COVID-19, the Black Community, and the Reality of Acceptable Loss

Maybe it's the laissez faire transitioning of this nation and state from a mindset of "pandemic to endemic" regarding COVID-19 while data says the COVID-19 related deaths of Black people in this state has increased tenfold since last July due in part to low vaccination rates begs the question: Are we as Black people, being complicit in our own genocide?

As a race of people already disadvantaged to disparate access to health care and other economic disadvantages that left Blacks more vulnerable to the virus, a campaign of dis- and misinformation layered atop historic and warranted mistrust of the medical industry has resulted in many Blacks playing a game of "Russian Roulette" with their lives and the lives of their loved ones. As COVID-19 death rates decline for most—recently they have increased for Blacks.

Most concerning however is that we are failing

"Strategic planning at the early stages of a pandemic should consider the "acceptable loss," which represents the ultimate balance between saving lives and keeping life routines. This includes defining the "price" we are willing to "pay" in order to be able to save the most lives and life-years and to lower the morbidity rate while, at the same time, safeguard the economy and individuals' workplaces and social existence."

has forged ahead in relaxing guardrails despite the continuing risks to Blacks and others.

I understand why many are reluctant to trust their children to the vaccine but it is difficult to make sense of after having struggled more than our children as well. Black children in California are the second most likely to die from the virus among Californians younger than the age of 18.

When that is considered in the context of Black children having the lowest vaccination rates of any ethnic or racial group—it should raise a red flag in the Black community. Only 12% of Black children under five years of age have received the vaccine and only 44% of Black youth between the ages of 12 and 17 have received the vaccine compared to 24% and 66% respectively of all young people in these age groups.

It certainly does not take much imagination to see what lies ahead as mask mandates melt away and indoor restrictions vanish. The truth is for the Black community COVID-19 is still an imminent threat and the state, though saying all the right things about equity and maintaining focus on how the virus continues to impact vulnerable groups 400 hundred years to keep our children alive in this nation and it is difficult to get beyond the barrier of hesitancy in this regard. But to date, more than 10.7 billion doses of the vaccine have been administered worldwide and it has proven to be safe, effective, and proven to reduce risks for severe COVID-19 illness.

And so now the nation is moving on even as Blacks continue to die disproportionately from the virus and COVID-19 vaccination rates in the Black community remain low.

As Governor Gavin Newsom and President Joe Biden and others made their announcements of COVID-19 transitions recently even as Blacks are dying at higher rates, we have to ask in relation to the theory of "acceptable loss" whether we are once again the "price" the nation is willing to "pay" in order to safeguard the 'economy and individuals'

Society of Extraordinary Women to Honor Local Leaders at 2nd Annual Gala

Breanna Reeves | Staff

Message from the editor: This is a revision to an earlier version of this story to include expanded information about the event and award recipients, highlighting that the Humanitarian of the Year Award is being presented to Black Voice News Publisher, Dr. Paulette Brown-Hinds.

The Society of Extraordinary Women (SOEW) is hosting its Second Annual Extraordinary Leadership Awards Gala on March 6th to recognize outstanding members of the community for their dedication to education, business and technology.

Founded by Shirley Coates, SOEW is a non-profit organization made up of professionals who are committed to making a difference in the lives of young girls of color by providing mentorship, college preparation and skill building.

Sponsorship opportunities offered on behalf of the gala and ticket profits will be used to support the Ignite leadership & STEM Academy, a free 8-week program for adolescent girls that offers skills for personal and academic success. Presented by SOEW, the academy features inspirational speakers, academic workshops on technology and peer support.

This year's gala theme is "Achievements, Empowerment, and Giving Back," and the event will honor a host of leaders who have made considerable and significant efforts in their respective fields and who have also made an impact in their communities. According to Coates, award recipients were chosen for their remarkable contributions, not only to the community, but across the nation.

During a special presentation at this year's gala, Dr. Paulette Brown-Hinds will be presented the Humanitarian of the Year Award for her achievements in business and technology.

