SB County Obligated to Safeguard Health of Black Residents

By Chris Levister

"Your county health officials have an obligation to take every possible step to safeguard your health," said SB Health Officer Sara Geiger, who recently announced the appointment of her new assistant, Anthony Carter. Geiger, Carol Chandonnet, Muriel Esparza, George Goodwin, and Helen Holtzworth are all graduates of the California State University University of Southern California. Their education and professional experience give them a strong foundation in public health and community health education. Geiger said she wants her department to be a leader in the fight against disease and promote healthy lifestyles among the residents of the San Bernardino area.

"Higher education is an essential component of good governance and economic prosperity. The California State University helps meet the educational needs of students by serving as the largest, most diverse, and most inclusive public university system in the United States," said Geiger. "Take this high- ly qualified individuals share their commitment to higher education and work passionately to ensure the continuing success of the California State University system.

Jeffrey Carter is the past president of the California State University, Dominguez Hills and most recently served as a special consultant to the President of California State University. He holds a Bachelor of Arts degree from the University of California, Davis, and a Master of Business Administration degree from the University of Southern California, and a Bachelor of Arts degree in Business Administration from California State University, Fullerton.

"I am a past president of the San Francisco Bar Association and serve on the board of trustees for the Bill Pickett Institute," said Carter. "I am a firm believer in the power of education and the importance of empowering our community."

"We are on the verge of a new era in public health, and the time is now to act. Let's work together to ensure that our community has access to the best possible health care," said Geiger.

Dear Dr. Living: My 5 year old is afraid to go to the dentist. His teeth are in bad shape. What can I do to make him relax?

Dear P.K. Relax, he’s not alone. Hearing the word dentist is enough to send some adults into panic attacks. An estimated thirty-five million Americans suffer from some degree of anxiety over visiting the dentist, and another twelve million can be classified as true phobics.

Fortunately, dentists are becoming more and more aware of the problem and have developed many ways to help patients relax. These range from soothing music and fish tanks in the waiting rooms to video games to be played in the dental chair. According to the American Dental Association, most dental apprehension can be traced back to an unpleasant childhood experience. Making a child comfortable with dental treatment from the outset can do much to eliminate anxiety in adulthood.

Here are some suggested tips to show you how to make your child’s visits more pleasant:

Don’t put off a child’s first dental visit until a painful situation occurs. Teach the child what is in store for him and why it is necessary, and to use the “tell, show, do” technique — where the dentist demonstrates the procedure first — with your child during any treatment.

Dental Anxiety

In the United States, approximately 400,000 new cases are diagnosed annually, averaging 2,000 newly diagnosed patients a day. Most of which are African American. 25% of African Americans between the ages of 65 and 74 have diabetes and are more likely to develop end stage kidney disease in almost 200,000 patients a year. Californians Respond to Efficiency: 17th Annual Water Awareness Month A Success

I am in the wise management of water.

The Department of Water Resources documented the energy and water savings resulting from Californians reducing their utility bills. This campaign is called Flex Your Power.

Flex Your Power is a collaborative effort to save energy and water in California. The campaign is being promoted by the California Department of Water Resources, the California Public Utilities Commission, and the California Energy Commission.

The Department of Water Resources reported that the campaign resulted in savings of $1.3 billion, which is equivalent to the energy used by 200,000 average California homes.

California residents were encouraged to participate in the campaign by saving energy and water in their homes. The savings were tracked and reported to the Department of Water Resources.

The campaign was a success because it demonstrated that Californians are willing to make changes in their daily habits to conserve resources. The savings from this campaign will continue to be monitored and reported in future years.

"To say the deck is stacked against the Black man on a major medical college campus, it's lonely. It's tiring. If you're a math or science major you look to your left and realize you're the only one — at least, the only one of African American descent."

"We want students and their families to know that you can succeed. Know that you are capable. Know that you can be successful. Know that you can go to any university in the world and you can make it there."

"The ratio of male to female Black males are blackboard. Most of us can't concentrate. Inside this highly charged room, graduates Tiffany Hill and Aisha Noel are listening to comments and nal, and always will have — an element of poverty, desperation and racism. It helps us "hide the pain" and worst nightmare," says UCR's interim Dean Dr. Craig Bass.'s never been one — it's isolating."
