Anderson, the 22-year-old man was in a friend's house, his girlfriend was holding that baby when she told his agreement. According to Martin, the police came the door and sprayed the mother and child and said "You Black b---h, just get her out of there." He then commanded officer two times and turned nonchalantly and sprayed all in a house and the police were in the house got four or five officers at the hospital. Meanwhile, Anderson, came in the house and said police were outside, he was in the house-testing the officer, police were off the scene and, identified Anderson and he went quietly. The police handedly brought the house and walked inside, then they threw him against the police car and put inside. They didn't read any rights, and didn't call the McCraw's mother until 6 on Sunday.

Shannon, 16, ran passed my door, she stopped and fell and approximately 5 or 6 officers jumped him and took him with turbans. He was in a final position, they handcuffed him and threw him in the car. We asked the Wade Command for the officers badge numbers and he gave his card to one of the neighbors, when they went down to the police department to see him, two additional names of Wade Command were given.

Wendell Townsend Plays Key Role in Making Changes At U.S. Department of Agriculture

When Wendell R. Townsend, Jr., became acting assistant secretary for Administration at the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) in late 1994, the 35-year-old Democrat from South Carolina became responsible for directing the Department's more than 200,000 employees. He joined the team in a move to change the culture at the USDA, he said. "It's not enough to fire or punish someone. You need to change the way people do things." Townsend's résumé shows he's well positioned to do just that. He's an educator, writer, and community leader who has spent much of his career advocating for social justice and civil rights. Townsend, a native of South Carolina, is the son of a noted civil rights leader and served as a Peace Corps volunteer in Africa. He is a graduate of Morehouse College and holds a master's degree in education from Columbia University.

Townsend took a job as a professor of English at the University of South Carolina in 1985. He later became a member of the board of directors of the National Newspaper Publishers Association (NNPA). He has served on the boards of several organizations, including the Southern Education Foundation and the Southern Poverty Law Center. Townsend has also been active in community affairs, including serving as a volunteer at the University of South Carolina's Center for Community Research and Action. Townsend has been a vocal advocate for civil rights and social justice, and has been involved in a number of public and private initiatives aimed at promoting equality and justice. Townsend is married and has three children.

SCECorporation Readies For Competition

Positioning itself as a global leader in a competitive marketplace, SCECorporation recently unveiled a new corporate structure with a dynamic, new identity: Edison International.

As part of the corporate announcement, the company also unveiled Edison Source, a new energy efficiency, environmental solution, and energy marketing subsidiary. With the new corporate identity comes a bold, fresh look—a corporate logo, depicted by a radiant energy burst bordered in green. The burst symbolizes Edison’s innovation and strength, while the green border mallems Edison’s commitment to protect the environment. All elements combined reinforce Edison’s readiness to succeed in an era of unprecedented business opportunity and energy services, while offering customer choice and other benefits to local consumers.

With reliance on the corporate imagery and values, Edison Source will build on the experience of Edison International as it becomes customers’ “source” of integrated energy solutions. As Edison International, we are now one company with a strong, related businesses, said Byron. We will compete globally in the energy, environmental and infrastructure markets. In the future, we will establish additional companies under the Edison International umbrella as opportunities in the marketplace emerge.

While the electric industry in California will continue to undergo structural change over the next several years, Edison’s century-old commitment to quality customer service and system reliability will not change, Bryson stressed.

“We are well positioned for competition,” he said. “Our reputation, built on the skills and expertise of our employees and the quality service they provide, will serve us very well in the future.”

The announcement of the new Edison International corporate identity follows a previous unveiling of organizational and management changes within the company which took effect Jan. 1. These changes were designed to streamline the company’s structure and decision-making for a more competitive environment.

As part of that reorganization, business units were created to perform the core functions of the utility (generation, transmission and distribution of electricity) and interaction with customers. Over the past year, Edison has introduced a series of steps that further benefit customers, including a price freeze for residential and small-business customers, innovative service guarantees, flexible billing plans, expanded toll-free phone services for all customers and a goal to reduce customer prices by 25% (adjusted for inflation) by 2000.

“All of these efforts mark the beginning of an era of more innovative energy products and services at competitive prices,” said Bryson. “We are embracing this era of competition and choice throughout California, the United States, and around the world. And we are prepared to win.”

