Blacks Making Waves in State Politics

This week I will focus on some of California’s most influential people who make public policy or have the ear in the policymakers of California. Some are a long time while others are newly elected officials in the State Assembly and Senate. You have Wihter Amina Carter, Karen Bass, Mervyn Dynally, Laura Richardson, Mark Ridley Thomas, and Sandre Swanson, Mike Davis, Curren Price, Edward Vincent, all on the legislative side of making public policy. These are voices of Black Californians in Sacramento. It is their responsibility to raise concerns that otherwise might not be mentioned before laws are enacted. They have the responsibility to remind other legislators that they have a responsibility to be inclusive in the deliberation of fairness, equality, access and sharing the resources of the state’s finances.

In the Governor’s office you have Timothy Simon, Assistant Director of Political Action. Even appointed by the governor has to go through his office. He has pledged to help the governor bring the best and brightest most qualified individuals into state service. Simon earned a Jurist Doctorate degree from the University of California, Hastings College of Law and a Bachelor of Arts degree from the University of California. He previously served as General Counsel and Chief Compliance Officer for Global Crown Capital, LLC. He is an adjunct professor at Golden Gate University School of Law.

Also in the Governor’s office is Margaret Fortune, Sr. Advisor to the Governor and former Public Affairs Director. No longer is she an “emerging leader” quoting an article from the San Francisco Chronicle in 2006. She has emerged. She has a solid reputation in education where she led the effort to relevant Sacramento High School in teacher recruitment. Her recruitment efforts found employment for over 4,000 credentialed teachers in school districts in Northern California. She is from Sacramento and has a Master’s Degree from Harvard University’s Kennedy School of Government and a Bachelor’s degree from the University of California at Berkeley. She was the school’s first female African American student body president. It was Fortune and Dr. Paulnette Brown-Hinds that guided the governor’s campaign to garner a whopping 75% of the Black vote in November. These were the stormy waters of the Black voters who saw no promise in the Democratic candidate. Both Fortune and Armstrong-Hinds are registered Democrats but believed Arnold Schwarzenegger’s agenda would best serve the Black community.

Dr. Paulnette Brown-Hinds another emerging leader from the Sacramento media side of the agenda. She has a long history of political campaigning. She was the phone bank director for the late Bob Parker who ran many campaigns throughout Southern California. She also interned for Congressman George Brown, in Washington, DC, and was on staff for Congressman Joe Baca before joining the family business as Associate Publisher of The Black Voice News. She and her sister Regina Brown-Wilson founded the first BPC Media Works and she serves as Director in California Black Media. Dr. Brown-Hinds has written and lectured throughout the state about the importance of the Black owned media. She has taught African-American Literature and Culture classes at the University of Cincinnati, where she was a member of the faculty and also lectured throughout Europe and the United States.

Her published work has appeared in leading journals and books, and her comments were most recently published in an old report published by the American Institute for Communications and Media. She earned a doctorate degree in English from California University at Riverside and a bachelor’s degree from California State University. She began her career at the Los Angeles Times and has worked at various newspapers in Toledo and Chicago. She is currently the publisher of the Black Voice News, a bimonthly newspaper that serves as a forum for the expression of a wide spectrum of Black opinion.

Influential Blacks in California Politics

Thursday, February 1, 2007

Willie L. Pelote, Sr., Assistant Director of Political Action by Executive Order S-12-06 which he hopes will lead to more subcontracting in helping to rebuild California’s infrastructure. In one of his visits to the Inland Empire he stated that there are 14,000 certified companies listed with the state with only 1,800 firms bidding on projects. It is his mission to generate more from Black and Hispanic contractors. He has spent the last several months of his appointment visiting all regions in the state, being together with contractors and minority subcontractors and informing them of the opportunities now open to all companies: large and small.

to the war-wraged countries. Said Gerber, Cooper is not only to denounce the war, but also to show the world that more and more people have gained the insight of increasing civil unrest.

"It's painful to watch the slaughter in Iraq and for our voices to be silenced by so many innocent Iraqi people.

By everyone demanding that our government act to support what's been happening in the war has become increasingly strong in a recent period," Cooper said.

"The president wants to sell the war to America. We are here to ask: where's the money?"

