Martin Luther King Jr. Harbor Hospital (formally King-Drew Medical Center) faces an emer­gency more Friday night and will be temporarily shuttered within two weeks. The sobering news spread quickly throughout the hospital community as it engaged an army of reactions from fed­erations, local health authorities, and physicians many of whom trained and labored at the historic institution.

"I go back to my first child at King-Drew 50 years ago. To sit in is like losing a member of the family," said one source. For years 50-year-old Margaret Meyers of Pomona news of King-Drew’s imminent closure to deep and hurt. Pledging quickly the hospital’s long troubled history, Hayden suggested to remember the Martin Luther King Jr. General Hospital that rose from the ashes of Watts Riots.

"You could feel and see the pride. So many Black doctors devoted in white making around... our hospital was the pride of our own. It was a sight to see. Watts Riots came from all over, we have to give birth at King," said Hayden. King-Drew, in the judgment of a hue of honor to hold up your baby and say ‘We’re a King baby’.

The hospital was a dream come true.

That dream, however, has been indisputably, Los Angeles County officials moved to close the hospital after federal regulations made $350 million in annual funding for the facility would be at risk.

County leaders hope to re-open the hospital another time, but that pledge did little to lift the number suffering around African American-American physicians, nurses, interns, and patients touched by the hospital.

"We have to support our local King-Drew Lester King, Jr., Charles R. Drew, Medical Center to fight the great challenge of equality and freedom and the removal of African American physician and medical researchers from the community’s ‘blood banking’.

By the early 60s, R&B singer songwriter Sam Cooke informed us that ‘a change is gonna come’. He was right, eth­nicity is changing in Los Angeles, less than 80 percent of the population identifies itself as white.

Los Angeles and New York now may have more of the fastest growing centers for Latinos and Blacks, but according to the Census Bureau, the largest county in the nation is growing big linear cities in rapid numbers, settling in rural and suburban communities.

It is rumored that Penniman encouraged his friend Betty Dean Anderson to run against Rikke Von Johnson in the sixth ward. Train Up A Child In The Way He Should Go And When He Is Old He Will Not Depart From It

What are parents training their children to be? The real question? What can a little girl who was wearing earrings and green hair extensions at 10-years-old look forward to as a young woman? I have witnessed preschoolers with nose rings. It's not that there aren't some parents whose children will naturally absorb it through the bloodsteam.

Popular culture influences all children, including sports apparel, before they can even walk or talk. Baby boys are allowed to grow long hair and either brokered or put in ponytails. Popular girls are rubbed into colorful hair extensions and light make-up. And if not referring to the elementary school children, the child is highly likely to become a poppet, a performers culture, and popular. Fine of today's most popular young female celebrities are no longer influenced by pop culture. They are Britney Spears, Paris Hilton, Lindsay Lohan, and Nicole Richie. These girls are a mess, and young African American girlsarching in footsteps by anything to grow up fast in their hip-hop base-heat of parents. But I am talking about preschoolers. It is a popular culture phenomenon. The few celebrities who are in the limelight and have a trend began with short skirts. They are in the formation of the hip-hop generation. Now, according to popular magazines, it's also the case with this generation. Such things. That's popular culture.

