Perris Teacher Chokes Boy in Classroom

By Cheryl Brown

A teacher whose contract reportedly has not been renewed in the Perris High School District has been accused of choking a 15-year-old student after he allegedly lost control of the classroom.

According to Sergeant David Donowho of the Perris Police Department, on June 5, 1996 some students in Mr. Conn's English class were unruly when he was showing a video tape in the classroom.

"He turned off the video and approached the student," explained Sergeant Donowho.

"He allegedly grabbed his neck in a strangle hold and then asked the teacher what was he doing. The student pushed the teacher off of him. He mentioned the class was unruly and told the student to go to the office. I guess he wasn't moving fast enough and he had put a towel around his neck. Allegedly the teacher gripped the towel leading him to the door," he said.

Mrs. Gail Jackson offers a similar account of the incident. In her account, she says that the class was out of control and a piece of candy was thrown towards her son Jamien Nicholas Jackson by another student. Conn told him to pick it up. Before he could, Conn allegedly charged at her son and grabbed him by the throat and started strangling him. Jackson, pushed him off and Conn instructed him to get his belongings and get out of the class. As Jackson left the room he put a sweat towel around his neck. The teacher grabbed the towel and began tightening it around the young man's neck, another student had to pull them apart. Jackson left the classroom and went to his next class. He began feeling bad and went to report it to the vice-principal,

Mr. Vandenberg. Vandenberg was allegedly talking to students who were reporting the incident. He unknowingly sent Jackson on to class.

By 1:00 the next afternoon, nothing had been done. "They didn't to this day even check to see if my son is alright," said Gail Jackson.

According to Jackson, she called the police and placed a citizen's arrest on him (Conn). He was released on his own recognizance, he had no comment, and was talking with the union representative when the police found him.

"A report on the incident was written and a citation was issued for assault and battery and the case has been forwarded to the District Attorney's office," said Donowho. "Unfortunately he said we don't have the freedom to take people to jail. They are just too overcrowded."

On June 10, 1996, Ronald Jackson, the student's father went to the school to question why he and his wife had not been notified. He was not successful, nothing happened.

In an article in a Perris newspaper, the Superintendent Judy Smith said this teacher had been harassed for months by a group of students.

Mrs. Jackson said this was the first she had heard about it. "Why didn't anyone contact the parents of 'those kids' she was talking about...If my son was harassing the teacher, why didn't he (Mr. Conn) send him to the office? If my son had hit a teacher he would have been arrested and I expected nothing less from this incident," explained Jackson.

Mrs. Jackson is disappointed it took five days for the administration to respond only after they were contacted by the press; and to date no one has responded to her or checked the condition of her son. In the newspaper article, Mrs. Smith said she didn't know why the police were taking this matter so seriously. "I don't see why it is not taken seriously because he choked my son. If a student makes a verbal indirect threat to a teacher he is automatically written on a referral, sent to the office and suspended. This is serious to his parents," she said.

Black Voice initially called the Superintendent on this story. To date we have still not heard from any Perris school official.

Kelly Denny Comes of Age, The Village Participates

By Cheryl Brown

The stage was set. People who have been important to the growth and maturation of a beautiful African princess were in place. Let the ceremony of the Rites of Passage an African celebration begin. And so it was. Kelly April Denny was beginning the ceremony that took her from childhood to womanhood. The friends and extended family were on hand because the Ghanaian Proverb says "It takes a whole village to raise a child. Members of the village, some dressed in African clothing, were there to give Kelly support as she took this important step in her life in the tradition of our African ancestors, lost due to the enslavement of our people.

"This is not a Quinceanera, not a debutante coming out and not a Bas mitzvah," said the leader Josie Mwasi, who is coordinator of the Rites of Passage. The Rites of Passage is permission or right to move to a higher level of social or educational development. The granting empowers the individual and the community to move forward. "It can be done at any age and for any special occasion," said Jean Denny who got the idea from a short story in a book written by Shay Young. Kelly's instruction began nine months before this culmination.

Supreme Court Will Kill Blacks: Thomas Strikes Again

By Dr. Ron Walters
Washington Informer

On June 13, the Supreme Court decided two cases involving Congressional redistricting. One was Shaw v. Hunt from North Carolina, the original case, involving Mel Watt's District (12), and the other was Bush v. Vera, involving three districts from Texas, two Black (18 and 30) and one (29) Hispanic.

The Court threw out all of these districts on the grounds that race was the principal factor in drawing them up and that it was used to such an extent that it violated traditional standards of "compactness." In other words, as we have had previous occasion to note, the Court felt that since the districts looked funny they must be wrong. Apparently, the Court interpreted "race" to mean Blacks and Hispanics, because White districts in Texas have been designed to look equally as ugly as Mel Watt's district and they are not in violation of the Constitution.

In arriving at its decision, the Court imported into these Congressional redistricting cases, he standard of the Adarand case, involving minority contracting. That decision said, in effect, that if race was used in the development of a remedy for provable racial discrimination, the use of race must stand "strict scrutiny" and the remedy must be "narrow tailored" to the problem.

I thought that this was curious in that, to meet this standard set by the Court, "racial disparity" studies are now being done in cities all across the country to prove actual denial of opportunity for Blacks to bid on contracts in the past, as the basis for their preference to bid on present contracts. But, in the case of voting, the Court has muddled the water by suggesting that the denial of opportunity on the basis of race must withstand "strict scrutiny." What are they saying, the Fifteenth Amendment to the Constitution and the Voting Rights Act do not imply voter discrimination? They mean that race cannot be the primary factor in drawing district boundaries, that other things such as "compactness," "community of interest" and others must be used as well. The protection of White incumbents is perfectly alright as a political standard.

