UC Riverside Chancellor Heads To Purdue

By Chris Levister

"California has lost one of its brightest champions for diversity," said Ernest Levister, Jr., MD, president of the J.W. Vines Medical Foundation. "Chancellor Cordova’s surprising departure is a real loss for the Island communities.”

Purdue officials selected University of California Riverside Chancellor France A. Cordova, a physician and former NASA scientist to become their 10th president Monday. Purdue's community, however, vowed unilaterally to appoint the 59-year-old as first female president. Cordova said she plans to take the helm at Purdue by the start of the 2007-2008 school year.

Cordova’s departure has created a sense of uncertainty about the future at the campus. During her five year tenure, she focused on increasing minority and women’s diversity, making the campus a progressive research institution, double philanthropic giving and won preliminary approval for a medical school aimed at addressing health disparities among marginalized communities.

"We had our moments and disagreements over policy and curriculum affecting students of color. However, she stood strong and never strayed from her commitment to positive change whether it was in health and education disparities or creating equal opportunity access to the UC/ UCLA Biomedical Sciences program." Dr. Levister said it will be important to find a progressive leader who can build strong relationships with the community and continue Cordova’s quest for academic diversity and excellence.

Now attention will focus on finding a replacement. University of California officials will appoint an acting chancellor. That person has not been chosen yet, said UCR spokesman Kevin Lowery.

1992 when candidate Bill Clinton showed up. He claimed to be mentially Black and was mental about those Black people of color that were in a position to shoot their own Black people. If you listen to your Black people, they would say there is not a person in this country that is not important to her and if he wouldn't a better the thirty-five different candidates that they want and want to do for her and grandchildren today. This is what do Black people for their children and family's I'm sure in years.

I also remember the many times mama would have me go to get a swing from the oak tree in the yard to keep my boys in line. I did it.

I can see in my mind's eye mama standing in the front yard. The sun set down we aren't going to give my money, to have my day out. In hollers of me and pointed to the heart and head you will be alright. In others words do me and bring me no money back to the others. Trust with dignity and respect. 6TH WARD

According to reports Friday night, young Clavighorn was watching police cars as they began to move across a bunch of guys in a car. He ran the other way to get to a relative's house and tried to jump over a fence but was pulled down and stamped on and then shot in the back of the head.

Clavighorn was born on March 8, 1997. A resident of Moreno Valley, he attended Crestline Elementary before he went on to Mt. View Middle School and was in the 9th grade at Moreno Valley High School where he played football. Before being transferred to Bayside Charter School in Moreno Valley, he lived behind his mother and father-Clyde and Stacy Malott, 4 sisters and 3 brothers, and uncles, many friends that knew him to be the loving and full of life.

The investigation is continuing and anyone with information is encouraged to contact Jeff Buompensiero of the Central Riverside Unit at 951-655-2775 or for Eric Mickle of the Moreno Valley Police Department at 951-446-6600.

CORDOVA

President Dyson cited her accomplishments at UCR and committed that the medical school effort will continue to move ahead. "UCR is a proud institution with a very clear sense of forward motion, and Francis desires a great deal of the credit for that." J. Timothy McClarty, president of the City Council, said that Cordova is an excellent fit for everything Purdue seeks. "Cordova stood out as the right person at the right time for Purdue," he said. "Her vision for the university and higher education matches the vision of the board."

Cordova is UCR’s seventh chancellor and started work in Riverside in July 2002. She will stay in Riverside until at least July 1.

Mayweather outlasts De La Hoya

Mayweather, still undefeated, says he's retiring

By Leland Stein

Las Vegas

It's been a long time coming, but Floyd Mayweather Jr. is recuperating so he has the best pound-for-pound fighter in the world and Oscar “The Golden Boy” De La Hoya put the enemist back into boxing - but did one work.

Before a loud, pro-De La Hoya, thunder-filled, sold-out 15,700-plus crowd at the MGM Grand Garden, the Cuban-born native, Mayweather, did just enough over 12 rounds to win the WBC super welterweight title with his unanimous decision of 116-112 to 114-112.

