CSU faculty considers strike

By Russell Clemings
The Fresno Bee

The union representing faculty members at California State University, Fresno, and 22 other CSU campuses has taken initial steps toward calling for a strike-authorization vote.

In a letter to its members, the California Faculty Association's board said it plans to schedule meetings on each campus soon after the spring term begins this month. At the same time, the union and CSU administrators are preparing for the last part of a bargaining process for a contract to replace one that expired June 30.

In that phase, required by state law, a fact-finding panel will examine the issues, take testimony and evidence, and issue recommendations for a settlement.

The panel is to consist of one representative from each side, plus a chairperson appointed by the state Public Employment Relations Board.

Neither side is suggesting that a strike is inevitable, but its leaders are considering a strike authorization vote in the spring.

And even if there is no strike, the faculty may take other job actions, said Warren Kessler, philosophy professor and immediate past president of the union's Fresno State chapter.

"There are all sorts of things that could be done short of a strike," Kessler said. "We could stop participating in certain administrative committees. There are things that you can do that hurt the administration without hurting the students." Among the issues dividing the administration and faculty are the details of a proposed 2% salary increase. The administration proposes a simple 2% across-the-board raise; the union seeks experience-based step raises, increased stipends for department chairs and other increases as well.

The two sides appear to differ in their estimates of how much the additional increases would cost the system.

"Salary's really not an issue anymore. We're pretty agnostic on that," said Jim Smith, the union's communications director.

"Salary remains an issue," CSU spokesman Colleen Bentley-Adler said. "They've asked for additional money that comes to $13 million above the 2% we have" from the current state budget.

The fact-finding process is expected to take at least a month, Bentley-Adler said. But neither side is required by law to accept the panel's recommendations.

CFA Suggested "Principles for Budget Reduction":

- Layoffs of tenure/probationary and long-term temporary faculty must be avoided.
- Planned unit 3 hiring, including lecturer appointments, should continue.
- Priority should be given to maintaining quality classroom instruction at CSUSB.
- Across the board cuts should be avoided.
- New initiatives should be examined carefully as to their budgetary costs.
- Campus procedures for deciding upon budget cuts should include participation from all campus constituencies.
- The University should consider using CSUSB Foundation funds to cover any necessary budget reductions.
- The University should examine the necessity of new administrative and development office positions.
- The University should examine making the Development Program self-financing.
- The University should consider carefully the possibility of reductions in the CMS Program.
- The University should cover budget cuts with its operating reserve whenever possible.
- The University should study whether it is advisable to exceed its budgeted PTEs target.

CSU's recent enrollment growth has increased the system's operating costs. With a 2.1% increase in state funding and a 2.6% increase in student fees, the University was able to increase overall funding 4.7% in 2001-2002. However, the University's $305 million in reserves is insufficient to cover cuts for the current fiscal year, which will be addressed in the $1.3 billion state budget.

CSU's 2002-2003 operating budget is $2.43 billion, an increase of $151 million over last year's budget. President Robert Smiley said in his state budget request, "The University should be covered by General Fund taxes, but not subsidies from the CSUSB Foundation."

When Kevin, a San Bernardino high school senior, began the college application process, two issues were uppermost in his mind—quality of education and cost. As a state resident, he found the California State University campuses most attractive, and of these the local Cal State San Bernardino seemed the obvious choice.

But after comparing the undergraduate student fees at the 22 Cal State Schools, Kevin was amazed to discover that San Bernardino’s was one of the seven most expensive in the system—The highest being $760 at Maritime Academy; CSUSB’s $443, and lowest being $310 at Cal State Long Beach.

Campus fees here are even more costly even than the Cal State campuses at San Francisco, Los Angeles and San Diego.

The fact-finding process is expected to take at least a month, Bentley-Adler said. But neither side is required by law to accept the panel’s recommendations.

Geology Department Receives $600,000

By Danny Homaidan
Staff Writer

CSUSB's Geological Science Department is only one of ten university science programs this academic year in the United States to be awarded a National Science Foundation grant of $600,000 to both recruit and educate more local minority students. CSUSB's Geological Sciences Chairman, Dr. Alan Smith spearheaded the grant with the aim of tackling the growing national dilemma of low to non-existent minority enrollment and interest in the geological sciences. Dr. Smith states that minority students account for only 2.3% of the nation's student enrollment in the Geological Sciences and at CSUSB the figure is even lower.

Therefore, CSUSB's Geological Science Department will utilize the grant funds to develop geological programs at all levels of learning. First, they will encourage undeclared CSUSB freshmen and sophomore students to become geological science majors. Second, Cajon High School and Pacific High School in San Bernardino are already the first of area high schools to be educated by this grant, about the many wonders and exciting career possibilities in the geological field.

Third, the National Science Foundation award money will be used to educate elementary and junior high school students to realize that geology is a fun and exciting science. Geology is the study of the Earth and developments that affect it like earthquakes, volcanoes, and weather erosion. Yet, Chairman Smith states that the main reason "Cal State is not getting students in Geology is that students simply don't know anything about it."

However, he is confident that students will enjoy Geology if they actually go into the field and experience it for themselves. So, beginning in June the Geological Science Department is planning to take students out on exhilarating field trips to such historic places as the San Andreas Fault and Big Bear. This broad-brush treatment does not give the whole picture when it comes to students at CSUSB. Participation seemed to be a recurring value in an informal survey of students on campus. Some students are not aware that the increase in money from financial aid is for the meal plan, so they are spending money that is meant for a meal plan. Perhaps a solution would be to set up a group meeting with all dorm residents to inform them on what the demands of this quarter will take in terms of time and money. The wider world of citizenship will just have to wait. But no, it won't. State budget allocations are being negotiated right now with major monetary implications for every student. Governor Davis is trying to make a magician and poof the shortfall into oblivion. It's not going to happen. Politics is mostly about deciding money; what program gets it, and how much. But the reason to care is because of the good or harm resulting from our elected official's decisions, not only to students at CSUSB, but our statewide and national communities.