This decision, however, eliminates the use of the Voting Rights Act, Section 5 of which prohibits Black vote dilution. It was the Section, the Justice Department often used to win Court orders, that instructed the creation of single-member districts with Black majorities, in order for Blacks to have the chance to be elected to legislatures at all levels. This decision said, however, that the Justice Department was wrong in its expansive interpretation of the Voting Rights Act, which didn't require the creation of single-member districts with Black majorities.

This is breath-taking in its scope, since a generation of case laws has proven, beyond a shadow of doubt, that Whites engaged in racial bloc voting which, when practiced in racially gerrymandered White-majority districts, denied Blacks the opportunity to get elected to a legislature. This says that all such single-member, Black majority districts, created in order to enhance the prospect of Blacks being elected to office, are in violation of the Constitution. So, in time, all of these districts, from the Congress to the County to the state legislature to the city hall,

KFI Stop The Violence and Increase The Peace

By Cheryl Brown

On Tuesday the usually outrageous Ken and John Show on KFI, 640 AM radio was worse than ever. Their favorite thing to do was back on the front burner ... trashing O.J. Simpson. Although O. J. Simpson was found not guilty by a jury, they refuse to accept the verdict. So Tuesday when they found out the "Stop the Violence, Increase the Peace" non-profit organization was having a fundraiser at O.J.'s home they immediately began making not only disparaging remarks but their show was downright racist.

These two young men do not know that their actions are viewed by many in the Black community as racist. First, they made fun of the organization's representative's Black dialectic speech. They made fun of Long Beach State University for hiring this man, and they didn't understand the reference he made when he said "we are not slaves anymore."

They both continued to refer to O.J. as a murderer. In a very nasty way they reinforced their point, "That murderer! How can O.J. who beat his wife host an event that would dare have stopping violence as its core." The pair on the air intimated that he killed his wife after beating her. In the past they have encouraged O.J. to commit suicide. Their ranting and raving was not subtle, it was loud.

Many Blacks wonder why there is so much trouble at this time in our society. This is the way White people riot! The KFI radio station, in its efforts to be "more stimulating," has crossed the line. We, at the Black Voice News, put them in the same category as hollering "fire" in a crowded theater. It is this kind of irresponsible air time that causes people to burn down Black churches, and that causes a resurgence in hate crimes and discrimination. It puts a face on Blacks that we are criminals, we are misguided, and we are not a part of the accepted America. And instead begs, "Why can't you all be like Clarence Thomas or Ward Connerly? It is the same thing that was done to the Jews before the Holocaust ...make them inhuman in every way possible.

Shortly after the verdict was announced, a White man that I had a lot of respect for told me that I would have to pay for O.J. going free. I said, "excuse me what did I do?" The rage continues. Remember, there is no overwhelming proof that O.J. did it or he would have been convicted.

Remember Mark Furhman? People seem to forget he admitted in some cases that he planted evidence. He lied. He didn't like mixed marriages. The out of control LAPD are still under investigation, all because of Furhman. Oh, to make things look fair the "boys of KFI "trash him every once in a while and Tuesday they even cut off a caller who mentioned Newt Gingrich's name. But the under lying current is to make sure O.J. is found guilty in the minds of many and ignore the court's findings.

I hope Discount Tires and BreathAsure, both who sponsor this madness, realize how uncomfortable it is for African Americans. "Don't Shop where you Aren't Respected" should be our rallying cry. As a matter of fact, KFI and the advertisers that trashed a perfectly good organization should kick in a donation to the non-profit group "Stop the Violence-Increase the Peace." Then take their advice, Stop KFI Violence and Increase the Peace.

To Be Equal - Burning of the Black Churches

By Hugh B. Price, President, National Urban League

The burning of the Black churches is an absolute outrage and must be stopped immediately.

Some three dozen Black churches have been burned in the last 18 months.

Those committing these cowardly crimes must be brought to justice; this must be condemned by all Americans.

The National Urban League applauds President Clinton for the steps he has announced to end the burning of Black churches in the south.

President Clinton met with the governors of the southern states in a bipartisan effort to stop the burnings. He said: "it is clear that racial hostility is the driving force behind a number of these incidents."

Prior to this meeting President Clinton announced the creation of a task force of over 200 Federal agents to work on the case; protect remaining churches from arsonists; he supported bipartisan legislation to make it easier to bring federal prosecutions against those who attack houses of worship; and he introduced a new toll-free number that is now available 24 hours a day, seven days a week, for those who have information about the fires: 1-800-ATF-FIRE.

Ironically, if the goal of the arsonists was to stoke racial tension, they unwittingly have had the opposite effect -- instantly galvanizing and uniting people across color lines against these unspeakable crimes.

Coalitions from the 1960s have been activated -- Black church leaders, the Christian Coalition, the Anti-Defamation League, the NAACP, the National Urban League and other groups have risen up to denounce these assaults and demand vigorous investigation and prosecution.

The Urban League affiliates in the south and across the country have joined with other community groups to protect remaining black churches with night watches and by facilitating rewards. They have mobilized their communities, called for political action, collected funds and begun rebuilding.

The burnings are part of a broader pattern of racism, intolerance and alienation and we must continually learn how to deal effectively with such attitudes.

I believe the Oklahoma City bombing, the Freeman's stand-off in Montana and the church burnings are fueled by the incendiary rhetoric on talk radio, the wedge politics practiced by cynical candidates for office and the scapegoating of minorities and immigrants. These are suicidal threats to America's social cohesion.