Other than information about systematic and institutional discrimination found that African-Americans were paid less than their Caucasian counterparts. The Federal Reserve Board, U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, and the FDIC have confirmed similar findings. According to Angela Ciccolo, NAACP Intergen Coordinator, these statistical disparities are not coincidental, but the result of systematic, targeted discrimination against African American borrowers. The NAACP’s lawsuit was designed to stop lenders from engaging in institutional racism and to bring their practices into compliance with federal law, including the Fair Housing Act, the Equal Credit Opportunity Act, and the Civil Rights Act. "The goal of the lawsuit is to identify and challenge those lending practices that are predatory," and to ensure some compensation for those charged illegally by those lenders," said Walter James, President of the NAACP San Bernardino Chapter. Mortgage lenders named in the suit include: American, Wells Fargo, Fannie Mae, Mortgage, Countrywide, Long Beach Mortgage, CityGroup, BNC Mortgage, Accredited Home Lenders, Encore, First Franklin, HSBC, and Washington Mutual. The NAACP is asking its members and all African American borrowers who bought or refinanced a home in the last five years, whether with a listed lender or another lender, to ask the NAACP if they may be victims of discrimination- ary practices. Woodie Rucker Hughes, President of the NAACP Riverside chapter, invites Inland Empire residents to contact their local chapter. "We are hoping to let the playing field and correct the problem so that homeownership doesn’t turn into a nightmare and ruin the American dream for all potential homeowners," said Rucker Hughes. The NAACP is represented by Pazzuti & Tylicki LLP of Austin and Katherine Brown Keeler, LLP of Los Angeles, and the law office of Gary L. Blidinco. The University of California president Robert C. Dynes, whose tenure had been marked by budget woes and a compen- sation scandal, says he’ll leave by June 2008. Pressed by women and minor- ity activists for his push to diversify UC’s 10 campus systems and by associates for his "extraordi- nary intellect," Dykes, 64, says he was not prepared to step down because of the debates over executive pay that clouded the last year of his tenure.

"Leaving is bittersweet. You never accomplish everything you want to accomplish." Peppered with questions about the university’s compensation practices including quietly spreading millions of dollars in perks to top UC executives with- out regrets’ approval, Dykes said he chose not to have in the middle of the scandal. "With that resolved and behind me, I’m in love with my wife and it is time to spend some time with her before it’s too late."

As president Dykes, a well-known, prominent figure, was an energetic and enthusiastic advocate for a public university system hailed as one of the world’s best, with an enrollment of nearly 200,000 students. He said he faced a series of difficult challenges, including maintaining UC’s quality with fewer state resources and expanding it’s diversity without the help of affirmative action. "I’ve deeply believe that every child who qualifies and works hard should have access to the same opportunity as me because of the success I’ve had," said Dykes.

Don't Let Your Teen's Future Go Up In Smoke

It's simple, marijuana and teens are not a good mix—especially when it comes to learning and academic success. We know that all young people face challenges as they grow and mature and that the dangers and temptations of drugs are all around. We also know that as a parent or someone who cares about young people, you want the very best for them; you want them to do even better than you did and lead productive lives.

While overall drug use among teens is down in recent years, there are still too many brilliant young people whose potential is ruined. Don't let drugs destroy their chance of going to college or landing a good job.

MARIJUANA CAN LIMIT YOUR TEEN'S ACADEMIC ACHIEVEMENT

- A teenage marijuana user's odds of dropping out are more than twice that of a non-user.¹
- The short-term effects of marijuana can include impaired memory and ability to learn.²

Parents and family are still the most important influence in young peoples' lives so keep the lines of communication open, set a clear, "no marijuana" rule, stay involved, and continue to discuss the dangers and consequences of drug use. You make the difference. Knowing that education is the key to a better tomorrow, you have the power to protect their potential and help lead them on the road to success.

The Magic Touch Catering To Their Residents

By Shantiqua S. Stuart

The Magic Touch Residential Care Facility for the Elderly has been going strong since its grand opening in 2005. It is an elderly care facility that is located in a moderate income neighborhood, and their profits are sensible to better accommodate the community. The facility has two acres of land with an elegant country setting. It contains an embalming and viewing parlor, many tropical plants, beautiful flowers, and a garden. It is licensed for six residents and has accommodations for up to 12 residents. There are special pathways for the elderly to walk through and plenty of space for them to occupy. It's a "loving Christian home," says Ms. Louise Tucker, the LYN Foundation's president.

Ms. Tucker has been working at the facility's care facility for the elderly. Ms. Tucker has been working at "The Magic Touch" facility for approximately two years. With more than 25 years of experience in the nursing field, she retired from the Veterans Administration Medical Center in 1995, and opened up the residential care facility. She wanted to provide a good home for the elderly and make a positive impact in their lives. She admits to observing elderly care centers "that were not to their wonderful residents"; their residents, for the best training.