The Chronicle will examine current issues and try to show how they affect students and their families. Our stance will be neutral as far as parties go, but we will try to have a definite viewpoint on issues and what the candidates propose. Feel free to tell us what you think is important. Food Services Causes Financial Aid Frenzy

Is it scandal or simply a miscommunication? Why are students signing promissory notes instead of using their Coyote One cards when paying for meals at the Commons? Prior to the 2001-2002 academic year, in-coming dorm residents were to contact Foundation Food Service in order to establish an already paid meal plan for the year. In the past, this was part of the package offered to residents by housing. The problem is that the students who rely on Financial Aid to front their bill became tangled up in a mess of a miscommunication between FFS and FA.

An example of what one student is going through as a result of this "miscommunication" plays out like this: Jane Anonymous was informed by FFS that she had been given a debit of $579.00 in order for her to establish a meal plan. However, FFS was to have already allotted $538.00 for her to use for her meal plan for the quarter. FFS claims to have never received the money, yet somehow her Coyote One card showed that she had a balance of $538.00. Despite the evidence presented, FFS is summoning Jane to pay her $759.00 when her Financial Aid comes in. She, along with others put in her position, would like to know why. Both the Food Services Office and the Commons have come under heavy fire from students who are confused and frustrated with the operation of the "bewildering system."

Oxy Contin: A New Addiction

By Jesse Henderson
Staff Writer

OxyContin, intended for use by terminally ill cancer patients and chronic pain sufferers, is growing in demand. And the abuse is spreading.

OxyContin, marketed by Purdue Pharma L.P., is the name of a pain-relieving drug, which has been described as a "morphine-like potent painkiller with a potential for abuse." It is produced as a controlled-release tablet and comes in strengths of 15, 20, 30, and 40 milligrams.

Purdue Pharma L.P., is the name of the drug's manufacturer. It is a potent painkiller similar to morphine; a tablet can provide pain relief for 12-24 hours. Abusers will chew, snort, or inject OxyContin tablets for an effect similar to heroin.

In hearings before the House subcommittee on the Departments of Commerce, Justice and State, lawmakers criticized the drug's early marketing. "I don't believe we've reached the peak of this problem yet, We are still on the incline," said DEA Administrator Asa Hutchinson testified before the congressional committee, stating that the abuse is spreading.

Purdue's efforts to stop OxyContin from gaining hold in illegal markets. "Purdue officials testified that the company has jumped into the problem with both feet and is committed to reduce its own educational efforts and cooperation with the DEA," according to the Washington Post, November 12, 2001.

OxyContin abuse first exploded in rural Maine and Appalachia because of the poor economy, a scarcity of cocaine and heroin and large populations of elderly people who use the drug to relieve the pain of cancer or other illnesses. "Oxy Craze Makes Way to Cities," AP July 3, 2001. The drug, which has been referred to as "Heroin Heroine" now, seems to be spreading to urban areas after reports of overdose fatalities.

The DEA's Hutchinson said new information from medical examiners across the country has linked the drug to almost 300 overdose deaths in 31 states. Officials are also looking into about 500 deaths that could be related. OxyContin sales were over $1 billion dollars in the year 2000, making it the best selling drug of its kind.

The CUP Connects Campus and Community

By Shane Vanderlin
Copy Editor

In order for our University to thrive and for all students to not only achieve their educational goals, but to take the knowledge and experience gained and use it to better the area in which they live, there needs to be a group to facilitate the association between school and community.

The Community - University Partnerships fills that void and is located here on campus to provide mutually beneficial links between Cal State San Bernardino and the local communities from which we all come.

Established on campus in the spring of 1999, their goals are designed to ensure that the area's work force is well educated, to transform our local economy in order to increase living standards for everyone, make available more cultural, intellectual, and recreational opportunities for all to enjoy, improving the public health, and through these efforts, enhancing the overall quality of life in our region.

The CUP sponsors partnerships between individuals, informal groups and formal entities from the community and pairs them with appropriate campus resources. By joining together these partners with mutual interests, the CUP hopes to produce valuable change and improvement for all concerned, through a shared purpose and a desire to enhance the outlook for our locality as well as the reputation of our school. These partnerships will also serve to provide one third of the personnel as well as training for new employees.

Cindi Pringle, director of the school's Public Affairs, is hoping to use the network as an opportunity to help give experience for students hoping to get into the field of broadcast news.

"We have students hoping to receive internships through the network," Pringle said.

Mrs. Pringle believes that this network will help CSUSB become a partner in the community.

"This will be an opportunity to add all kinds of dynamism for the school. We hope to bring town hall meetings to the town. Through this, we hope Cal State San Bernardino can become more of a household name." CSUSB is hoping to have the station up and running by the fall of 2002.

Dianna Pelletier at her desk.

Students want a counselor who can direct them the right way.

Pelletier has been at Cal State since 1969, when she enrolled as an undergraduate. She graduated with two B.A.’s, one Master’s and later acquired two credentials. Dianna worked here on campus while she was an undergraduate student and continues to do so. Pelletier has been the Director of the Writing Center, Instructor in French, Instructor in English, and, most currently and popularly, an Academic Advisor in UH-380.

With many students concerned about grades, academic probation and class schedules, the Office of Academic Services is packed every day for hours. It is full of students who want to speak to a counselor who can direct them the right way to their academic success; and Pelletier always has a line of students waiting for her. Even though the other counselors have their share of students, she is the one who has the most referrals and the most students who personally know her. This is because of her reputation for helping students by pushing them and keeping in contact with them.

I think you have to let people know you believe in them so they can believe in themselves, and ultimately achieve their goals,” says Pelletier, who suffered from illness when she was young, including severe asthma, which makes her compassionate towards students who may have personal problems that interfere with their academic success.

“Life happens and having had health problems in school, I know what it’s like to need someone to give you a break,” Pelletier also runs a program called TAP, which was designed for students who had academic trouble in high school or community college and now want to attend Cal State. Students who are rejected from the school but still wish to attend are directed to Pelletier for possible consideration into TAP. The program consists of showing up for weekly appointments to report to her on their academic progress. She does this in an effort to break students of their bad study habits. By pushing them and encouraging them at their meetings with her, she really motivates them.

She makes it clear that she thinks all students deserve a second chance, but — don’t by any means mistake her for being easy to cross. If somebody tries to pull a funny stunt behind your back, it always comes back to me,” she says. Pelletier is stern, straightforward and honest. She admits that she has a temper, but, she says, “If you don’t meet me halfway, I won’t go chasing you.”