By the middle of the next century, our nation's population will be half white, half minority.

We'll either move forward together as the most robust, multi-ethnic and inclusive democracy in the history of humankind -- or we'll sink together into the muck and mire of intolerance and hatred.

It's our choice and the choice will be made on our watch.

The National Urban League asks all Americans to pull together to protect religious freedom; and to protect the Black Church that has been so instrumental in family worship, self-help and community life.

Racism: America's Continuing Dilemma

Along the Color Line

Dr. Manning Marable

America's greatest challenge in the twenty-first century is the division of race - whether Whites, African-Americans and other racial and ethnic minorities can live together on the basis of fairness and equality. Despite the victories of the Civil Rights Movement of the 1960s and legislative reforms, racial discrimination and socio-economic inequality continues to compromise and undermine efforts for African-American empowerment.

Why does the racial impasse still exist in America? Part of the answer requires an examination of white American attitudes and opinions about Black people.

In a democracy, political power theoretically is based on the principles of popular participation, majority rule and respect for minority rights. By this standard, African-Americans were denied democratic rights throughout most of their history in this country. Historically, white mainstream America has not attempted to achieve a reconciliation between the reality of human diversity - based in divergent racial and ethnic identities, languages, cultures, religions, and other factors - and the basic principles of political democracy.

For a brief but powerful moment in US history, the meaning of "racism" was generally understood by the majority of all Americans, Black and White. During the Civil Rights Movement, racial inequality was sharply represented by the harsh reality of Jim Crow segregation in the South and ghettoization in the North. It was this general recognition that American society was essentially unfair and undemocratic to Black people that a range of civil rights legislation and democratic reforms was passed in the 1960s.

By the 1980s and 1990s, White public attitudes and opinions about Blacks had greatly changed. The redefinition of race was the consequence of many divergent economic, social and political forces: the growing income stratification and the polarization of social classes, with millions of White middle income families experiencing a decline in their standard of living; the massive deindustrialization and loss of jobs in major cities with large minority populations, and the rise of suburbs and "planned communities"; the ideological and political victories of conservatism, from the Reagan Revolution of the 1980s to the "Contract With America" in the 1990s; and the political reaction against affirmative action, majority-minority legislative districts, minority economic set-asides, and other liberal reforms. All of these factors, as well as others, helped to create a general public belief among millions of whites that any debt they may have felt for the enslavement, segregation or oppression of Black Americans, had been fully paid. Many Whites became convinced that civil rights and affirmative action were attempts by Blacks and other racial minorities to win "special privileges."

Whiteness" once again began to define the limitation of American democracy.

Transcending the racial divide will require an honest and critical dialogue, between Blacks and Whites. The issue is not one of "good intentions," but rather the reallocation of resources, access to institutional support and investment capital, and the expansion of the social safety net to promote individual and group productivity and initiative. Racism won't end by itself, until Blacks and other people of color have expanded access to the power and resources of the larger society. If Whites can learn to listen to that reality, we might finally begin to take the necessary steps to uproot racial discrimination and class inequality, once and for all.

Dr. Manning Marable is Professor of History and Director of the Institute for Research in African-American Studies, Columbia University, New York City.

Justice Clarence Thomas sided with the majority in this 5-4 vote, in which his vote (or any other person voting with the majority) made the difference. Thomas and Scalia presented a concurring opinion with the majority which Thomas wrote. Essentially he said that, since race was the major factor in drawing the Congressional districts, the Adarand language applied - "it wasn't even close."

Thus, Thomas, the person some would choose as a role model for Blacks, continued to pursue the curious logic that the 14th Amendment was neutral where race was concerned, when most reputable scholars believe that it was intended to raise the newly freed Blacks to the standard of equality with Whites, thus having a clear racial connotation. His vote will have real, negative consequences for Blacks.

Race is being used today as it always has been -- to deprive Blacks of their churches, the life and access to resources, and in the damage it does, there is no "strict scrutiny;" and the pain is not "narrow tailored." History has a way of showing up to correct contradictions such as this and I think that is just what will happen one day.

Home Video Nabs Mail Thief

RIVERSIDE -- An alert neighbor armed with a video camera is credited with the arrest of 35 year old Brian Clifford Boatwright of Riverside. He was arrested after the neighbor's video taped him breaking into a community mail box and stealing credit cards, unemployment checks and other property.

Residents of the 6200 block of Country View Road became concerned when they frequently did not receive expected mail, and began receiving mail belonging to their neighbors. One home owner began to suspect Mr. Boatwright of wrongdoing after seeing him accept delivery of motorcycle tires from a U.P.S. delivery truck. The delivery did not seem unusual at first. She became suspicious after receiving a telephone call from a credit card company to verify purchases that she did not make of motorcycle tires. She also received telephone calls from other credit card companies to confirm purchase of items such as clothes, telephones, and pagers, all of which she did not make. One retail store called her to inform her the clothes she ordered had

Alexis Herman Makes White House History

WASHINGTON - Alexis Herman knows that working at the White House as a Senior Advisor to the President is no bowl of cherries.

In fact, she has grown accustomed to Washington's number one pressure cooker. Former President Harry S. Truman's admonition, "If you can't take the heat, stay out of the kitchen" has special meaning for her. She can take the heat, the intense pressures, the avalanche of daily demands, the 12-hour work days, and the personal sacrifices of working at the White House.

