.

"I know there are some people on this campus who can run and run well," said Burleson. "We'd like to know if they are interested in competing again."

Burleson said the Coyotes could be a "top six" team in the California Collegiate Athletic Association if everything comes together in the fall.

The team has an ambitious fall schedule of invitationals from San Diego to the Bay Area.

Anyone interested in cross country may contact Burleson at (909) 880-5055 (leave a message if he's not in the office) or e-mail him at burleson@csusb.edu.

CSUSB Athletics Excelled This Year

Cal State athletic programs enjoyed success unparallel to previous seasons

Women's Soccer — 12-8 (7-7 in CCAA), including victory over NCAA D-II champion UC San Diego. First year Coach Christian Johnson said he was "fortunate to inherit a good group of ladies. They were such a good team and very organized. It was the best year of soccer we've had from the women in recent years. We won the Bakersfield Tournament and we have a ton of talent coming back." Women's record was best since 1995 when CSUSB was 12-5-1. Junior Lisa Ament (Lancaster/Paraclete HS) was the team's leading scorer — 6 goals and 7 assists for 19 points — and All-CCAA first team; All-West Region second team. Senior Goalkeeper Melissa Runyon (Murrieta) was All-CCAA and All-West Region second team.

Men's Soccer — 1-18-1 (0-13-1 in CCAA — tie with Cal Poly Pomona). By all accounts it was a tough year. "The schedule was not on our side and half of our opponents were nationally ranked in NCAA or NAIA," said Coach Christian Johnson, referring to losses at the hands of D-I powerhouse San Jose State, and D-II champion Cal State Dominguez Hills. The lone victory in 20 matches was a 2-0 win over Cal Baptist late in the season. The tie came early against Cal Poly Pomona. "I told our team they will never experience another year like this one. They've worked hard this spring and we'll be prepared for next year." Junior Adam Canfield received the Charles and Shelby Obershaw Student-Athlete Scholarship for the coming year.

Women's Volleyball — 26-8 (16-6 in CCAA, second place, runnerup in D-II Pacific Regional). The team's best season ever in D-II was achieved in part by what Head Coach Kim Cherniss called "the 'perfect' volleyball team in terms of composition. We had senior leadership (All-American Jamie Liefveld and All-CCAA Celine Gensler), six freshman starters, a great setter (All CCAA and All-Pacific Region Amy Pope) and a super cast on the bench that put the team's goals first." Most notable win was the defeat of previously unbeaten Cal State

Los Angeles, the CCAA titlist in the regional semifinal. Top returnees include All-American freshman Kim Morohunfolo (Upland HS), All-CCAA freshman Kim Ford (Etiwanda HS), and Pope (Riverside Poly HS). Pope was named the CSUSB Scholar-Athlete of the Year for the third straight year with a 3.965 GPA in business/accounting. Liefveld was named a CSUSB Female Athlete of the Year for the second straight year.

Women's Cross Country — Finished in top 5 among D-II teams in every invitational despite loss of top two runners. Finished 16th in West Regional. Team earned NCAA Academic All-America with 3.16 GPA. "It was a fun," said 11th year Coach Tom Burlison. "We were on the road every weekend and we finished in the top five in our division (II) in each invitational and wound up 16th at the regionals." Burlison said he was most proud of the fact his team made NCAA Academic All-America for the second year in a row with a 3.16 GPA. "We'll be stronger next fall." Top runner on the team was Katherine Pederson of Phelan (Serrano HS).

Men's Basketball — 24-4 overall (19-3 in CCAA for second straight conference title and third straight appearance in West Regional, finishing second). Head Coach Larry Reynolds said his 2000-01 team exceeded the expectations of most. Ranked 22nd in pre-season national polls and picked for second in the CCAA, the Coyotes won the CCAA by two games with a 19-3 record and wound up No. 7 in the national poll, No. 2 in the region poll after being No. 1 in the West most of the season. He and his staff did it with nine returning letterman (none of whom started) and seven new faces. The Coyotes lose only two players (starting guard Chris Mattice and reserve center Drew Hill). "They are graduating from here with a 47-10 record in two years they played for us and two conference championships. That means that 82 percent of the time they stepped on the court for us, they were victorious. Their dedication and commitment represented the university well." Top returnees for the Coyotes are led by sophomore Bobby Burries, the CCAA MVP and a first-team All-West Region pick as well as a fourth-team All-American (NCAA Division II Bulletin), 6-6 forward James Taylor, 6-8 center Brady Bennett and 6-1 guard Mike Edwards along with 6-5 forward LeRoy Mayo.

Women's Basketball — 17-10 overall (12-10 in CCAA), best record since 1998. "One of the most gratifying things is to get goals and see them accomplished," said Coach Kevin Becker, who recorded his 300th career victory during the 2000-01 season. "We wanted to post a winning record and finish in the top half of our conference (which they did at 17-10, 12-10 in CCAA and a sixth-place finish in the 12-team league). "We had not swept anybody on the road the past couple years and we did that at San Francisco and Sonoma early in the season and we did it three weekends at home and we beat San Diego and Grand Canyon on the road at the end." The Coyotes lose only one starter — guard Monique Nolan.

