Ray Bradbury To Speak On Campus June 9

Ray Bradbury, the prolific author of more than 400 short stories, 17 novels, 1100s of stories and poetry plus screenplays, will be the guest speaker at the inaugural meeting of the Library Associates Sunday afternoon, June 9.

The campus community, the general public and members of the new Library support group are invited to hear Bradbury speak at 3:30 p.m. in the Recital Hall. He also will be at a reception from 2:30 until 3:30 in the Library. Refreshments, music and tours of the facility will be available during the reception.

The Library Associates is a new support group being formed to promote the relationship between the University, the Library and the community, and to sponsor cultural programs and exhibits. Membership in the Associates will include access to services of the Library. Faculty and staff are invited to join the Library Associates, said Arthur Nelson, Library director.

Bradbury formed his own theatre company in 1963 to produce his plays including "The Wonderful Ice Cream Suit," "The Martian Chronicles," "Fahrenheit 451," "Dandelion Wine," and "The World of Ray Bradbury." He did the screenplay for John Huston's film production of "Moby Dick," starring Gregory Peck, wrote a good many of the "Alfred Hitchcock Presents" shows and worked with Rod Serling in the development of "Twilight Zone."

He planned the basic scenario for the U.S. Pavilion at the New York World's Fair and the Spaceship Earth building at Epcot at Disney World. Among his latest efforts are a murder-suspense novel, "Death is a Lonely Business," a screenplay, "Omenemo," for the producer of "The Empire Strikes Back," and an opera for the Seattle Opera Co.

The Bradbury lecture is funded by the Associated Students Special Events Committee.

Few Changes Needed To Meet New Teacher Guidelines

Most of the new teaching credential qualifications adopted by the CSU Board of Trustees are already in place here, according to Dr. Adria Klein, chair of the Department of Teacher Education.

Beginning in the fall of 1986, students at all Cal State campuses will have to be in the top half of their class to enter a teacher education program and later to be recommended for a state teaching credential. They will also be required to demonstrate teaching skills in addition to subject matter competency. Additional changes regarding physical fitness and personality/character traits were also included in the new standards.

The 19 CSU campuses turn out 6,000 credentialed teachers each year, more than half the state's total output. The new standards are considered minimum for the system and each campus may add to them in order to present challenging, rigorous programs which will attract able students into the teaching profession.

The standards also will permit admission of a limited number of students who do not initially meet the guidelines but demonstrate potential and promise for teaching.

Merit Awards To Honor Clubs And Students

An informal merit awards presentation ceremony and reception will be held Wednesday, June 5 beginning at 1:30 p.m. in the Lower Commons. Students will be honored for their participation, enthusiasm and leadership in their various clubs. Special awards will also be given to the Club of the Year, rookie and resurrected clubs of the year, most innovative club and most visible club on campus. One additional club award will be announced at the ceremony. The program will include remarks by Dean Peter Wilson and presentation of the Uni Phi awards.

Activities Advisor Clare Sharafinski stated the event is open to everyone on campus. Refreshments will be served following the ceremony.

Project Upbeat To Expand Next Year

Project Upbeat (University preparation by early academic training) will be expanded next year to include Rialto Junior High School, according to Eva Jimenez, outreach coordinator in Student Affirmative Action. Since the project began last September, a group of gifted sixth graders from Colton Junior High and their parents have been attending presentations by faculty and staff at the university. Next year, that group and gifted seventh graders from Rialto will continue the program.

A reception and awards ceremony ended this year's program on May 22.

The Creative Arts Building is on the same line and will be without cold air until about 2 p.m., Monday.

Campus crews, who will repair the leak in the line, will begin draining the chilled water about 3 a.m., Saturday. It will take hours before the lines are clear and the repairs can begin. Special funds will be provided by the Chancellor's Office for the emergency repairs.

Students Can Get A Taste Of Summer

A sampling of summer life at Cal State begins with the first of five summer sessions at the university June 20. More than 100 individual courses in most departments will be available at the sessions which vary in length from three to ten weeks.

The summer sessions are an integral part of the campus year-around academic program, providing regular and non-matriculated students a chance to pursue undergraduate or graduate study in one of the university's majors or professional programs.

Also available during the summer sessions are extended education courses taught on campus and at locations in Barstow, Etiwanda, Hesperia, Palm Desert, Redlands, Riverside, Victorville and downtown San Bernardino. Special programs have been announced for younger students, grades four through high school, offering enrichment classes, and reading and computer courses and a summer debate institute.
