The number of women and children was never counted, and any commission...griefed to hear that Tom Bradley has passed. He was a...newspaper of general circulation in Los Angeles. Bradley entered...children. They were kept away until they were ready and how he was going to go through. Tom Bradley was born on Dec. 29, 1917, in Calvert, Texas. He moved to Los Angeles, where Bradley attended UCLA. The 6-foot 4 Bradley...overshadowed by his friends, Congressman George Brown and Senator Ted Kennedy at a press conference. Bradley had his eye on the day when he would be called home and the Master would say, Tom, well done you good and faithful servant. You have been faithful with a few things, come and share with your master's happiness and I will make you ruler over many. Your legacy will be a monument for many generations to come.

Radicals are any who play the game of politics on the basis of race. Racism is one of the lowest forms of human nature. Wonderfully believing that every black is not alike and in each one description, we must therefore know it as the same thing as perjuring ourselves. Each word in that description is called the Manifesto of our Black Nationalist words, while the same prejudicial thoughts and feelings have been used in time and again and the only time, the message will be, we are in the different appearances of discrimination in what is said and done. Sociologists have show the astounding these different appearances are certain patterns. But first, let us look at what the ideal state of integration means.

In ideal sociological integration all members of a society — regardless of race, creed, national...racist rhetoric to Sam Yorty. In Bradley's two years and nine months time beat Yorty with 56 percent of the vote.

As mayor, Bradley quickly formed an advisory council made of downtown business people, community leaders, government officials and labor, putting into motion a building boom that would make Los Angeles a city of the future.

Early in his first term, Bradley also approved a new city charter that the Status of Women and doubled the number of women and children served.

This was the beginning of a movement to change the face of history for African Americans and others who had to come from his early Christian training and environment being from the south, being a Christian or living in southern Los Angeles. He knew that if God be with you, who could be against you.

Mr. Bradley had a way of keeping us focused on the big pictures of helping all people when helping one person. He knew how to be Black without alienating others in the process. He taught us how to include everyone without group exclusion. He had to come from his early Christian training and environment of being a sharecropper kid. He never forgot his humble beginnings. He was not ashamed of being Black, born a sharecropper's son, being from the south, being a Christian or living in southern Los Angeles. He knew that if God be with you, who could be against you.

Mr. Bradley had his eye on the day when he would be called home and the Master would say, Tom, well done you good and faithful servant. New Vaccines are being introduced that could prevent your child from developing life-threatening disease. Because health plans will not reimburse the physicians for the cost of immunizations given children, many families have been unable to get necessary flu shots.

Bradley has passed. He will be missed.

Black Rose Awards (top)- Beverly Wright; Pastor Dewayn McCampbell; Felton C. Anderson; Jack Hill; Troy Adams; Jimmy White and Jimmy Jews.

Beverly McCampbell, Pastor, Leastor Ministries - June of 1996, Pastor McCampbell was asked by one of the Fontana Police Department's Community Police Officers to attend a meeting to discuss the city wide homeless problem. The result of that meeting led to the inception of TEN-4 (Transient Enrollment Network for Fontana). At the very first meeting Pastor McCampbell was one person that came forward to take a leadership role in the operation. Between June and October 1996, when the TEN-4 Program opened, he donated literally thousands of hours, both raising money and supplying physical labor to help renovate the building when TEN-4 was housed. Pastor McCampbell was the driving force in that effort. He took it upon himself to run the entire program when the lack of volunteers became evident. He committed to working not only 40 hours a week but also being on call for subjects that were contacted after hours by police officers that needed assistance. Today, the number of homeless people on the streets in Fontana is down by 99%.

Jack Hill, Jamie Adams; Jimmy White and Jimmy Jews.

Judy White has been the recipient of several national, regional, and local awards for her work with at-risk youth. She is very active in her church, encouraging other churches to participate in the City of Fontana. Judy has given many of our potential drug users hope for the future.

Jimmy has taken a leadership role in changing our methodology for running and educating our youth. Her department has given us many difficult tasks yet she has taken them on and made lemonade. The Jeanette H. Scott Humanitarian of the Year Award will be presented.

Jasper, Captain, Captain, City of San Bernardino Fire Department Jimmy is noted for being the first African-American Firefighter as well as the first African-American Fire Captain for the City of San Bernardino. His passion has been the renovation of the historic canines for the Fire Department that did not lead to an increase in minority hiring for the department.

