Local Rancho Family Destroyed by Fatal Auto Accident

By Cheryl Brown

A family was destroyed when the car they were riding in was hit by a truck on Baseline Road and East Street on the Rancho Cucamonga and Fontana border. Three members of a five-member family were killed. The community is mourning what has been described as an intersection that is dangerous.

Funeral services were held on Friday for Donovan Taylor, 53, and Jonathan Fields, 51, of Rancho Cucamonga, CA, where they were dedicated members. According to Fontana Police Chief Larry Clark, his Multi-Crimes Investigative Team (MCIT) is still investigating the accident. "It seems to be a terrible accident. The Fields family was traveling northbound on East Street and had the green light and a full CEO waiting northbound when in the 41 traffic lane on Baseline Road ran the red light and struck the morning driver by the Fields' father and was pronounced dead at the scene," said Clark.

The mother was rushed to Arrowhead Regional Center in Colton where she was in life support for a week before succumbing to her injuries that involved broken bones, ribs, brainstem and internal injuries.

Reports are also that the Fields' family sometimes attended Little Church of God In Christ in San Bernardino and that Pastor Raye Willow Bishop was broad- casted when they were on the way to the hospital to see John Lunt. They were trapped, their car totaled and they were removed by the "jaws of life." However they were taken and able to be rescued.

Clark also said that the cause of death was still under investigation on the way to the D.A.'s office for a review that may take up to a week. "There is no indication at the day of the accident on whether it was alcohol or a drug test that could make a determination that is involved in the accident," said Clark.

How does a white, former drug dealing street thug relate to a room full of mostly Black and Latino teens on probation or with ten of thousands of people. "I refuse to take his name Stanley. I insisted they make me swear then not to tell anyone," said Leon Oklahoma motivational speaker from Moreno Valley and the San Bernardino City Council meeting to be the applicant the opportunity for an interview.

The city council is outraged that nothing has been done to improve the conditions of people living in a trailer park to sleeping in a car, only gathering of students and educators wearing yellow shirts.

"The boys I hung out with would say 'yo man, you're talking to the wrong person'. I've never been able to do that anymore," said Oklahoma.

"Another night I wake up. I'm a man on the go. I was as much a part of the justice system as anyone," Oklahoma said.

"I was too young to be in a trial to throw a teaching job in and try to況k to the family. I hated my father. He told his father to take his name. I started selling people coke on the side."

"The boys I hung out with would say 'you don't' like the way I held it for me. Reality, they weren't doing for me the way they were doing with me.'" Oklahoma said.

"I remember the police came to my school house and took me to jail. But that didn't work. I was too young to understand what was going on."

The Los Angeles Times football league has been sliding deeper into a life of anger, pain and self-hatred. "I would play football to mask the pain," Oklahoma said.

The Message of Operation Phoenix is Success, Let the Church say Amen

Hardy Brown

Each week faith-based congregations meet for the purpose of offering salvation, hope, inspiration and much needed spiritual support to people who need support for something else. They offer the opportunity to become involved in the city's efforts to reduce crime and violence. Undergoing the same fate that has been experienced by the point that gives listeners the feeling that if they did it so can we. The mayor was at the meeting to order with all council members in attendance, after all the business was to be concluded. The mayor's special report or message for this meeting was a report on the initiative of Operation Phoenix. The feedback from the communities' leaders is open to what is to follow. Mayor Morris gave a brief overview and said "suppression, intervention and prevention are the pillars upon which we will build our city out of the ashes of crime and violence, and into a shining example of peace, prosperity and renewal." If he were to talk about the requirements of the program he would speak for comments and observations by the council. Dennis knows that after the meeting the city would seek the program to expand after school programs. They sought out affordable pre-school opportunities for children and local people outside of the targeted area. They made sure that calls were responded to when citizens weighed in to work the plan as developed. Thefeedback from the city's leaders is that the most of the presentation starting with the Chief of Police, Mike Biddell who spoke of a 38 percent drop in crime in the target area and the city has a 21 percent drop in crime. The doubt the program has been successful. They had many coordinated reports on gangs and trump students. They made sure that calls were responded when citizens called the Police. During the implementation of the program, they made 319 gang stops in the last 90 days, over $26,000 in cash, impounded 41 vehicles, convicted illegal guns and many people of other crimes.

