CFA Initiates ‘Reed Patrol’

California Faculty and Labor Union representatives gathered on the streets to protest Chancellor Reed’s appearance at an anti-union hotel in downtown San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO — In front of an estimated crowd of 800 teachers, labor unionists, students and supporters, the California Faculty Association in partnership with the Hotel Employees and Restaurant Employees Union, Local 2, held a loud, vibrant and positively powerful protest aimed at the California State University Chancellor Charles Reed and the Marriott Hotels executive top brass.

“Shame Mr. Reed, double shame. Shame on those who are behind the Marriott’s closed doors,” said Art Polaski, Executive Secretary-Treasurer for the California Federation of Labor. “We are back again on our promise never to leave until there is justice!”

The hotel, which has been on the organizing labor’s “watch list” for its refusal to negotiate with its workers who voted to unionize in 1994, was site of this year’s American Council on Education, a convention held annually by the natiopn top educational administrators. The CFA and Hotel/Restaurant workers saw this as an opportunity to combine their union struggles together into one large, visually stimulating demonstration.

This was the first event in a series called “The Reed Patrol,” in which the CFA plans to protest the presence of Chancellor Charles Reed throughout the state. The first event was a series of CSU Teach-Ins this past fall, hosted by the CFA in an effort to inform students and temporary faculty about the conflict in negotiations between the CFA and the CSU administration. The collective bargaining stage of the negotiations has since been ended as of this past month when a neutral mediator certified the talks had reached a formal impasse.

John Travis, Chair of the CFA Bargaining Committee and Professor at Humboldt State University, described collective bargaining as a judicial process in which both sides state their case and rebut their opponent’s view. The bargaining was overseen by a neutral mediator who acted as judge and determined that both sides were unwilling to sacrifice any portion of their case to reach a compromise. With that ruling, a formal impasse was certified and the dispute was sent to an independent fact-finder under state law.

The CFA has been disputing various CSU administration policies, both toward the misplacement of financial allocations made for faculty and the CSU’s faculty hiring tactics, which have brought more temporary faculty into the system. “Our fight is not about money, but we are tired of faculty compensation dollars asking for.”

Budget: Is the CSU Faculty a Priority?

By Karla Buchanan
Staff Writer

On January 10, California Governor Gray Davis made public his proposed budget for the 2002-2003 fiscal year, which runs from July 1 to July 1. In the proposed budget, Governor Davis made clear that education was a top priority.

In fact, he made allowances for the California State University system to receive a 4.5% increase in general funds, or $156.9 million. However, even with this increased funding the CSU faculty is to receive only a 1%, or $22.4 million, increase in employee compensation, opposed to the 4% employee compensation CFA is asking for.

According to the California Postsecondary Education Commission (CPEC), the average full time CSU faculty member will earn $50,000 in 2002-2003. The 20 other comparable higher education institutions will receive an average of $75,743 in 2001-2002. These figures are based on numbers supplied to the CPEC by the CSU Chancellor’s office. The CFA is currently requesting a copy of the data set so they may calculate their own figures.

This confirms our growing alarm about the negative trends in the CSU. The faculty are the CSU’s most valuable resource. But the CSU administration has turned a blind eye toward the faculty. The faculty are the CSU’s most valuable resource.

As a result, the CSU’s quality of education will suffer. Additionally, as CSU San Marcos professor of Business Administration George Diehr explained, “The increasing salary gap, combined with California’s high cost of living, will hamper the CSU’s ability to recruit and retain the best possible faculty. As a result, the CSU’s quality of education will suffer.”

The Student Assistance in Learning (SAIL) Program at CSUSB is offering a Study Skills Workshop for Adult Reentry students. Although the workshop is specifically geared toward reentry students to assist in establishing good study skills, all students are welcome.

The SAIL Program was established to offer students support services while they continue their education in graduate and professional programs. The Study Skills Workshop is only one of many services that the SAIL Program offers.

The SAIL Program also offers the following services: academic and financial aid advising, advising courses, assistance with graduate school materials, cultural and educational enrichment activities, access to the multimedia station, personal and career counseling, reading assistance, and preclinical growth workshops.

The SAIL Program also participates in the Adopt-A-Highway Program, prints The Quest which is its quarterly newsletter, has a study lab facility, and organizes study marathons. The SAIL Program encourages excellence with its helpful staff.

To be eligible for the SAIL Program, a student must be one who is low-income according to federal guidelines, whose parents have not earned a bachelor’s degree, is disabled, and is a US citizen or permanent resident.

The workshop being offered is intended to give students the tools necessary for academic achievement. Basic study skills will be introduced as well as helpful tips for test-taking.

The Study Skills workshop is being conducted by Mr. Sean Davis, SAIL counselor. Mr. Davis is a CSUSB alumnus. After receiving his Bachelor of Arts Degree in Communications, with a minor in History, in 1998, he continued on and received his Master’s Degree in Counseling and Guidance, both from CSUSB. For further information about the Study Skills workshop scheduled for February 13th at 5:00 PM, contact the SAIL office in University Hall, Rm. 386.

Dr. Robert Nakamura, Director of the Office of Distributed Learning, has been around for three years doing distribution, and has already seen some growth. "We're looking to increase our enrollment 16 percent this year, and have seen an increase of 5 percent in the last year," Nakamura said.

Nakamura believes that the ODL has a potential to positively affect the university as a whole. "Not only is it intended to increase enrollment and therefore increase revenue, according to a policy outline, it will benefit the entire campus’ online student services in terms of degree audit reports and enhanced online course management.

As ODL’s policy hopes to "Bridge the Distance" between students and their teachers, it is at the same time changing the way we see higher education and bringing new opportunities to a wide range of people.

Golden Apple Emerges at University Hall

If all the photographers and media didn’t catch the attention of Cal State San Bernardino’s Margaret Doane, it was the surprise visit by University President A1 Karnig that clearly drew the Professor’s eyes.

