NSA now can’t spy on you

The House of Representatives passed the USA Freedom Act to end the National Security Agency’s (NSA) cellular spying program.

The American spying program automatically collects and records people’s phone information and was ruled illegal on Thursday, May 7.

Congress will now have to immediately decide whether or not to end or replace the controversial anti-terrorist surveillance system, according to The Telegraph.

The bill passed with a vote of 388-88, putting an end to the government’s collection of phone records, according to wired.com.

However, the USA Freedom Act, which will stop the NSA from acquiring access to this information, is not in the clear yet. The bill must go to the U.S. Senate for a vote to be approved.

In June 2013, Edward Snowden, former government security contractor, exposed the agency’s collection of the “bulk telephony metadata.” Metadata includes the existence and duration of calls made but do not have access to the content of the conversations, according to reuters.com.

The bill calls for the records to be retained by telecoms and forces the NSA to acquire court orders from the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Court to gain access to them.

It also requires the agency to use specific search terms to narrow its access to only relevant records.

The White House supports the reforms, saying the bill protects privacy while preserving essential national security authorities, according to The Telegraph.

Supporters of the USA Freedom Act in the Senate are now under pressure to pass it by May 22, when Section 215 of the Patriot Act expires, according to wired.com.

CSUSB one of the highest graduation rates in America

By DANIELA RUEDA
Staff Writer

CSUSB has one of the highest graduation rates and those who do graduate are able to enter the workforce more quickly, according to The Washington Monthly magazine’s article titled, “The Other College Guide: A Roadmap for the Right School for You.”

CSUSB was ranked No. 9 in the article along with four other CSU campuses in the top 10. Each of the schools were ranked under the category of best value based on cost of tuition, the number of students who graduate and whether those students go on to earn enough money to pay off their student loans.

The article compared schools on the student loan default rate, graduation rate, number of students receiving Pell Grants, the net price for all students attending the university, net family income, percentage of students admitted and the ACT/SAT percentile scores.

CSUSB Provost Andy Bodman is proud to hear that the school has ranked in the top 10.

“We’re proud that Cal State San Bernardino is listed high among those college and universities in categories that students and their families consider important when choosing a college or university,” stated Bodman.

Bodman believes the rankings show that the value and communities in the Inland Empire will be enhanced.

“This is yet another example from recent rankings showing the value added by a CSUSB degree. In the long run, we are providing a more educated and highly trained workforce that will enhance the communities we serve in the Inland Empire,” continued Bodman.

Linda Gayton, a communications major, shared her experience when applying for college.

Hackers use Starbucks app to rob people blind

Hackers are stealing money from bank accounts, credit cards, and PayPal accounts using the Starbucks app.

They break into a victim’s Starbucks account online, add a new gift card, transfer funds over and repeat the process every time the original card reloads, according to an article by Jose Pablo on security.com.

Starbucks stated the hacking is not due to weak app security, but to poor customer password protection within their account.

“Hearing about this I will never pay with my Starbucks app again. Hackers are too smart nowadays,” said student Daniella Sanchez.

CSUSB degrees ranked for success

When I was applying for colleges, I considered CSUSB as one of my top schools because my older sister graduated from here and she recommended that it would be a good choice,” said Gayton. “After I was accepted, I was satisfied with my decision,” continued Gayton.

In other recent surveys and rankings, CSUSB was ranked No.22 among the “Top Regional Public Universities” in the west by U.S. News and World Report and was named one of the “Best in the West” colleges and universities by The Princeton Review, according to a CSUSB Public Affairs’ press release.

CSUSB was also featured on the Forbes list of “America’s Best Colleges” for Hispanic students. CSUSB has a graduation rate of 44.3 percent in comparison to Cal State Los Angeles, which is ranked No.6 but has an overall graduation rate of 36.7 percent, according to The Washington Monthly.

“I chose CSUSB because it is closer to home and I’ve really enjoyed my four years here. The school has a lot to offer,” said soon to be graduate, Vanessa Banuelos.

“This is yet another example from recent rankings showing the value added by a CSUSB degree.”

Despite progress, some states underwater

By JORGE CAMPOS

Nearly 50 percent of America expects gaps in state budgets as a result of the recent lean U.S. economy. An analysis of statehouse finance around the country shows that at least 22 states project shortfalls for the coming fiscal year, according to the Associated Press. The shortage recalls the depression era anxiety about reducing the tax revenue and deep cuts to education, social services and other government-funded programs. Other states have been hurt by a steep decline in oil prices or have seen their efforts to promote growth through tax cuts fail to work as anticipated, according to The Huffington Post.

The result would separate the nations between states such as California and Colorado, which are riding a wave of economic recovery and others such as Illinois and Pennsylvania are closer to an economic decline, according to the Associated Press.

Alabama, for example, faces a $290-million loss after a voter-approved bailout expires at the end of the current fiscal year, according to The Huffington Post.

“The expected budget cuts could create a $27 million hole in the state’s court system, forcing more than 600 layoffs and leaving only one juvenile probation officer and two clerical staffers in each county,” stated Administrative Director for the Alabama Unified Judicial System Rich Hobson.

“If nothing is done, the courts will not have the staff to send jury notices, monitor juvenile delinquents, process protection orders and collect and distribute child support payments,” stated Hobson.

