Helping Small Businesses and Organizations Bridge the Digital Divide

By Karen Martin

I want to continue this series of articles about using internet power by talking about Microsoft Exchange. Microsoft Exchange has always meant those who use it. It has always been the subject of wistful longing in many of our communities. It certainly had to do with Internet and web-based applications to make our lives better. For us, the personal computer era, it was hard to manage and easy to waste. Using computers and handling them was certainly not our forte. What is Microsoft Exchange? It is a network that we can use to communicate, to share, to work together, to collaborate, to build communities, to manage our information, to manage our work, to manage our lives.

Daryl M. Bell is an actor who portrayed Renaldo "Rame" Jones in the Cosby sitcom television show, " Sanford and Son." I am not sure if it was one of the key people who are part of the Microsoft Exchange logo.

When Gregory Bell dealt with a large company that had a body of small nations, which he guided the company to use it. He worked at Bell as a graduate of Syracuse University and worked for the same body of small nations. The problems were reported in a Wall Street Journal and it was reported that Bell had been successful in solving the problem and working with the other countries.

By the way, what is Microsoft Exchange? It is a network that we can use to communicate, to share, to work together, to collaborate, to build communities, to manage our information, to manage our work, to manage our lives. This is a very important piece of information. We have to ensure that our work is managed so that we can share, communicate and collaborate effectively. This is not a small problem and it is important to ensure that our work is managed properly.

Boxings Hollywood script De La Hoya vs. Mayweather

Challenger - a confident Floyd Mayweather has fought four world champions, 24 knockouts and has never been defeated in the ring.

Adding to the intrigue of this highly anticipated fight, Mayweather's father Floyd Sr. will not be in De La Hoya's corner as he has been for several past fights. His two million dollar fee demanded when separated from De La Hoya and there is speculation that he may end up in the corner in lieu of boxing Floyd Senior, De La Hoya hired quality trainer Freddie Roach.

As trainer for Floyd Mayweather II is among the best all time. Known as a teaching mentor, the Roach resume includes: Mike Tyson, James Toney, Virgil Hill and Israel Vazquez to name a few. Roach apprenticed under the great Eddie Futch who bestowed his fundamental teaching skills to Floyd.

Floyd's uncle Roger Mayweather was known in the ring as "The Black Marvel" and won 50 of his 72 fights on the career. Now 45, Roger is old enough to have fought with both De La Hoya's previous opponents, Pernell Whitaker and the great Julio Cesar Chavez.

The Mayweather family hails from Grand Rapids Michigan and has made many appearances of the fight game. A hallmark of all Mayweather's is their dedication to fitness, Floyd's complete dedication to training has earned him four world titles and allowed him to defend them.

Both fighters had impressive and extensive career counts, a combined 327-11. Both earned Olympic medals as well. De La Hoya took gold in Barcelona and Mayweather took a bronze in Atlanta.

Mayweather, the showman, has taken the role of the villain with great. Garner De La Hoya's luster away. Oscar laughed off each rematch until Floyd pulled a live chicken from a cage, put a rock Olympic medal around it's neck and called the chicken "The Golden Girl". When De La Hoya rose to speak, he had stopped laughing with Mayweather and said "It's on!"

In an event only 46 years old of traditional heavyweight bout, the anticipation of this fight will help the boxing public forget about all of that. To make sure training camps go, to move again as in its were G MIO'S Grand Fantasy Arms for the Super Welterweight Championship of the World.

But we always think that with the help of our children and spouses, they'll find the answers in higher and lighter ways," said Brown. "Even if they aren't always successful, her phrase, "when we are fighting for our children and their rights, we become carriers of their love and support for their children."

"It is a life-changing, rejuvenating experience," she concluded. "We are all united in our fight for their children's rights and we are all fighting for the same thing."
School Bullies Are a Health Menace

With local schools wrestling with a rise in student trouble, it's all too easy to forget that bullying is also getting worse. School bullies not only affect specific students, but impact all of us—our children, our neighbors, and our community. And while bullying may not always be obvious, even in our own backyard, it is also a problem at the American Medical Association (AMA).

Too many children are being terrorized, belittled, and humiliated. It is a problem that is gaining ground. In fact, the AMA's School Health and School Safety National Strategic Affairs Council reported that bullying is a serious concern among students of all ages. While many believe that bullying is simply a problem that affects middle schools, more than half of all students report being bullied at least once a month. Teachers and parents are losing faith in the ability of schools and law enforcement to address the problem.

