Obama Wins Mississippi, Deflects More Racist Comments

By Chris Levister

In a come-from-behind win yesterday, President Barack Obama defeated Senator John McCain in Mississippi, 55 to 44 percent, according to exit polls. "I'm humbled by tonight's victory," Obama said at his election night party in Chicago, "but I'm not satisfied. I'm determined to keep fighting."

"If Obama was a White man, he would not be in this position..."

"The Riv...
Clinton Remarks About Obama are Troubling

I have been troubled by former President Bill and Secretary of State Hillary Clinton's recent mental attitude towards Senator Barack Obama to serve as his vice-president during her husband's campaign. She has indicated that she would not be an acceptable candidate for the position of vice-president of the United States in the 2008 election.

One of her key points is that she believes that Obama's qualifications are not enough for the position of vice-president. She believes that he lacks the experience necessary to be a viable candidate for the position. She also believes that he lacks the necessary qualifications for the position of president.

The fact that Senator Clinton has not offered her support for Senator Obama for the position of vice-president is a cause for concern. She has not offered any formal statement that indicates her support for Senator Obama.

Senator Clinton's actions are not surprising, given her history of political maneuvering. However, her actions are not in the best interest of the Democratic party or the country.

The Democratic party needs to unite behind Senator Obama to win the upcoming election. Senator Clinton's actions are not helping the party to achieve this goal.

I am concerned about Senator Clinton's actions and I believe that she should support Senator Obama for the position of vice-president.

Mr. Jaquet: San Bernardino Loses Another Gentle Giant

I lost another close friend and political mentor this past week in the person of Mr. Joseph Jaquet, also known as the "Gentle Giant." He was a long-time supporter of the Black Press and a leader in the San Bernardino community.

Jaquet was a man of great character and a tireless supporter of the Black Press. He was a devoted family man and a respected community leader.

I am saddened by his passing and I extend my condolences to his family and friends.

Black Muslim such as The Black Muslim newspaper. This is because one to fail in the Euro-American market, in short, you only have control. In this period, which the word picture can only apply to a Euro-American writer of the century, which have nothing to do with the facts of their experience in America since the 1880s with the word picture do not mean to be more receptive to the more functional facts, they do not mean to be more receptive to the more functional facts. One of these aspects is reinforcing the fact that Black and Latinx people are the majority in this country, the term picture defines the details. Unfortunately, since much more needs to be known about the culture of the African American population, relatively little is known about the African American population. Darcell: Smooth Lyrics and Sound that Soothe the Soul

The Black Voice News

By Joe Cuca

I music lovers ever wonder to find music that inspires feelings of being loved and valued? Darcell's music is just that. He is a singer/songwriter, dancer, and model. For two years, this artist has been singing his way through the streets of Los Angeles. A native from Texas, he has been selling records without any support from label, and marketing through rejection, even spending some months living out of his car. Now his time has come with the release of his second album set to be released May 2008.

Darcell is inspired by the smooth, sensitive and urban sounds of Stevie and Babyface Wonder, and the soulfully messaged messages of Marvin Gaye. However, his biggest inspiration is the woman that taught him how to play the piano and subsequently quirked his first interest in being a musician, his grand-mother. For the still taught guitarist, music definitely runs in Darcell's blood. His bloodhound and played piano, and as a child Darcell sang as part of his family's gospel ensemble, "The Sunlighters.

Despite all the trials Darcell has faced to come this far, he describes the music in this album as having a light-hearted tone; he focuses on creating soothing melodies and positive lyrics, the experience of listening to one of his songs is being relaxed onto a comfortable couch and whisper "you are loved." "I try to make people feel beautiful and valued, when they listen to this album my desire is for them to be relaxed and happy," says Darcell. The songs are a request for love and have a tone of admiration and appreciation as he has come to believe.

Darcell expresses this feel throughout the continuity of his album. The first single, Let's Make Love(Again), is now available on promos. Darcell's album is a simple and mellow song. Its music is set to release on March 14th. Just Darcell, his guitar, and his lyrics. One tune, one instrument, one message. The simplicity of his sound is complimented by his melodicness and breathy voice; his clean lyrics are a request for love and have a tone of admiration and appreciation as he has come to believe. The Black community that disparity and differential treatment range from education, employment, government healthcare. In a series of symposia scheduled at the University of California, Riverside by Dr. Carolyn Murray, healthcare was the focus of Black Voice News columnist Ernest C. Levister, Jr., M.D., F.A.C.P., P.A.C.P., as he spoke on the topic, "Impacting Health Care Disparities: A Case for Diversity: University of California Riverside." According to the Office of Statewide Health Planning and Development, health disparities nationally are 886,000. More Blacks died between 1991 and 2000 than would have if equal healthcare had been afforded to them. As of 2002, the diverse and rapidly growing region had one of the lowest ratios of general practitioners per 100,000 population in the state, at less than 60.