To avoid cuts, Republican Gov. Robert Bentley proposed raising $541 million through increases in tobacco and automobile taxes, according to The Huffington Post.

Social Security to run out of money

Social Security trust funds for retirement and disability programs will be depleted by 2033.

When these trust funds are depleted, the annual revenue from payroll tax is projected to cover only 75 percent of benefits until 2088, according to the Social Security and Medicare Trustees’ 2014 report.

The youngest baby boomers will have reached age 67 by 2031, which is nearly double the number in 2008, according to CNBC.

A commission of the Social Security Administration, Carolyn Colvin, stressed the importance of the situation and stated, “I don’t want to be dramatic, but I’ve worked with this population my whole career. I think we would give them a death sentence.

President Barack Obama’s 2016 budget proposed to reallocate funds from the Old-Age and Survivors Insurance Trust Fund and benefits would not be reduced after 2016, pushing the problem onto the old-age, which would not entirely alleviate the problem, according to Forbes magazine.

Studies from researchers at Harvard University and Dartmouth College found that the Social Security Administration has overstated the financial health of the program’s trust funds since 2000, according to USA Today.

These biases are getting bigger and they are substantial. Social Security is going to be insolvent before everyone thinks,” stated Gary King researcher and co-author of the studies conducted at Harvard University.

The study calculates the unfunded obligations of Social Security with the “infinite horizon” method and estimates $24.9 trillion unfunded liabilities compared to $10.6 trillion projected in 2088.

The study comes from the Social Security Administration.

Students to attend employer information sessions provided on campus.

The new Internship Coordinator, Erica Alexander, will help those who seek internships. If the internship is with an intergovernmental agency or a non-profit entity, Alexander will help with a stipend. The money is $1,000 and comes from the student fees, explained Rodriguez.

There will also be more classroom workshops where students will learn how to network, build strong resumes, and use LinkedIn.

There will also be more mock interviews where students will learn how to network, build strong resumes, and use LinkedIn. The available in the Career Center are mock interviews, which serve as a valuable tool for students. Career Center Intern Director, Christina Rodriguez, encouraged students to attend employer information sessions provided on campus.

The Career Center offers mini job fairs that present an opportunity to interact and converses with future employers, explained Rodriguez. To attend these job fairs, students must register beforehand.

Students should take advantage of all the services the Career Center has to offer, including the Clothes Closet, where they can get a tie, or even a suit.

The next mini job fair is on May 19, and is already fully booked.

There may still be some available spots on the June 4 fair,” said Rodriguez.

An e-mail from Health 101 points out that this is not just for seniors, but will also help other undergraduate students find summer jobs.

The College of Business and Public Administration (CBPA) has many services for students. With five different departments in fields like accounting and finance, information and decision sciences, management, marketing and public administration, the CBPA has many opportunities for students to expand and grow in these fields.

The Student Services Center is located in Jack Brown Hall, Room 134. The center is an office dedicated to CBPA students where academic advising, internships and career services are available for those who would like to receive assistance in the transition from college to career exploration.

According to the Student Services Center, their mission is to provide "a one-stop shop, students bridge the connection to on and off-campus resources, people and programs, enhancing the educational experience and ultimately, student success."

Jessica Chavez, the internship coordinator, is actively involved in helping students reach their professional goals. They have workshops accessible to students who are interested in learning about internships, specifically how to prepare for one, how to properly search for internships and what the requirements are. These workshops aimed for student success are an asset that many students should look into when looking to grow professionally.

The academic adviser for CBPA students, Ellie Gault, is also available for students who are in need of advising.

The academic advising aspect is an additional offering within the Student Services Center where students can come in and get assistance in better understanding their PAWS report, obtaining forms necessary to register and they can also help with determining a concentration.

The Student Services Center has what is called CBPA Connect that is primarily for CBPA students. This online tool helps CBPA students have interactive access to a calendar with available appointments for the Student Services Center, get connected with job opportunities, attend internship information, and have specific library resources. However, this center is not the only resource for CBPA students.

The office for Master’s in Business Administration is also one that has essential information for soon-to-be graduate students to find out about their programs and their requirements.

This office is located in Jack Brown, Room 283, and aims to prepare students for "positions of high responsibility and leadership within Business Administration," according to their mission statement.

Within this office is the Graduate Career Advisor, Pamela Abeel, who serves to teach students how to work a career fair, job search strategies and life planning skills. The CBPA also strives to recognize the departments and students' achievements through the Impact magazine.

Impact's purpose is to bring awareness to students and community members of upcoming events, accreditations and awards received by students. Through the magazine, students can learn about the scholarship recipients in addition to the International Exchange Program.

Coyote health important to CSUSB

By ERIKA FLORES Staff Writer

X-rays, pap smears, lab work, and birth control are just a few of the many services provided by the Student Health Center (SHC).

The doctors, nurse practitioners, nurses, pharmacists and health educators of CSUSB SHC are dedicated to providing a high degree of health care to university students.

Specific services provided by SHC include a medical clinic, laboratory services, a pharmacy, STI/STD testing, women's health immunizations, health and wellness promotion services and confidential medical services.

Most of the services provided by the department are either covered by the student health fee or carry additional fees.

Some fees may be applied to specialty services, procedures, labs, vaccines, prescriptions and/or supplies. Costs are subject to change depending on these factors, therefore consultation is necessary when determining costs.

