KEEPING IT REAL

Quality Public Education is Costly...It's Time to Invest in Our Children

Every day, in 100 small ways, our children ask, 'Do you hear me? Do you see me? Do I matter?'" wrote author L.R. Knost.

This year California Governor Gavin Newsom appeared to answer these questions with a series of resounding, Yes! Yes! Yes!

The governor's commitment to the state's students and teachers was clearly reflected in his recently released 2020-21 budget proposal. It represents the state's largest per pupil expenditure in history and reflects the kind of investment in public education many like me, believe is long overdue.

The nonprofit organization The Education Trust West recently reminded us, "In 1965, applied at all levels of public education from preschool to public universities. Monies from this bond proposal will be used to modernize and/or make safety improvements to buildings. Some of the funds will be used for new construction.

Beyond the March bond measure a more controversial education-focused initiative will appear on the November 3, 2020 General Election ballot. This initiative, "Schools and Communities First" is highly controversial and millions of dollars in advertising will

"The goal of early childhood education should be to activate the child's own natural desire to learn."

- Maria Montessori

California was fifth in the nation in per student funding. Now California Ranks 38th."

It is passed time for the state to make smart, forward thinking decisions and investments to improve public education outcomes particularly in low income communities.

Over the previous year California State Superintendent of Public Instruction Tony Thurmond has demonstrated his commitment to improving educational outcomes by working with partners all over the state to establish and validate areas of focus and priority initiatives for education. Governor Newsom's 2020-21 budget proposal appears to support Thurmond's goals.

This year, we as voters will also have an opportunity to weigh-in on assuring the state can continue making the kind of fiscal commitment to adequately support our students and teachers in ways they deserve.

During the March primary California voters will be asked to pass the California Public Preschool, Kindergarten and College Health and Safety Bond totaling $15 billion to be be spent in an all-out effort to defeat it. At least one civil rights organization has already weighed in with a confusing message about how the initiative will hurt homeowners because it touches on California's "sacred cow" tax initiative—Proposition 13--passed by California voters in June 1978. The initiative will not hurt homeowners as it only applies to big businesses.

Proposition 13 set the maximum amount of any tax on real property not to exceed one percent of the full cash value of the property. It decreased property taxes by assessing real property at their 1976 value and it also limited annual increases to an inflation factor not to exceed 2 percent per year.

Proposition 13 also prohibited the reassessment of a new base year value except when a property changes ownership or when a new construction is completed. Currently, the mandates of Proposition 13 apply equally to all real estate, both residential and commercial regardless of whether it is owned by individuals or corporations.

San Bernardino

“Life’s most persistent and urgent question is, ‘What are you doing for others?’” Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. once asked.

Young men participating in the Social Lites, Inc. Beautillion Knights program responded to King’s call to service as they celebrated his life and legacy during the weekend of January 18 through 20, 2020. They were supported in their efforts by several high-profile, local African American leaders.

Those who participated as mentors during the weekend included Derek Williams, Chief of Police for the City of Ontario; Dr. Anthony Blacksher professor at San Bernardino Valley College, former Beautillion Sir Knight; Rikke Van Johnson, former Knight and Councilmember for the City of San Bernardino; and Hardy Brown II, San Bernardino County Board of Education Trustee.

The Beautillion Knights and members of their court—Fairmaidens, Squires, and Pages—are participants in a mentorship program sponsored by The Social Lites, Inc. of San Bernardino.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Governor Rethinks State’s Approach to Youth Incarceration

Sacramento, CA – Among the many breakthrough proposals offered by California Governor Gavin Newsom in his budget for fiscal year 2020-21, is a rethinking of the state’s approach to juvenile detention. His plan calls for the transformation of prisons used to detain youth offenders under the age of 25 years. Newsom envisions restructuring them in campus-style learning environments. The proposed facilities would be complete with mentors, innovative technology and work in academic partnerships with local colleges. The governor’s focus on improving conditions for youth offenders and better preparing them to re-enter their communities is in addition to an earlier announcement of his plans to close for-profit contract prisons in the state.

Music, Health, and Living Well

Have you ever been powerfully moved by a piece of music? If so, then you may already recognize the incredible impact of sound on your health and well-being.

Surely you remember going about your daily business, when all of a sudden you hear a song you right back to a significant time in your life? A birth of a child, baptism, or even a going home service for a loved one? Perhaps the music leaves you feeling calmer, in a positive mood. Or, let’s face it, downright sad. I am sure all of us can attest to the power of music.