Brown-Hinds is a second generation publisher of Black Voice News, founder of Voice Media Ventures and Mapping Black California—an initiative that unites community media, educational institutions, nonprofits and other organizations around the use of Geographic Information Systems (GIS). Her efforts have raised awareness and engagement with GIS technology and also encouraged community collaborations.

"This [gala] is a celebration of the commitment of individuals, of the work that they've done, of the time that they've given. Many of these people have donated much of their time," said Coates. "The people that we're honoring have extraordinary achievements (and) they elicit empowerment through their achievements. They empower others to go further."

In addition to Dr. Brown-Hinds, other honorees this year include:

- Esther Portillo, Community Leadership Award
- Rose Mayes, Community Leadership Award
- Assemblymember Jose Medina, Community Leadership Award

The event will also recognize Joseph Marsh and Katherine Stephens, and feature special guest Gigi Coleman, great-niece of Bessie Coleman, the first African American woman and first Native American to hold a pilot's license. Aviation instruction is also one of the skills that students learn to harness in the Ignite Leadership Academy program.

The gala will also feature guest speaker Tim Gramling, LP.D., Dean of the School of Business and assistant professor at California Baptist University. Riverside Fire Chief Michael Moore and Dr. Deborah Deas,

"This is a celebration of the commitment of individuals, of the work that they've done, of the time that they've given. Many of these people have donated much of their time," shared Shirley Coates, founder and CEO of the Society of Extraordinary Women. (Image courtesy of SOEW).

CA Schools May be Required to Implement COVID-19 Testing Plans

(earlylearningnetwork.unl.edu)

Breanna Reeves | Staff

On Feb. 22 Senator Dr. Richard Pan introduced a new bill that would require all California schools to develop a COVID-19 testing plan.

Senate Bill 1479 would require each school district, county office of education and charter school to develop a testing plan that will detail a simple way for parents and local educational institutions to report testing data to the California Department of Health. The bill will also seek to approve additional resources to roll out testing plans.

“COVID testing plans are essential to parents and schools and child care sites being confident in staying open and keeping children safe from COVID,” said Pan in a statement. “Funded school testing plans provide vital information to protect students and teachers through COVID variants and surges.”

School districts throughout the state have diverse plans regarding COVID-19 testing requirements. For example the Los Angeles Unified School District requires that all students and employees who participate in in-person instruction get tested weekly, regardless of vaccination status. The district provides free testing for all students and employees, and requires both to have proof of a negative COVID test to come to school.

Riverside Unified School District, on the other hand, currently does not require students to be tested in order to attend school, but the district encourages parents to “self-screen” before taking children to class. The district offers testing at four school sites and also has test kits available for students identified as being exposed.

San Bernardino City Unified School District is another example of a local school district that does not require students to be tested in order to return to school, but recommends that students with symptoms stay home. The district also has several sites for COVID-19 testing throughout the city, open to students.

SB 1479 would set a testing standard for schools across the state that will aim to keep children safe while remaining in school. According to data from the California Department of Public Health, 30.2% of children aged five to 11 are fully vaccinated and 65% of adolescents aged 12-17 are fully vaccinated.

Through a collaboration among the Children’s Partnership, the California Black Health Network, California Black Women’s Health

A Well-Deserved Honor for Local Shero, Waudieur “Woodie” Rucker-Hughes

Phyllis Kimber Wilcox | Staff

On Friday, February 26, members of the Riverside community gathered at the U.S. Post Office facility located at 4150 Chicago Avenue in Riverside, for its ceremonial renaming as the “Woodie Rucker-Hughes Post Office Building.”

U.S. Congressional Representative Mark Takano (D-41) who championed the name change on behalf of the community declared, “It brings me great joy to celebrate the legacy of Woodie Rucker-Hughes, by renaming the Riverside Post Office in her honor.”

“Woodie’s vision for social justice and equality in our schools transformed the Riverside community for the better,” he continued. “She had a tremendous impact on others and redefined what it means to be a role model.”