President Karnig awarded Doane, an English Professor and the former 2001 Outstanding Advisor Award recipient, the Golden Apple Award for her tremendous work in teaching and mentoring on February 8 at University Hall.

"I was surprised," said Doane, who has been a faculty member for the University since 1976. "I realized once I saw the President [A1 Karnig], I knew then what was going on."

According to Karnig, it was a combination of Doane’s dedication to the University and her student-favorite instructor. "I love interacting with students," added Doane. "I get real energized teaching the things I love to teach to those students."

Doane is also responsible for creating 10 courses on campus including Regional American Literature, Shelly and Browning, Utopian Literature and The Victorian Novel. Besides the courses, she has also developed an English Honors Program and EPIC, which is an advising center for undergraduate English students.

Doane displayed some humor that makes Doane a major student-favorite instructor. "I love it all," said Doane, who earned a Bachelor’s Degree in English from the University of Redlands and her Ph. D. from University of Oregon. "It seems like everything I do is for a great love."

The mayor of San Bernardino and her Ph. D. from University of Oregon. "It seems like everything I do is for a great love."

The mayor of San Bernardino will honor both Doane along with last month’s Outstanding Professor and recipient Professor Peter Robertshaw on March 21.

The Career Development Center is teaming up with Kaplan Test Prep to offer FREE practice tests for the following exams: GRE, GMAT, LSAT, MCAT, NCLEX, and DAT. The FREE practice tests will be held on Saturday, February 23, 2002 at University Hall (Second Floor). Registration begins at 8:30 am. In addition to the test sessions, there will be information about strategies for test taking and information about the Career Development Center’s services. Financial Aid is here for you Governor’s Teaching Fellowship Program February 1, 2002 through May 1, 2002. What is the Governor’s Teaching Fellowship? The GTF is an important component of Governor Gray Davis’ education program (SB 1666). This merit-based program provides $20,000 to students preparing to teach in low-performing schools in California for four years. Who should apply? Students enrolled in continuous FULL-TIME post baccalaureate study in a California Commission on Teacher Credentialing (CTC) accredited CSU, UC or independent college/university teacher preparation (NON-INTERN) program by fall 2002, are encouraged to apply. Last fall, 30 Fellowships were awarded to CSUSB students.

Applicants are advised to meet with his or her financial aid officer so that each applicant is FULLY aware of the potential impact that receipt of the GTF award may have on his or her financial situation! Please inform students that the 2002-03 CSUSB Scholarship Application is now being accepted. The deadline to file is March 1, 2002. Students must apply on-line by visiting the Financial Aid Office's web site at: http://finance.csusb.edu

Davis to Increase Nursing Students

By: Sharenna C. Clark
Asst News Editor

Governor Gray Davis is looking to increase nurse-staffing levels in California hospitals. As of now the demand is already high, and it is expected to rise even more with Davis’ proposal, which calls for one nurse for every six patients. In 1999, Davis signed Assembly Bill 334 supporting these standards.

Local community colleges are working hard to solve the problem. They currently provide training for the software that is used in the Inland hospitals. CSUSB is also working hard to meet the state’s demand. Mary Molle explained that the patient load is just too heavy, and the nursing department is gearing up to provide more qualified nurses. It is estimated that about 80 percent of Inland nursing graduates will go on to work in the Inland Empire.

Considering the high demand for nurses, and the governor’s promise, nurses are forced to think of ways to make up for what is supposed to come from it. It seems as if Gray Davis is making promises, while cutting funds. There has to be one or the other. You cannot assume that a proposal will fund itself just because the governor backs it. Surely people won’t just open their purses and wallets to a really good idea. Perhaps we could use some of the $857 million cut from schools to fund the nursing idea. Oh, wait. I forgot, we need $27.9 million to fight bio-terrorism in LA County. Sorry kids, no funding; you will just have to have a car wash or something. Get it together, Gray.

Inside Look; The Red Rose Ball

By Susie Medina

Scene Editor

The Red Rose Ball came into full bloom this Friday night for the Valentines Day theme. The formal dance was sponsored by Semano Village Housing and Residential Life and ASI. It was a non-profit Valentines Day event for all students who wanted to attend.

The tickets were $20 and covered dinner, dancing, and appetizers including cold cut sandwiches, fresh fruit and salads. The dinner was chicken with vegetables and potatoes. The event began at 7pm and was to end at midnight.

According to Ellen Whitehead, Resident Director of Housing and Residential Life, there were “about 170 tickets sold” by 8pm. “The goal was to have about 250 to 300 people, but we did pretty good anyway.”

The event was originally more than Housing could afford at first. The tickets would've rounded out to $36 a person but Housing decided that that would be too much for students, so they contacted ASI to cover the rest in hopes that tickets would be dropped to a price of $20 per student.

This was reasonable for students such as Chris Elwell who only “spent a total of $45 on the event.” Hillary Erwin said, “I told my hair myself and had this dress already so I didn’t spend much.”

The ball even accommodated those students who don’t eat meat. There was a vegetarian plate for students upon request, iced tea and other beverages, were provided for students. There was even a photographer there for those who wanted to take pictures.

The students were mostly couples mingling next to each other and cuddling. Christina Rodriguez says “I brought the love of my life to have a special evening.” She and her boyfriend both wore red and black, flowing with the pattern of the colors of the ball.

The dance was cozy and relaxed. Students were not yet dancing when I got there but the music was bumping in the background, like the beating of Cupid’s heart.

This is the second year that the ball has been put on and there are plans to have another one next year.

Guys Guide to V-Day Shopping

By Sal Desalvador

With Valentines Day almost here, it’s time to decide what to get your sweetheart. Don’t know where to start? Let me help you with some ideas ranging from material and expensive to free of charge, right from the heart.