De La Hoya, 35, who promoted the aggregate for the entire year, felt De La Hoya had the decision and the entire fight, but he wanted to give the fans a good fight.

De La Hoya (38-5, 30 KOs) was the aggressor for the entire bout and explained, “I fought the best fighter in the world against Barry Bonds, the voices are decidedly in admiration.

By Jon D. Gaede

from the crowd.

“When I looked at the punch numbers, I can say why I'm the new champion,” Mayweather explained. “I fought the best fighter in our era and I beat him,”

De La Hoya lost.

Chasing Henry

In pursuit of Henry Aaron's all-time home run record of 755. Barry Bonds had it, too. It was the 11th home run of the year for Bonds as he seeks New York's Tom Glavine's deep. The Giants lost the game, but all baseball fans have turned toward the classic.

In a mere ABC/ESPN poll, only 37% of those asked actually wanted Bonds to break Aaron's record. However, 75% of African American men want Bonds to surpass Harmon Hunt's. Can't be controlled, can't be predicted. Questions of the impact came up and Mayweather said that he is officially retired. "What better way to go out?" he asked. "What else do I have to prove? I'm on top and I can now spend time with my family."

De La Hoya left the door open for his future saying that he was going to watch the fight, see how his timing was and analyze it all.

I think the judges got it right this time, I had it 115-113, so do not be surprised if we see a rematch. There is simply too much money on the line not to try again.

Those Who Give Back to the Community Honored in Riverside

By Naomi Bonman

Recently, several citizens were honored for their commitment to community service.

Age proves to be just a number when it comes to contributing back to the community. Among the Champions of Justice, were three Champions On The Run—Monica Saucedo, J. D., and the first to be honored.

Upon hearing that the King Hall Women and Children's Shelter were suffering from a coat shortage, the school decided to collect 1,000 coats and was rewarded with the community's gratitude.

"It only takes one simple idea to make a difference in the lives of others," Monroe said.

Acceptance is almost everyone really wants in Life. That is what the Riverside Poly High School Cross Country team wants when it comes to contributing back to the community. Among the Champions of Justice on the rise, the Riverside Poly High School Cross Country team to accept him as they would accept anyone else is the definition of true champions.

Fact or Fiction: Minor past criminal convictions will disqualify you from the RSPD applicant pool?

According to information obtained during the First Buckworld, it is the agency's policy that the only absolute disqualifications for employment are felony convictions, and a criminal history of domestic violence. Most misdemeanors and all infractions are negotiable offenses. Additionally, the agency's investigative team assesses applicants on a case-by-case basis. Both officers are extremely vigilant of their program and know they are doing something positive to promote diversity within their agency.

With several job options within the Riverside County Sheriff's Department, the deputy position is one of many. The agency is 100% made up of clerks, cooks, and an array of color positions you just might be able to think of as low enforcement positions. The position of training deputy pays a starting salary of $50,000 and offers several benefits. Officer Kennedy-Smith warns that training deputies earn very low rates at first and a some point it will even be below the minimum physical agility programs that might be expected to meet. The agency is still accepting applications, and more information can be obtained by logging in to the Black Voice News website.
Conversations with Living Legends
Series at Dora Nelson Museum

The Dora Nelson African American Art & History Museum Inc. is continuing its divine purpose of dialogue with a mission to educate, enlighten, inspire the community and acknowledge significant contributions of African Americans locally, nationally and of course internationally.

Ora Mobley-Sweeting is an acclaimed human rights activist, well-versed author, award-winning honoree, who with her late son Dr. Ezekiel Mobley, Jr. wrote the book "Nobody Gave Me Permission: Memoirs Of A Harlem Activist" will be the honored guests. For a series of conversations with living legends Mrs. Mobley-Sweeting was clearly a divine choice. If you can recall anything throughout our history, there have been women that have set a new foundation, a platform in which we want to give our best and help our community. Mrs. Mobley-Sweeting was at the helm of that foundation, she was part of the fading Harlem Renaissance but the awakening of the Civil Rights Movement. Having worked with Malcolm X, Adam Clayton Powell Jr. and many, many other amazing trail blazers during that time, her position was unique. She emphasized how to fight for independence in Africa influenced by African Americans born in the states. With a profound insight on politics she put pen to paper to share her memoirs.