Takano shared how Rucker-Hughes’ “hopeful spirit and fullness of heart” touched him personally. “To this day, I remain inspired by her leadership, and I feel lucky to have called her a dear friend. She undoubtedly deserves this dedication and I look forward to visiting the Woodie Rucker-Hughes Post Office.”

During the event, Teliece Hughes, the daughter of Rucker-Hughes, also reflected on her mother’s impact on the community, “My mother was an advocate for social justice, equality, and education for all,” she began.

“Her passion for the students of Riverside was to reach one and teach one, and to push individuals to see their full potential. My family and I are truly appreciative of such an honor that has been bestowed to my mother with the renaming of the Chicago Avenue Post Office.” She went on to thank Congressman Takano for his perseverance and determination in making the Chicago St. Post Office name change a reality.

“Riverside, California truly embraced my mom, and she loved her city right back. It takes a village! Her legacy will live forever.”

Rucker-Hughes served the Riverside in many ways including as a history teacher at John W. North High School from 1969 to 1975. She was also an administrator for the Riverside Unified School District and president of the Riverside Chapter of the NAACP.

Takano concluded, “Woodie made an impressionable difference in the Riverside community and lived by the mantra ‘never let it rest until the good is better and the better is best’.”

Exclusive Interview with Rene Anderson, Recently Appointed Human Resources Director, City of San Bernardino

Phyllis Kimber Wilcox | Staff

Rene Anderson was appointed Director of Human Resources for the City of San Bernardino on December 30, 2021.

This week in an exclusive interview with the IE Voice and Black Voice News, Anderson shares her background, experience, passion for her work and the current priorities of her position.

As Director, Anderson's responsibilities include the classification, recruitment and retention of personnel as well as labor relations, supervisor training, hiring and separations, service and retirement benefits, risk management and worker's compensation.

With responsibility for so many important functions, Anderson spoke openly about her new role, and the background that helped prepare her for it.

Born and raised in South Central Los Angeles, Anderson was raised in a two parent home, the youngest of three siblings. As an adult, she purchased a home down the street from her parents. The single mother of four, Anderson shared how she began to notice a change in the neighborhood and decided to relocate her family to the Inland Empire.

Reporter:

Where did you go to school?

Anderson:

In middle school and high school I was bused to the valley. I graduated from El Camino Royale High. I earned my Bachelor's Degree from Cal State Dominguez Hills and later on went back and received my Master's Degree from the University of Phoenix in Business Administration.

Reporter:

Which experiences have prepared you for your new position?

Anderson:

I guess as early as high school I was kind of identified as the voice for the people. So whenever things would go on in high school or amongst my peers, Rene [I] was the voice of reason. Rene was the one who would come sit at the table with the principal or the counselors to kind of advocate...whenever we felt we were treated unfairly and, or we just wanted their attention.

So, I think it's just kind of who I am. Just a person who even as an adult I would be in meetings, maybe in a community setting, or in church, or a business meeting, and the people would tell me afterwards, "Rene, I didn't say anything because I knew you were going to ask."

I was always that person who said or asked or spoke to what the people thought. With that, I have had the ability to connect [and] engage with people. And I just found my passion when I landed in Human Resources and even that was something I knew I wanted to do even before I knew much about it. I just knew I wanted to be in Human Resources. I think it was based on the name itself. I wanted to be a resource for humans and people and not allow businesses and organizations to mistreat or overlook the value we have in human (beings) as the most important aspect to our organizations.

Reporter:

What's different about being the Director of Human Resources from the other positions you've held?

Anderson:

This is the first time I [will] lead a department. I have led sections and/or units but this is the first time as a department head with the added responsibility, so that's new. Having the authority and some decision making power is new and different but really the work is still the same and that is— the people first and how the employees feel and making sure that is considered in the decisions that we make in those outcomes. The role is different but I consider myself very hands on. I lead from the front. I am not a person who delegates and/or points my finger. I am definitely involved, an active participant in the work that we do and what gets done.

Reporter:

What are your priorities as you begin this position?

Anderson:

Well just learning the city of San Bernardino of course because I'm new to this city, new to this environment and the city of San Bernardino is unique in how its governance is set and established. Definitely fulfilling the priorities that have been set and established by my leadership [including], the city manager, the assistant city manager and those involved addressing the high [rate of] attrition among the city of San Bernardino [employees].