The SHC also works with several other health sectors on campus in the hopes of providing quality services and promoting health awareness.

Family Planning, Access, Care and Treatment (PACT) program, a service compatible with SHC, focuses primarily on reproductive health.

They provide confidential family planning and services like no cost birth control, condoms, emergency contraceptive

Benefits of joining a club or organization

By CECILIA GUTIERREZ Staff Writer

Being a part of a club or organization may be one aspect that sets you apart in a job interview. Employers are looking for more in potential employees.

Becoming a part of clubs and organizations on campus not only means you were involved, but it also demonstrates that you strive for new experiences, want to meet new people and actually become a part of school affairs.

CSUSB’s Student Leadership and Development (SLD) department encompasses system-wide leadership experience through co-curricular program involvement.

There are more than 100 clubs and organizations on campus to suit nearly every interest.

SLD works alongside these clubs and organizations by providing ongoing workshops and advising sessions for potential student leaders.

Being a part of clubs and organizations offers students time management, leadership and networking skills.

Clubs and organizations offer opportunities for students to challenge themselves with new responsibilities while also providing educational, social, and recreational experiences intended to enrich a student’s life far beyond college.

Not only do these clubs offer personal benefits, but they also provide opportunities for students to go above and beyond in helping public and getting involved in community services.

The sorority Alpha Phi, for example, has participated in many community service events this year.

Some of the community events they have participated in include serving at Helping Hands Pantry, reading at multiple elementary schools, participating in Career Days at middle schools and assisting as tour leaders for Chino Hills Wetlands’ Annual Earth Day.

Alpha Phi alone offers community service two to three times a month.

Every club and organization is unique in the services they provide.

Each individual club and organization strengthens a student and builds these leadership characteristics employers are looking for.

If there is not a club that fits your particular interests, it is actually possible to start your own.

For further guidance, you may contact the SLD office at (909) 537-5234 or visit the SLD office in the Santos Manuel Student Union in Room 203.

Coyote health important to CSUSB

The produce stand has been here on campus for nearly three years now and it helps promote healthy eating, giving students a convenient alternative to the other less healthy foods here on campus.

Debrianna Gonzalez, a CSUSB junior, notes these health care services are "really convenient."

"We should all be taking advantage of these services. Unfortunately, a lot of people think they don't qualify or are kind of scared. But this is our health and we should be making every effort to stay healthy," said Gonzalez.

Gonzalez added, “We only get one body and one life; we need to take care of it.”

Indeed, confronting health issues can be of great difficulty.

There are many departments that come together to promote health awareness. However, it is up to you, the student, to reach out to these services.

Even if you already have health insurance, the Student Health Fee is mandatory. So if you need any type of health care, you should take advantage of these quality, convenient and affordable facilities while you can.

You can make an appointment at the Student Health Center by going online to coyotehealth.csusb.edu.

You may also want more information by calling (909) 537-5241 or by stopping by the SHC located to the right of the Santos Manuel Student Union.

The SHC is open Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Immigrants should be legal

By KASSANDRA GARCIA
Staff Writer

“Illegal” immigration has been the defining characteristic since our country began. So I cannot help but cringe whenever I hear anti-immigration protesters use “stop illegal alien invasion” and “make America, American again” as a means to get their point across. In my opinion, this type of abrasive language contributes to the animosity towards immigrants which allows these individuals to be dehumanized.

However, having a chance to question the logic behind anti-immigration supporters. Have they forgotten that this country was established by immigrants and not once were they referred to as alien or illegal?

“Repetition of phrases like ‘illegal immigrants’ is like a poison that infects society,” said Charles Garcia of CNN. “It’s crazy that people think it’s okay to even call someone an alien.”

The terms “illegal” and “alien” were first coined in the 1920s after those who previously settled began to find mass immigration as a danger to the health and security of their newly established country, the United States.

Ironically enough, immigration reforms were established by immigrants for immigrants. I understand that illegal immigration is a huge issue but the term “illegal alien” was born to stigmatize undocumented immigrants and in no way helps the United States’ immigration problem.

Anti-immigration protestors argue that the use of these terms are not used pejoratively, but are used as an accurate description of immigrants. According to Elie Wiesel, Nobel Peace Prize winner and Holocaust survivor, the use of “illegal alien” is inaccurate, offensive and should be eliminated from our public discourse.

I strongly agree with Wiesel. When you label someone an “illegal alien” or “illegal immigrant” or just plain “illegal,” you are effectively saying the individual, as opposed to their actions, is unlawful.

“You who are so-called illegal aliens must know that no human being is illegal,” said Elie Wiesel. According to the Immigration and Nationality Act, being “illegally” present in the United States is a civil violation, not a criminal one.

“The terms imply the very existence of unauthorized migrants in America and label them less than. These terms criminalise and dehumanise immigrants,” said student Ashley Vargas.

Why are undocumented immigrants today seen as an “aliens” or an “illegal”? Why are they dehumanized and frowned upon when this whole country was founded on immigration? “It’s crazy that people think it’s okay to even call someone an alien. My dad first came here. We’re all here legally, including my dad, now, and he’s so happy because he doesn’t have to deal with the torment,” added the student.

This whole “stop alien invasion and reclaim America” protest is ridiculous. People trying to reclaim something that was never rightfully theirs is hilarious.