On the intervention side they used technology to keep track of violent parades, improved street lighting, installed 107 war- zones, had a task force, made over 600 inspections for code violations of mostly absentee landlords. They sought out affordable pre-school opportunities for children, such as Head Start in the area of Watts. They worked with the school board on new curriculum and expanded after school programs for students for youth during the summer and increased recreation opportu- nities during the summer. They worked with the First Church of God, the New York state S.O.D. and the New York state S.O.D. who partnered with the Chamber of Commerce in a clean-up effort. And local people outside of the targeted area. People in the area see the community as a better place to live and that it is a safer place to live. The New York Times once said, "I have noticed more cunners at night." Of course, like any congregation, it is happens after the rally to have the testament to the effectiveness of the message. So the mayor opens the doors of the church (up to 500 people) to a crowd of over 1,000 people, Father Baxter, Esther Estrada and Rikke Van Johnson were proud of the report because it bore out what they believed all along, based on their personal experience, and that is that in watts they know that I was in support of Operation Phoenix" as he read from the pulpit. When Gregory Bell was a student at Pepperdine University, he had come back from his "backsliding" state, Chavez Kelley was prudent in wounding walking back and forth during the presenta- tion. However, it was Mr. Bell's view that he was saying during before the presentation. You know that the church of God, the New York state S.O.D. and the New York state S.O.D. who partnered with the Chamber of Commerce in a clean-up effort. That happens to a lot of people in real life situations and they miss a blessing. Wendy SteCamou was moved by the presentation that he was getting the opportunity to move away from the city movement on crime started in her ward with the killing of Myynthia Crenshaw. She also requested that the program be implemented in her ward. She did not pray the beat but wrote out a check for $500 and placed it in the collection plate. Now in the Black church, the prayer would look like a mixture of pre- gulation with; "let the church say Amen, Amen, Amen."

School Bullies Are a Health Menace

With local schools wrestling with a tide in student bevels, it's no wonder that bullying is getting worse. School bullies have a way of intimidating, isolating and victimizing any one of them, but in real life they’re a health concern, say officials from the American Psychological Association (APA).

Too many children are being targeted because they are different in some way – be it race or sex and gender bullying among girls, among others – with resulting effects on the psychological well-being and academic performance of the bullied.

More than 2.6 million American students are bullied at school each year, according to a new report. It’s not just a matter of school-based violence, but of psychological trauma that can persist into adulthood.

According to the report, “The effects of bullying on children are wide-ranging, with substantial implications for children’s physical and mental health, academic achievement, and social development. The mental health of children bullied at school is also at risk, with bullying being related to an increased risk of depression, anxiety, self-harm, and suicide. The effects of bullying on children are also long-lasting, with the impact of bullying often persisting into adulthood. The effects of bullying on children are also far-reaching, with bullying affecting not only the individual child, but also their family, school, and community.”

Bullying is a behavior that occurs when one child “inflicts harm to another child through the use of verbal, nonverbal, or physical acts” (APA). It can take many forms, including verbal bullying, physical bullying, social bullying, or a combination of these.

Bullying can have serious effects on the mental and emotional health of children, as well as their academic performance. It can lead to depression, anxiety, low self-esteem, and even suicide. It can also lead to physical injuries, such as bruises, welts, and even concussions.

Bullying is a problem that affects children of all ages, but it is most common in middle and high school. The APA report suggests that schools should take a “zero tolerance” approach to bullying, and that teachers, counselors, and administrators should be trained to recognize and respond to bullying behavior.

The report also recommends that schools develop a comprehensive anti-bullying policy that includes clear definitions of bullying behavior, consequences for those who engage in bullying, and procedures for reporting and investigating bullying incidents.

The APA report also recommends that schools provide counseling and support services for victims of bullying, and that schools work with community agencies to provide additional support for students who are bullied.

The report concludes that schools should take a proactive approach to bullying, and that they should work to create a safe and supportive environment for all students.

Film review – Amazing Grace

By Laura L. Kline

Special to the Black Voice

"Amazing Grace" is not only a well-known and beloved song — it is now the title of an inspiring movie. The new film tells the story of William Wilberforce, who led the fight to abolish slavery in the British Empire.

Many Americans are not familiar with this facet of history, and the 200th Anniversary of the ending of the slave trade is a good time to correct that oversight. The movie, starring Benoit Gregoff and a skilled group of other British actors, is a very powerful period piece. It took 30 years of persistent campaigning by Wilberforce and others, but England ended slavery about half a century before the United States did.