Although working at the White House and having such a broad responsibility is tough, difficulty, and a draining for Herman, it is also challenging, exciting, fulfilling, and historic. Alexis, as everyone calls her, more than carries her weight in serving as Assistant to the President and Director of the Office of Public Liaison. However, she has just gone through one of the most tragic and traumatic periods in her professional career in Washington. Ron Brown, the late Secretary of Commerce, was her closest political associate, her mentor, advisor, firm supporter, and loyal friend. And now that he is gone, there is the void that must be filled.

No one doubts Herman's competence and capability to execute her present mission of directing the broad outreach of the Clinton White House to the many constituency groups and leaders. In 1989, when Brown became the first African American to be elected chairman of a major American political party, the Democratic National Committee (DNC), one of his first goals was to develop a highly competent and effective administrative staff. He recruited Herman and named her Chief of Staff, the first woman to hold that position in a national party and later, Deputy Chair of the DNC. This was possible because of her experience of working in the Carter Administration and her work with Ron Brown.

In 1991, DNC Chairman Brown made more history by

Alexis Herman (right), Assistant to the President and Director, White House Office of Public Liaison, meets with Nelson Mandela during his visit to the White House.

naming Herman Chief Executive Officer of the 1992 Democratic National Convention where she was responsible for the overall strategic management and production of the convention, held in New York City. This convention superbly organized and conspicuously free of any intra-party bloodletting, was described by many as one of the most successful and exciting conventions in recent decades. It provided the impetus for the election of Bill Clinton as president. Herman was the first African American to serve as a Democratic CEO. Her other "firsts" include:

* First African-American woman to serve as Assistant to the President of the United States;

* First recipient of the Dorothy I. Height Leadership Award.

Communist Party, USA Says "Stop the Racist Church Burnings"

The Communist Party, USA joins with all Americans in expressing revulsion and outrage at the firebombing of the African American churches across the United States. As the elections approach, the firebombings have escalated. It calls for the broadest urgent fightback response from the anti-racist majority of the American people.

Newt Gingrich, Jesse Helms and other right-wing extremist politicians in Washington have created the atmosphere for these hate crimes. There are daily racist attacks on affirmative action and welfare. There is open instigation to racist violence by talk-radio hatemongers like Bob Grant. There are the Supreme Court rulings overturning majority Black and Latino congressional districts.

The evidence is incontestable. Their aim is to roll back all the gains of the Civil Rights movement and the New Deal and to terrorize and divide the growing unity of Black, Brown, and White people. It's an attempt to blunt the resurgent AFL-CIO and the historic alliance between African American churches and the labor movement.

All who oppose racism should take initiative to demand government action to halt the burnings. The time is now to build all people's unity to defeat the forces of racist terrorism and violence. White supremacist groups like the Ku Klux Klan must be outlawed.

All who cherish democracy must act now. Everyone, every religious denomination, every labor union, every civil rights and community organization should demand that the federal government act now to protect these churches.

The answer to these hate crimes is greater unity and action to defend African American churches everywhere.

Our Bodies

Ernest Levister, M.D.

DEAR DR. LEVISTER: How can I create good self-esteem in my children? A Black Parent

DEAR BLACK PARENT: Of all the things we can give our children, self-esteem is perhaps the most important and the most elusive.

Confidence in your self-worth as a human being is the bedrock of a happy, productive life. Unlike other qualities that are inherited, a child's self-esteem is largely the results of how parents and other important people in their life respond to them. Strong self-esteem not only protects our children from serious problems such as premature pregnancy and drug abuse, it will open the door to more rewarding careers and satisfying relationships.

Children of the '80s are victims of the drip, drip, drip effect of being ignored or put down by busy parents under stress.

Building self-esteem is like baking a layer cake. There is no set recipe to follow.

The National Council on Children's Health suggests the following ten strategies as a good start:

1. Listen to your child.
2. Give your child daily chores.
3. Criticize when necessary but be specific.
4. Don't inflate mistakes out

- of proportion to reality.
5. Watch what you say to and about your children.
6. Tell your children you love them and why.
7. Spend time with your children.
8. Match your expectations with your children's age and ability.
9. Give up your habits which foster poor self-esteem such as smoking, recreational drugs, and excessive drinking.
10. Let your children wrestle with difficult problems.

Dr. Levister welcomes reader mail concerning their body but regrets that he is not able to answer individual letters through the mail. Your letters will be incorporated into the column as space permits. You may direct your letters to Dr. Levister in care of Voice News, P O Box 1581, Riverside, CA 92502.

Family Talks

Joseph Bailey, II M.D.

Beauty is flawless harmony. The concept for this definition goes back to ancient fruit orchards. At that time, beauty was etymologically linked to "good." Fruit was, of course, good because of what it was (i.e. something to eat) and what it did (e.g. provide nourishment). When the fruit had a ripened appearance, it was considered beautiful (i.e. fine, "looking well"). In summer, these three "fit together harmoniously". So, beautiful fruit -- the "goods" -- were gathered, and proudly sold in the marketplace. We can view beauty from these same three ways. Beauty as appearance is about enjoyment of things that appeal to the senses -- physical desirability. Different persons get pleasure from different objects because of a difference in taste. Examples would include outward adornments, such as braided hair and the wearing of gold jewelry and fine clothes. This beauty is "in the eye of the beholder."