So the fact that these protestors even argue deportation and use stigmatizing and dehumanizing terminology is ironic. Don’t preach about how all illegal aliens need to be deported because if that were truly the case, anti-immigration protestors along with everyone else should be deported.

Immigrants should be legal. It’s my opinion, this type of abrasive language contributes to the animosity towards immigrants which allows these individuals to be dehumanized.

I believe condescending victim narratives are often used as a way to prestige. Why are undocumented immigrants today seen as an “aliens” or an “illegal”? Degree marks “beginning” for grads

By JESY AMARO

College graduates should develop their networking and personal skills in their field of study to increase their chances of being hired by a company of their desire. Graduation season is right around the corner and starting to pay off loans never seemed so close.

Fear not, graduate, for the networking and personal skills, they can visit networks or personal skills, they can visit classmates. These skills can be knowing how to glide easily through work responsibilities, along with representing the company’s title in a positive manner.

Although CSUSB students seek for employment in the Inland Empire, it is wise to broaden their search by looking outside of this region.

“Of the biggest obstacles facing our students is that they don’t want to leave the Inland Empire, and there’s not enough employment to support everyone,” said Rodriguez.

The top three nearby cities willing to hire college graduates are San Diego, San Jose, and San Francisco, according to Forbes.com.

These cities are willing to hire fresh-ly new graduates to the workforce due to the fact that they are cities that have the resources to provide growth for the community.

With that being said, do not feel discouraged if you do not land your first job opportunity because there will always be plenty of more cities looking to hire recent college graduates.

Some SJWs are ignorant

By BRITTANIE GUTIERREZ
Staff Writer

The average person pretends to know what they are talking about, but in reality know only shallow surface points of the social issue or topic they are arguing.

The social justice warriors (SJW), passionate social issue advocates, who start blogs, web pages, and petitions to persistently “enlighten” the average person to look at the topics that were once ignored.

“I feel like they should learn more about the topic before speaking on social media because that’s how misunderstanding comes about and then could be seen as ignorant,” said student Jayme Johnson.

SJW are often ignorant of important informational proponents about social issues or topics that could change their mind.

Job market opportunities are always changing, therefore do not expect the dream job at first glance to be offered, but rather, work hard and keep persevering.

Achieving a college degree marks the start for a new beginning. Do not let the misconception of simply earning a degree fool you into thinking that you learned all there is to know about networking and personal skills.

Coyote Wonderland

By MARVIN GARCIA

CSUSB is breaking new ground with electronic dance music (EDM). The Santos Manuel Student Union (SMSU) Program Board and CSUSB's DJ Output Club brought the wonder with Coyote Wonderland, letting students rave the hell out of their minds and party during an unforgettable night on May 8.

This event had it all; the ambiance, music, lights, wildness, and an overwhelming, packed dance floor at the mercy of an incredibly talented disk jockey who showed energy and style.

This was the night where spirits elevated to the beat of EDM.

"For a couple of years, people have been wanting EDM music in gathering events having said they were getting tired on the hip-hop," said Giacamo Thillet, a SMSU Program Board student assistant.

He added, "We want to tailor our music to particular crowds and we don’t want to leave anybody out."

Organized through a collaboration between the two groups, Coyote Wonderland was the first of its kind on our campus.

The DJ Output Club aimed to emulate Insomniac, a nocturnal sensation, practically the essence of what EDM is all about.

According to Thillet, this was a big move for both groups since in past events, students were not all too inclined or had a preference to this type of genre.

Yet, with the current popularity and growing market of EDM, this gave more than enough incentive to formulate something strictly based around this genre and true to its core.

"Compared to past events, this became one of the biggest we ever had, period," concluded Thillet.

The overall reaction was positive. Normally after an event people give their feedback; it started strong and ended strong.

"The night was amazing. The DJs made it what it was; it was a thing of the moment, you just got hypnotized," said attendee Jazmine Mendoza.

In the end, Coyote Wonderland had a turnout of about 1,200 people, who attended from beginning to end. Due to the great reception, there is great promise of making Coyote Wonderland an annual event.

The SMSU Program Board and DJ Output Club’s next big event is Coyote Fest 2015, with DJ Wall-E owning the floor.

If you missed Coyote Wonderland, make sure to not miss the fun at the end of the year party!

The Growlers made a triumphant return to the West Coast last week, performing at The Observatory North Park in San Diego, Calif. on May 9.

The band formed in 2006 in Costa Mesa, Calif. and are known for their heavy fusion of rock and psychedelic sounds; a genre they call Beach Goth.

The band is composed of Brooks Nielsen (vocals), Matt Taylor (lead guitar, multi-instrumentalist, Bobb Bruno), Bethany Cosentino, and Cory Weissman (bass), Kyle Straka (keyboards) who all bear a striking resemblance to The White Stripes, Tegan and Sara, and Matt and Kim.

The band said good night, which left everyone in shock.

“We immediately got both guys and girls singing along since it is one of their most popular songs and immediately got a reaction when the crowd heard the keyboard solo in the intro. Almost all the couples in the crowd were dancing together while belting out the lyrics that seemed to mirror their relationships.

They closed the night with another one of their most popular tracks, “Love Test.”

All the girls in the audience were on an emotional roller coaster when a spotlight was put on Nielsen as he sang what his definition of a real woman and real love is.