Bullying in a behavior that is often defined as aggressive, repetitive, and hostile treatment of one person by another. It can take many forms, including verbal, physical, emotional, and social bullying among others. Bullying is all too prevalent in our schools, and it is a problem that we must address. In this article, we will discuss what bullying is, why it is a problem, and what we can do about it.

School Bullying is a Health Menace

When you think of bullying, you may think of physical violence. However, bullying can take many forms, including verbal, emotional, and relational. Emotional bullying can be just as damaging as physical bullying, and it can be just as difficult to detect. Emotional bullying can take many forms, such as belittling, name-calling, and sarcasm. Emotional bullying can be especially damaging to students, as it can lead to low self-esteem, depression, and anxiety.

Emotional bullying is a problem that is often overlooked in schools, but it is a problem that must be addressed. It is important to recognize that emotional bullying is a problem that affects all students, and that it can have a significant impact on their academic performance and well-being. In this article, we will discuss what emotional bullying is, why it is a problem, and what we can do about it.

School Bullying and the American Medical Association (AMA)

The AMA and the National Medical Association (JAMA) have joined together to address the issue of bullying in schools. The AMA has developed a comprehensive approach to bullying prevention, including training for teachers and staff, and a bullying prevention program for students. The JAMA has also developed a comprehensive approach to bullying prevention, including training for teachers and staff, and a bullying prevention program for students.

In conclusion, bullying is a problem that is affecting our schools, and it is a problem that must be addressed. It is important to recognize that bullying is a problem that affects all students, and that it can have a significant impact on their academic performance and well-being. In this article, we will discuss what bullying is, why it is a problem, and what we can do about it.

Seasonal Depression

Seasonal depression, also known as major depressive disorder (MDD), is a common mental health issue that affects millions of people worldwide. It is characterized by a persistent feeling of sadness, anxiety, or hopelessness that interferes with daily functioning. Seasonal depression typically occurs during the winter months and is thought to be caused by changes in the body's internal clock, which is called the circadian rhythm. The symptoms of seasonal depression can vary from mild to severe, and they can affect people of all ages and both genders.

The incidence of seasonal depression is highest in areas with longer, darker, and colder winters. The condition is also more common among people with a family history of mental health disorders, such as depression, anxiety, and bipolar disorder.

Seasonal depression is a serious condition that can have a significant impact on a person's quality of life. It is important to seek treatment if you are experiencing symptoms of seasonal depression. Treatment options for seasonal depression include psychotherapy, medication, and lifestyle changes. It is important to consult with a healthcare provider to determine the best course of treatment for you.

Film review – Amazing Grace

By Laura L. Klure

Special to the Black Voice

"Amazing Grace" is not only a well-known and much beloved song – it is now the title of an inspiring movie. The new film tells the story of William Wilberforce, who led the fight to abolish slavery in the British Empire.

Many Americans are not familiar with this facet of history, and the 200th Anniversary of the ending of the slave trade is a good time to correct the oversight. The movie, starring Ben Cross and a skilled group of other British actors, is a very powerful piece of history. It took 15 years of persistent campaigning by Wilberforce and others, but England ended slavery about half a century before the United States did.

The lyrics to the "Amazing Grace" hymn were written by poet John Newton (played by the excellent actor Alan Finney), who was a mentor of Wilberforce. Newton himself had escaped a slave ship before becoming a minister, and the force of that experience burned itself until his death.

Wilberforce was born in 1759. As a member of the House of Commons, Wilberforce tried to make members of Parliament and the English people face the reality of the evils of slavery. He accomplished this without much firsthand evidence, since although slavery was common in the colonies, there were not many black slaves in the British Isles. Wilberforce spent some time in a coffee-house wood box, trying to understand how slaves felt in the extremely cramped conditions on slave ships.

There are few black characters in the film, and few depictions of the actual conditions of slavery, but this is appropriate to the story. The former African slave Olaudah Equiano, also called Gustavus Vassa, wrote his own very popular autobiography, which had a pivotal role in convincing the English that slavery was wrong. Equiano is powerfully played by Youssou N'Dour, who gives the film some of its most poignant moments.

The undercurrent of this movie is to make us do what we must or is right, regardless of whether it is profitable or in vogue. In addition to combating slavery, Wilberforce also worked to end the slave trade in other ways. He is credited with starting the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals (SPCA), and Championed improved conditions for hospitals and prisons.