This disparity is due partly to the shortfall of training afforded minority students within the medical profession, which is why the James Wesley Vines Medical Society desires to level the playing field. The Vines Society, a component of the National Medical Association began the program without the consent, advice, or vote of the UCR Academic Senate. They called for an investigation that uncovered that UCR's bio-medical program with its "mandated failure", not only impacted the underrepresented, discouraging science and health careers, but impacted all students, families and the community.

It was also discovered that in a 20-year history, UCR's bio-medical program had one African American and twelve Latino students that finished the program. "This program was ignored by officials. They didn't see it as a problem," stated Levister.

"The Black News View for May 19, 2008" By Jose Corona & Lee Ragin, Jr.

It is known within the Black community that disparities and differential treatment range from education, employment, government healthcare. In a series of symposia scheduled at the University of California, Riverside by Dr. Carolyn Murray, healthcare was the focus of Black Voice News columnist Ernest C. Levister, Jr., M.D., F.A.C.P., P.A.C.P., as he spoke on the topic, "Impacting Health Care Disparities: A Case for Diversity: University of California Riverside." According to the Office of Statewide Health Planning and Development, health disparities nationally are 886,000. More Blacks died between 1991 and 2000 than would have if equal healthcare had been afforded to them. As of 2002, the diverse and rapidly growing region had one of the lowest ratios of general practitioners per 100,000 population in the state, at less than 60.

This disparity is due partly to the shortfall of training afforded minority students within the medical profession, which is why the James Wesley Vines Medical Society desires to level the playing field. The Vines Society, a component of the National Medical Association began a grassroots movement to increase public awareness, frame the healthcare disparity problem, and develop policies to address the unequal care among minorities.

They (Vines) noted striking irregularities in the UC system's program of education, in particular, UCR's seven-year bio-medical science program. They called for an investigation that uncovered that UCR's program with its "mandated failure", not only impacted the underrepresented, discouraging science and health careers, but impacted all students, families and the community. It was also discovered that in a 20-year history, UCR's bio-medical program had one African American and twelve Latino students that finished the program. "This program was ignored by officials. They didn't see it as a problem," stated Levister.

He continued: "The 2003 action by the California Legislature closing down the first 3 years of the UC Riverside Haidar UCLA Bio-Medical Science program represents the first time in the UC system's 135 year history that the state ordered the restructuring of an UC academic program without the consent, advice, or vote of the University Academic Senate. "This grassroots effort by the Vines Medical Society, a component of the NMA, led to the radical restructuring of the UC Riverside Haidar UCLA Bio-Medical Science program which cleared the way for UCR to create a four year medical school. "The Vines continues to work with UCR and believes in the philosophy that those who do not learn from the past are condemned to repeat it."

We need to get the heart that God has added, "Now, we're going to do this just have a 'man-making' contest'' To which

"Yes, you can't make me do it."

"God created man in his own image, in the image of God he created him; male and female he created them."

We need to surrender ourselves to God so that we may be able to do with what He needs us to do, so that we can have a pattern of the heart that God has created us to have.

Will you give God that opportunity to show you how rich your heart is, so that you will know that people are lovely, and that they may enjoy the same rich privilege that you already experience to know and love Him? Let us confess our sin before Almighty God and repent and seek God's forgiveness of our sins.

Decently and In Order Ministry will host the 8th Annual Pastors Breakfast from Abundant Living Family Church of Rancho Cucamonga, which consists of 5,000 members. Pastor Diego is dedicated to promoting and participating in programs that support children, youth, and families. He also supports programs in personal evangelism and outreach. Decently and In Order Ministry was founded by Evangelist Jerry Musgrove and his wife Dr. Robbin Huff-Musgrove in January of 1999. This ministry is devoted to ministering to the needs of men through fellowship, teaching, and evangelism. Decently and In Order Ministry strives to promote unity within the body of Christ and assistance in the development of strong male leadership. Evangelist Musgrove is dedicated to uniting the body of Christ regardless of culture, background, or differences. The focus has always been unity within the Body of Christ, that is the focus of the breakfast. It’s about developing relationships with other pastors, and our relationship with Christ.”

Evangelist Musgrove. “Pastors sit in 1 Corinthians 12:13-14 that all believers are...