The room then went dark after the band said good night, which left everyone in shock.

It led to the whole crowd eagery shouting, "Encore! Encore! Encore!"

“They can’t end the show without playing ‘Chinese Fountain’ man, they have to play it!” said a crowd member.

The purple hazy spotlights on the stage were suddenly turned back on as a scroll was unveiled showing a photo of them for the encore performance.

They ended the night by playing “Chinese Fountain,” which elevated the entire crowd to a place of sheer bliss.

Best Coast meets the West Coast

Best Coast, a band formed in Los Angeles in 2009, consists of two members, songwriter, and lead vocalists, Bethany Cosentino, and guitar and multi-instrumentalist, Bobb Bruno.

"California Nights" lacks any originality and does not live up to its previous success.

From the beginning, you are in a trance, and it seems peaceful, but as it progresses from track to track, you begin to wonder if you accidentally hit repeat on the same song.

The variety is lacklustre, and the sound is the generic hipster, Indie rock sound.

“I’m not disappointed, but it is something like they have released,” said student Justin Wolcott.

The sounds and tunes of the album make me feel as though I’m in an American Eagle store just background music that I don’t pay attention too.

With “California Nights” being the first single that was released from the album, this was by far the most impressive as the lyrics were easy to listen to and somewhat enjoyable.

One of the main lyrics of this song is “California nights make me so happy, I could die but I’m trying to stay alive.” This is a lyric that relates to many people who are trying to survive and stay happy in life.

This excitement was not long lived though with another song on the album titled “Heaven Sent.”

The lyrics in this song were very similar to their previous albums and not in a good way.

Cosentino, lacks the vocal range needed to showcase any true emotion.

Throughout the whole album, it seems as though she is singing the same song over and over again but with different lyrics.

Bruno’s instrumentally would put any person to sleep and has no variety in the sounds he makes.

By the middle of the album, it all just sounds the same, and at one point the songs just sound like a garage band trying to win a high school talent show.

Best Coast is that band that was late to the party, and is trying to catch up.

Its sounds and lack of emotion will keep it from moving forward and is a surprise to me that they were ever able to make another album.

As a duo that is trying to make a name for themselves, they do not distinguish themselves from other duos, such as The White Stripes, Tegan and Sara, and Matt and Kim.

“It’s never heard of them, and to be honest I thought you had asked me what coast was the best coast,” said student Jessica Menjar.

It is no surprise that many of the students here on campus have never heard of Best Coast.

“It’s too echoey, hopefully when they release their next album it will be better, some bands just have a few hits and a few misses,” said student Miguel Torres.

With “California Nights” being the band’s third album, Best Coast has never really been able to live up to its successful first album “Crazy for You” back in 2010.

Their second album, “The Only Place”, had a cleaner sound, but didn’t have as much success as the first.

Best Coast doesn’t seem as though it will ever make a big name for itself, and will soon be one of those bands that took part in the Indie rock era, but never made it.

Schwarzenegger terminates great movie streak

By JOSE ALVAREZ
Staff Writer

Our former governor, Arnold Schwarzenegger, stars in a disappointing film.

“Maggie” is a horror-drama film that has been playing in select theaters since its limited release on May 9. Critics believe the only reason that this film has been getting any traction is because of Schwarzenegger’s iconic name.

The plot goes as follows: Maggie, played by Abigail Breslin from “Zombieland,” is a teenage girl who gets infected and slowly transforms into a zombie. Maggie’s father Wade, played by Schwarzenegger, is now faced with a difficult decision, either send Maggie to the quarantine zone where she will be killed, or kill his own daughter.

I felt that one of the movie’s biggest mistakes was that it never showed the quarantine zone; we merely get a few references to it, letting us know that sending someone there will result in a painful death.

The trailer made this movie seem different and worth a shot, but if I have to be completely honest, I did not have a good time watching this film.

Compared to the multiple zombie films I have seen, like “Land of the Dead” and “28 Days Later,” the movie had a slower pace than the film offered.

Overall, the film felt druggy and sluggish, as if there was never anything important present, or as if there was no moral message.

“I wish I would’ve got to see that quarantine zone they were talking about. It’s all kind of a disappointment,” said third-year student Juan Elizalde.

“Except for Arnold, I felt that the actors could have done a bit better; I just couldn’t get into their world,” Elizalde continued.

Schwarzenegger plays a role that’s not so typical of him and although it’s good to see a different side of him, it throws the movie off balance.

“I was expecting Arnold to play a different role, and he didn’t really have any action scenes, which made it weird for me,” said Francisco Guzman, CSUSB student and regular moviegoer.

This movie just seemed confused, as if it didn’t know if it wanted to be suspenseful or dramatic, and it ends up doing both very poorly.

Nothing interesting happened, excluding one scene where Maggie had to cut off one of her fingers in order to stop the “vi-rus” from spreading.

This was the only scene that got a reaction from the audience and will be the only scene I will remember from the film. The movie did not feel like it was aimed at any particular audience and just seemed like it was released without a purpose.

The ending was highly predictable, especially after Maggie started losing control of herself, turning into a zombie and satisfying her new hunger for flesh.

This scene made it clear that it was too late for her.

Not once did I feel engaged or on the edge, and it remains to be seen how Schwarzenegger will respond next.