Hiring and focusing on the retention of good personnel and staff [is a priority] and also our most recent accomplishment has been to hire a Diversity Equity and Inclusion Officer who reports to me and will address some of the concerns of the historical matters within the organization and the community at-large and make sure we address and try to correct the negative stigma or reputation the city of San Bernardino might have and be intentional as we fill vacancies and hire people that we do in a broad range of recruitment as well as selections.

Ketanji Brown Jackson Makes History as First Black Woman Nominated to U.S. Supreme Court

Breanna Reeves | Contributor

On Friday, February 25, President Joe Biden nominated Judge Ketanji Brown Jackson to become the 116th Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court. If confirmed, Jackson, 51, will be the first Black woman to serve as a justice, and only the sixth woman to serve on the nation's highest court.

"I am truly humbled by the extraordinary honor of this nomination and I am especially grateful for the care [President Biden has] taken in discharging [his] constitutional duty in service of our democracy, with all that is going on in the world today," Jackson said as she addressed the media during a briefing, joined by President Biden and Vice President Kamala Harris. Jackson credited her success to God and her supportive family, especially her father who started her on the path to pursue law.

Biden's nomination comes months after vetting candidates and following Justice Stephen Breyer's announcement in late January to retire at the end of the current court term provided his successor is seated. At 83 years old, Justice Breyer is the oldest member of the court, and along with Justice Elena Kagan and Justice Sonia Sotomayor is among the three liberal justices.

In his search for Breyer's successor, "President Biden sought a candidate with exceptional credentials, unimpeachable character, and unwavering dedication to the rule of law. He also sought a nominee — much like Justice Breyer — who is wise, pragmatic, and has a deep understanding of the Constitution as an enduring charter of liberty," read the White House statement.

Jackson, born in Washington D.C. and raised in Miami, Florida, is the daughter of public school teachers who became administrators in the Miami-Dade Public School System. She graduated from Harvard University and Harvard Law School, where she was an editor of the Harvard Law Review. Jackson went on to clerk for Justice Breyer during the 1999-2000 Supreme Court term.

In 2016, Justice Richard T. Fields, former presiding judge of Riverside County Superior Court, became the first Black man appointed to California's Fourth Appellate District Court. (source: theivoice.com)

Jackson was one of President Biden's first judicial nominees. She was confirmed with bipartisan support by the U.S. Court of Appeals for the D.C. Circuit in 2021. Previously, in 2012, Jackson was nominated by former President Barack Obama to a district court judgeship in the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia. She was confirmed with bipartisan support for that position as well.

Majority Whip and Chair of the Senate Judiciary Committee Richard "Dick" Durbin, who will oversee Jackson's confirmation hearings, released a statement following her nomination, recognizing Jackson as an extraordinary choice from a list of strong candidates.

"To be the first to make history in our

I'm proud to announce that I am nominating Judge Ketanji Brown Jackson to serve on the Supreme Court. Currently serving on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the D.C. Circuit, she is one of our nation's brightest legal minds and will be an exceptional Justice.

nation you need to have an exceptional life story. Judge Jackson's achievements are well known to the Senate Judiciary Committee as we approved her to the D.C. Circuit less than a year ago with bipartisan support. We will begin immediately to move forward on her nomination with the careful, fair, and professional approach she and America are entitled to," said Durbin.

More than a year ago, the nation's leading Black think tank, The Joint Center for Political and Economic Studies (Joint Center), urged President Biden to prioritize nominating Black judges to the U.S. Court of Appeals due to impending retirements. Jackson was the president's first nominee and the Joint Center supported her through the process, recognizing that the U.S. Court of Appeals for the D.C. Circuit is often a stepping stone to the Supreme Court of the United States (SCOTUS).

In a statement today Spencer Overton, president of the Joint Center declared, "President Biden made an outstanding choice in nominating Judge Jackson to serve on the U.S. Supreme Court. Her experiences clerking for Justice Breyer at the U.S. Supreme Court, practicing law and serving as a federal judge at the district and appellate levels give her deep insights into the federal judiciary."