The lyrics to the "Amazing Grace" hymn were written by poet John Newton (played by sirius actor Albert Finney), who was a mentor of Wilberforce. Newton had captured a slave ship before becoming a minister, and the horrors of that experience haunted him until his death.

Wilberforce was born in 1759. As a member of the House of Commons, Wilberforce invited to make members of Parliament and the English people face the reality of the evils of slavery. He accomplished this without much first-hand experience, although slavery was common in the colonies, there were not many Black slaves in the British Isles. Wilberforce spent some time in a coffee-like wood box, in an attempt to understand how slaves felt in the extremely cramped conditions on slave ships.

There are few Black characters in the film, and few depictions of the actual conditions of slavery, but this is appropriate to the story. The former African slave Olaudah Equiano, played by Yussou N'Dour, was one of the more famous autobiographies and that had a pivotal role in convincing the English that slavery was wrong. Equiano is portrayed as a moderate who, in the face of some of his most poignant moments.

The undercurrent of this message of this movie is that we must do what is morally right, regardless of whether it is profitable or not. This is in addition to combating slavery, Wilberforce also worked to end the slave trade in other ways. He is credited with starting the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals (SPCA), and the improved conditions for hospitals and prisons.

A college named after Wilberforce is in the U.S., rather than in his home country. This year is the 200th Anniversary of Wilberforce University in Ohio, the alma mater of Regina Brown Wilson and Hardy Brown II. Hardy II works at Wilberforce U., and the choir there was involved in some of the inspiring moments.

The film's official website, www.amazinggracemovie.com, is well worth visiting. It is a site for films, TV shows, and other educational materials. There is an ongoing campaign to eliminate the types of slavery that do still exist in our world.

Some may come away from the film not only educated about history, but also inspired to do whatever they can to solve the problems of today. This film is rated PG, for themes involving slavery and some mild language. There are also scenes of drug use and one depicting cruelty to animals, which all adds up to creating a movie where parental controls may be needed.

The 38th NAACP Awards
By Lea Michelle Cash

The NAACP Image Awards was recently held on Friday, March 2nd at the Shrine Auditorium in Los Angeles. This year the broadcast on Fox TV took a large leap of faith andänded to live TV. There was an energy in the air and every one was stationed in their seats.

Numerous celebrities from all circles of the entertainment world attended the starshaiiled event as nominees or presenters for the special evening. LL Cool J was the master of ceremonies for the first time in his career.

The audience, writer, entrepreneur and icon in the music industry with a career spanning over 20 years had no problems. But, then there was Mary J. Blige and Bill Cosby. And Tyra Banks and Tyler Perry. And America’s sweetheart right now—Jennifer Hudson. The fans were out in large numbers and several of an nurture crowd had a good time with reaching out to their favorite celebrity and showing them lots of love.

Every year the NAACP presents special awards to those individuals or groups whose contributions and achievements merit special recognition. This year the Hall of Fame Award, which is presented to an individual or group who throughout their professional career, has consistently excelled in their artistic endeavors and has been a creative and innovative force within their respective fields was given to the living legend Bill Cosby. Cosby’s comedic style still resonates away years as her husband walked the red carpet deliv-

Bishop Johnson Celebrates 30 Years in Ministry

By John Gordon

Last weekend marked the 30th pastoral anniversary and 43rd birthday of the visionary pastor, Bishop Craig Ward Johnson, Founder of Cathedral of Praise International Ministries (COPIM). He shared this special time with his supportive wife Demetria, daughters Jasmine, Deborah, and Tiara, and his loving mother Martha Johnson, who is also a Cathedral parishioner and one of, if not the largest congregation members of his church and friends.

In a recent interview, Mrs. Johnson, affectionately known as Mom to all 4000 of her children, described her son Craig as a born leader. From the 6th grade to the 11th he displayed outstanding leadership skills. As a high school senior he was elected ASB president. He knew that God had given him favor when at the age of 17, already a well respected minister in his church, he received the vision for Cathedral of Praise International Ministries (COPIM). He shared this special time with his support group which was comprised of his current mentees and family who were all there to witness his biggest supporter and member of his church and friends. The Bishop is the son of the Rev. Robert Johnson and the daughter and daughter-in-law of ministers of the gospel. Craig Johnson had received his calling when he was 21, he did not know that during his college days, he was called by the Holy Spirit to become a minister. As I stood at home and prayed, God was calling my son into the ministry to do what we all know now to be some amazing things in Christ,” she said.