What serves as an inspiration for Pelletier’s diligence and wholeheartedness? She tells of her parents who were poor and line educated but still work hard, which gives her the determination and drive that she has today. Greeks make Progress

By Lynet Davis
Staff Writer

Fall quarter has come and gone and it seems that it was all a blur. Among the many memories to convolute and bungle remain visions of letters dancing in my head.

The letters that I’m talking about aren’t fall grades, although they have come back to haunt some of us. I’m talking about the Greek letters you’ve undoubtedly noticed all around campus, from the neon TKE sign in someone’s apartment window to the Alpha Phi’s and their teddy bears, to the Omega brothers and their purple and gold rocks near the library lawn. And how could anyone miss the massive Delta Sigma Phi letters on the library lawn? Not belonging to a sorority or fraternity myself, I thought that all this display was undoubtedly noticed all around campus lately. One of the tables most noticeable right now belongs to freshman Amanda Hernandez, a member of the Alpha Phi fraternity who gave me a little insight. While most fraternities and sororities rush potential members in the fall, Alpha Phi rushes all year long, but still reaping the greatest number of members in the fall quarter. To seem more inviting, they have their table set up with pictures, background information, and their infamous teddy hearts. The Alpha Phi’s greatly extend themselves, knowing that people have the tendency to be intimidated by sororities and are usually put off by the idea of joining. Sigma Chi also tries to reach out to students on campus when they’re rushing. Seth Alvarado, a freshman member, said, “I was really impressed by how they didn’t pressure me. They invited me to hang out with them. The invitation was simple, I just got to socialize with them and see what they were all about.”

Of course, someone from a fraternity would have good things to attest to, but what about a regular student? Freshman Anna Kelly says, “Since I commute I usually do not know the area. I prefer to get something to eat, watch TV, to study and enjoy a cup in the Pub; it gives me time to hang out at all. Sophomore Jenny Kelley says, “Since I commute I really do not know the area. I prefer to stay in the Pub; it gives me time to get something to eat, watch TV, and study between classes.”

With the number of places there are to hang out, you would think there would be a high rate of competition between them. But in reality it all depends on what student has a taste for; each location has its own unique way of sparking the student’s interest. TOGO’s/Baskin Robbins offers a variety of candies and combos along with 31 flavors of ice cream. The most popular items on the menu are the Turkey and Avocado Sandwich and Cookies and Cream ice cream. You receive a ten percent discount when you show a valid CSUSB I.D. Just next door is Starbucks, which has quickly grown to be one of the most popular hangouts since its opening in late September. Although Starbucks does not offer any discounts, it does offer a wide selection of hot and cold coffee beverages, an indoor lounge area and an outdoor patio. On the south side of the 215 is Zendejas Mexican Bar and Grill, which is generally a guy’s hangout. Zendejas offers Mexican cuisine and a fully stocked bar. Happy hour is from 5-7 p.m. with a free buffet Monday through Friday. They offer a 25% discount to all CSUSB students with I.D.

On the corner of University and Kendall, Pacos Tacos is a family owned business with over 35 years of service. Bernardos has two locations: one on Kendall and the other on Highland. Pacos Tacos also serves Mexican food, but unlike Zendejas, it is a dine-in or take-out type of restaurant with a more affordable price range. Next door to Pacos is Fanatics Sports Bar, another place for guys to hang out. You can enjoy weekly drink and appetizer specials while playing pool, darts or watching the game on one of the four TVs. Fanatics invites CSUSB organizations to have meetings and gatherings at their location. Within the next month they plan to develop a second floor, which will become the new bar area.

Greek Rush Rules

By John Eddy, Executive Editor

To those unfamiliar with the intricacies of Greek rules and regulations, the picture on this page might cause alarm and beg the question: are ASI members abusing their positions and cozy offices to promote their own fraternal organizations? The answer simply is NO.

According to Ezekiel Bonillas, ASI Vice President of Finance and President of the Lambda Theta Phi fraternity, he was surprised and shocked when he entered his office the morning of Jan. 18 to find his six-foot letter in his office. Apparently a janitor had moved the letters into his office from the original storage place underneath the stair leading to the boardroom of the Student Union.

Yet, despite the fact Bonillas and his brothers were blameless, he and his organization are immune from Inter-Fraternity-Council rush rules and regulations. These rules stipulate detailed directions for the overnight storage of letters during campus activities but, because his Greek organization is neither recognized nor sanctioned by the Council, they are free from its limitations.

The same cannot be said of the Delta Sigma Phi fraternity who allegedly violated rush rule during the first week of classes by staying up all night on the grass by their letters on the lawn in front of the library. No one could have missed the Delta Sigma Phi letters block library.

letters that blocked students' views of Pfau. Allegations have for years now abided by this rule when hosting their annual Swing-A-Thon for philanthropy, which is a 24-hour event located in Pfau Library during Fall Quarters.

When questioned by Christine Hansen, Student Leadership and Development Director, the Delta Sigma Phi Fraternity members denied all allegations, stating they had thought about staying the night but did not act upon it. However, according to Sergeant Bodily of the Cal. State Police, who patrols the University during the evening hours from 8:00 p.m. to 5:00 a.m., members of the fraternity were on campus over night, "protecting their letters."

Delta Sigma Phi President, Martin Cervantes neglected to return phone calls and has decided to remain silent on the incident, hoping it will eventually fade away into obscurity.

Are rules better followed or broken? Should policies be made if they are just to be forgotten? Should we look the other way when we notice these infractions on campus? These questions are best left to the Greek governing bodies to ponder, work through and hopefully answer in the near future.

Resumes for Results

By Crystal Vicker, Staff Writer

The Student Alumni Association (SAA) hosted a "Resume for Results" luncheon Wednesday, for which students paid $5.00 to network with successful alumni and get feedback about their resumes. The event was the second in a series of SAA luncheons, the first one being on "It will definitely help me during the future when I go searching for a job.

"The SAA luncheons are meant to help prepare students for life after graduation," Speaker Chris Ahearn, B.A. in Marketing, 1990, was Sigma Chi president, an NSO leader, and a University Ambassador while on campus. A former CSUSB Alumni Association president, he is now vice president of sales at Nowdigs, a printing solutions company.

