KEEPING IT REAL

You Can Sell Out Your Country, But You Can't Sell a Loose Cigarette

Last week, I almost failed to notice when a little-known lobbyist and character in the ongoing saga of Donald J. Trump's rise to power and the presidency was sentenced after pleading guilty in the U.S. District Court in Washington D.C.

Yet, when I tuned into the facts of the case, I couldn't help feeling an all-too familiar resurgent-outrage over the blatant and disparate application of justice in America.

The recently convicted Sam Patten, whose family was once rumored to be part of Washington D. C.'s social elite, started a company with a Russian national suspected of ties to Russian intelligence. This company was purportedly paid more than a million dollars by a Ukrainian political party through an offshore Cypriot bank for lobbying and public relations assistance for the purpose of influencing policy in the United States.

Certainly, some might argue that as a business owner, Patten's entrepreneurial acumen should be celebrated, after all, he was a successful American entrepreneur. I take no issue with entrepreneurialism--entrepreneurs and small business owners are the economic engine of this nation, but this is also a nation of laws.

Patten violated the Foreign Agents Registration Act by failing to register as required; he arranged for the purchase of four tickets for $50,000 for a Trump inaugural event by funneling the money of a Russian oligarch through an American straw purchaser which violated rules that prohibit an inaugural committee from accepting money from foreign nationals; and to top it all off, he committed a felony by lying to Congress regarding these actions. For these crimes Patten faced up to five years in prison and a fine that could have reached a maximum of $250,000.

Those are the penalties he faced. Patten admitted his crimes and pled guilty, but fortunately for him such penalties are rarely applied to people like him—that's not how criminal justice is applied to the wealthy and well connected in this country. Last week, Patten received the proverbial "pat on the hand," when he was sentenced to 36 months' probation and fined a mere $5,000.

It was this light sentence on top of the growing list of paltry penalties leveled to date on the president's gang of white-collar gangsters that raised my ire—maybe this was just one too many, a final bridge too far.

I asked myself the rhetorical question, What kind of nation is this where you can sell out your country by lying to congress; do the bidding of a foreign government through illegal methods; and sell access to the president and yet, walk away with a slap on the hand; but, if you are a poor Black entrepreneur like the deceased Eric Garner who struggled to help feed his family by selling loose cigarettes on a street corner in New York, you end up choked and suffocated to death by a horde of policemen.

Garner was arrested, charged, found guilty and sentenced to death within minutes without even a feigned semblance of due process for allegedly circumventing state tax law by selling untaxed cigarettes—he was unarmed, and the police were never charged in his brutal death.

Something is rotten in America and until we, as a nation, recognize it, own it and work to assure that the wealthy are not above the law and guarantee the poor are treated fairly by the law, as a wise man once cautioned, "I tremble for America."

Of course, this is just my opinion. I'm keeping it real.

Prescription Drug Take-Back Day

San Bernardino – The San Bernardino County Sheriff's Department will hold a Prescription Drug Take-Back Day from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Saturday, April 27.

To prevent pill abuse and theft, the department has invited the public to bring potentially dangerous expired, unused, or unwanted prescription drugs for disposal at participating locations across the inland region. The service is free and anonymous, no questions asked. To locate a Take-Back site near you visit https://www.deadiversion.usdoj.gov/drug\_disposal/takeback/.

During a similar event last October, people across the country turned in a record-setting amount of -nearly 457 tons of potentially dangerous expired, unused, and unwanted prescription drugs for disposal to approximately 6,000 collection sites across the country. This brought the total amount of prescription drugs collected by Drug Enforcement Agency since the fall of 2010 to 10,878,950 pounds or 5,439.5 tons.

Grant Funding Will Help Former Inmates Secure Meaningful Employment

San Bernardino

Riverside and San Bernardino Counties collectively were recently awarded a $3.3+ million grant to be directed toward the Inland Empire Regional Planning Unit (RPU), a partnership effort between the workforce development boards of the two counties.

The funding is part of a $36 million allocation included in former Governor Jerry Brown's state budget for fiscal year 2018-19 that also provided funding for other social programs.

As an RPU, the counties led the development of the Regional Workforce Development Plan. As part of this partnership plan, the newly secured grant dollars will be used to accelerate efforts to train and employ inmates being released from custody.

The RPU will dedicate itself to the development of a three-year program aimed at the coordination of both job training and job placement services. According to county officials the initiative will center around a six-month program designed to help stabilize former inmates in the workforce.

Under the auspices of the RPU's Prison to Workforce initiative identified as PE2, inmates will have an opportunity to participate in a job training program for the final three months of their incarceration and their participation in the program will continue for no less than three months subsequent to their release from custody as the now paroled inmates apply for permanent employment.

More than 66,000 individuals currently confined in the region's jails, and the area's four state prisons, as well as those on probation or parole

VVUHSD Superintendent Ron Williams Recognized for Making a Difference

Apple Valley

Dr. Ron Williams, Superintendent of the Victor Valley Union High School District, was recently named Superintendent of the Year by the California Association of African American Superintendents (CAAASA), Dr. Williams was selected for the special recognition by a panel of educators for his exceptional talents and unwavering commitment to the Victor Valley Union High School District (VVUHSD) and is one of only 25 African-American superintendents in the entire state of California.

The (VVUHSD is the oldest high school district in the Victor Valley region and serves close to 10,000 students in grades 7 through 12 at eight campuses in the cities of Victorville and Adelanto, Williams has devoted more than 35 years serving in the field of education, at least 25 of those years as an administrator.

Before becoming an administrator, Williams spent time in the classroom teaching English and math. Since that time, he has led as a principal and assistant superintendent in districts across the state including working for the San Bernardino County Superintendent of Schools before joining VVUHSD in 2012. He was hired as the district's Superintendent in 2014.