Did you know that, for thousands of years, sound has been successfully used by man as a powerful healing mechanism?

And it is still being used today, with great success...

There is an abundance of research supporting the healing properties of music, including ultrasound, infrared, and consciousness altering audible sound.

Therapeutic ultrasound, in particular, is widely popular as a medical treatment for a variety of ailments, such as kidney stones, tumors, cancer, teeth cleaning, bone regeneration, liposuction, killing bacteria, & much more.

Music has been used as a therapeutic tool for centuries and has been shown to affect many areas of the brain, including the regions involved in emotion, cognition, sensation, and movement. This fact, combined with the engaging nature of music and the diversity of music makes music uniquely effective in the treatment of array of physical and mental problems, including depression, anxiety, and hypertension.

Playing or listening to music doesn’t have to be the only way it can be helpful. Sometimes you may find singing or dancing along is the actual factor that has the positive effect. Try putting on some great songs to belt along to! Otherwise, you might try listening to live music, or actually writing and playing your own songs.

The key is to become aware of how different music affects you.

Actively and intentionally selecting and using your music can be a really helpful way to feel more in control of your feelings.

Governor Proposes Stipends for Teachers

Sacramento

California Governor Gavin Newsom's 2020-21 budget proposal places an aggressive focus on education.

Part of his focus on education is aimed at teachers, particularly those assigned to the state's lowest performing schools. "It's incredibly important that we have a diverse teaching workforce," Gov. Newsom said. "Not only have stable, prepared, professional teachers, but also having a teacher that looks like you. That's incredibly important, particularly when it comes to African-American achievement."

To this end the governor is prepared to put the state's money where he believes the focus should be and that includes working to improve the teacher workforce serving students at these schools. To this end the governor's budget proposal includes a $20,000 stipend for teachers working in such schools for the next four years. The proposed stipend would be annual and will cost taxpayers about $100 million dollars in the coming fiscal year.

It should not be surprising that most of these low performing schools are in high poverty areas with high concentrations of minority students.

Gov. Newsom and State Superintendent of Public Instruction Tony Thurmond

The proposed teacher stipend is one among hundreds of millions of dollars included in the governor's budget focused on teachers. It includes nearly $900 million focused on teacher training, professional development and residency programs in addition to educator service rewards.

Newsom's 2020-21 budget reflects California's largest per pupil expenditure in history according to the State Superintendent of Public Instruction Tony Thurmond. In praising the governor's budget Thurmond noted, "Over the last year, my team and I have been collaborating with educational partners, including teachers and administrators all over the state, through my 13 workgroups, to establish and validate the areas of focus and priority initiatives for the California Department of Education."

Thurmond continued, "Governor Newsom and his team have produced a budget that is comprehensive, aligns with our goals to ensure equitable education for all students, and allows us to focus on helping our most vulnerable students in underserved communities. The Governor mentioned that students should have teachers that look more like them, and we couldn't agree more."

Solar Panel Project Receives State Board of Governors Award

Rancho Cucamonga

Chaffey College was recently awarded the 2019 California Community Colleges Board of Governors Energy and Sustainability Award for its solar carport project.

The school was one of a dozen state community colleges honored earlier this month in Sacramento for sustainability initiatives that save tax payers more than two million dollars annually.

"Our duty to our community is to be fiscally and environmentally responsible," said Chaffey College Superintendent/President Henry Shannon. "Our solar project not only accomplishes both, but it also serves as a teaching tool and a model for our students to follow in their own lives."

According to school officials, Chaffey College's solar carports now located at all three campuses, provide enough energy to meet 90 percent of the institution's energy needs and will save the college district more than $28 million in energy costs over the life of the project.

Chaffey's solar carport project is the largest of its kind at a California community college and the 2019 California Community Colleges Board of Governors Energy and Sustainability Award is just the latest among numerous honors the project has received, including the "Editor's Choice Award" from Solar Builder Magazine in 2018.

Chaffey College's Associate Superintendent of Administrative Services,

Melanie Siddiqi, accepted the award at the Board of Governors meeting on behalf of the district.

"We consider sustainability a top priority at Chaffey College," she said. "In addition to our solar carports, we've installed new electric vehicle charging ports on our campuses in the last year and have reduced CO2 emissions by about 1,000 kilograms so far."

American Democracy on Trial

A Message from Hardy Brown, Sr.