Ahearn was excited to be back on campus for the luncheon. "The thing that helped me the most when I was a student was when the alumni came back to campus and talked about what it was like in the real world." He also said in his presentation that 63 percent of job searchers get hired because they network.

With the job market growing more competitive, these luncheons become more important. Employers review a first resume for an average of 20 to 30 seconds. Therefore, students need to know the skills that will get their resume noticed quickly. A resume should be easy to read rapidly, but also contain enough quality information to interest employers.

Other tips were: never forget dates, use good paper quality, and don't lie. Remember, your resume is a reflection of yourself.

Tom Arthurton, a Business Administration Admin, said, "This luncheon is the most informative, and it's my favorite in the series."

Hey kids! This is a new section dedicated to love, life, struggle. It is dedicated to the great moments in our lives trying to put life into a tangible form for us to relate to.

It is the product of all of those sleepless nights we have had, lying on our backs pondering our purpose on earth and the meaning of our existence. It is dedicated to all the times you thought to yourself "What the hell am I going to do with my life?"

Ms. Honn-Alex has been married for seventeen years, with no children but has one dog. She was born and raised in San Francisco, still visiting there often. She has been living in the In the River area for twenty years.

Her hobbies include traveling, and cooking. In the early 80's, she became the director of Horizon House a shelter for battered women. At the age of 30, she decided to go back to school and was one of the first interns to work in the center in 1993.

Graduating in 1994, she received a BA degree in Sociology with a minor in Women's Studies. She graduated in 1994. After finishing her studies she went to work with the Planned Parenthood organization. Ms. Honn-Alex said, "She was very fortunate to match her passions of fighting and advocating for women's rights." The question was asked what drove you to take this job? She responded by saying that it was a great opportunity to utilize my skills.

With this opportunity she hopes to enhance team building, managing, and creating partnerships with other groups that are on the campus. She believes that the university is a vital part of the community. "When you work here, you are a part of something big." Creating centers that are observing all the means that you will reach a number of students, with a wide range of interests.

I asked Ms. Honn-Alex what she hopes to accomplish for the quarter. She wants to learn the ins and outs of the campus. She believes that partnerships can lead to something special. She wants to build the centers up and create campus awareness as to the services they provide. She truly believes that this will happen but states that this "will be a process that won't happen over night."

She knows this job will be tough but she is ready for the challenge as the new coordinator and hopes this will be a long lasting relationship with CSUSB.

She replaces Karen Paton, who was the coordinator for the past three years. Ms. Honn-Alex has been given the opportunity and the inevitable task of making the centers a more inviting place to visit. She is quite eager and ready to move full steam ahead.

Melting Pot, Salad Bowl, or Neither? Looking at Cal State Diversity

By Bethany Anderson
Assistant Multi-Cultural Editor

Do all Cal State students have an Equal Opportunity to a Higher Education? What policies or procedures are utilized in determining who attends our University? It is important to see a diverse population among the students of our campus, which would further the concept of Cal State representing a Melting Pot.

I decided to start where all prospective college students do, at our Office of Admissions and Student Recruitment. The office's Interim Associate Director Cynthia Oliver was kind enough to grant me an interview regarding the evolution in Student Ethnicity and its role in whether we are a diversified campus.

When Associate Director Oliver was asked if there was a criterion or guidelines to which all potential Cal Students are subjected to, she responded, "The CSU systemnature is to have the top 33% of high school graduating seniors. We are here to act as a feeder school for the Community colleges.

There are special programs to make sure that there is equal representation for various ethnic groups in the CSU admission process. Oliver added that Cal State is a Hispanic Surveying Institution (HIS) which was a title given to us by the federal government. The title grants Cal State funding for outreach programs that serve our local communities. These programs are designed to reach out to middle and high school students who are high-risk, and need mentorship in order to aid them in achieving their academic goals. Oliver suggests that Cal State's mentor programs "...inspire the students to work harder to attend college, and in college preparatory courses in their middle and high schools. This will encourage our youth to want to not just attend Cal State but aspire to attend college, period."

Asst. Director Oliver disagrees with the assumption that we are a Melting Pot here at Cal State, and insists that our limited resources make it difficult to serve each represented background. Although she did admit that, "I think considering what resources we do have, we are doing a really great job. We here at Cal State are at a pivotal time where we are 15,000 students strong. As we grow, we will receive the funding we need to institute the greatly needed programs."

Personally, Director Oliver would like to see the newly debuted Chicano Studies program instituted here at Cal State. She fervently feels that there is nothing wrong with focusing on one culture in order to celebrate the richness and uniqueness of it.

KEEPING THE DREAM ALIVE

Sharenna C. Clark

Keep the dream alive," said Reverend Dennis Brown, and many more before him. That phrase seemed to be the central theme of Reverend Brown's presentation on January 17, in event center C. The event was organized by the Cross Cultural Center in honor of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.'s birthday.

Reverend Brown, a native of Los Angeles, CA, and a temporary resident of Texas, developed a passion for giving the speeches of Dr. King while still a young man. "When I was a boy, I heard my dad talking about Martin Luther King Jr. When I was fifteen I was in a theatre arts class, and we were asked to recite a poem or give a speech by a black poet. I read Dr. King's speech and my voice changed. I acknowledged my calling at that point, and have been doing it ever since..." explained Reverend Brown.

The program opened with Reverend Brown singing a soulful rendition of 'America the Beautiful' and a warm greeting. He began with, "I sat before the television set...strong, robust, and I cried..." Reverend Brown was referring to when he left his football tryouts to hear the live broadcast of Dr. King's 'I Have A Dream' speech. He then segued into the first speech Dr. King gave after Rosa Parks was arrested. Following the first speech he told a story about when he lived in Texas with his grandfather and they went out to get hamburgers. "My grandfather owned his land, and knew the restaurant owner by name, yet we still had to go through the back door, with all the prestige and money my granddad had, we still had to go through the back door!"

Reverend Brown then went on to tell the crowd some important facts about Dr. King. "He [Dr. King] could have lived in the comforts of luxury for his entire life, but he chose to live on the other side of the tracks. He had three job offers, one a professor at a college in the north, two-an administrator at another college in the north, and three-a pastorate in the south. He accepted the pastorate." He then recited a speech Dr. King made when he was twenty-six years old. He explained to the crowd that Dr. King was never afraid of anyone. "He faced police dogs with two inch fangs, and high powered water hoses, but he never ran!" said the reverend.