Growing more and more in popularity, the “dad bod” and the ideals behind it are sweeping the nation. Defined by Peter Holley of The Washington Post as “a shirtless, soft-bellied swain north of 30 who is currently lounging on his couch dipping lightly-salted tortilla chips into a kiddie pool of guacamole.”

“The kind that looks like [he] should be pushing a stroller and Googling high-blood pressure medications,” continued Holley.

A man with a “dad bod” is a man with an average body type, still slightly in-shape, but at the same time, not one you would see in the gym everyday: a normal man.

News outlets across the nation have been covering the topic. Most recently, The Daily Show with John Stewart on Comedy Central did a piece on May 12 and said, “what a great day for men!” Stewart brought on guest Kristen Schaal who commented on how men and their “mostly adequate physique” are praised, while women prefer men with a “dad bod” over one with more muscular features.

“I don’t need a man with all that muscle, I like to cuddle with someone that’s not rock hard,” continued Shubin.

“Dad bod” or not, Schaal encourages men to “show off how your looks are not what society values most in you.”

Restaurant Review:

U-Grill is an all-you-can-eat Korean BBQ restaurant that has newly opened. The food is prepared before your eyes and in any way you would like because at U-Grill, you become the chef. Of course, the staff may guide you upon request.

The staff of U-Grill strives to offer service that is willing to guide you through the process. Staff immediately greets you from the front podium, inviting you into their Korean experience – leading you to the table equipped with a grill.

The menu’s proteins vary from beef, pork, and chicken, while the restaurants sides include their popular dishes such as cheese corn, kimchi rice soup, and steamed egg bowls.

Almost all reviews on Yelp mention how service is on-point, courteous, great, and helpful. Reviews range from four to five stars; many go on and on about how exceptional the restaurant aims to be. Mike Lee, their marketing agent, gave me a tip to never forget my ABC’s — always be cooking — so you never have to wait to eat the next course.

“If you want the best KBBQ, come here! Better than Gen KBBQ,” stated Andrew A. via Yelp.

“2 DRUNK 2 CARE” DRIVER JAILLED

(ALSO PICTURED) Mendoza was sentenced to 24 years in jail for manslaughter and vehicular homicide. She crashed into another car while under the influence of alcohol and causing the death of her friend who was in the other car.

“2 drunk 2 care” driver Kaila Mendoza, charged with driving under the influence, manslaughter and vehicular homicide, was sent to jail for 24 years, according to Daily Mail.

The incident occurred on a Florida highway around 2:00 a.m. on Nov. 17, 2013, according to Daily Mail. Mendoza, 20 at the time, celebrated a friend’s 21st birthday by drinking at Tijuana Taxi Company in Coral Springs.

At approximately 8 p.m., Mendoza tweeted “2 drunk 2 care” and a few hours later, she drove off, according to Daily Mail.

Mendoza drove on the wrong side of the road and crashed into another vehicle; the driver and passenger were her two friends, according to Daily Mail.

Marta Catronio was pronounced dead at the scene of the accident, according to Lee Moran of Daily News. Katelyn Ferrante died four days later at her stay in Broward Health North Hospital, according to Daily News.

"[Mendoza] had a blood-alcohol content of more than twice the legal limit and marijuana in her system at the time of the accident," according to the Florida Highway Patrol.

"Many people believe Mendoza tweeted “2 drunk 2 care” in respect to her driving partially because of her social media presence," on Twitter, she is a self-proclaimed “pothead princess” who has proudly admitted that her car forever-smells like marijuana and she “can’t sleep without [her] bedtime blunt.”

"However, Mendoza said the tweet was directed to her boyfriend after a fight. “It did not mean, ‘I’m too drunk to care and I’m going to get in my car now and wherever the hell I end up, that’s it.’ No,” said Mendoza.

“It was directed to my boyfriend. That’s the only person it was for,” added Mendoza.

The justice department sentenced Mendoza to 24 years of imprisonment for her DUI and killing two people. The court should charge additional punishment to the butte.

Position the apple quarters on top of the butter and sugar in a circular pattern. Place the skillet over medium-high heat and cook until the butter melts and the sugar dissolves and begins to caramelize.

Continue to cook until the apples soften and the caramel begins to brown (about 20 minutes). Let the dessert cool down for 5 minutes. Place a plate over the top of the pan and carefully invert to release the tarte from the pan.

Ingredients

- ½ cup extra virgin olive oil, plus more as needed
- 3 medium red bell peppers, cored, seeded
- 6 medium tomatoes
- 3 medium Japanese eggplants
- 5 medium zucchini
- ½ cup packed parsley - flat leaf, roughly chopped
- ¼ cup packed basil, roughly chopped
- Salt to taste

Preheat your oven to 400 degrees Fahrenheit. Slice the red bell peppers and the tomatoes in 6 to 8 pieces. Cut the eggplants and zucchini into ½-inch thick rounds.

Put all of the vegetables in a 9 inch by 13 inch glass dish. Add the parsley and basil. Stir everything together to have a consistent mix.

Pour the olive oil all over the vegetables. You can add some more if you want.

Put your dish in the oven. Cook for 1 hour at 400 degrees Fahrenheit. Stir the vegetables up together every 20 minutes.

An alternative preparation often done in France includes eating the Ratatouille with fried or soft-boiled eggs.