A college named after Wilberforce is in the U.S., rather than in his home country. This year is the 150th Anniversary of Wilberforce University in Ohio, the alma mater of Regina Brown Wilson and Emory Hall, Wilberforce University, Xenia Ohio.

The 38th NAACP Awards

By Lea Michelle Cash

The NAACP Image Awards was recently held on Friday, March 2nd at the Shrine Auditorium in Los Angeles. This year the broadcast on Fox TV took a large leap of faith and courage and went live. There was an energy in the air and everyone was stationed in their seats. Numerous celebrities from all circles of the entertain- ment world attended the star-studded event as nominees or presenters for the special evening. LL Cool J was the master of ceremonies for the first time in his career.

The ace, writer, entrepreneur, and icon in the music industry with a career spanning over 20 years had no problems. But, then there was Mary J. Blige and Bill Cosby. And Tyra Banks and Tyler Perry. And America’s sweetheart—Jennifer Hudson. The fans were out in large numbers and somewhat of an nature crowd had a good time with reaching out to their favorite celebrities and showing them lots of love.

Every year the NAACP presents special awards to those individuals or groups whose contributions and achievements merit special recognition. This year the Hall of Fame Award, which is presented to an individual or group who throughout their professional career, has consistently excelled in their artistic endeavors and has been a creative and innovative force within their respective fields was given to the living legend Bill Cosby. One of the most influential workers in his field, he delivered his acceptance speech. Bill Cosby is, by all standards one of the most influential stars in America today. His humor based on the roles of parenthood, children, and family life is often the basis of the cornerstone of the world’s existence. Back stage, the legend was overwhelmed with people hugging him and pulling him. He took it all in stride and every opportunity that was presented, he took the time to explain his stand on America’s youth. He was deeply passionate and long winded about the topic. Cosby received the Chairman Award. This Award is selected by the NAACP Chairman of the National Board of Directors. It is presented to an individual or group in special recognition of their efforts to utilize their profession to promote diversity and community involvement. Bono, since 1985, has actively engaged Americans from all walks of life in the fight against poverty and the global AIDS pandemic in Africa. Recently with Bobby Shriver, Bono joined with international corporate leaders to launch Product (RED), a new organization that is raising awareness for the AIDS crisis in Africa and driving millions of dollars into the global Fund to fight AIDS, tuberculosis and malaria.

The President Award was presented to Soledad O’Brien. She was emotional on stage and back stage. She was very honored to have received this award. O’Brien has received, like Bill Cosby and Bono count- less awards, yet they manage to make each award seem like it is their very first. This Award is selected by the National President of the NAACP and presented to an individual or group to recog- nize special achievement in furthering the cause of civil rights and public service. She was honored for her stellar broadcast journalism career and particularly for the CNN’s Hurricane Katrina coverage in which she delivered daily reports about the impact of Katrina, and when she covered the tsunami dis- aster that took more than 155,000 lives in Puhket, Thailand.

Bishop Johnson Celebrates 30 Years in Ministry

By John Gordon

Last weekend marked the 30th pastoral anniversary and 43rd birthday of the visionary pastor, Bishop Craig Ward Johnson, Founder of Cathedral of Praise International Ministries (COPIM). He shared this special time with his supportive wife Demetria, daughters Jasmine, Deborah, and Tiara, and his loving mother Martha Johnson, who is also a Cathedral parishioner and one of (if not the) biggest supporters and members of his church and friends.

In a recent article, Mrs. Johnson gushed about how some thirty years ago, she recalled her 13 year old son going off to a youth conference in Ventura, California. During that time Mrs. Johnson shared that she had the strangest feeling flowing throughout her body the entire time her son was out of her presence. It was such an uncomfortable feeling that she decided to make several phone calls in an effort to get prayer. Her initial concern was of some thing negative, and as she had other adult children that she often prayed for, little did she know that during the course of the youth conference a young Craig Johnson had received his calling to become a minister. "As I stood at home wearing my carpet and praying, God was calling my son into the ministry to do what we all know now to be some amazing things in Christ," she said. Mrs. Johnson was not surprised at all however, ministers run in the family. She is the daughter and daughter-in-law of ministers of the gospel. Craig Johnson was destined to follow in the footsteps of his grandparents.