Beauty of the "What it does" type makes something admirable because the excellence is in the work of the object itself. We can admire the design of nature to provide us with fruit, flowers, and water. If we pollute our land, air, and water we have made nature's work of art less admirable because it is less excellent. The pollution is in the objective, not in the senses of the beholder. A beautiful sunset and similar works of nature are a "joy forever." Then there is the "What it is" beauty. People of good and moral character pursue whatever is true, noble, right, pure, lovely, admirable, and excellent. To have such inner beauty requires a gentle, a quiet, and a loving spirit. Had we lived in the times of Greek and Roman Mythology, these traits would have been placed in us as a gift by the three Graces. They were given a variety of names, including Charis ("to rejoice"), Aglaia ("Brightness"), Euphrosyne ("cheerfulness"), and Thalia ("the blossoming one"). Being daughters of Zeus, they often accompanied the nine goddesses (Muses) of the arts and sciences. Their work was to make intellectually and spiritually beautiful people. Inner beauty, truth, and goodness are considered the three basic ideals of humans because they represent flawless harmony and inner perfection.

Whether speaking of beauty as to what it is (i.e. inner beauty), what it does (i.e. admirable), or how it appears (i.e. enjoyable), it is like a butterfly. Compared with the rest of the crowd, the butterfly displays more presence, more sharpness of shape, and more vividness of color. It stands out. It shines. It is the superstar of the crowd. Its beauty makes us happy.

The Roots of Africa: A Legacy of African Art

Stephanie Andrews

Linda Phelps BVN

SAN BERNARDINO - California native, born in Compton, Stephanie Andrews, began her journey as business owner with a line of handcrafted jewelry. "Jewelry by Stephanie" - handmade with semi-precious stones, from Africa. Stones such as Amber, Agate, Bone, Horn, Malichite, and Trade Beads.

Her love of African art, and collection of African artifacts gave her the desire to follow her dream of becoming a business owner.

After 5-years of vending in craft fairs and trade shows, she opened Roots of Africa in February, 1995, at the San Bernardino location (first in chain of stores she is planning to open).

In the Roots of Africa, you will find traditional African art, which is functional, spiritual, as well as aesthetic. Art whose history reflects the rituals, ceremonies and ways of the African community.

Artifacts imported from various countries in Africa, such as the Talking Drums of Zaire, the drama of her collection of Ceremonial Masks, masks worn in the rituals of, "the Miracle of Birth, the Mystery of Death and the Valor of Battle."

She has a fine selection of woodcarvings, from the Ivory Coast, Soap Stone carvings of little animals, hand woven baskets made of roots and grass.

Upon entering her shop - you will see a garden of lush plants, savor the soft scent of potpourri and burning incense, hear the sound of jazz or reggae music, all among well arranged displays.

Roots of Africa is located at 320 N. "E" Street, Suite 100-C, San Bernardino.

Stephanie Andrews will greet you with a welcome, ask you to journey into African history, and to take a moment - come in out of the struggle.

Questions & Answers

Dr. Reginald Woods

Dear Pastor Woods, What are the appropriate communication skills necessary for a husband and wife to live together successfully without fusing and fighting?

Anonymous, San Bernardino

Dear Anonymous: Communicating family life and issues is a necessary part of a successful marriage. Amos 3:3 says, "How can two walk together except they be in agreement." Agreement is the key to achievement! You will not have a happy marriage if you and your spouse are going in different directions.

My wife and I attended a family reunion in her home town, Milwaukee, Wisconsin. At the family reunion we entered a three-legged race. We realized that if we wanted to win we would need to be in harmony. Therefore, we discussed our strategy and practiced prior to the race. This plan to achieve the same goal to win, resulted in our prize of 1st place. Likewise, a husband and wife must be committed to having a successful marriage, to discuss their strategy to obtain this condition, and then live a life that will achieve this goal.

In communication, you must predetermine that you will not injure your spouse because she or he disagrees or not understand your position. You must be patient and sensitive looking at the "big picture" that is, your continual progress as a couple and family. Take time daily to have honest communication. Both of you must also commit to not be a baby and have your feelings easily hurt.

If you have a question that you would like answered, write: Dr. Reginald L. Woods, Life Changing Ministries, P.O. Box 9778, San Bernardino, CA 92427-9778.

From Childhood to Womanhood: A Rite of Passage

She learned the spiritual qualities that help to make us successful. As a part of the learning she help in community programs through her school. One project involved clothing, feeding and supporting homeless youth.

As Mwasi called on every person present to call upon their ancestors she also requested permission from the eldest members gathered to begin the ceremony. Libations were presented by Nii Sowa Akogyeram, from Labadi Accra, Ghana. Co-minister Bea Sims of Faith Temple Church led with the invocation and the first of several prayers. Each person upon entering the house, was given a ribbon about two yards long it was to be placed around every guest's neck to be used later in the ceremony. The guest of honor had not arrived. Those from the village gathered in a circle and before she arrived the ground had to be carefully swept by Taber

Knight, of San Diego, a director of Rites of Passage programs, who took part in the ceremony sweeping the negative spirits away.

The candles representing the Seven Principals that are found in the celebration of Kwanzaa were lit by seven friends. They represented the qualities that she has lived by and that she will live by in her life.

At last, followed by her parents, Kelly appeared humbly in a basic white dress with no shoes.

Lovie El Amin, a teacher and friend read an inspiring reading from the Husia, a book of wisdom.

The drummer Al and dancer, Adassa, of The Diamond Mind, theater group performed as they would for the kings and queens of Africa the celebration of life dance. Using kerosene soaked sticks she danced, ate fire and slowly ran the flame all over her arms and legs taking special care to, cover the bottom of her feet. Kelly joined in dancing with Adassa in the Celebration Dance.

Ministers Elder Jean Lewis, and Gracie Poole of Faith Temple gave Kelly a Christian blessing, "For me it was important that she had prayer from a woman of God that she would have God's covering," said her mother Jean Denny.