"When you get sick and tired of being sick and tired, you'll make a change.

"The children of God would have to live on the planet but not on the planet. But not on the planet..."

...and the structure of the church. As part of the belief of "progression," the church also offers a series of classes cleverly titled, "Work Your Stuff," and the most popular of the classes being "God and Finances," where a real world professional gives real world advice on credit, title, home ownership, and investment. Additionally, several social programs have been implemented to ensure spiritually and economically healthy households. Bishop Johnson feels that "Jesus was and is a spiritual social worker." Regardless of where you were and are when He comes into contact with you, you are in a different place when He moves on you," he said. As these programs are extremely successful, Bishop Johnson shares that COPIM is going to begin to concentrate on helping others with the "people of the church."

From age 5-13, Pastor James Whitmiller taught him to work with the "people of the church."

COPIM currently has a membership of approximately 3000 and is growing rapidly every week. On any given Sunday it is possible to witness as many as 50-50 people getting and accepting Christ. In focusing on a community and youth based ministry, it is not a surprise that so many of the people joining the church are young men. There is an increase in the 16-20 age group. The youth of the church seem to have a connection with Bishop Johnson. His transparency is his appeal says Elder Yolander Mitchell. "What you see is what you get," she said. Those sentiments are reiterated by Tonya Moore, Harvest of Praise (The Bishop's personal ministry). "He's genuine, it's the real deal, and it always remains the people's needs," she said.

In keeping with his belief and vision of inclusion, Bishop Johnson's ultimate sermon would be given during a stadium conference. Until then you can witness the astonishing and amazing delivery, "I'm getting an email." (as he often refers to the Holy Spirit) on Wednesday nights at 6:30 PM and Sundays at 8 AM and 11AM. The ministry also has a media presence on www.strealingfaith.com and can be seen weekly on cable television. Cathedral of Praise International Ministries is located at 1521 S. Riverside Ave, 92376 in the City of Rialto.

In asking Bishop Johnson, what is his favorite quote, he said, "When you get sick and tired of being sick and tired, you'll make a change."
Benoit Honors Chancellor Córdova as 2007 Woman of the Year

At a ceremony held Monday afternoon at the State Capitol, Speaker Fabian Nunez, France Córdova, and Assemblyman John Benoit.

Ms. Córdova, following a successful and internationally-renowned career as an astrophysicist, has reached a new level of success in her tenure as the seventh Chancellor of the University of California, Riverside campus. This year, Assemblyman Benoit commended Chancellor Córdova for her successful efforts that won the UC Regents' approval to pursue a medical school at UCR, the first in the Inland Empire.

Every Day is a Feast

By Dr. Theresa L. Tans

My plans really depend on weather. Every meal is a feast, with recent rains, filled pools, picked shallots and plan wines. But recently one of his meals suffered from a June. His meal was served in a sharing home, shares to get demanded of his own. His end's condition made his plans real to adopt a healthful and lifestyle with more health problems in the future.

When he came to my office for a routine check-up and asked what steps to take, here's what I told him:

- Exercise 30 minutes every day. Exercise can be any activity you enjoy, like bicycling, tennis, soccer or walking.

- Limit your alcohol use to three drinks or less each week. That's three cans of beer, glasses of wine or shots of hard liquor. Please never drive after drinking alcohol.

- Drink no more than two cups of caffeinated beverages a day. Just like alcohol, the less you drink the better. Cranberry and condensed milk are loaded with sugar and fat, use them in moderation.

- Take time for your children. Spend at least one hour a day sharing the task and half-day each weekend with your children. The next day is better with a dish that was not prepared by you.

- State your purpose! Bliss a babysitter and take your wine or husband out once a month. It doesn't have to be anything formal. A movie or walk in the park is all it takes to keep romance in your relationship.

It's often not easy to keep these steps in mind, especially if you work outdoors. Wherever you do, don't skip breakfast. It's the most important meal of the day.

Exercise 30 minutes every day. Exercise can be any activity you enjoy, like bicycling, tennis, soccer or walking the dog. If you make the same trip to the same park each week, running instead is often easier than running back. Either way, it's important to plan ahead. Keep substitutes for the food you're eating. For instance, if you're eating a salad you feel like sausages. Get support from friends and loved ones before you quit.