As an introduction to Dr. King's third speech, Reverend Brown explained where he was when he found out Dr. King was shot. "I'd just got back from Vietnam, I got off the bus and two men were discussing how awful the assassination of Dr. King was. I had four days off, so I watched the funeral on TV." He concluded by saying that Dr. King was not afraid of his death, and he just wanted to be remembered as a man for justice and peace. "Because of Dr. King, people said 'we shall overcome' when the Berlin wall came down and when there was finally democracy in communist China ", quoted Reverend Brown. During the program there was a 'We Shall overcome' sing-along, and the reverend ended the presentation with 'Let it Be'.

"We are fortunate to have him, he was here last year, and he will be here next year. Next year it WILL be bigger, I'd like to have

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. devilers his "I Have a dream" speech at the Lincoln Memorial

Bethany Anderson
Assistant Multi-Cultural Editor

When Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. was born on January 15, 1929, our nation and then the world would be forever irrevocably changed. This year Dr. King would have been seventy-three years old. Unfortunately, for all mankind he was assassinated on April 4, 1968 in Memphis, Tennessee.

In 1963, he led a massive March on Washington, in which he delivered his famous "I Have a Dream" address. In 1964, the civil rights movement achieved two successes: the ratification of the 24th Amendment, which abolished the poll tax, and the Civil Rights Act of 1964, which prohibited racial discrimination in employment and education and outlawed racial segregation in public facilities. Later that year, King was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize. In the late 1960s, King turned his efforts to winning economic rights for poor Americans.

However his legacy of nonviolence, the civil Rights Movement of the 1950-1960's, and his eternal mission of children, regardless of their backgrounds simply be able to play in the same schoolyards.

My ancestors were slaves. I never take for granted the gift our creator (regardless of your spirituality) gave to us when Martin Luther King Jr. dared to challenge a system that did not recognize all beings as created equal.

We are now as a nation on the dawn of a new age. An age where hate and jealousy has attempted to take the freedoms we as Americans took for granted until September 11th. Dr. King's legacy granted not just African-Americans civil rights, but all Americans who come to our great nation with dreams of their own. Don't wait till January 21st to celebrate the life of a legend. Keep Dr. King's dream alive by celebrating the power of one man's dream everyday by keeping an open mind to all.

MORMONS DEAL WITH PERCEPTION BEFORE OLYMPICS

By Audrey Burrows
Staff Writer

The Church of Latter-day Saints has endured an extra amount of publicity lately, due to the fact that the 2002 Olympics are being held in Salt Lake City, Utah. For those who do not know, Utah was pioneered by Mormons led by a prophet named Joseph Smith. Since then, Utah's Mormon population has grown to comprise 60% of the state's inhabitants.

One might question how this faith grew so enormously. In the history of any religion, monetary donations help expand its houses of worship. According to a very recent online question-and-answer session, Gordon B. Hinckley, the President of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, Mormons are very monetarily generous.

"Our major source of revenue is the ancient law of the tithe. Our people are expected to pay 10 percent of their income to move forward the work of the Church. The remarkable and wonderful thing is that they do it."

So, with the help of the congregation, the church has been able to grow in size, but how have Mormons grown to such large numbers? Once again Gordon B. Hinckley explains:

"We are putting strong emphasis on the family. It is appealing to people. They like it, they welcome it, they need help and we offer that help. Furthermore, it gives purpose to life... We answer the old question of where did I come from? Why am I here? Where am I going? People find comfort, peace and strength in that. And in the organization they find sociability and friends. We are a friendly Church. We are a happy Church...and others like it."

So, through the church's tithes and friendship, Mormonism has grown to be Utah's dominant faith.

One might wonder why the Mormon faith would be under scrutiny just because the Olympics are being held in the state that is predominantly Mormon.

Utah resident Melanie Bennett, a member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, explains that a main worry for outsiders is that people who do not know much about the church or the Mormons themselves, have stereotyped them. She says they're wrongheadedly trying to make the Olympic Games the Mormon Games.

The church is trying to avoid these demeaning accusations by opening their doors to anyone who would like any information on the Church and their involvement with the Olympics. The Church released press kits a few months back to help the press and other spectators of the Games see how and where the Church is involved with the games.

Bennett said that the church has nothing to hide and that Mormon spokespeople are putting out this information about it out to the public, so that anyone can see that the church is not trying to dominate the Olympic Games. Without doubt, the world will be more familiar the Mormon faith by the conclusions of the Olympics.

Glass Shatters in Pomona

By: Krista Morris
Staff Writer

Last Saturday at the Glasshouse in Pomona, may have had one of the greater line-ups of modern punk that this area has seen in a long time. Those who are interested in energetic, eccentric music were first to run to ticketmaster to buy tickets to see these three bands in one night.

Local band Backside, the VooDoo Glow Skulls got the evening started with a melodic combination of Backside's influenced hardcore/punk sound with VooDoo's unique aggressive ska tone.

Headliner Guttermouth satisfied the night with new school punk, conglomerated with refreshing satirical lyrics. The two-night sold out stop in the Inland Empire would prove to be an interesting night for all walks of life wearing Misfit shirts in the area.

The first band on ticket, Backside, had a good set playing songs from their Ten Million Strong and Growing Mismatched Misdirected, and Clever Kids Never Forget LP. The Riverside based band belted out an aggressive set of hardcore music that let the crowd know what they would be in for.

The VooDoo Glow Skulls ignited the evening playing songs from their most recently released album, Symbolic as well as playing oldie but goody songs like Insubordination. Another Riverside based band, which has been around forever, impresses me every time I see them having incredibly tight sets. Between having the singer, Frank VooDoo, waving a flaming skull around and crowd surfers everywhere, it's not easy keeping horns, guitar, basses, drums, and vocals all together during a fast paced set. Having bi-lingual lyrics also add a challenge, yet charisma to their sound.

Although, these elements are what sets VooDoo apart from your typical "No-Double" note which isn't ska ska band. Let the band geek mafia live forever!

When Guttermouth took the stage Pomona went nuts, with half the audience rushing the stage. When the singer Mark Adkins took stage dressed like Dick Van Dyke (which is a change from his usual Speedo attire) fans knew what was going to be a great set. Guttermouth delighted fans playing songs from their new LP Covered in Ants as well playing favorites extending as far back to the Punk and Balls album.