He continued, "Judge Jackson's brilliance, her strong work ethic, and her experiences building consensus while serving on multi-member institutions, like the U.S. Sentencing Commission, empower her to be an effective and influential justice."

Jackson's nomination was equally welcomed by local judges including Justice Richard T. Fields, an associate justice in California's Fourth District Court of Appeal. Like Jackson, Fields is no stranger to firsts as he became the first African-American judge in Riverside County in 2000.

"She's an exceptional candidate — very smart,

NAACP Responds to Rialto Police Officers' Brutish Arrest of a 16-Year-Old Girl

Chache Wright, President and Hardy Brown, Chair Legal Redress Comm. | San Bernardino NAACP

On Feb. 15 the mother of an abused daughter, by two white Rialto police officers, contacted the NAACP for assistance. She explained that her daughter was arrested on 2/11/22, in Rialto on the corner of Linden and Pinedale, and would not inform the family where her daughter was taken. The mother gave detailed information to the NAACP office, that her daughter was slammed to the ground, officers placed their hands around her throat, hog-tied her, placed a spit bag over her head, slammed her into the back of the police car and then slammed the back door shut in disgust.

In a press release on 2/15/22, from the Police Department, Chief Mark Kling, said "I have personally viewed officer's body worn camera footage and although the video depicts the juvenile resisting officers, we are investigating the officer's decision to trip the juvenile to the ground and later placing his hand on the juvenile's throat during the arrest."

In our opinion, this is no way to treat our young Black youth; and while it is nice to offer apologies it does nothing to stop the police abuse of our Black Children.

We have noticed that the Rialto Police management team is composed of men with no Blacks or females of any race on staff. Maybe, just maybe, that is why some white male police officers behave in this manner. This also makes us suspect that this police department is not committed to inclusion and diversity.

We noticed in the chief's press release that he has requested District Attorney Jason Anderson to investigate this incident. We, the NAACP, are going to request the State Attorney General Office to investigate the entire Rialto Police Department because of other police abuse complaints that have involved our Latino Community. We do not know of a case, in the past, where the District Attorney's Office has ever ruled against a police officer in San Bernardino County. This does not mean we do not trust the DA's office, but we are saying, the legacy of that office has not gone against the police.

The NAACP has reviewed the Rialto Police Department Policy Manual and has many questions about the officers' conduct in interacting with this teenage citizen. We have to ask the question, if she were a white teenager, would the officers have even stopped her? And after they would have stopped a white teen, it definitely would not have escalated into an arrest. From the video, we have seen, the officers are much larger than the teenager, so they cannot say they were afraid of being hurt by this much smaller girl.

Additional questions the NAACP has for the city include: why did the officers stop her in the first place? What was she doing that was so egregious that moved them to say this is dangerous and must be stopped? Then after the stop, how did it escalate into a slam down, putting a spit bag over the head, putting her in handcuffs, shoving her into a car and then having the door slammed on her? Was this a high crime area in Rialto? No. According to the Crime Mapping Map in the Rialto Police Department it shows no crime activity as of 2/16/22 in or near Linden and Pinedale community.

The Gray family now has an attorney for any legal action they wish to take, something we would have encouraged them to do considering the type of police abuse they experienced. However, the NAACP will not diminish its efforts to advocate for changes in the Rialto Police Department just as we are currently doing in the City of San Bernardino.

We have uncovered some things in Rialto that we believe need improvement in relation to racial and gender discrimination. We will be addressing those issues with the city within a couple of weeks.

The NAACP thanks the Gray family for reaching out to our organization and by doing so, helped to speed up our timetable to address police-related problems in Rialto and we pledge to continue working with the family in any way possible that will not interfere with the family's efforts to seek justice as the NAACP continues seeking justice on behalf of the citizens of Rialto.