I am an AME Steward at St. Paul AME Church in San Bernardino. This week I would like to share a letter titled “American Democracy on Trial,” dated January 22, 2020 authored by the African Methodist Episcopal Church Council of Bishops. The following letter is a call to action:

“The servant leaders of the African Methodist Episcopal Church joined the nation in watching and praying as the impeachment trial for President Donald J. Trump began in the Senate on Tuesday, January 21st. We watched reasonable requests for evidence and key witnesses voted down by the Senate Republican Majority and heard the White House pushing for a quick dismissal of the to end the trial.

What has happened to freedom and justice for all? Sadly, we recognized that Democracy in the United States is on trial. Will the Senators choose liberty and justice for all, or will they choose the death of American democracy and the American Dream?

AME member Congresswoman Val Demings stated, “I understand that the politics of impeachment are difficult for many Senators. But I have not written off the Senate. Each Senator still has the power to do the right thing. I know that as each Senator considers whether to side with justice or corruption, the voices of the American people will matter.”

It is telling that the impeachment trial starts the day after the National Holiday and Celebration of the Life and Legacy of the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. What Dr. King and most Americans value: truth, virtue, freedom, justice, and equality, are not valued by this President or the party he claims to represent.

The servant leaders of the African Methodist Episcopal Church call upon our members and all American citizens to:

- 1. Watch the trial and stay informed.*
- 2. Pray that “justice will roll down like waters and righteousness as a mighty stream”. Pray for those we elected to defend the truth in the US House and Senate.*
- 3. Write and call your Senator’s office and let* them know you expect a fair trial. Be the voices referenced by Congresswoman Demings.

4. Make sure that you are registered to vote.

5. Organize your church and community for the upcoming series of elections. (use the AME V-Alert Toolkit).

San Bernardino

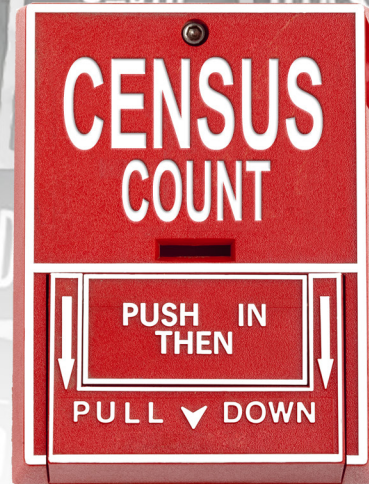

On Thursday, January 23, 2020 the California Supreme Court ruled that San Bernardino County Third District Supervisor Dawn Rowe can hold on to her controversial appointment to the board—at least, for now.

Rowe was initially appointed to fill the position on the Board of Supervisors (BOS) in December 2018 after former Third District Supervisor James Ramos was elected to the State Assembly. Her appointment was quickly challenged in court by a local political advocacy group who claimed the BOS violated the Ralph M. Brown Act (opening meeting law) during the process of selecting Rowe to fill the position.

On September 18, 2019, the Superior Court of San Bernardino ruled that the 2018 appointment

Time to Ring Census Alarm Bell, Advocates Warn Congress

Mark Hedin
Ethnic Media Services

With the United States about to begin its monumental task of counting everybody in the country once every 10 years, the House Oversight Committee held a hearing on Thursday, Jan. 9, to see what the Census Bureau is doing to avoid overlooking so-called “hard to count” communities.

Arturo Vargas of the National Association of Latino Elected Officials objected to the “hard-to-count” designation: “What makes people hard to count are the enumeration strategies.”

Vanita Gupta of the Leadership Conference, John Yang of Asian American Advancing Justice, Kevin Allis of the National Congress of American Indians and Darrell Moore of the Center for South Georgia Regional Impact, Arturo Vargas of the National Association of Latino Elected Officials Marc Morial of the Urban League

For instance, he said, all outreach efforts to Latinx residents are in Spanish. And despite the Supreme Court barring the proposed addition of a question about everyone’s citizenship, the Census Bureau, he said, is squandering its “trusted brand” status by forbidding staff from discussing what has become a very alarming concern, particularly in ethnic communities.

Vargas was joined at the committee hearing dais by Marc Morial of the Urban League, Vanita Gupta of the Leadership Conference, John Yang of Asian American Advancing Justice, Kevin Allis of the National Congress of American Indians and Darrell Moore of the Center for South Georgia Regional Impact.

In her initial remarks, Gupta cited the Census Bureau’s slow pace of hiring for the enormous task: “The Census Bureau has acknowledged that it’s way behind. It needs more applicants in all 50 states.”