EASTER GOSPEL CONCERT: Bishop Kenneth Ulmer, Ph.D. (left) of Revelation Faith Baptist Church and Bishop Noel Jones of Greater Bethany Community Church will join their congregations for an Easter Gospel Concert at the Los Angeles Convention Center, Sunday, April 7, 1996 at 5:00 p.m.

Churches Unite For Easter Gospel Concert

Two Los Angeles churches, Faithful Central Missionary Baptist Church and Bethany Community Church will host a moving concert of gospel music on Easter Sunday evening, April 7, 1996 at the Los Angeles Convention Center. The event is historic because it marks the first time that two such diverse ecclesiastical organizations have united in celebration and song. “For the most part, Sunday is still the most segregated day of the week,” said Bishop Kenneth Ulmer, Ph.D., pastor of Faithful Central Missionary Baptist Church, which is located in Highland Park. Among the artists scheduled to perform are Vanessa Bell Armstrong, O’Landa Draper and the Associates, Daryl Coley, Kim Stratton, L.A. Mass Choir, Trenora Parker and the Los Angeles Cathedral Choir. Additional special guests and celebrities are still being confirmed.

The gospel concert concludes a weekend of community service activities. Both churches are collecting non-perishable food items at Sunday services, which will be distributed to families in need.

The concert, which follows a community Easter worship service, is set to begin at 5:00 p.m. The community worship service starts at 9:00 a.m. and is free. Concert tickets are $10.00. Both events are open to the public.

Can Satan Read Minds?

Questions & Answers By Dr. Reginald Woods

QUESTION: Dear Pastor Woods, How does the devil place evil thoughts in a person’s mind? Can they be read? — J.H., Royse City, TX

ANSWER: Satan might be crafty but he certainly is not powerful enough to read minds. Only God has that omniscient ability. Satan does however utilize evil deceptive thoughts in his sprint tactic to deform human beings. The first example of this tactic in action can be seen in the Garden of Eden. Genesis 3 says that Satan was subtle (cunning and clever) and approached Eve with this mindset "Has God said you shall not eat of every tree of the garden? You shall not surely die. (Genesis 3:1-4). All defeat comes from an enemy who has planned and then acted upon. Look what happened to Jesus when he betrayed Jesus, ‘Then entered Satan into Judas who betrayed Jesus, being of the number of the twelve (disciples)’ (Luke 22:3). Also, view the temptation of Christ in the wilderness, “And when Jesus had fasted 40 days and 40 nights, he was hungry. And when the tempter Satan came to Jesus, he said, If you are the Son of God, command these stones to be made bread.” (Matthew 4:3-4).

We are only defeated when we succumb to the temptations of Satan. 2 Corinthians 10:3-5 says we are to “cast down” these “imaginations” that Satan uses against us. James 4:7 says we are to “molt the devil, and he will flee from you.” We do not have to succumb to the propositions of Satan. We have power over him! “Satan is the (God) that is in you that Satan that is in the world” (1 John 4:4). If you have a question that you would like answered, write to Dr. Reginald Woods, Publisher, Black Community Crusade for Children (BCCC), whose mission is to leave NO child behind. If you can write the question, call 1-800 ASK-BCCC.

People Of Faith Must Stand For Children On June 1st

By Marian Wright Edelman

Many of you have helped mobilized your religious congregations or another community group to celebrate the annual National Observance of Children’s Sabbath. You have taken great satisfaction in the work, for the Children’s Sabbaths have inspired individual congregations—and while whole congregations—to take greater responsibility for nurturing and caring for all God’s children that God has entrusted to us.

But as powerful as the Children’s Sabbath are, people of faith can and must do more to inspire our morally defining nation to action on behalf of our children. And that is what our Stand For Children on June 1st at the Lincoln Memorial is all about—helping all Americans to recommit ourselves to personal, family, and community efforts to raise, moral, healthy children and to make sure that no child is left behind.

Please help us mobilize our churches, synagogues and mosques to Stand For Children on June 1st. Historically, people of faith have always been at the forefront of movements to bring about our nation’s actions line with its moral ideals. It is no different with the Stand For Children. More than 70 religious organizations, including the National Council of Churches of Christ and the Congress of National Black Churches, have committed their participation to this non-partisan, non-political event.

The day itself is being planned to recognize, honor, and encourage the religious commitments of all participants. The program on Saturday afternoon, for example, will begin with an inspiring interfaith service to remind us of the powerful spiritual and moral values that unite all of us in loving concern for children. The Stand planners are also arranging for a place for our children to display their art and other materials at conclusions and meetings.