Americans for Peace now plans to go to the air force after 9/11 because of protection, travel and money for college.

"Kids, I'm going to play a game. If we want to play along, we have to do it in the way he wants to," Finger said.

"I hope you all do enjoy playing along with me. I hope that you will enjoy your games and our relationship throughout the class."

In order to help students better understand the material, Finger told them to think about the work they did in class. He said that they should consider the work that they did in other classes.

"I'm hoping that you all enjoy this game and that you will enjoy the future of this class," Finger said.

Social worker, Annette Teague, who helped Finger organize the program, said that the program teaches children a "classroom" setting.

"This program has helped the students to understand how they should behave in a classroom setting. It has also helped them to feel more comfortable in that setting."

The results are measure.

The game is tough, strict and highly achievement-oriented, but it also helps to teach the students the rules of the game.

"We have noticed that students are doing a lot better in class," Finger said. "I'm hoping that they will continue to do well."
Why Learn Afrocentric History?

Learning Afrocentric history is important for several reasons. It helps us understand the experiences and contributions of African Americans throughout history. Here are some key points to consider:

1. Cultural Heritage and Identity
   - Afrocentric history emphasizes the importance of African heritage and identity. It encourages us to recognize our African roots and the contributions of African Americans to society.
   - By learning about African culture and history, we can better understand our own cultural identity and appreciate the diversity within our own communities.
   - It also challenges the notion of a single, monolithic African identity, recognizing the diversity and complexity of African cultures.

2. Challenging Historical Narratives
   - Afrocentric history provides a corrective perspective to counteract the biases and distortions found in traditional histories, which often portray African Americans as passive or inferior.
   - It highlights the achievements and resilience of African Americans in the face of oppression and adversity.
   - By examining these histories, we can challenge the dominant narratives and promote a more balanced and accurate understanding of African American history.

3. Empowerment and Liberation
   - Afrocentric history empowers African Americans by connecting them to their ancestors' struggles and achievements.
   - It fosters a sense of pride and belonging, which can be empowering and motivating for current African Americans.
   - This knowledge can also be used as a tool for political and social change, highlighting the need for continued struggle and activism.

4. Critical Thinking and Analysis
   - Studying Afrocentric history encourages critical thinking and analysis.
   - It challenges us to question our assumptions and broaden our perspectives on African American history.
   - By engaging with these histories, we develop a deeper understanding of historical events and their impact on contemporary issues.

5. Interdisciplinary Approach
   - Afrocentric history integrates knowledge from various disciplines, including history, literature, and sociology.
   - This interdisciplinary approach allows us to see the complex interactions between different aspects of African American society and culture.

6. Global Perspective
   - Afrocentric history provides a global perspective on African American history, connecting it to the broader context of global history.
   - It highlights the importance of understanding how African American experiences are interconnected with the global struggle for freedom and justice.

7. Informed Decision-Making
   - Knowledge of Afrocentric history can inform our decision-making processes, both personally and politically.
   - It helps us understand the impact of historical events on contemporary issues and makes us more informed and effective citizens.

By learning Afrocentric history, we can gain a deeper understanding of our past, present, and future. It empowers us to engage critically with the world around us and to contribute to a more just and equitable society.
Smoky Robinson visits the Inland Empire
By Les Michele Cash

On Thursday evening, January 25, in San Manuel Indian Bingo & Casino’s Vodkatown Room, the smooth sounds of an American legend filled the room. Agging like a fine wine, Smokey Robinson—whose stellar career spans over four decades of hits—commanded a “Timeless Love” tour. Smokey’sTimelast hit the big stage while still at high school when he founded the vocal group “The Miracles.” The group, with Smokey as the front man, soon became Motown Records’ first success story. Smokey and the Miracles remained among the most popular R&B groups throughout the 60’s and early 70’s. He left the Miracles in 1972 and started a solo career and continued a tradition of hit making.

The Motown giant, once pronounced by Bob Dylan as America’s “greatest living poet,” delivered an outstanding performance. Smokey received numerous standing ovations. Last December, the John F. Kennedy Center in Washington, DC honored Smokey with its prestigious Lifetime Achievement Award, a recognition of the contributions he made to American music. Smokey Robinson is timeless to people—men, women, the young and the old, all of them—timeless.

