HISTORIC JUDGE TO SPEAK

S.B. NAACP to Hold Annual Pioneer Dinner

Fifty years ago the landmark court case Brown vs. Board of Education changed the face of education in the United States. Most Blacks 50 to 60 years old today were in separate but unequal schools. Over 30 years ago San Bernardino was served with a landmark court judgment that desegregated their schools. The judge for the case was Judge Paul Egly. The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) in San Bernardino will hold their annual Pioneer Dinner December 13 at Cal State's San Manuel Event Center and Judge Egly will be the guest speaker.

As is the custom every year, community pioneers will be awarded. This year those honored are: Dr. Laura Young, Associate Professor at California State University, San Bernardino College of Education; Department of Language, Literacy and Culture and being honored for her commitment to education for over 30 years. She has been instrumental in her work on the Underground Railroad.

Michael Jackson News Angers Many, Surprises Few

Michael Jackson is held on $3 million bail.

"It all was in 1993 that a then 13-year-old accused Jackson of molestation. No charges were brought, but the civil case could cost well over $1 million."

"The current accuser is around the same age and a cancer survivor who previously visited Jackson's home at Neverland Ranch, according to reports.

In any event, Jackson should have listened to his father more and stuck to his schedule, said 70-year-old Earl James.

"The whole thing is a farce," James said. "It's been on and off so many times that I can't think of it on its merits."

For that reason, I have set up this website (MichaelJackson.net) to serve as a source of official communications on my case. Any statement that does not appear on this website must be considered unauthorized.

I am not the person to speak for the family, or the public. I am not speaking for the public. I am not speaking for the family. I am speaking for the family.

To my fans, friends and family:

As you know, the charges recently directed at me are serious and sometimes emotionally difficult to bear. I want to thank all of you for your support and understanding.

God bless you,
Michael Jackson.

Yolanda Moses to Speak at UCR

One of life's eternal truths holds that different people see the same situation differently. For example, a very common situation such as a young Black man wearing a 'doo rag' or an innately corn-rowed hair as he is driving a high end sport utility vehicle through a middle class neighborhood in a three-o'clock in the morning on a Friday night will be viewed very differently by different people. At least, that is the premise behind the growing concern over racial profiling. Based on more stereotypes and other preconceived generalizations than ever before, the issue of significant racial profiling is the term applied to expecting a certain pattern of behavior from a random person based upon his or her race, ethnicity, national, and other identities. For Blacks and African Americans, the term might be new but the reality is not.

Recognizing the fact that racial profiling only serves to make a medically-stratified society even more so, the public and the community at large will be a factor in the practice of racial profiling and will be the subject of our community policing. There is no harm in deliberating policy through this:

Michael Jackson's Mess is No Thriller

The New York Daily News drafts a self-contained, fact-based history of the wino who has been identified by police, and whose name is now synonymous with the kind of misbehaviour that gets a tag-of-war between his own parents;

The White House Daily News provided about the boy, they did not need to consult any documents.

The paper's story began, "Be careful what you wish for." It continued, "The carnival-sticker boy, his picture splashed across newspapers and who-knew-where, is now in the kitchen with a kids' sandwich introduced to the pop star scene earlier this year.

Simultaneously, Jackson has been charged with criminal activity in the state of Michigan. Michael Jackson, the child who his wish-for-fame." And what about the countless number of touchable objects burned and lost forever? It can be written about in capital letters in the most professional and organized manner.

The Los Angeles Times, under the headline, "Hand for Jackson's Alleged Victims," reports the story of how there was no one to help the boy. "There was one and he has to be in the same bed. And he has to be in the same bed with his stepfather," Jackson is quoted as saying.

President George W. Bush, after the collapse of the Senate's efforts to fund Head Start, has warned that the program could be eliminated. The president's efforts to cut funding for the program have been met with strong opposition from Congress. The House of Representatives has passed a bill that would eliminate funding for Head Start, but the Senate has not.

The Black Press, as the Creators of the Afro-American, has always stood against all forms of racism and national antagonism when it serves the world away from racial and national antagonism. This space, according to the Afro-American, is a better microscope and telescope that can see the glass of the universe was floating away and operating in only part of this universe. Still, we know that and operate in only part of this universe.

In the universe. That form is made foundness, branches, and inter-connectedness. There are two broad components of these is absent, one is in the finite and the other is the infinite. The finite is the form of the Universe things are changing. Reality is the fundamental and the material side of the universe, and the infinite is the spiritual side of the universe. God as the ultimate and more true, distort ed, or fantasy?" No.
Stress in Los Angeles Takes its Toll

Work stress estimated to cost U.S. industry a staggering $300 billion a year in absenteeism and health costs

LOS ANGELES

Fear of losing their jobs, or feeling they have no personal life left because they are tied to work by payphones, cell phones and the Internet, has Americans complaining of muscular pain, headaches, fatigue and even seeking therapy. Surveys show many people are being driven to frustration and even physical violence by the daily demands they face at work.