Johnson was dubbed a "born leader" and from the 6th grade to the 11th he displayed outstanding leadership skills. As a high school senior he was elected ASB president. He knew that God had given him favor when at the age of 17, already a well respected minister in his church, he received the vision for Cathedral of Praise International Ministries, a non-denominational faith based organization. "In my vision, I saw the entirety of what God had called me to do, and also a road map in which to follow to make my vision a reality," he said. A large part of that vision was a place of worship that was all inclusive, non-discriminating, and welcoming to all that sought to develop a relationship with Christ. Bishop Johnson is so adamant with regard to an all inclusive ministry that he often takes time during sermons to educate and share his own life experiences of unity and togetherness with regard not only to race but to culture as well. One of the interesting stories he shares is that while in high school, instead of becoming a member of the popular BSU (Black Student Union), Johnson decided to form his own organization, ABC (Anglos, Blacks, Chicanos) that included most if not all of the ethnicities represented in Rubidoux High School, where he attended.

"The Vision of the House" as it is formally called, does not begin and end at total inclusion, it also addresses a subject the Bishop feels that at times has been taken out of context by others in the religious community, and that is "progression" in Christ, and the Bishop's belief that those worshiping Christ and living as God would have them to live should not remain stagnant, but be moving and growing in life both spiritually and financially. This belief is so strong that part of the experience of Cathedral of Praise, also includes a host of educational tools. As a member parishioners are offered an array of classes, beginning with the new members class which introduces the Bishop, the vision, and the structure of the church. As part of the belief of "progression", the church also offers a series of classes cleverly titled, "Work Your Stuff", and the most popular of the classes being "God and Finances", where a real world professional gives real world advice on credit, tithe, home ownership, and investing. Additionally, several social programs have been implemented to ensure mentally and spiritually healthy households. Bishop Johnson feels that "Jesus was and is a spiritual social worker." Regardless of where you were and are when He comes into contact with you, you are in a different place when He moves on you," he said. As these programs are extremely successful, Bishop Johnson shares that COPIM is going to begin to concentrate also on new and improved youth focused ministries, as he notes the importance of youth mentorship and how it was so effective in his life. Bishop Johnson can cite his mentors. From age 5-13, Pastor James Whitmull taught him to work with the "people" of the church. From 15-20 he was schooled in the logistics of the Bible and recognizing God's words. The late Dr. Lamar Foster was instrumental from about age 21-31 in sharing "the mystic of pastoring", and finally Paul S. Morton who is his current mentor has helped guide him in an effort to take COPIM to the next level of growth and expansion.

COPIM currently has a membership of approximately 3000 and is growing rapidly every week. On any given Sunday it is possible to witness as many as 50-50 people joining and accepting Christ. In focusing on a community and youth based ministry, it is not a surprise that so many of the people joining the church are young men. There is an increase in the 16-20 age group. The youth of the church seem to have a connection with Bishop Johnson. His transparency is his appeal says. Elder Yolander Mitchell. "What you see is what you get," she said. These sentiments are reiterated by Tonya Moore, Harvest of Praise (The Bishop's personal ministry). "He's genuine, it's the real thing, and it is always the people's needs," she said.

In keeping with his belief and vision of inclusion, Bishop Johnson's ultimate sermon would be given during a stadium conference. Until then you can witness the astonishing and amazing delivery, "I'm getting an email" (as he often refers to the Holy Spirit) on Wednesday nights at 6:30 PM and Sundays at 8 AM and 11AM. The ministry also has a media presence on www.streamingfaith.com and can be seen weekly on cable television. Cathedral of Praise International Ministries is located at 1521 S. Riverside Ave, 92376 in the City of Rialto.

In asking Bishop Johnson, what is his favorite quote, he said, "When you get sick and tired of being sick and tired, you'll make a change."
Benoit Honors Chancellor Córdova as 2007 Woman of the Year

At a ceremony held Monday afternoon at the State Capitol, France A. Córdova was honored as the 64th Assembly District "Woman of the Year" by Assemblyman John J. Benoit (R-Bermondex) for her lifetime of achievements in the scientific community and in higher education. Ms. Córdova, following a very successful and internationally renowned career as an astrophysicist, has reached a new level of success in her tenure as the seventh Chancellor of the University of California, Riverside campus. This year, Assemblyman Benoit commended Chancellor Córdova for her successful efforts that won the UC Regents' approval to pursue a medical school at UCR, the first in the Inland Empire.