Erin Jackson – Speed Skater, Scholar and Olympic Champion

First Black American woman to win an individual gold medal in Olympic speed skating

Jon Gaede | Black Voice News and
Stephanie Lopez | Loma Linda Academy

Powerful, dynamic, explosive, and sensational, Erin Jackson posted an impressive time of 37.04 to edge out Japan’s Miho Takagi and ROC’s (Russia’s) Angelina Golikova to win the 500-meter speed skating gold medal in Beijing, China.

An unprecedented act of kindness

Prior to the Olympics, Erin Jackson was ranked number one in the 2022 world rankings at 500 meters. However, after an unfortunate critical stumble during qualifying, her chances to make the American team in Beijing was unlikely. Then, in an unprecedented gesture of selfless kindness, veteran U.S. Olympic speed skater, Brittany Bowe, gave up her 500-meter Olympic qualifying spot to Jackson.

An inspiration

Jackson, who graduated “cum laude” with a degree in Applied Materials Science & Engineering from the University of Florida, has proven many people wrong in her life and in the process is inspiring a generation of young female skaters both on and off the ice.

Jackson began as an inline skater in 2002, then roller derby in 2012, before transitioning to the ice and the indoor oval of long track speed skating in 2017. Her discipline, explosiveness, and ability to handle the pressure, has led to top performances on the oval and inspired many.

Pushing the limits of her ability, facing fears and her willingness to embrace the next challenge are all facets of Jackson’s DNA. Applying the academic discipline of “Exercise Science and Kinesiology” to her approach on the speed skating oval has certainly served her well.

Diversity gap in competitive speed skating

Jackson is aware that beyond U.S. Olympic skaters like herself and teammate Maame Binet, currently there are no other competitive Black female skaters in the U.S. She is quite willing to talk about the lack of diversity and opportunity in the sport, and to inspire anyone who may be

Her desire to skate on wheels goes back to her childhood in Ocala, Florida, but she emphasizes for anyone paying attention “school was always my main thing.”

Eventually, it was the desire to experience the pure sensation of speed, “I just wanted to go fast,” that piqued her interest in the sport of speed skating.

Not since the great Shani Davis

These are the first recent Winter Olympic games without Shani Davis. Not since his great Olympic performances has an American skater created similar excitement. Davis was a major headline across the European skating world for two decades, but not so much in America. Like Jackson, he started out roller skating, followed by inline skating in Chicago, then transitioned to both the long and short tracks, where he became the most prolific American Olympic skater of all time.

Erin Jackson is an Olympic champion whose performance is now embedded in the American consciousness. Her simple childhood desire to “go fast” has paid off, earning her a coveted Olympic gold medal and perhaps inspired the next generation of minority young ladies who may seek the same experience and embrace the ultimate challenge.

We will be watching...

Project and Black Women for Wellness, the collective produced a fact sheet about existing health disparities among children in California.

The data noted that Black children have the lowest vaccination rates across ethnic/ racial groups, with 12% of Black children aged five to 11 being vaccinated and 44% of Black youth aged 12-17 vaccinated, compared to 24% and 66% of all youth in those age ranges.

State-wide and local vaccine awareness campaigns continue to focus their efforts on increasing vaccination rates in communities of color as issues of lack of access to vaccines, treatments and tests persist.

Newsom introduces SMARTER Plan

Senator Pan’s new bill comes on the heels of Governor Gavin Newsom introducing his new SMARTER Plan on Feb. 17, an acronym that stands for shots, masks, awareness, readiness, testing, education and Rx treatments.

“Building on proven tools – rooted in science and data – that have been honed over the past two years, we’re keeping our guard up with a focus on continued readiness, awareness and flexibility to adapt to the evolving pandemic,” said Newsom in a statement about the plan.

As California begins to transition from a pandemic to endemic (where COVID-19 exists at a manageable case rate), the state has slowly started to relax requirements such as no longer requiring vaccinated people to wear masks indoors, citing improvements in COVID-19 case rates and hospitalizations. The California Department of Health still requires masks to be worn on public transit, nursing homes, congregate settings and in schools. Indoor mask requirements are still in place for unvaccinated people.