Guttermouth has come along way from the technical standpoint of music, having a distinctive developed sound in their latest albums evolved from the classic 3-cord punk style. However the Orange County based band is known for its confrontational lyrics, incredible energy, and off the hook shows.

Backside, had a good set playing songs from their Ten Million Strong and Growing Mismatched Misdirected, and Clever Kids Never Forget LP. The Riverside based band belted out an aggressive set of hardcore music that let the crowd know what they would be in for.

Typical Guttermouth show attendees usually either sing a verse with Adkins, get made fun of by the band, get on stage (which I was fortunate enough to accomplish with all articles of clothes on), or at least get hit by a crowd surfer or an object thrown by the band.

By the end of the night judging by the bruises on your body and how hoarse your voice had become, would rate your enjoyment of the evening. It was a great evening of fury, which each band complemented each other beautifully. For those that have an appetite for intensity, I definitely recommend attendance next time around, but the week at heart should probably stay home.
The Lord of the Rings is Lord of the Box Office

By Shane Vaterfin
Copy Editor

For the last four weekends, the movie "The Lord of the Rings" has held the top spot in gross earnings. The film was released on December 19, 2001 and had already grossed over $1.64m by the end of the year. Now it is up to over $250m and counting, well on its way to becoming one of the highest grossing movies of all time.

The film is based on the first book in J.R.R. Tolkien's literary masterpiece "The Lord of the Rings". It tells the tale of Frodo Baggins (Elijah Wood), a peaceful hobbit who inherits a ring from his Uncle Bilbo. It turns out to be the long-lost Ring of Power, forged long ago by the evil Lord Sauron, who now needs the ring to complete his conquest of Middle Earth. Frodo is advised by Gandalf (Ian McKellen), a benevolent and powerful wizard who opposes Sauron, to take the ring to the Council of the High Elf Eldron to its fate may be determined. Frodo is accompanied on his journey by his loyal hobbit friends Sam, Merry and Pippin, as they are relentlessly chased by the Ringwraiths, the nine vile black servants of Sauron. Their fellowship grows as they are joined by Gandalf and Aragorn, a Ranger who is also the long-lost heir to the throne of Gondor, Legolas the elf, Gimli the dwarf, and Boromir, a warrior from besieged Gondor. The Council decides that the ring must be destroyed because of its inherent evil, which can only be done by casting the ring into the fires of Mt. Doom in the heart of Mordor, the blasted dead land of Sauron and his armies of Orcs. The film details its company's quest as they try to accomplish their task, ending as the book does with the breaking of their fellowship. Due out next Christmas, the second part of the trilogy is called "The Two Towers", and will continue the heroic saga of Frodo and his companions.

Directed by Peter Jackson, who shot all three parts of the trilogy simultaneously, the movie is a close adaptation of the original story. But to Tolkien purists, there are a few instances of poetic license that occur, changes and omissions that detract from the film, but these are unfortunately somewhat necessary to condense the novel into a three hour movie.

Filled with dramatic vistas and excellent cinematography, awesome special effects and Oscar-caliber acting, nerve-wracking suspense and sheer horror, brutal battle and heroic bravery, "TLOTR" should garner several Academy Awards, including Best Film. If you see the movie, read the book too, and vice versa. Many consider the "The Lord of the Rings" to be the best book of all time, and when the film trilogy is complete: (The MARCOS: I totally agree. This movie is, by far, the best movie I've seen this year. Not only because it was the first movie I saw this year, but it will be the best movie I'll see this year. After directing Hannibal, Ridley Scott has redeemed himself with Black Hawk Down.

Mystery that keeps you're guessing until the end, Memento reinvents film noir for the 21st century.

IVAN: If there ever were a reason to drive all the way out to Hollywood to watch an independent film, look no further than Memento, now available in video stores everywhere.

MARCOS: From the first shot in the film, you are left breathless. It wasn't Pulp Fiction storytelling which is most films fail. On the other hand, it's great on its own and driving all the way to Hollywood was damn worth it.

IVAN: As Todd (Joe Pantoliano) says in the beginning of the film, "You don't have a clue" as to what's going on and just when you think you do, the film slaps you with the truth. Only until the closing moments of the film do you really find out what's going on.

MARCOS: With this flick, you're definitely do not want to go "tinkle" because you will miss everything.

I've spoken of the shining city all my political life—my mind it was a half-proud city built on rocks stronger than oceans, windswept, blessed and haunted by the people of all kinds living in harmony and peace.
I've told you that with the feet that walked on the shore, and the eyes that walked on the market with love and purpose. And I'll continue to walk on the shore and see the city.

Today's media moguls love numbers, and the viewers seem to agree. They have turned the tragedy, violence and terror present since the 9/11 attacks, into morning and evening news broadcasts with never ending numerical tallies of dead and wounded in the Near East and Afghanistan. Sometimes I close my eyes and believe I am actually listening to Dennis Miller during half time giving statistics on the Rams powerful offense. "That's right Dan-O, 34 completions and all I get are these four news channels.

I question why are we so wrapped up in the number of confirmed deaths and casualties, I mean who is really keeping score other than the omnipresent force in the sky. Was I asleep with 6 miss-fires, if only our Air Force were so accurate."

Then again I may have never lost my childhood naivete, still holding a high regard for innocence, truth and faith. I question why are we so wrapped up in the number of confirmed deaths and casualties, I mean who is really keeping score other than the omnipresent force in the sky. Was I asleep when humanity was struck by the intentions of vengeance and evil?

It's a viscous cycle stuck on repeat. Terrorists murder in the name of their prophets and in the names of their brothers who died defending their homeland. We sanction murder in the name of our nation and for our fellow Americans who died a horrible and tragic death at the hands of suicide bombers. Extremist groups in Palestine murder in the name of their beliefs and for their claim to the land taken by [Israel] after the culmination of WWI. Israel murders in retaliation of the extremist suicide bombers, in the defense of the Holy Land. Does the cycle ever stop? Will the world ever give birth to a nation that promotes peace with their words and follow it with the actions of their hands?