"I am honored to name Chancellor Córdova as "Woman of the Year in the 64th Assembly District," said Benoit. "She is an exceptional woman, a wonderful role model for women in the sciences and in education, and an important advocate for the educational needs of the Inland Empire. She is the epitome of the American and Speaker Fabien Nunez, France Córdova, and Assemblyman John Benoit.

California dream that, with hard work and a positive spirit, one can achieve anything, including reaching for the stars Çórdova has since her days at NASA." Chancellor Córdova said, "I am very honored to be selected by Assemblyman Benoit as the 64th District's Woman of the Year. This day was a rewarding experience that included meeting the other women of the year, hearing about their public service and outstanding contributions to California, being in our State's Capitol building, and experiencing its rich history and traditions." In 2002, Córdova made history by becoming the first Hispanic woman to lead a University of California campus. Throughout her tenure as Chancellor, UC Riverside has achieved great things, including most recently, the UC Regents' approval to pursue a medical school, the first in the Inland Empire. The UCR School of Medicine, projected to open in 2012, would be the first public medical school west of the Mississippi since 1971, and will enroll forty medical school students in its inaugural class. In addition to her duties as Chancellor, Córdova makes time to pass her legacy to new classes of students by teaching as a Distinguished Professor of Physics and Astronomy at UC Riverside.

The California State Assembly's "Woman of the Year" program honors eighty dynamic women who work to make their communities better places to live. They are chosen by the Assemblymembers of each of California's eighty Assembly districts.

Riverside International Film Festival Showcases Directors of Color

Sisters In Law
Director: Florence Ayisi & Kim Longinotto
Country: Cameroon/UK

Synopsis: In the little town of Kumba, Cameroon, there have been few convictions in spousal abuse cases for 17 years. But two women determined to change their community were making progress that could change the world. This fascinating, often hilarious documentary follows the efforts of State Prosecutor Beatrice Ntuba as they help women fight often-difficult cases of abuse, despite pressures from family and their community to remain silent.

By Anna Wengert
The Riverside International Film Festival

Kamli, My Daughter
Director: KMT Safiy Country: India

Synopsis: In some impoverished Indian communities, girls children are sold into a future of likely prostitution. Boy husbands are cherished, but sometimes stolen away and forced to adopt to acontracting young girls endures both of these fates with her children and her stories come to life as she works as a laborer bearing down an old masculine hospital. The director characterizes this film as "a fiction that has more than facts." Film Festival kicked off on Friday, March 2nd at a University Village community gala, honoring Tippi Hedren and the world's first "Most Awesome Woman". The event was sponsored by the Riverside State College of the Arts' "South Coast Spring" series. The film is described as "an exploration of identity and community in a moving humorous celebration of the human spirit.

The Grace Lee Project
Director: Grace Lee Country: USA

Synopsis: When award-winning Korean-American filmmaker Grace Lee was growing up in Missouri, she was the only Grace Lee she knew. As an adult, however, she moved to New York and then California, where everyone she met seemed to know "another Grace Lee." The filmmaker makes a journey around the country interviewing the variety of Grace Lees, from quiet, polite girls to a dedicated social activity and a girl who tried to burn down her school.

International Film Festival movies are being shown at the Metropolitan Theatre at the University Village and will continue until Sunday, March 11, 2007. Africa's contribution, Africa's contribution, Africa's contribution, Africa's contribution, and Africa's contribution.

Every Day is a Feast

Every meal is a feast, with mushrooms, fried fish, pickled shad and plum wine. But recently one of his nemeses suffered from a stroke. His name now lives in a nursing home. He's unable to walk or get dressed by himself. His end's condition made Mr. Plato realize he needs to adopt a healthier lifestyle to avoid health problems in the future.

A balanced diet of at least three meals a day. There's no reason to skip any meal or snack. Just make sure the final vegetables are the main course. Drink plenty of water, especially if you work outdoors. Whatever you do, don't skip breakfast. It's the most important meal of the day.

Exercise 30 minutes every day. Exercise can be any activity you enjoy, like bicycling, tennis, soccer or walking the dog. It's easy to exercise without a gym, even a walk in the woods.

If you smoke, consider quitting. Smoking and tobacco often result in easier quitting. Either way, it's important to plan ahead. Keep substitutes like garlic, cinnamon sticks, baby carrots or chewing gum on hand in case you feel the urge to smoke. Get support from friends and loved ones before you quit.