This year, the Census Bureau is optimistic that computerizing the primary response mechanism for the first time will help minimize the expense of tabulating printed questionnaires and paying enumerators to knock on the doors of non-responders.

But it also is doing all its hiring online, which has depressed interest, and is having to compete in a relatively strong job market as compared to the run-up to the 2010 Census. Other reasons cited for the hiring lag include that, as the first census to prioritize online responses, enumerators have to be comfortable with tech tools. And the hiring and onboarding process, including background checks, has been so drawn out that applicants have drifted off in pursuit of other opportunities.

Vargas, like others, recalled the troubled rollout of the healthcare.gov website set up to enroll people in the Affordable Care Act and recommended that the Census Bureau be ready with plenty of paper questionnaires in case the online response rate falls short of expectations.

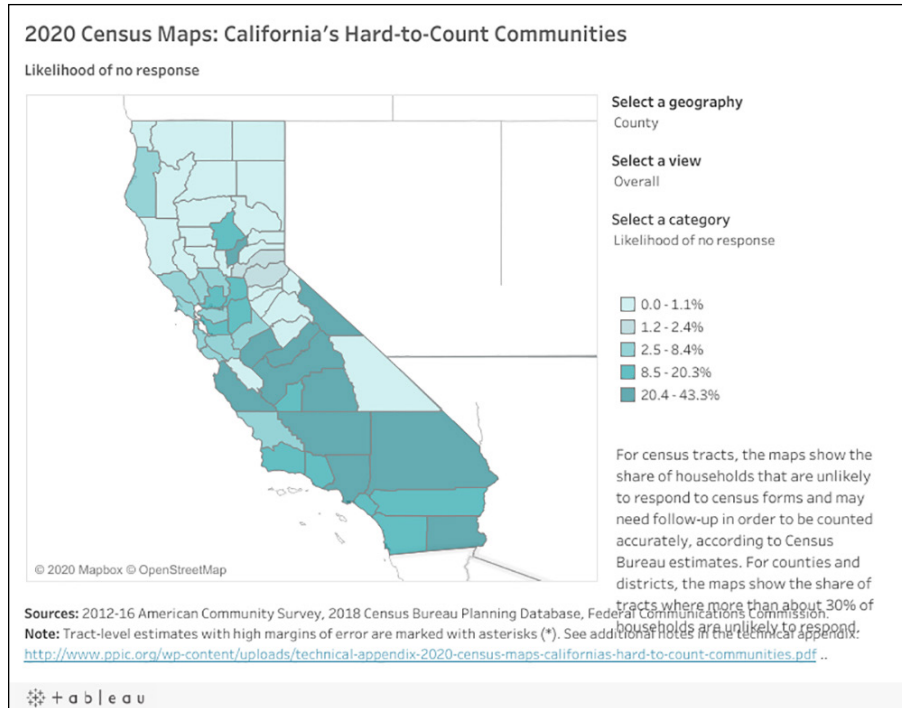

Even in its rosier predictions, the Census Bureau still only expects about a 60 percent initial response rate via online questionnaires, Morial noted. For African American men, 40 percent is probably more realistic, he added.

Yang criticized census hiring for being slow and “inconsistently inclusive” in its diversity. He cited the chilling effect of the failed citizenship question proposal, which makes it even more important that enumerators and partnership specialists be culturally competent.

He also noted that the written questionnaire, available only in Spanish or English, excludes Asian Americans, the fastest-growing minority group in the country. Yang did, however, single out for praise the recent announcement of media campaigns in Hindi and Urdu.

The Native American population, which the Census Bureau believes it undercounted by at least 4.9 percent in 2010, is plagued by mistrust, privacy concerns, a sense of futility as to the usefulness of responding at all and the feeling that going online to fill out the census form, not always even possible, is a significant risk, Allis said.

“As crucial count gets started, experts fear many will be missed.”

2020 CENSUS BASICS

What is the census?

The U.S. Constitution requires a population count every 10 years.

The census determines the number of seats a state has in the U.S. House of Representatives.

Data is used to decide how billions of dollars are allocated annually to public programs.

Jasmine Solorzano | Staff
Source: U.S. Census Bureau

Completing the census

The census opens in March, 2020.

The census can be filled out through an online portal, over the phone or via mail.

The census asks how many people live in a home, as well as their age, sex and if any children live there.

All responses are confidential.