Lose your alcohol and watch your weight. That's three cups of wine or shots of hard liquor. Please never drive after drinking alcohol.

You probably have other great ideas, so whatever you can come up with. Have a plan to reward yourself for sticking to it.

I believe that all we need to know is that life is possible beyond what people want to see.

In order for everyone to coexist, we must be able to live together in harmony. This means we must be able to walk cooperatively without any racial conflict. We need to be able to go to school without only hanging out with members of our own race. We need to be able to live together in a store and not be judged on our color that we might steal. We should be judged on our knowledge and our character and not our color. The state says that we are equal but we still have not seen an African American, Mexican American, or female president. So, are we truly equal?

Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. went through so much for us to be equal and it is so sad that we are not still as equal as we should be. After giving his life so all people would make an effort to appreciate each other based on our accomplishments, many still make judgments based solely on outward appearances. If there is always room for change, then those people who live a life full of racism must be willing to change generational behavior that has been learned. We are separated at school, not because it is fun but mostly because that is how we were taught to stick together. My name is Johnetta and I am Black, but still do not mind hanging out with Mexican Americans, Whites, Chinese and any other race.

I do not look at a person based on their color. I would not care if a person were blue or purple and if I judged people on how they look, I would miss out on meeting some really great people.

For example, the other day, I met a boy who only knew how to speak Spanish. He was so adorable and although we did not speak each other’s language, we put differences aside and still became friends. If you go out of your way to communicate with a person that you never met, maybe one day that person that you gave a chance to may save your life. That person may be there when others that you thought you could trust are not around.

Similar to Dr. King’s dream, I too have a dream for everyone to be treated as equals. All I truly want is for everyone to get along. There are people that hate being in their class or on their job because they are not around members of their own race. It’s so sad to know that we must struggle just to co-exist in life. I believe that we all should have a part in the United States. I remember when they wanted to vote that all Mexicans with a green card should be kicked out of the United States. I did not agree with that. If they were able to make a living and contribute to this country, they should be allowed to stay.

The thing that I want to say to my Mexican people and my Black people is “Why can’t you try harder to prove others wrong?” We are looked at and told that we will never become anything and that we don’t fit the American dream. Prove these people wrong, be something in life, take all the negatives and make it positive! If a person says that you won’t make it, try harder and even become their boss. Come on people – Many people are waiting for you to fail as they stand on the sidelines watching you struggle because it is not that easy. As long as one can look past the color of your skin, we must know that we all have to stand for something or we will all fall together. We have low expectations in life because many people would rather sit back in the crowd and enable Dr. King’s dream to become a reality as anything is possible with a little hope. Reach for Better, Reach for Good, and it doesn’t matter what color you are. You are a person with a lot to offer.

I believe that all we need to know is that life is possible beyond what people want to see.

Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. had a dream that all people are a part of the United States. I remember when they wanted to vote that all Mexicans with a green card should be kicked out of the United States. I did not agree with that. If they were able to make a living and contribute to this country, they should be allowed to stay.

In conclusion everyone can get along and we need to stop the thought of failure. Do not give up because others tell us we will never make it. Personally, I am going to make it and I would like to see everyone else make it, regardless of race. Please prove others wrong and give up because others tell us we will never make it. Personally, I am going to make it and I will show them that we will become something – we will not fail, we cannot fail. We can co-exist and contribute to this country, they should be allowed to stay.

Pastor Gibson speaks to the "church of the 21st Century." Gibson contends that the church is "more flexible and able to draw from the cultures and traditions of the world to do its work," a style that he calls "evangelical," which is "more like the way Jesus and all the apostles did their work." He views the church's mission as "to reach out to the lost and teach them the gospel of Jesus Christ in a way that will carry them to eternal life." Gibson believes that the church should be "relevant to the culture and the time in which we live," and he advocates for a "more open and adaptable" approach to church leadership.

Per pee As a Church without Walls, the church is "not bound by traditional structures," and Gibson emphasizes the importance of "practical, hands-on ministry" and "reaching people where they are." He encourages the church to "use all the resources available to us," including "the latest technology and the Internet," to "reach out to the lost and teach them the gospel of Jesus Christ in a way that will carry them to eternal life."