Her mother's friends Joan Williams, Mary Davis Lowe and Woodie Rucker Hughes spoke on behalf of Kelly, giving words of encouragement. Knight also presented her with symbolic and meaningful gifts, a gold feather, a valuable stone, a cross and a cowrie shell, (the money exchange used in ancient Africa).

The Ribbon Ceremony was exciting. Remember the ribbon earlier given to each guest? Now the entire village participated. Each person was to give a gift of hope, and a good wishes to Kelly. Each symbolic ribbon stood for the particular hope for her. The ribbon was given to an attendant and the good wish was said directly to Kelly. "Her dad Louis Denny who came from Philadelphia for the ceremony gave her the gift of listening. "If you listen you hear everything if you shout you hear nothing," he said. Others gave her the gift of love for Jesus Christ, wisdom and the gift of discernment and discipline to succeed in life just to mention a few.

Kelly responded to the many members of the village. She thanked specific people for their wishes, for their guidance, their friendship and her mother for her time her patience and her love. Most touching was when her parents bound the ribbons representing the hopes and wishes of the Village girded her with a belt of good wishes.

She ended the ceremony by walking through four strategically placed candles as she exclaimed, "Yea its over." Indeed the 1 1/2 hour ceremony ended with wonderful food and good fellowship.

SYNERGY '96: National Alliance of African-American Athletes

Conference address social and economic issues in sports.

No amount of persuasion can change a man's reaction to what he knows. But what he knows can be changed, and the most direct manner is to alter the images within his mind.

Dennis Kimbro

By LELAND STEIN III
BVN Sports Editor

LOS ANGELES - Enterprising and concerned men and women for all over these United States, came together to create partnerships, understanding, unity and combine/share resources; in hopes that a meaningful coalition can be formed.

The National Alliance of African American Athletes (NAAAA) was the medium that moved so many movers-and-shakers to converge on the Los Angeles Marriott on June 21-22.

The SENERGY '96 conference, the NAAAA's second national meeting (the first gathering was held last year in Atlanta), was entitled 'Athletes, Business and Communities... Working together.'

Taking aim at Dennis Kimbro's words concerning changing what a person knows, by enhancing the images our youth and athletes are currently being exposed too.

The first day of the conference focused on the social aspects of community empowerment, while the second day addressed economic empowerment and the business end of the multi-billion dollar sports industry. All centered around changing perceptions, as well as creating a network and talent bank of individuals that the African-American professional can call on.

"Basically the 'Alliance' started from another organization, Young Lincoln Men," noted NAAAA's Executive Director Glue Wilkins. "When I came back to my community I saw the need to help out. I did a little reasearch back in 1989 and one thing that struck me was a study that said inner city youth mainly respond - outside of home - to athletes and rappers.

"Of course sport was chosen over rap because it's obviously better tied to education and has more structure. That's when I came up with the name National Alliance of African American Athletes... and I just took it from there."

It's been a seven year struggle to bring the NAAAA to fruition, and, as with any new idea or infancy of an organization, it test your will to continue to put in the effort required to make it happen.

"I just about lost my mind... from wanting to jump off a bridge from being depressed about it," said a smiling Wilkins. "But you know God puts us here for a reason, and you have to go through certain things before you accomplish that mission; without struggle there's no progress."

Wilkins has put together a simple mission statement: "I believe in the African-American male. Around this simple phrase a two-day conference was built.

Friday's Community Empowerment agenda included the following panels and discussions: "Changing perceptions about our community"... "The black athlete and social action"... "Church, God and the black athlete"... "The media: Changing stereotypes and creating opportunities"... "Fatherhood: What is it"... "Success: The black student athlete and the system"... "Strategies for involvement of the black athlete in community efforts"... "Family issues and the black athlete."

MEDIA'S ROLE IN EMPOWERMENT: Media and creating opportunities, was moderated by BVN Sports Editor Leland Stein and included (l-r) Ricky Clemons, Alexis Wellington and Greg Raleigh.

Saturday's Economic Empowerment panels and discussions included the following: "Sports, business and the black athlete"... "What sports means to African Americans economically"... "Basic money management"... "Agents and contracts"... "Investments for the future"... "Marketing yourself and endorsements."

The NAAAA grew to national prominence after its first national conference in Atlanta, which attracted such names as Len Elmore, Dusty Baker, Terry Cummings, Reggie White, Charlie Ward, Coach Kenny Williamson and Royce Clayton.

Following the lead that these men established, men and women from all over the United States who believe in collective empowerment, utilizing social and economic power in building leadership, acting as a change agent concerning the challenges facing African American male youth and creating economic opportunities through education.

"I want the community and black athlete to know we have and are creating a network where our hands will be extended to them positively," Wilkins said.

Surely the concept and vehicle that is the NAAAA is timely and can fill a void in the black community. Sort of connecting the dots for all the various skill people in the black community that are trying or are already in the multi-billion dollar sports business or even playing.

"The conference in Atlanta was a great catapult for letting people know what we are trying to do nationally," said Everette Pearsall the Director of Sports Operations. "It's a perfect fit for bringing positive individuals from all over the country together to work together. We see there are a lot of people across the country who are doing positive things, however a lot of people are reinventing the wheel. What we want to do is be that umbrella organization in the sports business that can bring all the resources together."

After participating in the event as the moderator of the Media: Changing Stereotype and Creating Opportunities panel, I'm hopeful that the NAAAA will stay the course and continue to focus on their well thought out agenda. After meeting and exchanging ideas and thoughts with men and women that are serious about networking, the people resources are out there to enhance minority involvement in the giant world that is sports "BUSINESS."