One popular gift is jewelry. But I wouldn’t suggest buying jewelry now. Jewelry is something that should be inspected with your own eyes before purchasing. Jeweler stores such as Crescent, and Zales often offer 59.99 Valentine specials. This may be earrings, pendants, bracelets, necklaces, or rings usually with the base of a heart. From now until Valentines Day, a 1/5-carat diamond heart pendant and gift box can be purchased for $99.99 at any participating Zales Jeweler in Southern California.

Another important fact is forgotten. If a gift from the heart is the most popular your style, there’s always poetry, candlelight dinners, soft music and a romantic evening at home enjoying each other. After all, the nature of St. Valentines Day is love and not material things. Sometimes in the hustle and bustle of life this very simple but important fact is forgotten.

Lonely Hearts: Being single does not mean you are alone

By John J. Eddy

I can remember back in elementary school, all the red and pink construction paper hearts, candy before lunch, Cherry seven-up and a Valentines Day card from every gift in the class. Things were simple then, but the times have changed. Now instead of cards and candy, women want diamonds, flowers and expensive dinners. Guys save up their weekly paychecks, make reservations far in advance, and put in every effort to romance their ladies on this lover’s holiday.

And then there are guys like me, a lonely heart. In years past, single men have hid in shame on the lover’s holiday, renting movies and sulking in their easy chairs. Now instead of cards and candy, women want diamonds, flowers and expensive dinners. Guys save up their weekly paychecks, make reservations far in advance, and put in every effort to romance their ladies on this lover’s holiday.

To Tip or Not To Tip

By Shane Vanderlip
Copy Editor

For those readers who have or do work for tips, keep reading because you might find this interesting. If you’ve never had a job where a large part of your income comes from the goodwill of others, keep reading because you might find this informative. If you really just don’t care, keep something out of this.

Why should you tip? Not only is it respectful and honors a job well done, it can show your generosity and understanding of the basic human condition. Most people who work for tips receive less than $10.00 an hour, and usually closer to minimum wage, so tips are an important part of their income. The only exception would be extraordinarily rotten service, and then not only is it a low to no tip in order, but a complaint to the manager on your way out is perfectly acceptable when done with tact and�retn. Loudly and rudely denouncing your waitperson and arguing with the manager works, but too, but we are trying to improve your social skills here, so try to avoid making a scene.

Also, as an important suggestion for our male readers, burning a waitperson while you’re out on a date isn’t going to score you many points with that special someone you’re trying to impress, while a good tip to a worthy server could create a suave and debonair aura of James Bondian mystique that might get you laid. (The Coyote Chronicle and its staff assume no responsibility for the possibility of any tip-related sex, but if it happens, well, then good for you…)

How much should you tip? The standard amount is 15-20%, depending on the level of service provided. If someone serving you just kicks ass and ensures that everything is done right, on time and correct, then even 25-30% would show your appreciation and genuine concern for the well-being of all humanity. It’s also pretty tacky to sit and puzzle over the tip, like that extra buck is going to kill you. A quick solution, especially if it’s not an expensive meal, is to just double the tax to the highest dollar, which is roughly 16%

Just so you don’t think this is all about separating you from your money, here’s what you should expect in return for your generous contribution. If you are one of those who work for tips, remember you have to smile, hustle, be professional, efficient and correct, know the menu, always check back, fix any problems with as little inconvenience to the customer as possible, apologize with sincerity, thank them for their patronage and always, always, always—tip.

Seeks to recruit, train, and place interns in classrooms, teaching, tutoring, or counseling positions in three Riverside Community College District (RCCD) campuses. Academic areas include, but are not limited to: Mathematics, English, ESL, Speech Communication, Computer Information Systems, Anatomy, Chemistry, Physics, Spanish Reading, and Microbiology. Positions are also available for adjunct teaching for those who already meet the minimum qualifications.

The internship program will provide developmental opportunities for persons interested in pursuing a community college teaching career through one-year internships which pair interns with discipline-related mentors. This program is intended to help develop a pool of potential candidates, which reflects the diversity of community colleges for possible adjunct or contract teaching positions.

In order to meet minimum qualifications, interns must:
• Be currently enrolled in a Master’s or Doctoral program and have completed a minimum of 50% of graduate coursework or are within one year of completion. Graduate course work must be in the academic area in which they plan to teach, counsel, or serve as librarian.
• Or have completed a Master’s/Doctoral degree course of study at an accredited college or university in the discipline in which they plan to teach, counsel, or serve as librarian.
• Or be enrolled in, or have completed a freshmen’s degree course of study at an accredited college or university and have two years’ professional experience in the discipline in which they plan to teach, if a Master’s in that discipline is not expected or available (generally technical, trade, or industrial fields).

Health Center Update

By Crystal Vickery
Staff Writer

“Coughing has been the most common symptom students have been complaining about lately, as well as allergies caused by the winds,” says Debbie Galvan, assistant director and R.N. at the Health Center.

“The flu season turned to be much milder than predicted,” she says, “and it is now almost over.”

Besides treating respiratory problems, the Health Center provides several services to keep students healthy and going to class.

With CSUSB’s variety of students, the Health Center sees on average about 60 to 70 a day, and that is not including those who just walk in. Since the staff must provide everyone with care, they offer a range of treatments for colds to minor injuries as well as physical exams.

Student Leonard Ortega says, “since my accident, I come here everyday to get checkups, and use their restrooms. It’s all free to me, too…”

The Health Center offers plenty of other benefits. Staffed by three doctors and two nurse practitioners, the Center also houses a Psychological Counseling Center and a pharmacy. The Counseling Center provides confidential and free services to students. The pharmacy sells low-cost prescriptions and over the counter medicines. Students can purchase birth control pills, condoms, cough medicine, energy pills and everything else they need to take care of themselves cheaply.