You may prepare them separately and mix them together later or cook them within the Ratatouille in a frying pan.

The Tarte Tatin is one of those desserts you can find in a majority of French restaurants. Think of an apple pie prepared upside down and served right side up.

Bonne nouvelle, it’s super simple to do.

Preparation time: 15 minutes

Cooking Time: 30 minutes

Makes a 10-inch pie.

Ingredients

- 3 large Braeburn apples, or use a mix of Honeycrisp and Granny Smith, peeled, cored, and sliced in quarters
- 1 9-inch unbaked pie crust
- 3 tablespoons of non-salted butter
- ¼ cup of white sugar

Preheat your oven to 425 degrees Fahrenheit.

Coat a 10 inch oven-proof skillet with butter.

Pour the sugar evenly over the top of the butters. Position the apple quarters on top of the butter and sugar in a circular pattern. Place the skillet over medium-high heat and cook until the butter melts and the sugar dissolves and begins to caramelize.

Continue to cook until the apples soften and the caramel begins to brown (about 20 minutes). Let the dessert cool down for 5 minutes. Place a plate over the top of the pan and carefully invert to release the tarte from the pan.

Intramural sports to keep Yotes fit

Intramural sports to keep Yotes fit

By LAUREN JENNINGS

Intramural sports are a fun way for the “average Joe” to participate in sports they enjoy or want to try in their free time.

The Student Recreation and Fitness Center (Rec Center) offers flag football, volleyball, indoor and outdoor soccer, dodgeball, basketball and softball, all of which are co-ed.

CSUSB offers two leagues of intramural sports, an independent league and a fraternity league.

The fraternity league offers the same sports as the independent league and features members of Sigma Chi, Delta Sigma Phi, Sigma Phi Epsilon and Sigma Nu.

Basketball is played with five players team and consists of two 20-minute halves.

Dodgeball is played with six players per team and consists of two 20-minute halves.

Snorkeling can be done at any beach, all you need is a mask and a snorkel and you might enjoy the use of fins.

The next summer activity to try is snorkeling.

Summer water sports for students

By SHELBY HANCOCK

S
ave big bucks and have a blast this summer by renting summer sports equipment from the Student Recreation and Fitness Center (Rec Center).

The Rec Center Outdoors Program offers a variety of low-cost summer sports rentals for CSUSB students.

The kayaking package ranges from $22 to $43 depending on if it’s a single or tandem kayak, snorkeling packages range from four to six dollars, surf packages are $25 and paddle board rentals vary from $12 to $16.

Kayaking is pretty simple; all you need is a kayak, a paddle, and a life jacket.

For beginners, the beach or bay is a great place to start with a leisurely paddle across the water.

“Options for expert kayakers include entering races, completing multi-day trips and tackling white water,” according to Diana Gerstacker of Active Times.

Although it seems pretty easy, experts at smart-start-kayaking offer some advice.

“I always encourage them to learn a few of the kayaking basics—you know, the beginners stuff...before hitting the water,” according to smart-start-kayaking.

The next beach activity to try this summer is surfing. Although it may look easy, it’s not.

Many different skills are required to surf, such as speed, agility, and balance.

Surfing is “a dynamic sport which can be practiced by people at all levels of ability,” according to wisegeek.com.

All that is required for this fun sport is a wave and a surfboard.

The next summer activity to try is surfing.

Snorkeling can be done at any beach, all you need is a mask and a snorkel and you might enjoy the use of fins.

Participants put the mask on so they are able to see what lies on the ocean floor.

The snorkel helps the swimmer breathe without losing sight of the marine life underneath them.

“Snorkeling is a very enjoyable and easy sport,” according to tropicalsnorkeling.com.

Although it’s meant to be fun, there are some things a snorkeler needs to know before trying it.

“Snorkeling without some basic skills, good equipment, and knowledge about the dangers and conditions of the ocean, a first time snorkeling experience can be a bit miserable, scary and potentially dangerous,” continued tropicalsnorkeling.com.

The last summer activity is paddle boarding.

Stand-up paddle boarding offers a relaxing and fun way to play on the water and can be done on lakes, rivers or oceans.

Paddle boarding emerged as an ancient form of surfing and has once more become popular.

One of the many great things about paddle boarding is it offers a full body workout, while practicing balance. Another great benefit of paddle boarding are the views you get to experience.

“[Paddle boarding is] a way for people to enjoy oceans, lakes, rivers and bays using a one-bladed paddle and standing on a longer and wider surf board with a bit more volume,” according to paddlediva.com.

“Since you stand at your full height, you can enjoy unique views of everything from sea creatures to what’s on the horizon,” according to rei.com.

Only minimal gear is required for this sport: a paddle board, paddle, flotation device and some sunblock are some recommended supplies.

Make the short drive out to the beach this summer, but before you do, head to the Rec Center to rent some equipment to try a fun summer sport.

Anticipating a great season for Coyote women’s soccer

By LAUREN JENNINGS

Fall quarter may be several months away, but tryouts for Fall 2015 Coyote Futbol Club Women’s Soccer team have already begun.

Just $10 and some experience gives students the opportunity to tryout, show their dedication and work hard to hard as well as allows players a chance to make the team.