Join in a few:

• Ask your own church, synagogue or mosque to endorse your Stand For Children and distribute flyers and other materials to other religious congregations in your community to attend the event.

• Sign that information about the Stand is placed in congregational bulletins and newsletters.

• Help identify or organize a committee in your congregation to mobilize the Stand and help make arrangements for those who can travel in Washington to participate. Send for and use the packet of Stand For Children organizing materials to help you get started.

You receive the materials for writing: Stand For Children, 1832 Connecticut Ave., NW, Washington, DC 20000, or calling: 202-234-0905 or 1-800-234-1200.

5 Words To Help A Baby Be Born Healthy

"Are you getting prenatal care?" These five words can start an dialogue with a pregnant woman. You might be the first person who tells her how important prenatal care is to the health of her developing baby.

During prenatal care visits, the doctor monitors the development of her baby and lets the mom's health too. If the mom is feeling great, seeing the regular doctor is important to make sure the mom and baby are healthy.

When you encourage the baby's mom to get prenatal care, eat right and to take care of herself while she's pregnant, you can help the baby to be born healthy. And your involvement, caring and support can help keep the mom's stress levels low, and help the baby to be born healthy, too.

Even if a pregnant woman doesn't have health insurance, the State of California has programs that can help. Your local Black Health Program can be the link she needs.

DEAR DR. LEVISTER: I am allergic to bee stings. What can I do? Allergic and scared.

DEAR SCARED: Most Americans die from bee stings each year, not even snakes kill them. The bee venom is painful but harmless to all but 3% of the population who are so highly sensitive to the bee venom that even one sting can kill them.

The bee venom can over-excite certain parts of our bodies, causing specific reactions. When a bee stings, the stinger injects a venom that contains enzymes, which can cause local inflammation and pain. In some cases, the venom can trigger an allergic reaction, leading to severe symptoms such as swelling, difficulty breathing, and even anaphylaxis, a life-threatening condition.

Usually a bee sting is painful but not dangerous. However, if you are allergic to bee stings, you should take precautions to avoid stings and seek medical attention if you are stung. Always carry an epinephrine auto-injector with you at all times, especially if you are going to be in areas where bees are common, like beaches or parks.

To help manage your allergies, consider the following tips:

1. Avoid known bee habitats: If you know there are bees in an area, try to avoid it.
2. Wear protective clothing: When outdoors, wear long sleeves, long pants, and cover your head. Use insect repellent with DEET.
3. Be aware of symptoms: If you have a history of bee sting allergies, be aware of any symptoms that may indicate a severe reaction.
4. Carry an epinephrine auto-injector: This can help to reduce the severity of a reaction.
5. Seek medical attention: If you experience a severe reaction, call emergency services immediately.

Universal Lifeline Telephone Service Gave Me The Power To Be Connected. Now, I Can Stay In Touch For Half As Much! I’m in college and want to be competitive in the job market and earn more. It’s not easy, but my lack of finances reminds me why I’m studying so hard! Things were so tight that even having a phone seemed out of reach until I found out about GTE’s Universal Lifeline Telephone Service.

With GTE’s Universal Lifeline Telephone Service, I was able to get a new phone and keep in touch with my loved ones. The service is low-cost, allowing me to stay connected with my family and friends. I was able to cut my phone bill in half and still have access to the phone I needed.

GTE’s Universal Lifeline Telephone Service is made possible by the Public Purpose Fund, which provides funding to organizations like GTE that offer telecommunication services to low-income individuals. The program is designed to help individuals like me who are struggling to connect with others.

To qualify for the service, you must meet certain eligibility requirements. Here are the criteria:

1. You must be a resident of the United States.
2. Your annual household income must be at or below the federal poverty level.
3. You must have children under the age of 18 living in your household.
4. You must be a member of a low-income program or agency.

GTE offers many other services that can help you control costs. Ask about GTE’s calling options.

HOLLYWOOD: Two twins, a production in which identical twin sisters Yvette and Veronica see to the public, in support of and encourage women and African-American as a whole.

Their current production, Homegirl, placed in spring 1995, becomes a vehicle that takes a risk of the impact of selecting the first Black American who was very fair skinned, blue-eyed and with long blond hair. It is a presentation of what White America deemed most beautiful among others. This representation forced women of color to search for their own identities and find their way forward without this representation.

In viewing Homegirl, one should not only see the beauty with truth and the strength to make change. Yvette and Veronica see to the public, in support of and encourage women and African-American as a whole.