The governor’s new plan aims to address the next phase of California’s COVID-19 response by using different strategies based on science and lessons from the past two years to move forward. The SMARTER plan identifies specific goals such as administering 200,000 vaccines per day in addition to existing pharmacy and provider infrastructure, maintaining a stockpile of 75 million “high quality” masks and expanding by 25% school-based vaccination sites supported by the state.

“As we enter this next phase, it is important for us not to forget that COVID-19 disproportionately affected our low-income, Latino, Black, Native American and Pacific Islander communities, individuals in rural parts of the state, as well as workers in high risk settings,” the plan detailed.

“It will be equally important for us not to lose sight of the impact the COVID-19 pandemic has had on our older and disabled Californians. We must accelerate change to address these longstanding inequities.”

very experienced. I think she brings a dynamic background to the position, her upbringing, her education, her background is just phenomenal,” Fields said. Jackson also worked as a public defender which is another factor that sets her apart. If confirmed, she would also be the first former federal public defender to serve on the U.S. Supreme Court.

The next step in the process, now that President Biden has made his nomination, is to seek the Senate’s consent to confirm Jackson to the nation’s highest court.

Coates explained that she’s excited to celebrate some of the honorees who may not be as well-known in the community for their achievements. Despite their success, according to Coates, the honorees are humble and unselfish which is part of the reason they’re being acknowledged at the event.

The gala will be held at the Victoria Country Club, 2521 Arroyo Drive in Riverside on March 6, 2022 from 4:00 p.m. to 7:00 p.m. Tickets for the soiree can be purchased through the website for $75.

Reporter:

You're the first Black woman to hold the position. Do you feel that puts any extra pressure on you?

Anderson:

I do feel that the seat of Director of Human Resources holds a lot of pressure regardless of my background or ethnicity and I am completely humbled and honored by the opportunity to sit in this seat. I'm a person of integrity and honesty so I don't feel the pressure because of my ethnicity or anything but I feel the pressure and responsibility of what I do, what my staff does, what my team accomplishes in how it directly or indirectly impacts the lives of our employees.

Reporter:

How has the pandemic affected those priorities? Do you feel it has slowed you down in recruitment in being able to get the kind of staff you need as just being physically present can be a problem.

Anderson:

Yes, the pandemic has changed and impacted the way businesses are run and I don't think the city of San Bernardino has been excluded from that. It's definitely a more competitive process, people are more selective about the positions they accept. So, yes, It has been difficult to recruit. It has been difficult to just be timely in moving the processes along because as soon as we develop a rhythm and we're back to doing things in person another surge occurs. It slows and delays things. Do we go back virtually? It really just delays business overall. People are very particular about their employment selections. The benefits, whether they get to work at home or not. So many circumstances which were not a high priority before have definitely become a high priority now and telecommuting and teleworking is definitely one of those matters. The city of San Bernardino does not telework. We have a COVID-19 teleworking policy but just our normal policy does not include or allow for us to telework—most of the staff reports to work every day.

Reporter:

What resources or community support do you need to succeed with your priorities?

Anderson:

I think the community of San Bernardino is concerned and involved and that is appreciated.

I think just generally speaking as a whole, just patience during the process from our community to just allow adequate time to see change, to see improvement, to see the recovery and revitalization of the city of San Bernardino as an employer in this community. Our city manager and our city leadership is committed to the resurgence of the city. There are some great things in the works. It's an exciting time to be here as an employee as well as a part of the community, so patience as we transition and get our footing to really come out with a new identity and new brand for who we are.

Reporter:

What would you like our readers to know about you or the city you serve?

Anderson:

I am confident in the city manager's office, the city council and their support and involvement and I'm committed to hard work... and I hope to make the city proud.

File a 2021 Tax Return to Get the Remainder of Your 2021 Child Tax Credit

Many families got up to half of their estimated 2021 Child Tax Credit as advance payments last year. Here are three steps to getting the rest of your credit:

Step 1: Review Letter 6419

- You should have received this letter in January 2022 if you received advance Child Tax Credit payments in 2021.
- It shows the amount of advance payments you received and the number of qualifying children the payments were based on.
- You or your tax preparer will use this information to figure your remaining credit accurately.
- If you misplaced your letter, you can look up your information using the IRS's CTC Update Portal or Online Account.