Men's Golf — Highest finish in nine tournaments (7th). Finished 8th in NCAA District 8 qualifier. Greg Price, veteran golf coach in his eighth season, summed up the team's season in five words: "Our season was a struggle." With one returning letter winner (Harry Grounds), the team was able to finish no better than seventh in any of the invitationals on its schedule and was always up against five CCAA opponents who were ranked in the top 10 in the nation. "Bakersfield, Stanislaus and Davis went 1-2-3 in the West Regional," he said. "Hopefully we'll be in better shape next year." Grounds was named the CSUSB Scholar-Athlete of the Year for the second straight year with a 3.92 GPA in chemistry.

Softball — 13-43 overall (6-26 in CCAA). There were a few bright spots such as a win over NCAA West Region champion Humboldt State and two wins over nationally-ranked Cal State Stanislaus, but for the most part, 2001 was a humbling year with only 13 wins after starting out the season with seven wins in the first nine games. "The team worked hard in practice and through it all each player conducted themselves in a professional manner," said Coach Roxanne Berch. Nicole Fiola and Kristine Behen were co-captains. Riola earned first-team All-CCAA honors for the fourth year in a row and first-team All-West Region honors after making the second team the past two years. She set career offense records in every category but batting average and was named a CSUSB Female Athlete of the Year for 2000-01. Behen earned All-CCAA second team and received the Charles and Shelby Obershaw Student-Athlete Scholarship for the coming year.

Women's Water Polo — 15-10 overall, first winning season in three-year history of program. Finished 7th in Western Water Polo Association Regional. "It was an amazing year and I'm proud of our girls for that," said Danielle Altman, in her third season as coach of the team. "We finished seventh in a region of 15 teams and we had our first winning record (15-10). We've got a good thing going." Senior Rachele Sentak (Perris HS) was named to the all-region team and led the team in steals. Freshman Allison Harp (Pacific HS) was the team's leading scorer. "This was the first year that the NCAA offered a championship in women's water polo and we moved up to D-II after playing the first two years in Collegiate III (with University of Redlands and SCIAC schools). Altman loses only Sentak and senior Melissa Kromas off the 16-women squad.

Women's Tennis — 3-11 overall (1-7 in CCAA). Qualified for CCAA Tournament. Under Coach Tom Starzyk the team showed signs of being more competitive in a highly-competitive CCAA. The team defeated San Francisco State 1-7 in CCAA after an 0-8 campaign in 2000. The team lost 5-4 to Cal State Los Angeles when it was a player short and had to forfeit a doubles match. "We won three of our last five (regular season) matches and all but one of our players is returning next year. We have a solid foundation for improvement," Starzyk said. Freshman Heather Lehman (Cajon HS) posted an 8-4 record in singles for the Coyotes while sophomore Coral Conley (Redlands HS/RCC) was the No. 1 singles player and part of the No. 1 doubles team with Cassandra Sumrow.

Baseball — 33-19-1 overall (25-13 in CCAA). Highest season win total in history of program. First post-season appearance in D-II, runnerup to Sonoma State in CCAA Tournament. 15-32 overall and 7-29 (CCAA) in 2000. 33-19-1 overall and 25-13 (CCAA) in 2001. What a difference a year makes. For Coach Don Parnell it was about having everybody healthy for a whole season, particularly his pitching staff. "I think you learn more about a player's character when you are losing than when you are winning. The core group of that 2000 team returned in 2001 and we got a little help from players new to the program." The core group included pitchers Brett Rudrude (first team All-CCAA, second team All-West Region), Joel Porres (second team All-CCAA), Brian Hammer (first team All-CCAA, second team All-West Region), third baseman Brandon Thomas (all-tournament at CCAA championships), first baseman Matt Swaydan, outfielders Bobby Galvan (All-CCAA and All-West Region second team) and Adam Rabusin (All-CCAA honorable mention). Rudrude was 9-4. Hammer was splendid as the closer with 11 saves. Porres was 7-2. Thomas and Galvan both hit over .330 and Rabusin stole 29 bases in 32 tries. Swaydan was No. 2 in homers with 10 and RBI with 39. The intangible difference came from senior shortstop Nick Garcia (Victor Valley HS), who transferred in and was the team's leading hitter at .383, and led the team in homers (14) and RBI (51) and was All-CCAA first team and All-West Region first team and a possible All-America candidate. He and second baseman Rene Leon helped turn 49 of the team's 60 double plays. "This is where we want to be — competing for the conference title and going to the tournament every year," said Parnell. The team loses 10 seniors to graduation including all but one of its productive pitchers plus Thomas, Garcia and Galvan.