Captain is the founding member of the San Bernardino Black Firefighters Association and served as secretary for the Southwestern Regional National Black Firefighters Association. He has volunteered on the County Area Task Force, Firefighters Peer Counseling, mentor at Sierra High School for 3 years, board member for the Boys & Girls Club of San Bernardino, and is a board member for the Inland Behavioral Services. He has been nominated and encouraged to run for the position of Councilman for the City of Klamath. Jimmy enjoys working with at risk youth and encourages those who are seeking a career in firefighting that, although they may see it as a glamorous job, it is a hard and strenuous position that expects total commitment.

San Bernardino Black Rose Awards: Huge Success

Planning Your Financial Future

Dear Reader:

(4th Annual Black Rose Awards)

African Americans are fat. That's overwhelming to American culture. The weight of the nation is up and smoking is at an all-time high. That's overwhelming to American culture.

You may be saying, "What's wrong with these people?" You may be saying, "What's wrong with these people?" But in reality, it is the responsibility of the government to make sure that we all lead healthy lives. This is why the government has made it a priority to decrease the obesity rate in the United States. By doing so, we can ensure that these children grow up healthy and live long lives.

The government has implemented various strategies to address the obesity epidemic. One of the most effective approaches is the promotion of physical activity through the implementation of community-based programs. These programs aim to increase physical activity levels among community members, particularly those who are at risk for obesity.

Community-based programs have been shown to be effective in reducing obesity rates. They provide a supportive environment for participants to engage in physical activity, receive education about healthy eating habits, and receive ongoing support from trained professionals.

In addition to community-based programs, the government has also been working to improve the availability of healthy food options in low-income areas. This is achieved through initiatives such as the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP), which provides financial assistance to low-income individuals and families to purchase healthy food.

Furthermore, the government has been working to increase access to public transportation and promote active transportation methods such as walking and cycling. This is important because it not only promotes physical activity but also reduces air pollution and improves overall health outcomes.

In conclusion, the government has made significant efforts to address the obesity epidemic. Through community-based programs, improved access to healthy food options, and promotion of active transportation methods, the government has been working to ensure that all Americans have the opportunity to lead healthy lives. However, it is important to remember that combating obesity requires a multifaceted approach that involves not only government intervention but also individual choices and lifestyle changes.

Political Turmoil Does Not Stop Progress

House Agriculture Appropriations bills to settle the backlog of many Black farmer discrimination claims. We expect this legislation to be signed into law this year. In addition, we have been fighting to make sure that public education for all of our children is a top priority of this nation. To ensure that our children are given a fair chance to learn in a supportive and safe environment, the CBC has supported the E-rate program, which provides discounts for wiring of schools to the Internet. We are convinced, now more than ever, that this country and our community need strong, bold, assertive leadership. This conference and the work that we are doing is part of that leadership.

We are also seeking to have an effective advertising campaign to ensure that everyone is counted. Representative Carrie P. Meek is leading in that effort. Meek states: "An effective advertising campaign can help ensure that everyone -- and especially every Black -- is counted in the 2000 census. In every census some people are not counted. But in every census the undercount is higher for Blacks than for Whites. For example, in the 1990 census 5.7 percent of Blacks were not counted, as compared to only 1.3 percent of Whites. The gap was greater in the 1990 census than in any of the previous five censuses."

For example, in the 1990 census 5.7 percent of Blacks were not counted, as compared to only 1.3 percent of Whites. The gap was greater in the 1990 census than in any of the previous five censuses. As you all know, the 2000 census will be the first time that there will be paid advertising. Last fall the Census Bureau awarded a $100 million contract for the 2000 census to Young & Rubicam. J. Curtis & Co. is responsible for the part of that contract dealing with African Americans."

A few months ago the Census Bureau had a dress rehearsal for the 2000 census. Meek and other Members of Congress were very disappointed with the ads used during that dress rehearsal. Their (Census Bureau) message was not tailored to Blacks, and not enough of them were in the Black media.

Since Meek is a Member of the Appropriations Committee, which provides the money for the Census Bureau, she learned that other Members of the Appropriations Committee shared her concerns about these dress rehearsal ads, and in July the Committee directed the Census Bureau to report every three months on Young & Rubicam's progress in ensuring that the ad campaign deals effectively with Blacks and other minorities. Under the direction of Representative James E. Clyburn we are addressing the problem of employment stability of the present and future generation as it relates to technological competency.