If you are feeling sick, want to talk, or need a prescription, then visit the Student Health Center. You can make an appointment at 880-5241 for health issues. For the Psychological Counseling Center, call 880-9440.

Unity Celebrated with Umoja Day

By Jake Zylman
Multi-Cultural Editor

Unity came to Cal State on Wednesday, February 6, in the form of Umoja Day. Umoja, meaning unity, is part of the African American celebration of Kwanzaa, but has come have its own day during the month of February. Although there is no nationally designated date for celebration, it is celebrated at many college campuses during the month of February.

The day, coordinated by the Cross Cultural Center and Black groups on campus, started with a peace march that reincarnated the spirit of the civil right's movement of the 60's. "We tried to emulate the emotion of some of the marches of Dr. King," said Brian Cobb, secretary of the African Student Alliance on campus.

Both Cobb and Kelly Denny, the president of ASA, spoke before the rest of the festivities began about the importance of unity among all people on campus. In a later interview, Denny said that while relations between people have improved on campus there are still "many issues that need to be addressed involving race at this school."

The celebration, in it's fifth year at Cal State, was catered with soul food and featured booths of the different Black fraternities and sororities on campus.

BUFFALO SOLDIER PROTECTORS

By Karla Buchanan
Staff Writer

In 1866 the United States Congress legislation established the ninth and tenth African American Cavalry Units. The Units were comprised of soldiers from Louisiana and Kentucky that fought in the Civil War. The units earned their nickname of "Buffalo Soldier" from the Cheyenne and Comanche Indians.

The Buffalo soldiers were responsible for building and maintaining forts, mapping vast areas in the southwest, stringing hundreds of miles of telegraph wire, protecting railroad construction crews, and controlling outlaws and rustlers. Such oulaws included Geromino, Billy the Kid, and Pancho Villa - a virtual "who's who" of the American west. For performing these various duties, the soldiers received a sum of $13 a month.

18 of the Buffalo soldiers were awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor for their invaluable service in the west for all other American music. The Rolling Stones and Led Zeppelin were originally thought of as British blues artists. In the states, The Grateful Dead and Big Brother and the Holding Company started out as "electric blues bands."

In New Orleans, banjos were accompanied by brass instruments to form early jazz bands. Banjos were the primary instruments in these jazz bands simply because they were more resonating than guitars.

Although blues is less in the mainstream than it has been in some time, it will continue to flourish in the live setting. Blues connoisseurs are passionate about their music and it will no doubt continue to live on as great American roots music.

RACIAL IDENTITY: EVERYONE WANTS TO KNOW

By Desiree Jaques
Staff Writer

We've all been confronted by those little boxes at one point in our lives. On admission applications to Universities, on standardized tests, and many other official documents, we are supposed to select which ethnic group we think we are. We assume this information is used for statistical purposes, so numbers can be compiled and we can see the different percentages of groups and how they compare to one another.

Some say this is a good thing, because it "keeps tabs" on the admissions system to ensure fairness towards minorities. Others say it is insulting that we are asked to fit ourselves in to these vague categories, which have no bearing on our ability to be successful students. In either case, these categories are inaccurate and therefore create inaccurate statistics.

Some students have often wondered why that is even asked, even if it is optional. CSUSB sophomore, Christine Campbell says, "I wonder why then even need to know it. What does it have to do with anything?" She adds, "as far as statistics go, a person is a person regardless of their ethnicity, it's just not necessary information."

Sometimes students utilize the fact that it is an optional response. RCC transfer student Mary Keene says, "I fill it out even though I'd rather not. But I do get sick doing it and there have been times where I don't fill it out at all."

The question they are asking is "what are you?"...the Identity-Continued on pg. 16

DIAMONDS ARE A GIRL’S BEST FRIEND

By Jennifer Cline
Special to the Chronicle

A diamond is forever. A girl can never have enough. But we must ask ourselves: Are diamonds really everything? Precious gems culled from the gravelly mines of exotic locales, imported and purchased more often this week than at any other time of the year. Why exactly? Because they’re a special symbol of love – even commitment and not easy to come by. Unlike cockroaches and Twinkies, you don’t find them hanging around the pantry, and while all three will purportedly be available from the gravelly mines of exotic locales, imported and purchased more often this week than at any other time of the year. Why exactly? Because they’re a special symbol of love – even commitment and not easy to come by. Unlike cockroaches and Twinkies, you don’t find them hanging around the pantry, and while all three will purportedly be available.

The truth is, diamonds are not at all rare. They may not be a dime a dozen, but according to several reputable sources, they’re pretty darn close. Diamond jewelry in the States is typically marked up 100 to 200 percent of its actual value. The rarity and value of diamonds is in fact a myth finely crafted and spoon fed to American by the De Beers diamond company, who have monopolized the diamond trade for the larger part of the last century.

Before the 1930s, rubies, sapphires, and other precious gems were far more popular for engagement rings. So why is it that so long the diamond alone is considered appropriate? According to pop-culture expert and author James Twitchell, “We have the evil marketing scheme on the part of De Beers equating diamonds with romantic love.”

Essentially, the grand marketing scheme on the part of De Beers has culturally shaped widespread belief that diamonds are a girl’s best friend. This is why we are bombarded with advertisements in magazines everywhere that are either directly or indirectly promoting the idea of diamonds as a girl’s best friend.

You graduate from high school. You work a little in the summer to earn some spending cash. You go to college in the fall. Study, work, party. That’s how everyone handles college life, isn’t it? If that were the truth, it would be a kick back life and everyone would be in college.

The lives we lead vary from person to person. From where we work to what we’re studying to how we lead our personal life. That’s the beauty of living in a country where you have the freedom to choose your own lifestyle.

There is none, it’s like a box, a cell, a prison. It doesn’t matter that you make a picture.