Lose your appetite? Eat in small portions. That's three cups of fluid, glasses of wine or shots of hard liquor. Please never drive after drinking alcohol.

Drink no more than two cups of carbonated beverages a day. Just like alcohol, the less you drink the better. Crusher and condensed milk is loaded with sugar and fat, so use them in moderation.

Take time for your children. Spend at least one hour a day during the week and one half-hour each weekend with your children. This will make them feel valued.

Take your spouse! Have a babysitter and take your wife or husband out once a month. It doesn't have to be anything lavish. A movie or walk in the park is all it takes to keep romance in your relationship.

You probably have other ideas, so whenever you can come up with, have a plan to reward yourself for sticking to it.

Dr. Thea L. Tira is a family physician at the Indian Hill Medical Office, Southern California Permanente Medical Group. Email: Dr. Tira at doctors-world.com.
In order for everyone to coexist, we must be able to live together in harmony. This means we must be able to work cooperatively without any racial conflict. We need to be able to go to school without only hanging out with members of our own race. We need to be able to walk in a store and not be judged on our color that we might steal. We should be judged on our knowledge and our character, and not our color.

The state says that we are equal but we will still not have seen an African American, Mexican American, or female president. So, Are we truly equal?

Martin Luther King, Jr. went through so much for us to be equal and it is so sad that we are still not as equal as we should be. After giving his life so all people would make an effort to appreciate each other based on our accomplishments, many still make judgments based solely on outward appearances. If there is always room for change, then those people who live a life full of racism must be willing to change generational behavior that has been learned. We are separated at school, not because it is fun but because that is how we were taught to stick together. My name is Johnetta and I am Black, but still do not mind hanging out with Mexican Americans, Whites, Chinese and any other race.

I do not look at a person based on their color. I would not care if a person were blue or purple and if I judged people on how they look, I would miss out on meeting some really great people. For example, the other day, I met a boy who only knew how to speak Spanish. He was so amiable and although we did not speak each other's language, we got along just fine and still became friends. If you go out of your way to communicate with a person that you never met, maybe one day that person that you gave a chance to may save your life. That person may be there when others that you thought you could trust are not around.

Similar to Dr. King's dream, I too have a dream for everyone to be treated as equals. All I truly want is for everyone to get along. There are people that hate being in their class or on their job because they are not around members of their own race. It's so sad to know that we must struggle just to co-exist in life. I believe that we all should have a part in the United States. I remember when they wanted to vote that all Mexicans with a green card should be kicked out of the United States. I did not agree with that. If they were able to make a living and contribute to this country, they should be allowed to stay.

The thing that I want to say to my Mexican people and my Black people is "Why can't you try harder to prove others wrong?" We are looked at and told that we will never become anything and that we don't fit the American dream. Prove these people wrong by being something in life, take all the negatives and make it positive! If a person says that you won't make it, try harder and even become their boss. Come on people - Many people are waiting for you to fail as they stand on the sidelines watching you struggle. Because it is not that easy. Only one can look past the color of your skin. We must know that we all have to stand for something or we will all fall together. We have low expectations in life because many of us cannot help the fear of having a president of a different race because the worse has already happened with the current president. We are already at war for something that could have been prevented without our people dying. How different it would be for a Mexican American or Black president? Would he or she be given a chance to lead or looked down upon because of their color? Even with knowledge, people can be overcome-with fear. Rather than sit back in the crowd, we need to overcome our fear, our fear of failure, our fear of different races, and even the fear of having a president of a different race because the worse has already happened with the current president. We are already at war for something that could have been prevented.

In conclusion everyone can get along and we need to stop the thought of failure. Do not give up because others tell us we will never make it. Personally, I am going to make it and I will show them that we will become something - we will not fail, we cannot fail. We can co-exist and contribute to this country, they should be allowed to stay.

In my opinion, people are so dumb because all men were created equal. In what way are they different? All men have the same eyes, but the colors may be different. The hair may be different and the skin color may vary, but as humans we are all the same. I believe that we all have to be able to live together in harmony. This means we must be able to work cooperatively without any racial conflict. We need to be able to go to school without only hanging out with members of our own race. We need to be able to walk in a store and not be judged on our color that we might steal. We should be judged on our knowledge and our character, and not our color.
