ADMISSIONS OFFICER URGES NEW STUDENTS TO APPLY NOW

All new and prospective students are requested to submit their applications by August 24. According to Cheryl Weese, Admissions Officer, this will enable the College to process their papers, assign registration priority numbers and have their registration packets prepared in advance.

Students applying after the August 24 date must submit their application in person and have an interview with an admissions evaluator to establish admission eligibility.

Students interested in receiving financial aid are also requested to apply soon so that processing may be completed by the start of classes. According to Ted Krug, Director of Financial Aid, more financial aid is available this year than ever before due to new federal legislation. "Eligibility requirements for insured student loans and Basic Educational Opportunity Grants have been expanded so that an increased number of students will be able to receive aid. Even students who have applied for financial aid in the past and have been denied are urged to reapply as they may now be eligible," he states.