The event is open to the public; Admission is free Saturday May 12, 2007 at 1:00 PM. The location: 316 East 7th Street, Perris, Ca. 92572. Books will be available for purchase and signing. The Museum is a Non-Profit Organization and accepts donations. For more information call 310 652-4891.

The City of Riverside’s Call Center began in 2004 as a way to provide a centralized point of contact for any non-emergency calls for city information and services. The first day the center intercepted a requester 15 calls and produced one work order about an unsecured sidewalk. In April, less than three years later, the call center cracked the 50,000th call threshold, coming in at 50,000. A meager 15 calls were received, and many of those were requests for graffiti removal. "Graffiti removal requests are one of the most common," said Terry Rogers, Riverside Public Utilities, who oversees the 311 Call Center operations for the city. Nearly 1,500 graffiti calls were reported each month, and they are typically cleaned up within 24 hours.

Riverside residents have taken the call center’s 828-5311 number to heart, and now the center receives about 500 calls a day and has processed 1.275 work orders since that April call.

The service is designed to take pressure off of the 911 emergency lines and allow safety dispatchers to handle emergency calls, as well as being a city services point of contact. "Before, people would be transferred to different offices or, even departments, in order to speak to the right person," Rogers said. "With 311, you don’t have to know what department or what person; we’ll find you out for you and direct you as quickly as possible."

Since its activation, the call center has fielded more than 100,000 phone calls with 65,10-member team. However, Rogers said that as more residents find out about the center, the number is expected to rise. They have fielded more than 125,000 calls this year alone.

The 311 Call Center is staffed Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays and from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. on the weekends. Messages left during off-hours are responded to when the center opens the next day. In addition to the 311-5311 line, requests for information and action can be made online at www.riversideca.gov by clicking the 311-5311 icon at the bottom of each page. "By the end of this year, we hope to have three or four digital 3-1-1 dialing systems in place," Rogers said. "It will allow any resident to get in touch by simply dialing 3-1-1."

Helping Small Businesses and Organizations Bridge the Digital Divide

Office 2.0 Tools

Office 2.0 is described by its adherents as all things beyond the generic web browser (like Internet Explorer or Firefox) and a set of online services to provide all the functionality needed by a computer user, removing the need for any application to be installed on the computer itself. The bottom line is cost, infrastructure cost and increased mobility. Following are some of the tools that increased the productivity of our company very quickly.

Google
http://www.google.com.ap- provides email, document, spreadsheet, web page and student page tools. With the e-mail service, each user for a fee of $59 per year, can have a 100 MB mailbox that is branded by your own domain (yourname@yourbusiness.com instead of yourname@gmail.com). It will take a learning curve to become used to Google’s e-mail, since it does not utilize folders, rather it focuses on labels and search.

The document and spreadsheet tool allows you to collaborate with others you invite and edit the same document simultaneously. Google also offers user training with an on-demand web page creator that allows you to easily create your own basic web page. The start page features allows you to create a specialty designed starting page to help organize yourself in one place that it is as an online desktop).

http://www.zoho.com allows you to affordably manage projects with a fair amount of complexity. If your needs are very basic, then I would recommend<http://www.37signals.com>. If you have any projects that require multiple users, tasks and deadlines, then this service will help keep you organized and allow for easier management.

CRM
http://www.zoho.com is a customer relationship management tool that you can use for free up to some users. This service is an affordable alternative to the more popular Salesforce.com. Consistent usage of this tool will help you better manage and track your client relationships and allow for a smoother transition process when you experience turnover in your sales staff.

M l d M e i s t e r .c o m www.mindmeister.com is a mind mapping / brainstorming tool that allows for capturing requirements and, developing ideas, organizing your research and quickly outlining project ideas.