JOHNSON SETS 200 RECORD

FIVE OLYMPIC TEAMS: Carl Lewis will be sitting out the sprints, 100- and 200-meters, but he did make the U.S. team in the long jump.

Johnson breaks 200-meter world record, set to double at Atlanta

By LELAND STEIN III
BVN Sports Editor

RIVERSIDE - The United States Olympic trials may have set an attendance record in Atlanta's Olympic Stadium, and many of the favorites did advance, but, many a heart was broken and battered at the gut wrenching event.

For many of the top sprinters in the world, they get automatic bids to compete for their countries, but only in the U.S. does the best athlete in their event have to qualify or they'll be left holding a bag of popcorn at home and watching the Olympics on T.V.

Distance runner Steve Holman, who has the best time in the U.S., but had a bad day and is off the 1,500 team.

Jack Pierce, who had run the fastest 110 hurdles race ever in the US at 12.94, hit a hurdle and was knocked off the squad.

Carl Lewis was bumped from both sprints (100 & 200), but did squeeze into the long jump.

Gail Dever made in back to defend her 100 title, but almost fell in the 100 hurdles final. She recovered and will complete in both events.

The star waiting to shine though is Michael Johnson. He served notice that if all goes right he will become the first man to double in the 200 and 400.

Johnson broke the longest standing track individual record when he blazed the 200 in 19.66. Along with the 4x400 relay, Johnson could walk away with three gold medals.

This Olympic team will have a lot of veterans who have grey hair. Mary Decker-Slaney and Johnny Gray are the two who come to mind.

A couple of new and not so new stars will finally get their chance to shine: Lawrence Johnson, the first African-American to make the team in the pole vault, and world record holder in the decathlon Dan O'Brien eased the nightmare of missing the '92 team.

Bloodied but unbound, slightly injured Jackie Joyner-Kersey in the heptathlon, Mike Powell, who qualified in the long jump on his last attempt and Gwen Torrence in the 100, but missed out on the 200 by .001 seconds, are all in.

All-in-all it was a heart stopping trials; for the participants and the fans of the weary stars. Atlanta will be a break for these survivors of the U.S. do-or-die event.

Blackballin' Review

By Becky Foreman

In one powerful sequence, the "Coach" continuously collects money as his protege, a young Black athlete attending college on a basketball scholarship, learns a depressing fact about his chances of obtaining a degree: the graduation rate for Whites at this college is 75%, for Blacks, 0%. In another, we see that Black professional baseball players are still playing with "one strike against them," as we hear some of the vicious hate mail that was directed against Hank Aaron as he approached Babe Ruth's home run record. In United States' society a Black man is still reviled for the color of his skin, regardless of his accomplishments.

Although dealing with an essentially grim subject, the play is fast-paced and entertaining, with moments of humor (most notably a "talking backboard" who tells the aspiring basketball player the facts of life.) Running just over an hour it is a quick, intelligent show which leaves the audience wanting more. One suggestion: as Hinds continues to develop the show for full production he might consider adding a bit more to his professional boxing piece. The scene shows how, following many years of ignoring Black champion boxers Hollywood created a hero (and a cottage industry) out of Sylvester Stallone's fictitious White boxer, Rocky. Although the point is valid, and well taken, references to Apollo Creed, the Black boxer defeated by Rocky, were lost on at least one audience member, who had never seen the film, and therefore missed the point.

The play is meant as a metaphor for the history of racism in general in United States' society, but it functions equally well as a stand-alone examination of the ways in which young Black men continue to be exploited by a largely White machine that profits at their expense. It is certain to leave the audience wondering, the next time they attend a professional sporting event, just who it is they are supposed to be cheering.

For many Americans professional sports exemplifies a Horatio Alger ideal: any man (or woman) can succeed through hard work, diligence, and talent. As we cheer for the athletes who personify our country's best, we may find a patriotic tear clouds our eyes. But if we take a closer look, without misty sentiment, we will see an institution firmly rooted in racism, built on a foundation of exploitation and deceit. This is the premise behind Rickerby Hinds' fascinating, lyrical, and often moving new play, "Blackballin'" recently produced as a workshop production for UCLA's Audrey Kirball-Kenis Theatre's Common Ground Festival. Hinds takes us through a whirlwind tour of a century of professional sports in the United States as shown through the experiences of four young Black athletes in a series of vignettes focusing on football, baseball, basketball and boxing. Dwayne Adway, Allan Dean Moore, T.E. Russell and Damon Saleem give strong performances as the four athletes, who function as a sort of "Black Everyman" of professional sports. Under the direction of Timothy Douglas the four work as an ensemble with fluidity and style, and are thoroughly convincing in their vaiorous athletic incarnations. Through the experiences of these four Hinds effectively uncovers the occasionally subtle, and often blatant, racism that continues to exist in the United States, making it more difficult for a Black athlete to succeed than his or her White counterpart. The scarcity of Black coaches, managers, or team owners helps to perpetuate a hierarchy that has traditionally given Whites preferential treatment from the college level all the way up to professional athletics. Many myths about Black athletes still endure: Blacks don't make good quarterbacks, aren't good swimmers (because they "lack bouyancy"), don't belong in professional baseball, etc.

Playwright Rickerby Hinds

Hinds gives voice to them through the character of a White coach-cum-slavedriver, deftly performed by Jay Patterson. The character serves as a personification of all White coaches who achieve success through the ruthless exploitation of the young Black athletes who entrust their careers, and often their lives to them.