"The facility's staff place high value on the quality and care that they provide for their residents. Ms. Tucker explains, "We cater to our residents with specialized care." She has had specialized training in many areas of the nursing field, and the manager of the facility has over twenty years of experience. In fact, "The Magic Touch has a "direct care professional" staff, which validates that their staff members are more than just caregivers, but also have well-trained medical expertise, integrity, and quality. Local Bakery's Pies Draw Daily Crowds and Celebs

Emma Shaw Celebration, 95-years Young

Building Better Communities

The Black Voice News Page B-4 Thursday, August 16, 2007

Sweet Success for Mommie Helen's Bakery

Dorothy Pryce Rose talks to customers

Bohanon August 10, 1912 in Tallulah, Louisiana where she Madison Parish Training School. While in school she married her future husband, George Shaw.

Emma married George February 6, 1933, and to this union were six sons and five daughters. They lived in Tallahassee until 1945 and then migrated to Las Vegas, NV, looking for a better life for their family. In 1944, the family picked up and moved to San Bernardino.

George worked in construction until he retired. He was an active member of the Bethel Church in San Bernardino for many years. This trade was passed on to his children and grandchildren. Emma worked as a bookkeeper to help make ends meet. It was hard times in those days and even harder for her family together. Even though their resources were limited, that did not prevent Emma from sharing with others in need.

George Shaw was preceded in death by his wife, Helen, and five children: Donna Davis, George, Jr., Marilyn Smith, Barbara White, and Michael Shaw. He is survived by his daughter, Emma Shaw, and seven grandchildren.

Hope Missionary Baptist Church

After the passing of Reverend Campbell, Mother Shaw changed her membership to Greater New Jerusalem Church of God in Christ, which is under the leadership of Elder Horace C. Pugh.

Mother Shaw always seemed to know how to comfort people, no matter who they are. She always had a smile and good advice for anyone who came to her. She was a beloved member of her community. Her favorite saying was: "Tell me now, you need to get right with God and live a new life. But, they say that in writing up, and soon, this world is coming to an end. Now is your time to see -- lines every day."

Then she became affectionately known as Mother Shaw.

She called back the very next day and said, "Oh, what happened to you?" Rose said.

"Shaq fell in love with the sweet potato pies, and the two are now friends. Even when he was up in New York, the orders continued. Other celebrities followed -- Penny Marshall, Angela Bassett, Kathy Ireland, Stevie Wonder and James Worth. She even sent a pie to a soldier serving in the Iraq war. Even though her news story was on the front page of The Black Voice News on August 24, 2007, the story was not about her success.

"God's gone and I'm never going to eat another bite of pie again," she said.

But again, God was on her side, she said. "God told me to leave my job and open a bakery," she said.

So after 30 years, Rose left her job and took on the task of baking full-time. She began with her two sisters, a cousin and her husband. But it wasn't until God led her to an event that Rose was sponsoring that things began to take off. Rose said she contacted an assistant at Shaquille O'Neal's office and asked him, "Shaq, I'm sending a pie to Shaq. Is this okay?" Rose said.

"No, never mind," Rose said. "I'll just send it."

"You do it your own way," she said. "Don't skip, don't cheat your people and use the best ingredients."

The bakery began operating on a very small scale in 1999 after Rose took a peach cobbler to a potluck at her job at South Pacific Bell.

"They're sweet potato pies. In the ultimate act of romance, the man gave her one of his pies -- a precious possession since the bakery puts a two pie limit on customers during busy times."

"He promised me and let me know when he was proposing," Rose said.

While local people are really just getting to know about the bakery, others have known her for years about her love and care that goes into making peach cobblers, pecan pies, the "Sok it to me cake," sugar-free cobblers and other items.

While people used to line the bakery with pictures of lines -- waiting to see what God has in store for us.

Shaquille O'Neal was the first to hear the story, followed by others, including Angela Bassett, Kathy Ireland, Stevie Wonder and James Worthy. She even sent a pie to a soldier serving in the Iraq war. Even though her news story was on the front page of The Black Voice News on August 24, 2007, the story was not about her success.