I may be the last optimist, but pacifism seemed to be faded out over the glaring disco music of the 1970's. It was in that decade that we lost our innocence, when we uncovered how crooked our own government really was. Back room tactics within the executive and legislative branches of the government were brought forth to the public's attention. It was also the decade that witnessed the drafting of the Freedom of Information Act, which gave the public access to federal files; the cornerstone piece in legislation aimed at protecting the valued and cherished American freedoms.

Today the White House is host to W. Bush who has rallied the nation behind him with tough talk and a humanitarian stance against countries that harbor terrorists and have no hard-line stance against countries that harbor terrorists and have no regard for democratic principles. Yet, our own democratic principles, and blessed freedoms are being sacrificed along side the innocent killed in action. The President's executive power has not been this great since, perhaps Abraham Lincoln declared Martial Law in 1862 and assumed near total control of the nation, suspending habeas corpus and imprisoning writers and protesters who spoke out against the Republican policies of the Civil War, and I've spoken ot the shining city all my political life...in my mind it was a

half-proud city built on rocks stronger than oceans, windswept,
blessed and haunted by the people of all kinds living in harmony and peace.
I've told you that with the feet that walked on the shore, and the eyes that walked on the market with love and purpose. And I'll continue to walk on the shore and see the city.

Letter to the Editor:

Students majoring in Philosophy speak out to their Departments Administration

Does the will of the student have any effect on the policies made by certain departments of this school? Apparently not, for although many of our students took part in the show of support for the CSUSB faculty members recently and our support was apparently appreciated, hiring practices within the departments of this school continue to ignore student input and focus on bureaucratic agendas.

I am speaking in reference to the recent refusal to hire a part-time instructor in an open full-time position in the Philosophy Department. This part-time instructor is highly appreciated by the department, and many of us owe him a great deal both as a friend and as an instructor. The faculty appreciates this instructor because this instructor showed us the time and attention that we needed to finish our college careers. We are sorely disappointed in the choices of this department in this matter and as much as we support our full-time faculty and our chair in other aspects of the administration of this department, in this decision - they are wrong.

Sincerely,

Omega Psi Phi Fraternity INC: Hosts Clothes Drive

The Year 2002 has the potential of being an outstanding growth period for CSUSB. The addition of new apartment-style housing on campus has sent new student enrollment skyrocketing. As a result, student involvement has more than doubled on our campus. New groups are forming and existing organizations are showing students how to live with a lot of sorts of events. The obvious goal for all of the clubs and organizations on this campus is to continue to increase student involvement.

The brothers of the Sigma Eta Chapter of Omega Psi Phi Fraternity, Incorporated also share in this desire. We as students and as educated college men are striving to organize students on this campus to obtain their highest aspirations. The ultimate goal of our organization is to continue to exist as positive influences on the campus and in the community. The only way that this will be possible is to continue to expand with new and exciting beneficial programs. Currently, we are hosting a clothes drive on campus to help clothe the needy persons in our community.

There are receptacles located in the lobbies of University Hall, Jack Brown Hall, as well as the entrance to the University Bookstore. This charity event is scheduled to run from January 14 through the 29.

All contributions will be donated to local churches and shelters. We are requesting that all organizations, faculty members, as well as the general student body do their part to contribute to the uplift of our community and society.

or to the system as a whole? Most importantly, given the fact that the city of San Bernardino has one of the lowest cost of-living rates in the state, why are CSUSB’s campus-based fees here so costly (The standard CSU tuition of $1,428 plus $443 comes to $1,887)? At CSUSF the total comes to $1,826, at CSULA $1,782; and CSUSD $1,776. The answers are not easy to come by.

In a recent interview, Dr. Frank Rincon, Vice President of Student Services, explain each of the five campus-based student fees in question: “Health Facilities”, “Health Services”, “IRA”, “Materials, Services, and Facilities”, “ASI” (Associated Students, INC.) and “Student Union”. However, after a brief comparative analysis of the first service, Vice President Rincon stopped and pulled out a lengthy, complicated document which, he promised, would later “go into these services in more detail.” With this reporter, Meanwhile, the report does indeed discuss what students, in theory, are paying for but does not answer the vexing questions related to a why there is this wide variance of costs from campus to campus in the CSU system.

benefit the community at large by allowing students to participate in ways that can meet their service learning needs, and to improve the communities in which they live.

By building and advancing these connections between our college and the communities that both support our school’s growth and fill our buildings with students, everyone committed and involved should realize benefits through successful interaction. The Community - University Partnerships’ priority is to measurably improve the affluence, health, safety, and general well-being of the people in its service area, and to bring new vibrancy, repute and resources both to Cal State San Bernardino and to the communities that should both ultimately benefit from participation in these partnerships.

JUNIOR TRANSFER LIGHTS IT UP

Erika Cronin Bio

Junior transfer guard Erica Cronin has basketball-handling skills one can compare to Michael Jackson's dance moves—quick and magical. This "smooth criminal" is the San Bernardino Coyotes leader in steals (24 this season so far) and her "criminal activity" doesn't stop there. Cronin also leads the Coyotes in scoring, averaging 13.1 points per game, and rebounding where she possesses 66 total rebounds.

The twenty-year-old transferred from San Diego Mesa, where she was the leading scorer, and when asked about the transition this past fall from San Diego Mesa to Cal State San Bernardino she stated, "It's a big difference; there is a lot more talent on the team, the competition level is higher, and it is much more organized all around." Cronin is a team player as her 24 assists contend, and she is part of the Coyotes' success. Teammate Trisha Runiewicz said, "She is a driving player, a difference maker who possesses the power to change the tide of a game.

Cronin is a great addition to a team looking to win and with standout games like the one against Cal State Bakersfield, where Cronin scored 29 points, we can still hear echoes of the Coyotes' howling victory.

Cronin's ability on the court is limitless and she undoubtedly has the chutzpah to tell Michael Jackson's "Moonwalk" to "Beat it."

NFL Hits Playoffs; Fans Hit Couch

By Shane Vanderfin

Over the Christmas break, the NFL season ended, along with a few coaching careers. The Rams and Steelers roared into the postseason, while the Ravens and Bucs crept backwards.

We've had one round of wildcard playoffs since, with the Dolphins once again proving the traditional playoff losing streak at home on the frozen tundra of Lambeau Field. Riley in San Diego was the first coach to go, followed closely by Minnesota's Dennis Green, who should be thanking Randy Moss' mouth and lack of effort for his untimely yet well-deserved dismissal.