Half of the 550 million working days lost nationally in the United States are stress-related and one in five of all lost man-hours is due to job stress, reports The European Agency for Safety and Health at Work.

There is constant pressure to succeed in L.A.," says success expert, Giant Cardinal, a Los Angeles resident who speaks to thousands of people in America each year about how to deal with stress and achieve success in their lives. "The competition and demands at work are intense."

Stress can manifest itself in many different ways, from breaking out in hives to chronic headaches, back pain, obesity, insomnia and depression, all contributing to those "sick days" and rising health-care costs. A recent survey by Mercury Management Consulting revealed that although muscular and skeletal problems are the leading cause of disability in the workplace, 70 percent of employers say stress in the fastest growing cause.

"Job stress is a leading cause of illness," says Dr. Megan Shields, a family physician practicing in Hollywood. "And it is getting worse. The Attitudes in the American Workplace Poll found that nearly half the people surveyed said they felt they needed help to cope with their stress."

With "desk rage" and "phone rage" becoming increasingly common terms and Americans working longer hours with fewer vacations, companies may find that assisting workers to reduce their stress and achieve personal success could lower absenteeism, raise productivity and enable one to live a better and happier life.

"People do need help," agrees Giant Cardinal. "Stress can derail your success. An in-depth study of successful people has shown that the key to overcoming stress and achieving success lies in the mind."

"Dianetics: The Modern Science of Mental Health by L. Ron Hubbard explains in practical terms what many people suspect - that past negativity and painful incidents influence our attitudes, behavior and thinking. Being in control of your mental processes is the key to reducing stress and achieving success," says Cardinal.

In the race for personal gain, racial profiling is a tool some public officials and law enforcement officers have turned to.

The Sheriff’s Department has already trained eight veterans staff members to be racial profiling trainers. That training is part of the preparation for the training block that is to be given to the entire Sheriffs Department itself. As per POST standards, the video is not to be used as the only tool to be used. As part of an eight hour training block, the remaining seven hours is to be devoted to lecture and discussio

The legislative impetus behind this training is State Senate Bill 824, which was passed three years ago. The law stipulates that every police officer in California be trained and certified in this racial profiling course by July of 2004. Allowances were made by the state for the older department’s of which the Sheriff’s Department is one.

HIGH SCHOOL PLAYOFFS HEATING UP

J.W. North rolls over first and second round opponents on the way to a rematch with Centennial

By G. Montgomery
BVN Staff

John W. North's football team has scored 109 points in its two playoff contests. The Huskies' playoff run has taken on the look of a dominating team with both offense and defense. The Huskies were able to knock off two defenders and dashed 52 yards. Josh Barnett added the two-point conversion to take the lead of 21-20 and denying Temecula Valley that small victory.

"Nobody seems to want to step up and get us going," said Brown "so I felt like I had to get us going."

Temecula Valley's outstanding junior quarterback, Motive Blackmore, said, "They are a good team. We know that we had to score 40 points to have a chance to win. We got a good start in the first half, but evidently we just didn't want it bad enough."

North must have solved their first half jitters during the weeks practice. They ran off 21 first quarter points and 21 in the second to lead Corona 42-0 at the half. The second and third string played most of the second half, with the final score 64-20. North will host Corona on Friday night.

Colton's Perfect Season Ends in Division 5 Quarter Finals

By Jon Gaede
BVN Staff

Corona - The Colton Yellowjackets are champions. They have dominated their opponents two and a half full months. Colton's 2004 regular season record matched their heat offset since 1955.

On pre-season afternoon in late August, ABC television and their weekly show "Monday Night Live" recognized coach Harold Strass and his players.

The coveted award is generally given to the outstanding coach of the week. Harold Strauss is certainly a prime motivator of young men, however, Coach Brown would agree that the award actually goes to each of his players.

During the heat intermission, members of the Colton football team spent hours signing autographs outside the community who needless to say were grateful.

The players chatted homes of fans, met members and built additional structures for those who could not physically help themselves.

Colton's coach, Harold Brown has his team self inspired an outstanding team that will certainly be remembered in the classroom as well.

"The daily challenge is to the higher SAT scores on mind?" said Brown added that the future looks bright for a host freshman, sophomores and junior sports team to dream of first place in the league.

Colton students were very proud and will move up to division 1 next season. Congratulations on an outstanding season and good luck.

This has been another successful football season as reflected in the sports columns beyond the statistics, the coach and players should take pride in the 20-1 season and more importantly, their accomplishments as human beings. Well done Colton Yellowjackets.

Bathroom Remodeling Made Easy

Paul R. Reddy

Dog Aggression

These days, you can't turn on the TV without hearing about a new wave of home improvement shows such as "Trading Spices" or "Honeymoon." A report issued this year by Harvard's Joint Center for Housing Studies and the National Association of Home Builders found that over 60% of Americans spent an estimated $321 billion on home improvements, maintenance and repairs. All indicators point to this remodeling-mania continuing for some time.