CSUSB ALUMNI ASSOCIATION

University policy applies at all campus events
This week we are going to indulge in the art of multitasking. I am almost positive that when you first set foot on this campus and printed out your schedule, a little tingle of excitement shot up your spine. Then two weeks later you realized that you were in a little over your head. Then you decided to work that part time job making sandwiches, or selling women’s short, or whatever. Then you started to panic. By finals week, you were ready to rip your hair out trying to balance school, work, and tests while trying to remember to register for next quarter. You hate your job now, but you need the cash (your boss knows this, therefore shows no compassion), you are tired, stressed, and your head is going to explode.

While we are on the subject of stress and rediculum... hats off to those of you who do all of this while having children at home. You guys are the biggest heroes since Bluntman and Chronic. Now, I am going to ask all of you to do something, it may seem like a ridiculous request, but hear me out. I want you to relax, yes as in “Frankie Says...”. Just take a deep breath and relax for a moment. I know you are exhausted and do not have a weekend anymore. I know sleep has become secondary to everything else, but you know what? This is life. Welcome to it. It isn’t easy, kids, it really ain’t.

We all wanted college to be like 90210 or Revenge of the Nerds. The truth is if you want to be successful, and graduate in less than five years with a decent CPA, you have got to buckle down and grow up. Stop complaining about having too much to do, we all have too much to do. We all have four finals in one week. We all hate our professor for assigning three chapters to read over the weekend, consider the man who never learned to read. When you are pissed off because there is no parking, consider the student who has to catch the bus every morning from three cities to the left. In the loud forceful words of Graham Marsh “G.O.Y.!” (Get over yourself). It ain’t that bad, believe me. Just be content with the fact that you have the opportunity to go to a university. It will be okay, man!

"Hold on world, world hold on, it's gonna be alright, you're gonna see the light." – John Lennon

THE PROCESS OF Belief
by Krista Morris
Staff Writer

First off: if you have never heard of Bad Religion or can't recall any of their songs, you're obviously lost on that radio dial. Not that they have a lot of air time, like some other sellout bands that you see on TRL on MTV time, like some other sellout bands you recall any of their songs, you're heard of Bad Religion or can't.

Returning to their original label of Epitaph Records, their latest release The Process of Belief ranks as one the best albums this band has put out to date. With the freedom to make whatever sound they please—the opposite of the corporate labels that poison music in general—this LP ties together 20 years of Bad Religion's famous catchy riffs and witty political spats.

The Process of Belief is a refreshing change from the band's last release, which featured a classic, fast-yet-smooth punk tempo. Aside from songs Broken and Materialist, this new LP is a solid display of how a complete work of music should be done. They have definitely mastered their form—20 years is a lot of practice—and the songs are tight, powerful anthems for thinking listeners worldwide.

I highly recommend this CD to anyone, whether currently consists of Jay Bentley on bass, vocalist Greg Graffin, drummer Brooks Wackerman, Brian Baker, Brett Gurewitz and Greg Hetson on guitar (not all at once, of course).

Sevilla's is an upscale authentic Spanish restaurant (meaning food from Spain). The building is beautiful, the tables are beautiful, even the food is beautiful. The downside is that the menu is very hard to read, and most of the dishes are extremely exotic. If you're into lavish meals and have adventurous taste, Sevilla will be right up your alley. If you're short on cash, go on a Friday or Saturday night, have some appetizers. (I recommend calamari) then head next door to Club Sevilla for a night of live Flamenco performances and Salsa dancing.

TuTu Tango is an artist paradise! The place is decked out in artwork, and food is served on paint pallets. Everything on the menu is appetizing, which is great because you can order as you go. The drink menu is presented to you using children's view finders and there are even paint brushes mixed in with silverware in a jar at the table. There are also live dance performances in the dining room, musical performances in the main lobby throughout the night, and you can even stroll out onto the front patio to watch an artist create a new painting.

A romantic comedy about an English man and his mail-order bride (laughing already, aren't you?)

Ivan: Talk about your false advertising. I mean, we had, Griner's Pot Palace, and now this. If you've seen the trailer, then you know what I'm talking about. I wish...no one see this film. Moving on...

Marcos: My birthday wish...no one see this film. Instead, give me five dollars and I will personally act out a scene from the film and make it much more entertaining. Needless to say, I also fell into the trailer trap. Double-crossing's been done much better than this atrocious failure.

Ivan: I'll admit the film was funny at times and I even liked the Russian rap playing in the background. (West Side Moscow Bratz choir! Big Ups to Lenin!) but, alas, Russian guys obsessed with Goran Bregović aren't enough to make a good movie. I'm sure you'll have more fun trying to fix the plot holes.

Marcos: The only thing that sold me in this film was Nicole Kidman's believable Russian accent. I don't speak Russian but I believe she does. Charlie Chaplin would roll over in his grave if he saw Ben Chaplin, just for taking his good name.

Ivan: The film didn't know whether it was a gross out comedy, dark comedy, funny comedy or anything comedy. It was pushing too many things at once and that is where the failure of the film lies.

Marcos: At times, I didn't know if I was watching the film or the trailers watching me.

Ivan & Marcos Vote: unanimous Snootch

First Ever Snootch Rating! But will it be the Last? Tune in next week!

Movie News We Stole From the Internet!!

As much as we'd like to continue bashing Birthday Girl, we need to look at something else. But DAMN, did that movie suck. Moving on... From filmforce.agn.com: "It looks like New Line won't be keeping its Goldmember after all. When news of an intellectual property dispute with MGM broke earlier this week, it seemed that all might be resolved if New Line followed appropriate appeal procedures. But word comes today, via The Hollywood Reporter, that the MPAA has upheld its initial ruling which effectively forces New Line to ditch the Goldmember moniker altogether."

Marcos: Those darn British. Just because of something as religious as Bond to them, we Americans can not have fun.