Census-taking is about to begin in Alaska (January 21), but no native partnership specialists are on board yet, he said. And as with hiring, the census' work to establish partnerships with community organizations to help obtain a complete count is behind schedule.

New Mexico Democratic Rep. Deb Haaland, one of only two Native women ever elected to the House, noted the absence of Navajo-language census materials.

"Does the Census Bureau understand our needs?" Allis asked. "Hard to say." The way things are going so far, he said, "is deeply concerning" and lacks "proper attention given to the purpose of the census, what it can do, what it can't. The Census Bureau has identified this as an issue, but we have yet to see that this will be addressed properly."

"The census is a big deal," Morial said, echoing Allis' call for increased advertising and media outreach and a hope that accurate census data will improve decision-making and equitable distribution of resources and political representation. That outreach, he emphasized, should extend all the way through the non-response follow-up process scheduled into August.

Morial also noted, with chagrin, that in the waning days of the Obama administration, the census had been on the brink of reversing its policy of counting prisoners where they're incarcerated and not in their home communities.

Moore attracted attention for his reports on organizing efforts in rural Georgia. As committee members from both sides of the aisle pressed him for one-size-fits-all ideas on how to reach rural populations, he repeated that the answers lie with local organizers and activists.

"You've got to have trusted voices in your community," he counseled Arizona GOP Rep. Paul Gosar. "The communities know about their needs best - what works in one community will not work in others." Responding to West Virginia GOP Rep. Carol Miller's concerns about the mountain communities she represents, considered 60percent hard to count, Moore advocated more creative outreach efforts, perhaps at sporting events and churches, in addition to the food pantries and mobile mammogram services she had suggested.

Vargas listed educators, health care providers, local officials and minority-led organizations including newspapers and radio as trusted sources for census outreach. Many at the hearing advocated using librarians and, particularly as a way to meet the technology concerns, libraries themselves to help maximize participation.

A benefit of the computerized effort is that easily sortable data will reveal where there's more work to be done in getting people counted, and where the census is being embraced, Yang noted.

"The Census Bureau better step up its game and respond to the concerns we've raised today, or the risk is grave. It's time to ring the alarm bell," Morial warned.

'My Name Is Myeisha' Now Available in Blu-Ray/DVD

Riverside

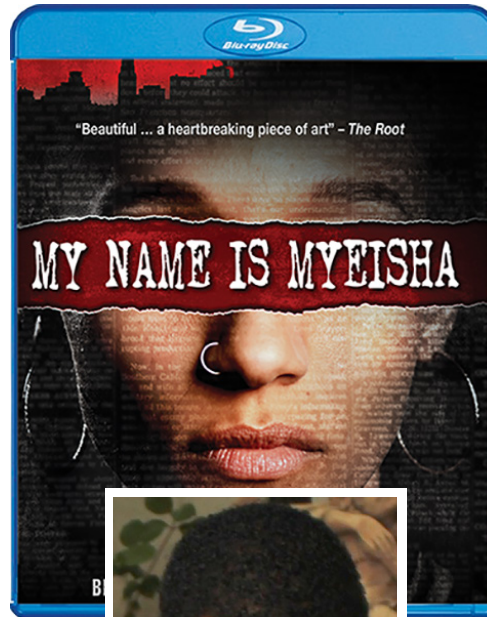

The acclaimed film "My Name is Myeisha" is now available in Blu-Ray/DVD at shoutfactory.com/product/my-name-is-myeisha?product_id=7281.

The film which debuted to international acclaim, is based on the play "Dreamscape" by UCR Professor and Chair of the school's Department of Theatre, Film and Digital Production, Rickerby Hinds.

The film's story was inspired by the killing of a young African American woman named Tyisha Miller who was shot to death by Riverside police on December 28, 1998. Miller's family had called for assistance when they could not awaken her as she slept in her disabled vehicle. Miller's death garnered national attention as citizens took to the streets in protest over her murder.

At the moment of Myeisha's death at the hands of police, the film takes viewers through a dreamscape of her mind where they learn of the life she leaves behind. The entire story is told through hip-hop, spoken word poetry, and dance.

It stars Rhaechyl Walker as Myeisha and co-stars John Merchant. Actors Dominique Toney and Dee Dee Stephens play Myeisha's friends who were out with her the night she was killed. The movie was co-written and directed by Gus Krieger.

In the film Myeisha vividly recounts the events of her life before her fateful and fatal encounter with Riverside police. In describing the film, industry publication ScreenDaily wrote, "A crackling energy drives this far-reaching commentary on young Black America."