Redskins owner Dan Snyder, who must be thinking that if the nice guy approach didn't work, try the big jerk next, fired Marty Schottenheimer and replaced him with former Florida Gators coach Steve Spurrier.

Jim Mora was let go by the Colts after an obviously fatal losing streak at the end of the season, and the tearful breakdown at the press conference didn't help the case, either.

Randy Moss is crying in football clothes, but you win the Super Bowl, then a few tears of joy are O.K., but to cry at the end of the season? Get a grip! (Jim)

So the playoffs continue this weekend with the divisional games. In the NFC, we have the Raiders playing in the northeast cold at the Patriots, the Chiefs, Saints, and Cardinals. The Bear defense will be cold too, playing in the northwest cold at the Lions.

In the AFC, we have the Packers traveling to the St. Louis dome to meet the Rams, where the game will be on Astroturf, but at least it'll be warm.

Picks are as follows: the Rams win OT by 6. The Raiders aren't that bad, but a 6-point win isn't quite as good as they think, but as long as they're still in it.

COACH CHERNISS SCOUTS FOR FUTURE STARS

The Lady Coyotes, CCAA League Champions, prepare for next season with daily practices and intense visions of a national championship.

By Kermit Boyd

Coach Kim Cherniss of the Cal State San Bernardino Women’s volleyball team, which finished the season 10th in the NCAA Division II standings, can thank her successful 2001 season behind Amy Pope as setter, for sending the 2001 CCAA women’s volleyball first-team to the NCAA Division II standings, and Amy Pope was voted the CCAA Women’s Volleyball Offensive Player of the Year. She is also a National Scholar-Athlete.

The Lady Coyotes, CCAA League Champions, finished the season 10th in the Women’s volleyball team, which can evaluate what types of players they recruit and on campus. They seeded to their program are players that send her their profiles and recruiting tapes. They pursue that player by proposing an offer good enough for that player. Coach Cherniss says frequently her recruiting is done at club tournaments. Traveling club teams provide requests that are good enough for her. She will watch players who have expressed an interest in her program, as well as recruit the student. She has heard about and already seen play. She is satisfied with the recruiting process poses this year is that the Division II schools are more than the ones that produced last year California Collegiate Athletic Association (CCAA) women’s volleyball first-team, and Amy Pope was voted the CCAA Women’s Volleyball Offensive Player of the Year.

CCAA women’s volleyball first-team, and Amy Pope was voted the CCAA Women’s Volleyball Offensive Player of the Year.

The future of Bruiun basketball seems to depend on its star player, who has expressed an interest in the program. Usually she does enough research on a recruit before knowing what kind of player will need to attend the university. So, after she sees the recruit, she says she already has a good idea of what needs and pitfalls may lie ahead.

The most important advantage in the recruiting process that Division II schools have over Division I schools, Cherniss says, is that the Division II schools are allowed to give tryouts to the players they recruit and on campus. The biggest question that the recruiting process poses this year is who will replace All-American Amy Pope? According to Coach Cherniss, Bethany Fowles who trained behind Amy Pope as a setter, along with incoming recruits will have the opportunity to compete for a starting position at setter.

THE CAPITAL FELLOWS PROGRAMS
CALIFORNIA STATE UNIVERSITY, SACRAMENTO

By Matt Schoenmann
Managing Editor

Pleased to meet you, my name is Matt Schoenmann, Managing Editor of the Coyote Chronicle. I would like to take this time to state a few “truths” about this weeks issue. The Chronicles Sports Editor decided to relinquish his position on the first production day of the quarter, leaving the state of his section in limbo. For this reason you will see my name in the bylines dealing with basketball coverage. I am not a sports editor, but here are a few “truths” the way that I see them.

It speaks well for Michigan football that both Tom Brady and Brian Griese are the starting quarterbacks for their respective teams.

The future of Bruiun basketball seems to depend on whether center Dan Gadzuric can play up to his potential. The Dodger trade of Gary Sheffield for Brian Jordan brings a much needed positive voice to the club house. Yet people seem to forget that they also got a possible 15 game winter as well.
Mens Basketball Ranked #2 in Nation

By Matt Schoenmann
Managing Editor

The Men’s Coyote Basketball team kept rolling with its 14th consecutive win to begin the season.

1,149 fans watched Cal State romp to a 67-52 victory over the Sonoma State Cossacks at Coussoulis Arena Friday night.

Glenn Summerall, a senior forward from Fontana led all scorers with 20 points, after being restricted to the bench for the first 11-plus minutes of the game.

Summerall, the team’s second leading scorer, started the Coyotes previous 13 games, and no explanation was given for him coming off the bench so late in the game. It appears to be simply a wise coaching move, due to the fact that Sonoma was leading by two before Summerall led the Coyotes to victory. The move to halt the injection of Summerall into the lineup seemed to throw off Sonoma State.

Bobby Burries and Brady Bennett also came off the bench in this effort, scoring ten points respectively. Because of an injury to Mike Edwards, Burries was forced to handle the ball more than usual. Burries was up to the challenge as he dished out eight assists.

After trailing to start the game, Cal State held a 38-25 lead at the half. They then continued to surge ahead to take a 20-point lead.

Cal State remains one of the nations only unbeaten teams. The only other division II unbeaten teams are Northeastern State of Oklahoma, the top ranked team in the nation, and Salem-Teikyo Institute.

At Chronicle production time, Junior transfer Eric Cronin (35) shoots for two points during the Coyotes game Friday - Carter: 7-13, 4-6, 19 pts.
- Garrett: 2-5, 1-2, 5 pts.
- Ray, 2-7, 2-2, 7 pts
- Anorou: 2-7, 5-8, 9 pts
- Jones: 4-12, 1-2, 5 pts
- Knudson: 4-10, 0-0, 8 pts.
- Campbell: 4-7, 0-0, 9 pts
- Whiteside: 4-6, 0-0, 8 pts
- Strong: 2-4, 2-2, 7 pts
- Curran: 2-4, 3-3, 7 pts

The Coyotes started the season strong at five and five, beginning with a 74-58 victory over Hope International. They have faltered slightly in conference play, but should be confident with four starters returning.
