Obama, Change and the Civil Rights Movement

By Kevin Martin

In celebration of the birth of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. on February 15, 1929, West Coast Black Newspapers offers a call for change, to this end, we invite you to reflect on the changes brought about by the Civil Rights Movement.

A key moment of the Civil Rights Movement was the creation of a new kind of black leadership. What is fascinating is that these same very people who were in the forefront of trying to stop segregation today are being hailed as heroes by the mainstream media.

Many of today's black leaders, from the early days of the movement through the present, are prominent in the media.

The civil rights movement is a chance for African Americans to make their voices heard. It was a movement that was about more than just ending segregation.

The movement inspired new leaders to step forward and lead the way for a new generation of activists.

African Americans today are being called to action. They are being asked to be the voice of the voiceless. It is time for them to step up and be heard.

Recently on Saturday, I found myself driving down Sunset Blvd in Hollywood on a beautiful California day. The sky was a clear cornstalk blue and it felt like the beginning of summer in February. My destination was Beverly Hills, its legendary hotel, which a day before, Britney Spears had stopped to have a meal and dodge the photographers who followed her.

Today was no different. There were many photographers at the Beverly Hills Hotel, but for another reason.

They were there for the 39th NAACP Image Award Nominee Luncheon, for the 39th Annual NAACP Image Awards, scheduled to air live on Fox, from the Shrine Auditorium in Los Angeles, on February 14, 2008. The opening remarks made by Clayola Brown, Image Award Committee Chair were, "They said we would not last, but here we are in-our 39th year, even better than before. I am so happy to see everyone."

This year the luncheon was hosted by best friends Tisha Campbell-Martin (My Wife & Kids) and Tichina Arnold (Everybody Hates Chris). These two have known each other since the age of 12. They have been through thick and thin together in Hollywood, from raising kids, boyfriends, marriages, and career challenges. Putting them together on stage as co-hosts was brilliant. The pair cut up and kept the audience in laughter. Each one seemed to feed off of the other and as comedians they spontaneously let their hair down and kept everyone holding their stomach, bending over in pain. They were cozy together and it was like watching and old version of the hit series, "Martin."

The nominees of this year's Image Awards turned out in large numbers. Each year, it always amazes me the buzz that is created from the up-to-date star power that dominates the movie of that year. This year, the oohs and uhs were sent to the young cast members of "The Great Debaters," Denzel Whitaker, Nate Parker, and Jurnee Smollett were present at the luncheon and they created some magic. Denzel and Nate are nominated for the category of best supporting actor in a movie, and Jurnee is nominated for best actress in a movie.

There are 44 categories to which five nominees are selected. The winners, selected by NAACP members will be announced during the live airing of the telecast.

The NAACP Image Awards honors projects and individuals that promote diversity in the arts in television, recording, literature and motion picture. The theme of this year's celebration is "Stand Up and Be Counted." Also, this year, the Image Awards is going "green". In recognition of today's environmental crisis, the organization is incorporating eco-friendly initiatives to reduce the Image Awards carbon footprint and reduce the carbon impact on the world's climate.

Founded in 1909, the NAACP is the nation's oldest and largest civil rights organization. Make sure to mark your calendars to watch this year's annual celebration. It promises to be an exciting night.

need to parent, but you (teachers) have to find out about the home environment," he said. Cosby believes that teachers have a responsibility to help the children and the best way to do that is to understand that many parents do not know what to do. "TEach them to do it because it is not in the home. It's important to understand that these kids may not have it at home so it has to happen here (at the school)." Cosby went on to speak directly to parents who were there to pick up their children. Cosby said, "Your kids have an owner." He heard about parents buying sagging pants, and foul CDs. Of the games to be held to put those to an end, it is a part of character correction.

Character education is very important. He spoke of people who cuss at school. "Let's save these Black children," he unapologetically proclaimed.

Valentine's Day

Car Seat Clinic

The Black Voice News

The Riverside Police Department, in conjunction with Riverside County Injury Prevention Services, and graphic Empire Kids Safety, will host a community child safety seat clinic that will feature "Love Them, Buckle Them" in celebration of Valentine's Day. As parents get their child's car seat checked by a certified technician, Buckle Bear will hand out Valentine's Day treats to children. Staff will check on seat for any recalls, proper usage and proper fit for the child.

Another area of concern was expulsions. He asked, "who is the bright person that came up with expelling kids for skipping school," he then stopped to let the question sink in. All the audience admissed the audience.

The event will be held at the Riverside Target, 1520 Tyler Street, on February 14, 2008, from 10:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m.

A Q&A with Dr. Joseph A. Bailey, II

Dear A.T.

I have a 4-year-old who is starting kindergarten. She asks everyone if they are sick...she is told that everyone is sick. She wants to stay home from school because she is scared. How can I get her to go to school?

Richard D. Jones

There are some children who are sick and some children who are not. To objectify the illness is not helpful. It is important to focus your attention on the fear. The fear is an emotional response that children have when they feel that they are not safe. It is important to reassure your child that she is safe and that she will be taken care of at school.