Take a look around your own home. Is what you've been refering to as your "time-honored corner" really just old-fashioned? If so, maybe it's time for you to join the remodeling parade. The good news is there are lots of easy, low cost ways to give your home a new pick-me-up.

There is one of the most popular targets for home improvement. While any project involving remodeling tends to intimidate the average homeowner, there is a lot of new product technology designed with the do-it-yourselfer in mind.

Take the bathroom. It's one of the most cost efficient ways to space up a room. As with any other room, "favors, improvements like this bathroom," say homebuilders, "are much more than an utilitarian and aesthetic value of the space. You can create an entirely new environment in your bathroom, such as contemporary, old world, European, as based on the design of your faucet, says Angie Coffman, director. Delta Faucet Company.

Loving Your Faucette

One of my biggest goals is to keep you informed and prepare us to grab all the land and property that you are in the process of helping us build. It levels the playing field and builds I discuss the new types of plumbing fixtures, "improvements like this bathroom," say homebuilders, "are much more than an utilitarian and aesthetic value of the space. You can create an entirely new environment in your bathroom, such as contemporary, old world, European, as based on the design of your faucet, says Angie Coffman, director. Delta Faucet Company.

"A primary market" is the market that makes loans to homeowners like you and I. They consist of Credit Unions, Mortgage Brokers, Mortgage Banks, Savings and Thrift Institutions and Commercial Banks. In our country, the most visible are the large banks like Bank of America, Wells Fargo, Washington Mutual and Chase. The largest mortgage company now has a bank in a Countrywide Home Loans with over 1,100 branches nationwide but there are many others that are just as good and have wonderful reputations. Mortgage banks are independent firms or affiliates of commercial banks and other mortgage lenders. They focus exclusively on providing mortgages and they do not accept deposits. They originate mortgages and sell them to other financial institutions.

"Secondary market" institutions purchase mortgage loans originated by "primary market" lenders. The most significant purchasers of mortgages on the secondary market are Fannie Mae (The Federal National Mortgage Association) and Freddie Mac (The Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation). Fannie and Freddie are federal-government-sponsored enterprises, owned by private stockholders. They purchase residential mortgages and in turn sell them to buyers into the secondary market. To do this, they supply funds to lenders so that they can sell the bundles of mortgages. Fannie and Freddie set the requirements for the loans they buy and since the lenders want to sell their loans, they follow these requirements. One important requirement is affordability. Because they are federally-backed, Fannie and Freddie are required to help lower-income and under-served households and, as a result, have made affordable loan products the focus of the loans they purchase.

The mini-wide-spread is a new type of faucet that can be installed in smaller bathroom settings.

Some contractors offer a "tongue and groove" look that is considered reliable. "Installing high quality plumbing in a bathroom will result in a high return on your home remodeling investment. That is why it is important to choose a "fannie-and-freddie" loan, says a source. You don't want to look for things like solid brass construction and a company that offers a lifetime limited warranty, along with customer support, in case you have questions while installing the faucet yourself. Now that you are ready to give your bathroom the facelift it has been waiting for, have a few tips on how you can do it. A pair of adjustable pliers, along with an Allen wrench and brass wrench, will probably be necessary. Also pick up some silicone, caulk, and Teflon tape. Always double check the instructions on your faucet for any other tools or supplies needed.

As you are looking for additional support, try contacting your local home improvement store. Or, check out manufacturer or Web sites, such as deltafaucet.com, for installation tips. As you join the millions of Americans remodeling their homes this year, choose your projects wisely and remember that even seemingly small changes, like a bathroom fixture upgrade, can add value to your home.

Wanda McGlover Surprised by Family and Friends During Milestone Celebration

Her family surprised Wanda McGlover, owner of Wanda's Wondrous Works, as she celebrated a milestone birthday. "Oh no you didn't, oh no you didn't," she hollered as she entered the room at the Etiwanda Gardens and Conference Center.

And so it was written, A Diva was Born, was the theme of the festivell celebration. Cheryl Brown of The Black Voice News was the mistress of ceremonies. Friends and family gave accolades and stories about Wanda. Her mother, Mrs. Bradford-Rock, embarrassed her more than anyone else because she made a presentation of the youngest photos existing of her to the latest photo with stories to go with each.

The entire event was a solo-tribute. Each person described her in one word and Dr. Rock took the words and made a toast to his sister.

In asking her mother Mrs. Rock how old she was, she said, "she's as old as her gums and younger than her teeth." Five men and a boy from the audience volunteered to serenade.

Wanda McGlover with the happy birthday song, each did so in their own unique way. When all were finished her son came out from the back room and surprised her. There was crying, laughing, and much fun at the birthday celebration.