During the 2018 Slamdance Film Festival 'My Name is Myeisha' was awarded the "Best Actress" and "Audience" awards. Also in 2018, it received the "Best Feature" award during the Boston Underground Film Festival; Best Feature Film award at the Seattle International Film Festival; the Grand Jury award at the Mammoth Lakes Film Festival; Best Screenplay and President's awards by the Riverside International Film Festival; among others.

'My Name is Myeisha' provides a poignant look at the tragic loss of young Black lives cut short at the hands of police in communities across the country.

Sanctioning Local Governments for Failure to Address Homelessness

Sacramento

As the state of California grapples with and searches for solutions to its growing crisis of homelessness, a task force appointed by Governor Newsom to explore the issue is considering a new policy idea.

The task force identified as the Council of Regional Homeless Advisors, may soon turn to legislators and seek their support to pass an amendment to the state constitution that would make it legal and enforceable for the state to sanction local governments that fail to develop shelters and other housing options to reduce their homeless populations.

Consideration is being given to placing the proposed initiative on the November ballot thus allowing voters to weigh in on the issue. However, the idea is still in the early stage of development and the task force has not yet defined what the sanctions would be or how the sanctions would be administered.

There are more people living on the streets of California than on the streets of any other state in the nation. In the last two years their numbers have continued to climb. The U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development reported between 2018 and 2019 the state's homeless population increased over 16 percent.

According to a California Black Media report although the Governor has expressed some support for the task force proposal, he believes

NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE

NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS: If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on this property.

NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call (866)-960-8299 or visit this Internet Web site <http://www.altisource.com/MortgageServices/DefaultManagement/TrusteeServices.aspx> using the file number assigned to this case 2019-01138-CA. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale.

of Supervisor Dawn Rowe was a violation of the Brown Act and "null and void."

Earlier this month an appellate court judge had ruled Rowe must step down from her seat and the BOS was expected to rescind her controversial appointment during its regularly scheduled meeting on January 28. As a result, there was an expectation Governor Gavin Newsom would appoint someone to the Third District seat until the March primary when the voters will have an opportunity to select a new supervisor from a slate of candidates competing for the position—including Rowe.

Because the county is appealing the lower court ruling, it asked that Rowe be allowed to retain her seat while the appeal moves forward. Now that the Supreme Court has granted its request, the BOS will not consider rescinding Rowe's appointment at its January 28 meeting as originally planned.

NEWS IN BRIEF
It Costs Not to Have Health Insurance in California

Sacramento, CA – California State Controller and Franchise Tax Board Chair Betty Yee recently offered wise counsel to the state's taxpayers, "I encourage everyone to secure qualifying health care coverage as soon as possible so they are not surprised with a state penalty when filing 2020 state tax returns in 2021."

Between 50 and 60 percent of Californians who remain uninsured are not aware they will soon be charged a penalty for not having healthcare coverage. This may partly be the result of the Trump administration's 2018 roll-back of the Obama era "individual mandate" requirement of the Affordable Care Act to either subscribe to health care or pay a penalty. In 2019 however, California reinstated the individual mandate. As a result, those without healthcare coverage in 2020 can be penalized. For a family of four the penalty could be as much as $2,085.

If you do not have healthcare coverage for yourself and/or your family, Covered California provides financial assistance to those who qualify to help cover the cost of coverage. To learn more about how to sign up for healthcare coverage or to learn more about the penalty visit www.CoveredCA.com or call (800) 300-1506.

When we cast our ballots on November 3, 2020 Californians will finally have an opportunity to close the loopholes in Proposition 13 that keep large companies from paying their fair share of property taxes. This initiative—which will only apply to big businesses—will require them to pay property taxes at market rate, while maintaining Prop 13 property tax protections for homeowners and small businesses.

This change will generate about $12 billion in additional revenue to the state including nearly $4.8 billion for education. It is important for voters to understand the change will not impact homeowners or small businesses regardless of what opponents to the legislation may advertise and profess.

It is also important for voters to remember Proposition 13 was initially intended to protect elderly homeowners on fixed incomes—not to shield corporations from their full property tax obligations.

It's been more than 40 years since the passage of Proposition 13 began robbing public schools in California of the fiscal support they deserve. With voter approval on November 3, the "Schools and Communities First" initiative will finally hold corporations accountable for paying their fair share of property taxes so that the state's schools will have access to the funding they need to help improve the quality of public education in the state.

Of course, this is just my opinion. I'm keeping it real.