Although people did grow hungry to the new sounds of Robinson’s high tenor voice, whatever he took a stroll from memory lane, the audience came alive. What was more interesting to see was the man looking it—usually it’s the women. When the band started the first few cords of “Track of My Tears,” “Crusade,” “Just to See Her” and “Being with You,” the audience roared their praises of the singer who performed near the end of his life, singing along to every word. Ms. Robinson’s music. I married Smokey in my book. I got married to Smokey’s music... I made Smokey Robinson is timeless to people—men, women, the young and the old, all of them—timeless.

Cedric ‘The Entertainer’ Does Foxwoods

By Earl Heath

It was one of those nights when Cedric was being himself. Cedric, “The Entertainer” was doing one of his comic shows at Foxwoods Resort Casino located in Ledyard, Connecticut. Just off the recent release of his latest movie “Code Name: The Cleaner,” one of America’s finest comedians took the stage in front of two sell out crowds at the Fox Theater.

New England in January is one of the coldest places anywhere. “It’s so cold outside,” said Cedric. “I went by a Greyhound bus and the dog was on the inside looking out at me.” That along with many other lines kept the audience laughing till the end. One of “The Original Kings of Comedy,” he was doing what fits him well, set up comedies. He joked of political and social issues including Michael Richards famous for dropping ‘N’ bombs at the Comedy Store in Hollywood. “Richards was using the ‘N’ word in front of African Americans. If he had been using it in front of other races, they would have been throwing chairs and ran him off the stage.”

The show was basically for adults and those that attended had new reviews. “He was a riot,” said Sharon Lavin from Providence, RI. “He just kept us going all night. I’ll never forget this.”

Cedric, who was part of the newly syndicated “Steve Harvey Show,” has many other interesting going on in his life. He has his own production company, The Bird And A Bear Entertainment. “Johnson Family Vacation” was his first film produced and “Johnson Family Vacation 2” is in the works. He also founded The Cedric ‘The Entertainer’ Charitable Foundation which provides scholarships and stem programs to enhance the lives of inner-city youth in his hometown of St. Louis, Missouri. The Scholarship Program provides scholarships from $300 to $5,000 to assist high school graduates in their first year of college. The foundation also has established a joint scholarship with the United Negro College Fund for high school students in the St. Louis area who plan to attend a historically Black university.

Cedric has been one of many performers to play at Foxwoods that includes Guy, Mike Epps, Bill King and Buza Rhymin’. Foxwoods is the largest casino in the world that has over 1,200 hotel rooms and 6,700 slot machines.

Sister City Relationship Strengthens Economic Ties

The 30 year ties of friend­ship and cooperation between the City of Riverside and sis­ter­city Ensenada, Mexico, are producing positive results. Growing this month, Inland Heritage Wine Tasting will feature two Ensenada varietals from Cuvee Valmata­Temperate, an early red wine with a fragrant oak bouquet, and Chenin Blanc, a delight­ful, dinner­friendly white.

This is an excit­ing opportunity to expand your know­ledge and understanding of the legis­lative process," Assembly Member Carter noted. "It is a valuable experi­ence that serves as the foun­dation for successful careers in both the private and public sectors.

"The cultural, econom­ic and political connections shared by Riverside and Ensenada are built on a common desire to foster­global cooperation at the municipal level, and to strengthen ties with a fragrant oak bouquet; "The City's long­standing ties with Ensenada have enriched both Cities, and this letter­head between Riverside wine shop owners, and the Cuvee Valtum Winery is an example of the kind of progressive and sus­tainable economic benefits Sister City relationships bring about. Earlier this year the City of Riverside's Development De­partment met with Ensenada Development officials and business owners to build on these connections through econom­ic opportuni­ties. "The City of Riverside's Development Department was instrumental in helping us broker the deal with Cuvee Valtum Winery. We are extremely proud that, in a small way, we are helping participate in the sister city program and the development of both cities' economies," commented Debi Terwilliger, Inland Heritage Wine Tasting co­operator.

Ensenada is the unofficial capital of Mexico's finest wine­making region, with a Mediterranean style climate that provides ideal conditions for growing unique grapes.