BVN Spotlight

Ny'a is Going to Make it "Alright"

Ny'a has been taking the underground and dance club scene with the first single "Do It," off her Nap Records debut album, Embrace. Now with her second single, "Alright," Ny'a's taking her sound to mainstream visibility with her sultry vocals that have resulted in comparisons with soulstress Mary J. Blige and Brandy by Larry Flick of Billboard Magazine.

"Alright" is a phat R&B track sung over strong vocals that promises to supersede her first efforts. Citing Marvin Gaye, Sam Cooke, Patti Labelle, and Tina Marie as her inspiration, Ny'a fuses R&B with lyrics that prove to her audience that she possesses the skills necessary to succeed as a song-writer as well as a songstress! Also featured on the Midnight Mix version of "Alright" is label mate and Rapper ShooGa Macc Daddi.

Ny'a was recently featured as the opening act for Motown Recording Artist Horace Brown at the Coors Light Showcase in Washington, D.C. She is currently on a Club tour performing at selected clubs around the country.

MUSIC REVIEW

By Lee M. Ragin

Welcome to the New Sound of Motown. Horace Brown's debut album which is self-titled is sure to please the most critical of music listeners.

With his debut single "One For The Money" already blowin' up on the chart this is only the prelude of what's to come. From "Trippin," which explores the problems that modern couples face today in staying together to "I Like," which showcases Mr. Brown's smooth laid back style of singing.

While listening to cuts on the CD, the impressiveness of Mr. Brown's laid-back singing style as a vocalist floored me, and then I picked up the CD to read the inside cover and found out that not only is he a talented vocalist but a lyricist, as well, writing the majority of songs on his album.

With the debut of this album, Horace Brown will be a force to reckon with.

The Nutty Professor Returns: With a Different Twist

By Stanton Allen Weeks

Friday June 28, 1996, marks the highly anticipated return of Eddie Murphy to the big screen in a screenplay based on the original motion picture classic written by Jerry Lewis and Bill Richmond. This version promises to be just as high energy, silly, and outrageous as the original. Unlike the Jerry Lewis version, in this 1996 update, the issue of obesity is at the center of attention.

Eddie dons a fat suit to become Professor Sherman Klump, a 400-pound man who invents a revolutionary new formula that shrinks fat genes. Count on some hilarious knee slapping, side wrenching, foot stomping fun as Professor Klump's new formula begins to reveal its flaws. Klump's formula which transformed him into the thin and suave new lady killer starts to wear off at the most inopportune moments, all in the midst of trying to win the affections of his lovely assistant, Carla Purty, played by Jada Pinkett. Actor/Comic Dave Chappelle plays a vile comedian whose routine consists of mean jokes aimed at the audience members. The Nutty Professor is directed by Tom Shadyac. The film also stars James Coburn, Larry Miller, and John Ales. Co-executive production credits go to Jerry Lewis. Eddie Murphy is brilliant as he plays 7 characters in the film.

Each character is someone you know in your family, or at least audiences will enjoy "mama" who is fashioned after the comedian Mom's Mabley. In one scene she tells a male family member who is saying something disparaging to her,

"you may walk over here, but you will limp back." Murphy says he hopes people will come out and see the Nutty Professor rated PG-13. Remember the first weekend of the release is crucial, go out and enjoy.

Today In LA's 10th Anniversary

BURBANK - Southern California's #1 early morning news program, "Today in LA," celebrates its 10th anniversary on June 30. Airing weekday mornings from 5:30 to 7:00 a.m., "Today in LA" features anchors Kent Shocknek, Kathy Vara, weathercaster Christopher Nance and traffic reporter Paul Johnson. The program is the Southland's longest running local early morning news program.

In a bold programming move, the half-hour "Today in LA" show premiered on June 30, 1986, at 6:00 a.m. It was the first local early morning program to combine a magazine format with live local news cut-ins. The program replaced "Morning Stretch," an exercise show, and competed against such well-established shows as "Good Morning America" and "CBS Morning News." It was a ratings success from day one. Kent Shocknek, along with Pat DaSilva, were the original anchors when "Today in LA" broke new ground a decade ago.

Throughout the decade, the program has continued to evolve. In September, 1992, "Today in LA" added a 60-minute weekend version which is now anchored by Jim Giggins and Tracie Savage. In April, 1993, the weekday version of "Today in LA" was expanded to become a 90-minute newscast, broadcasting weekdays from 5:30 - 7 a.m., and although the program now has competition from three other early morning local newscasts on KABC, KTTV, and KTLA, "Today in LA" continues to consistently win its time period by a substantial margin.

The 5:30 - 7 a.m. time period gives "Today in LA" the upper-hand in breaking history-making stories on a local and international level before any other local news program. Because of its early morning advantage, it has delivered live broadcasts of 20 pace shuttle launches, as well as being first to report on many local weather storms and disasters.

Since its inception, 2,600 programs ago, "Today in LA" has also often been first to deliver news personally affecting its viewers. On Wednesday, June 5, 1996, "Today in LA" was the first news program to show the composite sketch of the "Hawthorne Rapist." This information was especially critical to the residents of Hawthorne, as well as to parents of young children living in the surrounding areas.

The program's up-to-the-minute news, stock market trading, weather, traffic, and special segments such as the "Best in L.A." have earned "Today in LA" a loyal and ever-growing viewership. Other winning features include: Christopher Nance's "Jog Around the Southland," which takes a unique look at weather by giving reports specific to seven different local micro-climates; and Paul Johnson's traffic survival tactic of providing the best shortcuts and alternate routes around traffic trouble spots.