Children need to be reminded that their fears are normal and that they are not alone. It is important to talk to your child about her fears and to help her understand that she is not the only one who feels this way. It is also important to reassure your child that she is safe and that she will be taken care of at school.

A child's fear can be reduced by providing a sense of security. It is important to provide your child with a routine and to make sure that she knows what to expect when she arrives at school. It is also important to provide your child with opportunities to express her fears and to talk about them.

It is important to help your child understand that she is not alone and that she is not the only one who feels this way. It is also important to help your child understand that she is safe and that she will be taken care of at school.

The average child will have between six to 10 colds a year. The average adult will get two to three colds a year according to The National Institute for Allergy and Infectious Diseases. And it can be said that the difference between a cold and the flu, which can create more severe consequences for the parents who have a child.

Is there any way to tell the difference between a cold and the flu? In general, the flu is worse for the common cold, and there is a high fever, body aches, extreme tiredness, and coughs. Health problems, such as pneumonia, can occur.

But to avoid both, some precautions can be helpful.

• Cover their nose and mouth with a tissue when they cough or sneeze. They should wash their hands often and after they use it.

• Remind them not to touch their face, eyes, mouth, or nose. They should wash their hands often and after they use it.

• Avoid close contact with people who are sick. They should stay home or miss school. How can I get my child to do this?

GLENDALE, ARIZ. By Leland Stein III

Following the history made in Super Bowl XXXVII, the NFL, its fans and the world were right to add its legacy to his game, and one that Mike Carey could have ever imagined in his youth. His story is not of the Rooney Rule that requires at least one minority be included in the interview process before an NFL general manager gets to potentially hire another minority candidate. He didn't even have a college coaching vacancy. It (Rooney Rule) took a lot of people to buy into it to happen. We knew we had to change the change the game. I'm happy to see Mike get this opportunity and just maybe the spirit of it that (Rooney Rule) is teaching.

But Carey's in line as an NFL official, was notified by the NFL he would be in Super Bowl XLII referee following the conference championship games. He said he was more excited than surprised.

"When I get the call, I felt great," Carey remarked. "It took a while for my feet to hit the ground."

More than matched me was the commander of the officials. I got so many e-mails and text messages of congratulations. The general theme was they were all pleased to see me at this point."

Carey noted that he wasn't really surprised because he felt that he has been a competitive official.

"You always hope something spectacular will happen," he explained. "Each year you hope you're going to be good enough to get the call."

Well, the NFL finally agreed that my preparation was good enough to referee pioneering lore.

The officials at the Super Bowl always choose on merit, with the first African American to receive this honor getting an assignment at the Super Bowl. Carey was among the NFL's top referees for a decade, but has never been among the elite, not even at the Super Bowl.

The selection of Mike Carey as Super Bowl XLII referee is about change the pattern. I'm happy to see Mike get this opportunity and just maybe the spirit of it that (Rooney Rule) is teaching."

But Carey said he hopes his effort inspires other minorities to consider officiating. However, he admitted that he's more excited than surprised.

Thousands Attend the Riverside Black History Parade & Expo

The community saw thousands of people enjoy beautiful 80 degree weather and the best conditions in several years for the 29th Annual Riverside Black History Parade.

Mayor Ron Loveridge, all of the City Council members, members of the Human Relations Commission, representatives from the Fire Department and Police Chief Russ Leach, were in the parade which is still chaired by Della and Carmen Roberts.

Jumping cars, equestrian entries, about 50 motorcycles, drill teams, schools, businesses and organizations made up the exciting event that was followed by an expo.

The opening ceremonies included a moment of silence for long-time equestrian judge, Mr. Jim Real, who passed away. Following the moment of silence Jeannie Gaines sang Amazing Grace and the new equestrian judge was introduced. Mr. White is the 14-year Fancy Western State Champion and is seen every year at the Rose Parade. He was joined by drill and marching team judges: Doris Bunchard, Jeannie Gaines, Stephanie Thomas Ross, Jeffrey Graham, James Redmond, Lawrence Davison, Marshall Anderson and Melvin Lucas.

Division leaders included Mrs. Mike Davis, Presiding Judge Richard T. Field, Judge Irma Poole Asberry both breaking the glass ceiling. Field is the first Black judge in Riverside Superior Court and she is also the first Black female judge.

West African Methodism, Dr. Daniel E. Walker educated the participants on the history of the Black Church beginning with its roots derived from Africa. He spoke about the religion and culture of the enslaved, origins of the Church of God In Christ, African Methodist Episcopal, Christian Church, Seventh-day Adventist, and more. He also covered the Civil Rights movement, the Black Power period, and the history of Gospel music.

"I want the participants to understand the strength and power of the institution called the Black Church of America. It's a history that tells of the determination of what we as a people have accomplished, people who had this dream!" -- Dr. Daniel Walker.