“Sport club teams are designed for amateur athletes who enjoy fun, excitement, and inter-collegiate competition,” stated the Student Recreation and Fitness Center (Rec Center) website.

The team is a part of the West Coast Soccer Association (WCAS), which features both men and women teams.

The WCSSA is a club level organization that defines themselves as “a competitive, but more relaxed environment than the NCAA,” as stated on their website.

The women’s team is prepped to play other club teams from schools such as UCLA, USC, and UC San Diego.

Some past teams CSUSB played include UC Riverside, CSU Fullerton, and CSU Northridge.

Anywhere between 19 to 25 women make up the roster depending on the season.

The team plays both at home and travels to other schools to compete, playing about six games per season.

Other CSUSB competitive club teams include men’s soccer, Mixed Martial Arts (MMA) Club, women’s and men’s volleyball and women’s water polo.

In addition to club teams CSUSB also offers recreational sports clubs, when include running, badminton, tennis and table tennis.

Club teams are open to all current students who have a membership with the Rec Center.

Information regarding the club teams can be found online at csusbsports.com or on campus at the Rec Center.
Workouts for summer
Giving students options for workouts, at home or at the gym

By RICARDO MENDEZ
Staff Writer

With commitment, there are many workout trends that guarantee results in 90 days or less.

“If depends on the person but I would definitely recommend workouts plans to people,” said junior Eloy Carlin.

Nowadays people are skipping the gym and sweating it out in their living rooms.

Some new trends include P90X, Insanity, CrossFit, the 90-Day Ab Challenge and obstacle course race training.

“By 2013 more than three million people had run an obstacle run race,” according to journalist Erin Beresini’s book, “Off Course: Inside the Mad, Muddy World of Obstacle Course Racing.”

This trend is becoming nationwide with events like Camp Rhino, Epic Hybrid Training and UXF Civilian Military Combine (CMC) providing some of the many programs designed for training.

These outdoor courses include weights and rigorous obstacle courses.

Some gyms are now offering classes to train members for these kind of events.

A high intensity interval drill is P90X.

“It was painful, I thought it was going to be easier, it turned out more difficult than I thought it was going to be,” said junior Herman Ruiz.

This hardship includes intense eruption of exercises with short breaks.

Participants rest on day seven but the program still requires some sort of movement.

With commitment, the program guarantees that you will get “ripped” in 90 days.

One of the newest trends is CrossFit.

CrossFit’s aim is to “forge a broad, general and inclusive fitness,” according to crossfit.com.

This lifestyle starts out with fundamental training, which includes different squats like air, front and overhead usualy done with a medicine ball.

These basic training methods are to perfect weight lifting and explosive movements.

This program is 60 days of high intensity aerobic and resistance training that targets the core, glutes, arms and back.

The regular program includes olympic lifting exercises such as power cleans, snatches and jerks.

These exercises require you to use your whole body to make the lifting process easier.

It’s a time-based group fitness class where everybody pushes each other and where together everybody suffers, according to Megan May, head trainer at Reebok CrossFit Fifth Avenue.

Insanity is a body workout that requires no gym or exercise equipment.

Some people are “crazy enough to actually enjoy doing the world’s most insanity tough workout,” stated fitness trainer Shaun Thompson.

This program is 60 days of high intensity aerobic and resistance training that targets the core, glutes, arms and back.

“I would definitely recommend it to others, to lose weight and get fit,” said Carlin.

The 30-Day Ab Challenge is another workout that can be done in your living room or any other space you feel comfortable in.

The workout is three times a week with a total of 700 reps a week including crunches, ab scissors, double knee jumps and standing side bends.

The workout is not as intense because you rest every other day.

Summer is coming up and we want to look good in our shorts and for these kind of events.

The Insanity workout claims to give the best results.

The goal of the Insanity workout is to get you in the best shape of your life.

The Insanity workout can lower your body fat to as much as 7%.

“By 2013 more than three million people had run an obstacle run race,” according to journalist Erin Beresini’s book, “Off Course: Inside the Mad, Muddy World of Obstacle Course Racing.”

Obstacle Training

• Obstacle races will test your skill, speed, strength, agility, ability and mental limits.

• Successfully completing an obstacle race is as much about your strategy, cardiovascular fitness, and even your balance as it is about your strength.

• These workouts target specific strengths and endurance.

30-Day Ab Challenge

• The 30-Day Ab Challenge shows all of the participants how they are able to do some simple workouts in a way that shows results.

• With normal crunches, leg raises, hip raises and planks within your workout, getting some results within 30 days is almost certain.

P90X

• The cardiovascular programs provide creative and complete fitness sessions that incorporate the entire body.

• Different muscle combinations are focused on in the different sessions and are completed every other day, in between the cardio programs.

• The main attribute of the P90X program is the sculpting programs that use a wide range of weighted dumbbells and resistance bands.

Insanity

• No matter if you are looking for weight loss, or adding muscle mass or maybe just improving overall fitness, the Insanity workout claims to give the best results.

• The goal of the Insanity workout is to get you in the best shape of your life.

• The Insanity workout can lower your body fat to as much as 7%.

CrossFit

• CrossFit workouts call for a varied set of exercises that, in many cases, are to be done as quickly as possible or within a certain time frame.

• None of this was really an issue for CrossFit fans when it was primarily Navy SEALs or first responders or assorted other fitness savants pushing themselves to extremes.