Ivan: I gotta talk to Kamrun at Cinema Star to get me one of them (now Collector's Item) posters.

Disagree? Lonely? Then e-mail Ivan & Marcos at coyometicket@hotmail.com

*Special thanks to Kamrun Myers and Cinema Star Luxury Theaters in San Bernardino for the ticket!

V-Day 02'

by Robin Larson
Special to the Chronicle

"If your vagina got dresses, what would it wear?" "Sweat pants and a tattoo," said a six-year-old girl, who was among hundreds of real people that playwright Eve Ensler interviewed for her Obie-winning play "The Vagina Monologues" to be staged at California State University, San Bernardino, on Feb. 21, 22 and 23 at the Student Union Events Center.

The campus wide charitable production is casting 24 students and staff members who will talk with audiences whimsically, intimately and profoundly about their vaginas.

"I was worried about vaginas," Ensler explains. "I was worried about what we think about our vaginas; and even more worried about what we don't think about them... So I decided to talk to women about (them).... at first, women were reluctant to talk. They were a little shy. But once they got going, you couldn't stop them."

What these hundreds of women said led to the founding in 1998 of a worldwide movement called V-Day to stop violence against women, which the play launched when it premiered off Broadway with starts Glenn Close, Whoopi Goldberg and Susan Sarandon.

This year, "The Vagina Monologues" is being staged in houses of worship, theaters, and campuses from San Bernadino to Shanghai. Directed by theater professor Kathryn M. Ervin, the university's production was organized by its Woman's Studies program and Women's Resource Center.

Ensler says the play documents the words of "old women, young women, married women, single women, lesbians, college professors, actors, corporate professionals, sex workers, African American women, Hispanic women, Asian American women, Native American women, Caucasian women, Jewish women."

Actresses in Cal State's "Vagina Monologues" will be joining a global chorus of women and girls acting in 800 performances in 2002, as these young, middle aged, and older women entertain, empower and live out V-Day's mission to stop the epidemic of violence against women and girls.

Why a V-Day movement? One American woman is battered every 15 seconds, one South African woman is raped every 26 seconds, one U.S. college student is raped every 21 hours. What is more, African American women between 16 and 24 experience the highest per capita rate of violence: 19.6 per 1,000—and 130 million women worldwide have already been subjected to female genital cutting.

Cal State's co-sponsors of the play will be benefiting three of the world's anti-violence organizations: one local, one national, and one international—

Letter to the Editor:

Eunice Warch, student, Inquires about the ‘Parking Situ­tion’ and proposes the building of a Parking Garage

I was fascinated to read the story in the most recent COYOTE CHRONICLE about the building projects underway on our campus, and the planned student population of 25,000. In all this planning, not one word was mentioned about - dare I say it - additional parking for all those additional students? When will the powers that be realize we need additional parking - and soon? It is absolutely unconscionable for this university to have undergone the massive expansion it has with no thought given to additional parking! Yeah, it would mean cameras and security patrols; but hey, guys! Let’s get a grip here and get our priorities straight! I get here by 9:30 AM in order to secure a parking space before my NOON class. And I know not the only one. The most magnificent buildings and the finest academic programs in the world are worthless, if the people cannot get to them for lack of parking spaces!

Cuts Expected in CSU Systemwide

Gov. Davis last year ordered state agencies to prepare for budget cuts that range from 5 to 15 percent. The governor's first budget proposal, released in mid-January, included targeted cutbacks to the 23-campus CSU system.

As the final budget approaches the June deadline, additional CSU systemwide cutbacks are likely.

Ideas concerning the diamond and what it has come to represent. Does the diamond represent love, devotion, sacrifice or is it simply a symbol of white privilege, consumerism and class discrimination based solely on the color of a woman's skin? Will this paragraph be easy to read?...It doesn't matter. The real question is, "Who are you?" And no little box can tell you that. The fact is there is no objective way to classify specific ethinities into general categories, and any statistics based on this subjectivity are unreliable statistics. So, maybe the next time you are confronted by these little boxes, instead of trying to force yourself into one, just leave it blank.

One of the most beautiful aspects of this country is the fact that so many different people share the same principles of equality and freedom. One of those freedoms is the freedom to choose not to put yourself into a little box.

Always...REFILL THE WATER! Oh, and never put your fingers when a customer might touch their lips, unless, of course, that's the job.

This writer has worked in many tipping positions, from grocery bagger to waiter to chauffeur, and would never have been able to survive without those day to day chucks of change that paid for gas, food, and all the other wallet-skinning necessities of life. Also, a single penny on top of the dollars is a secret sign that your waitperson was great, an asset to their company and their profession and should be on the Olympic Swimming Team. There's a secret handshake, too, but you have to earn that one.

I say take yourselves out for a fun evening, whatever that may be. I say go somewhere you have really wanted to go but your ex wouldn't allow it when you were together. Do something, anything to avoid talking about your current position, and remember a lonely heart may be single, but they are not alone in the world.

should let the lack of that desired fulfillment ruin the day. On the contrary, why not celebrate personal independence? The United States, Mexico, France, D.I. Simpson and Hugh Hefner all celebrate their independence, why shouldn't the lonely hearts?

Speaker Targets Tickets

Famed attorney Lee Rittenburg will share the secrets to successfully fighting traffic tickets March 12 at 12 noon in Event Center A. Admission is free, but seating is limited.

In 1992 Rittenburg founded Traffic Defenders, Inc., after achieving a court victory defending himself in a speeding ticket case. He contrasted that the calibration certificates of the radar meters amounted to hearsay evidence, according to an article in The Sun.

The San Bernardino resident claims to know the California vehicle and evidence code inside-out, which he takes to court.

Rittenburg's clients call on him to defend them against driving under the influence, driving with a suspended license, and to represent them at DMV hearings.