Step 2: Claim the Rest of Your 2021 Child Tax Credit

- File your 2021 federal tax return and claim the Child Tax Credit, if you're eligible.
- Choose direct deposit if you're getting a refund. Make sure your bank account information is correct.

Step 3: Get Paid!

- After you file your return, you can check on the status of your refund using the Where's My Refund? tool on IRS.gov or the mobile app IRS2Go.
- You can check within 24 hours of e-filing or within four weeks of mailing a return. Updates to the online tool are made daily, usually overnight.
- To use this tool, you need your Social Security number, filing status and the exact whole dollar amount of your refund.

Important Information

- » Filing a tax return is the only way to get the remainder of your 2021 Child Tax Credit.
- » Electronic filing with direct deposit is the safest and fastest way to get a tax refund.
- » Many people qualify for free e-filing through IRS Free File or at a volunteer tax preparation site.

workplaces and social existence?” I’m just posing a question.

Black lives have always been offered as sacrifice to sustain this nation’s economy and our ancestors and those who supported them, have time and again throughout history pushed back in a continuous fight for survival.

In Toni Morrison’s seminal work Beloved, she forced us to look at the choice faced by one of its main characters, Sethe. “Should she kill her children or allow them to possibly live a terrible life as slaves?” We don’t have to make such horrible choices today. But, as we continue to navigate our way through the ‘Age of COVID-19’ many Blacks continue to struggle over the decision of whether to vaccinate their children or risk them getting COVID-19; and then weighing if they don’t get them vaccinated and the child gets COVID-19, whether they will survive a bout with the virus; and if they take this risk, what about the unknown, long-term consequences of the disease that are yet to be determined?

Meanwhile, the data show a “yes” to the COVID-19 vaccine has proven to be a safe and more prudent risk.

Many times throughout history Blacks were forced to step out on faith in order to survive but regarding COVID-19, in addition to faith— we have science.

The numbers speak for themselves relative to the impact COVID-19 is having on the unvaccinated and its impact on the Black community remains painfully apparent. Meanwhile, as noted above, both President Biden, Governor Newsom and others have made a clear decision—the economy is moving on.

Obviously, they have pledged to continue support and focus on vaccinating vulnerable communities, however the economy will no longer be held back waiting for vaccination rates to increase—remember the theory of acceptable loss.

Black pastors in the inland region and elsewhere are doing their part as they have throughout history to be leaders on the issue of COVID-19 vaccines. They are working to educate the community, participating in the vaccination process and in all ways, leading by example. But like any successful movement that has sustained the Black community across generations, the onus is on all of us to dispel mis- and disinformation regarding the COVID-19 vaccine.

The battle for Black Lives extends beyond the fight for criminal justice reform and today one of the most pressing calls to action must be to encourage our community to help save Black Lives by getting vaccinated.

If you have not already done so, I encourage you to get vaccinated and vaccinate your children. Follow this link to make an appointment for a free vaccination.

If you have loved ones who are hesitant about the vaccine, here is a link to some of the most frequently asked questions shared by the Black Faith Community. These questions have been vetted by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) and the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS). Inform yourself so when there is an opportunity to correct dis- or misinformation, you are equipped to offer an informed response.

Of course, this is just my opinion. I’m keeping it real.

OK, who celebrates fifth?

Bank of America does.

For the fifth year in a row, Bank of America has shared the success of our company with our employees with a valuable Sharing Success compensation award.

To recognize the team's hard work, this award is over and above regular compensation. And this year, we're proud to commemorate a first — nearly all these awards are in Bank of America stock.

That means 97% of our employees shared $1 billion worth of Bank of America stock this year, above regular compensation.

"I want to thank my teammates here in the Inland Empire for their continued hard work and dedication.

While other banks might make awards like ours every once in a while, I'm proud to work for an organization that has rewarded our employees for five years in a row. Because success is better when it's shared."