Ideas concerning the diamond and what it has come to represent. Does the diamond represent love, devotion, sacrifice or is it simply a symbol of white privilege, consumerism and class discrimination based solely on the color of a woman's skin? Will this paragraph be easy to read?...It doesn't matter. The real question is, "Who are you?" And no little box can tell you that. The fact is there is no objective way to classify specific ethinities into general categories, and any statistics based on this subjectivity are unreliable statistics. So, maybe the next time you are confronted by these little boxes, instead of trying to force yourself into one, just leave it blank.

One of the most beautiful aspects of this country is the fact that so many different people share the same principles of equality and freedom. One of those freedoms is the freedom to choose not to put yourself into a little box.

Always...REFILL THE WATER! Oh, and never put your fingers when a customer might touch their lips, unless, of course, that's the job.

This writer has worked in many tipping positions, from grocery bagger to waiter to chauffeur, and would never have been able to survive without those day to day chucks of change that paid for gas, food, and all the other wallet-skinning necessities of life. Also, a single penny on top of the dollars is a secret sign that your waitperson was great, an asset to their company and their profession and should be on the Olympic Swimming Team. There's a secret handshake, too, but you have to earn that one.

I say take yourselves out for a fun evening, whatever that may be. I say go somewhere you have really wanted to go but your ex wouldn't allow it when you were together. Do something, anything to avoid talking about your current position, and remember a lonely heart may be single, but they are not alone in the world.

should let the lack of that desired fulfillment ruin the day. On the contrary, why not celebrate personal independence? The United States, Mexico, France, D.I. Simpson and Hugh Hefner all celebrate their independence, why shouldn't the lonely hearts?

Speaker Targets Tickets

Famed attorney Lee Rittenburg will share the secrets to successfully fighting traffic tickets March 12 at 12 noon in Event Center A. Admission is free, but seating is limited.

In 1992 Rittenburg founded Traffic Defenders, Inc., after achieving a court victory defending himself in a speeding ticket case. He contrasted that the calibration certificates of the radar meters amounted to hearsay evidence, according to an article in The Sun.

The San Bernardino resident claims to know the California vehicle and evidence code inside-out, which he takes to court.

Rittenburg's clients call on him to defend them against driving under the influence, driving with a suspended license, and to represent them at DMV hearings.
Sharee Brown: Playing the Game: No Regrets

Injury-prone season has Sharee Brown shouldering a big load.

By John D. Halcon

No one better than Sharee Brown who has her future in store for her next year ago. Brown, a current senior forward in the women's Coyote basketball team and an aspiring kindergarten teacher, began her basketball career the day she captured a game-high 29 points at UCI in her senior year. She just immediately went down sitting in a basketball gym waiting for her friends. She was in eighth grade, and I was just sitting down waiting for some people," said Brown. "I just stood up and started shooting the ball.

This incident eventually sparked Brown's interest in basketball, and many of her past accomplishments. She's always been good at sports, but there's more I need to get done. Now, around school people refer to her as a "team player," rather than a "superstar."

So when the season does end, Brown will be able to look at herself in the mirror and see what she had hoped to become as a little kid.

The season is going well for the Coyotes since the 1998-1999 season and was a testament of current Coyote assistant coach Phil Johnson. The season is going well for Taylor as more people acknowledge him and the team for their outstanding play.

"Now, around school people recognize me and they say hey good game — professors too," said Taylor. "That's always good, that makes you feel good. Additionally, Taylor is willing to do anything it takes to contribute to the help the team win. "I'm a post player who scores inside, rebounds, blocks shots or dives on the floor," added Taylor. "You know, it's sacrificial.""}

Player Profiles

James Taylor speaks about four-year career.

James Taylor is the Coyotes dominant low post presence, standing at 6-foot-5 inches tall, while tipping the scales at an impressive 255 pounds. He is averaging 10.5 points a contest and shoots a sizzling 63 percent from the field.

Taylor is a fourth-year player who is the starting center, and anchors the Coyote defensive attack with his rebounding ability.

Taylor's defense is evident by his team-leading 36 defensive boards coralled this season. In addition, he is a local product out of J.W. North High School in Riverside. Taylor has been part of the Coyotes since the 1998-1999 season and was a testament of current Coyote assistant coach Phil Johnson.

The season is going well for Taylor as more people acknowledge him and the team for their outstanding play.

Strong Pitching Performance Produces Sweep

A Force on the Mound

By John D. Halcon

SACRAMENTO — Coyote softball got some timely hitting coupled with a pair of strong pitching performances to sweep Chico State 2-1 and 6-0 on Friday, Feb. 8 at the Coyote diamond.

The Coyotes (7-9-1 overall) trailed 1-0 after the top of the first inning and was able to score two unanswered runs for the victory.

Goldwater, a senior from Antelope Valley College, worked the sixth inning and tagged Steidlmayer for the victory.

Then Gutierrez came back in the fifth to score the decisive run after Schioppi came to the plate and belted another double off the Wildcats’ Katie Stokx, who was charged with the pitching loss.

Goldwater nodded one-hit ball through the final six-plus innings.

In the second contest, the Coyotes never recovered from Schioppi to power the offensive output, allowing four hits on route to a complete game. Chico’s Erin McCulloch took the pitching loss as the ‘Yotes received a two-run home run by Schioppi to power the offensive attack that generated six runs on nine hits against the Wildcats.

Coyotes Use a Swayden Bat to Trounce Past Aggies

By Kermit R. Boyd

Cal State San Bernardino pounded UC Davis’ stellar pitching corps and pulled out a 9-7 victory in a non-conference game.

Junior first baseman Matt Swayden tortured Aggies starter Luke Stelldmayer, NCCA Divi­sion II West Region Pitcher of the Year, for a three-run homer in the fifth inning and tagged Steidlmayer for the pitching loss.

Dave McKae came in poised, striking out Richie Vega, but then unleashed a pitch to load the bases, UC Davis’ catcher Brian Schweiger. Wyatt collected the pitching victory against UC Davis.

Marcus Wyatt and an RBI single by Chris White was tallied with the pitching loss as the ‘Yotes received a two-run home run by Schioppi to power the offensive attack that generated six runs on nine hits against the Wildcats.

Fishing for the Coyote Chronicle...
Veteran Excelling on the Basketball Court

By Danny Homaidan
Sports Writer

Fourth-year Coyote wingman Glenn Summerall is an integral part of the Coyotes' success. He leads the team with a total of 264 points and a 13.9 points per game average.

On December 22, Summerall collected a season-high 25 points along with seven rebounds to catapult the Coyotes to victory over Point Loma Nazarene.

Summerall is a second-year player for the Coyotes, who has seen his playing minutes increase to 26 per game, and an assist to turnover ratio of plus-one.

After playing at the University of San Francisco for two years, Summerall transferred and joined the Coyotes.

The move to Cal State San Bernardino allows Summerall to play basketball closer to his hometown of Fontana.

He is enjoying the Coyotes spectacular run this season, as the No. 1 team in the Division II Western Region.

In addition, he believes the team will continue to win, however, the squad will have to continue its exceptional teamwork and hard play throughout the season.

"My role is to play defense, score when I have an opportunity, and rebound," said Summerall.

"From now on, I'm just going to start doing what Coach Reynolds asks."

After the Coyotes basketball season is over, Summerall plans to graduate with a degree in sociology to build a worthwhile career as either a youth counselor or juvenile probation officer.

"I want to try to work with some inner-city youth, somebody I can relate to," stated Summerall.

Furthermore, he wants to continue playing basketball and make it an important part of his life.

"Basketball is something I always want to do, that's why I started playing when I was in high school, my ninth grade year," said Summerall. "If the opportunity presents itself, yeah, I'm going to still play."

Coach Reaches Triple-digit Victories

By Kermit R. Boyd
Assistant Sports Editor

Fifteen years and 103 wins:
that's miracle-maker Larry Reynolds' legacy.

Coach Reynolds enters his fifth season at the helm of the Coyotes and his 20th coaching season in the California Collegiate Athletic Association. Currently, he has 103 wins and only 53 losses, and hopes to continue his success here at CSUSB.

"I think we are in the early stages of developing a program that will hopefully be recognized nationally at the Division II level for a very long time," he says.

After a 12-13 season in his first year, Reynolds and his staff turned an ordinary program into an outstanding one that has reaped three winning seasons and is working on a fourth.

In 1998-1999 Reynolds' Coyotes posted a record of 23-8 overall, winning their first CCAA conference game, and in the same year he led the Coyotes to a championship in the NCAA II West Regional. He then coached the squad to an appearance in the NCAA Division II Elite 8, but unfortunately the team lost to Florida Southern.

That year Reynolds was named coach of the year in the NCAA II District 8 and the CCAA.

The 1999-2000 season slightly mirrored his previous campaign, as the team went 23-6 overall, with the Coyotes' winning their first CCAA conference half championship with a 18-4 record. The team went on to win their second straight trip to the NCAA West Regional, where they were defeated in the semifinals. For a second straight year Reynolds was fortunate enough to be named coach of the year in the CCAA.

Reynolds' team won a second straight CCAA championship in the 2000-2001 season, and the team improved by one game in their overall and conference records that year. Reynolds coached his team to a third appearance at the West Regional finals but they lost in the semi-finals.

Reynolds was again named CCAA Coach of the Year for an unprecedented third straight year.

"How has Coach Reynolds been able to reach a milestone of this magnitude so early in his headcoaching career?"

For a start, he gained a plethora of basketball knowledge while playing and coaching at the University of Riverside and coaching at the University of San Francisco. At UCR he learned how to be successful on the basketball court. His playing at UC Riverside taught Reynolds the team aspect of basketball rather than the superior philosophy that blights several Division I schools.

"It's a team game, it's team oriented," Reynolds says. "There's not one guy that makes the whole team. The game is about defending, and playing good fundamental basketball, as well as teaching the game rather than having a couple of stars play."

When Reynolds assisted at USF in 1995 and 1996, the biggest standout for him was the importance of playing hard-nosed defense and attacking teams aggressively.

He has undoubtedly imparted the philosophies and principles he gleaned from UCR and USF in his CSUSB basketball system. However, he can take credit for his CSUSB experience for his unerring recruiting strategy and his building of a team with exceptional depth, where eight or more athletes seeing considerable playing minutes night in and night out.

Reynolds also infused his CSUSB athletes with his team principles and philosophy that allow them to arrive and shine as a group. He emphasizes the idea of the "we" versus the "I" theory, which allows his teams to flourish impressively.

A Keeper — Head coach Larry Reynolds reached the 100-win plateau in his fifth season with the men's Coyote basketball program.

Men's basketball holds off Cal State Dominguez Hills down the stretch

By Danny B. Honisaman
Sports Writer

The clock was ticking and with only 21 seconds left in the contest, Coyote forward Leroy Mayo pulled down the board to seal the fate of the Cal State Dominguez Hills Toros. Mayo's crucial rebound forced the Toros to foul him and Mayo's game high 20 points. But, it was not enough as the gritty Coyote players capitalized on a tenacious man to man defense to stretch their lead.

The Toros (57) — Poole 20, Blunt 11, Crawford 11, Rowland 8, E. Mendelsen 8, Tirona 2, S. Williams 4.

Coyotes (65) — T. Taylor 6, Summersill 10, Ray 10, Burries 12, Mayo 9, Knight 2, Edwards 8, Bennett 6, Soobzokov 2.

Attendance — 281.

Toro Ferencia Rambacal had 13 points on a sizzling 5-8 from the court.