The California Association of African-American Superintendents and Administrators is a group of educational leaders committed to identifying and addressing the critical issues in education through public policy relative to the status and performance of African-American students in California.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Special Election Coming Soon

San Bernardino – Candidates for San Bernardino County's 3rd Ward, Community Engagement Strategist Treasure Ortiz and Medical Social Worker Juan Figueroa are counting down to the May 7 Special Mail Ballot Election.

The winner of the competition will replace the former 3rd district councilman and the City of San Bernardino's newly elected Mayor John Valdivia.

The political novices held a forum last week to present themselves to voters and explain why each felt they were the best candidate to represent the constituents of the city's 3rd ward. During a recent forum, both candidates agreed on the city's need for strong leadership as it continues to recover from the strains of bankruptcy.

Whatever the outcome of the election, constituents in the City of San Bernardino are hopeful the newly elected councilmember can help smooth the waters of the current fractious and combative council.

Voter registration for the special election ends April 22 and the Mail Ballot Election is set for May 7.

Nurture Your Sense of Smell

Smell is an often overlooked sense, yet it is one of our most powerful. Many studies link a strong sense of smell with a better memory. And with stats showing that one person in the US develops dementia every three minutes, smell is more important than you may think.

Sitting in a Starbucks drive-thru recently, a huge cloud of freshly roasted coffee aroma enveloped my nose. Inhaling the rich, warm scent was something of a wake-up call to the brain. This reminded me of the power of our sense of smell and how it affects how we feel.

We are surrounded by odors, but unless one is particularly noxious, we tend to ignore the effects of the scents we are inhaling. And we tend to underestimate the power of certain scents to help us heal.

Let’s use coffee as an example. In experiments with laboratory rats, researchers have found that coffee aroma orchestrates the expression of more than a dozen genes and some changes in protein expressions, in ways that help reduce the stress of sleep deprivation.

We all know that feeling of having a bad taste in our mouth, or the way a stuffy nose makes even the most fragrant garlic pasta taste like cardboard. But did you know that our sense of smell and taste naturally declines as we age?

Often the change is so gradual you barely notice it. That wouldn’t be a problem, except that it can affect your health — studies find people with impaired ability to smell and taste tend to follow less healthful diets. It also puts you in danger: Your sense of smell serves as an early warning system for things like rotten food and gas leaks.

Humans detect smells because odor molecules interact with nerves in the nose that send impulses to the olfactory bulb, a structure beneath the frontal cortex at the front of the brain. The olfactory bulb also connects directly with other parts of the brain such as the amygdala that controls emotions, and higher-order regions like the prefrontal cortex, the seat of important “executive functions” like planning, thinking, organizing, and making choices.

A failing sense of smell is linked with diseases like Alzheimer’s disease, Parkinson’s disease, schizophrenia, and even normal aging, but why this happens is somewhat of a mystery.

Nurture your sense of smell. Let it come alive. Use the power of natural scents such as mint, lavender, lemon, chocolate and fresh apples to help you heal and connect you to memory, to emotion and to the environment around you.

Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney. If you are a creditor or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California

National Association of Social Workers Honors Community Action Partnership of San Bernardino County

San Bernardino

Recently, the Inland Empire Region, California Chapter of the National Association of Social Workers (NASW) was proud to recognize and honor the Community Action Partnership of San Bernardino County with the Community Agency of the Year Award.

For more than 60 years, the non-profit Community Action Partnership of San Bernardino County has worked with and on behalf of low-income people throughout the region providing support, advocacy, and empowerment toward the goals of self-reliance and economic stability.

Each March, the National Association of Social Workers (NASW) celebrates the month as “Social Work Month” and hosts an event to recognize and award a special individual Social Worker, a Social Work Educator, or an exemplary Social Service Agency/Organization during an Annual Dinner Celebration. This year’s event was held Sunday, March 10th at Kaiser-Permanente’s Palm Court offices in Fontana.

Teaching Financial Literacy

Sacramento

California legislators are considering a new measure calling for the incorporation of financial literacy to existing economic courses as part of the standard high school curriculums.

AB 1087, the California Financial Literacy Initiative, would require existing economic courses to add the fundamentals of personal banking, budgeting, personal finance and employment, in addition to other impactors that affect an individual’s personal net income. The students would also be taught the importance of good credit, how to use it, as well as what impacts it.

The legislator who introduced the bill, Assemblyman Jordan Cunningham, R-San Luis Obispo, said he was largely motivated by the expanding and life burdening student debt. “Too many students are leaving high school without the ability to cope with or understand real world financial situations,” he highlighted.

The bill would authorize the State Superintendent of Public Instruction to convene a Financial Literacy Advisory Committee to review materials that could be provided on the internet in a centralized location for access by local educational agencies, as specified.

In addition, the measure would further require online curricula be included in an online library, or otherwise promoted or made available, in a way that not only protects student privacy but also protects them from marketing directed at them through the provided instructional

Riverside County Black Chamber of Commerce Enters Five Year Fight Against Big Tobacco

Andrea Baldrias
Contributor

As of March 1, the Riverside County Black Chamber of Commerce (RCBCC) entered the fight against Big Tobacco.

The California Tobacco Control Program sought out the RCBCC to be a part of a program to reduce African American tobacco use, specifically to implement a ban on the use of mentholated products throughout the tri-county south region comprised of Riverside, San Bernardino and the Imperial Counties in San Diego.

The RCBCC is the first chamber to be involved in a community effort like this. Their involvement in this work comes as no surprise, as they have exceeded the usual expectations of a Chamber of Commerce and honed-in on supporting economic development of the community in many forms.

They initially became more involved as a result of the implementation of former President Barack Obama's Affordable Healthcare Act. RCBCC President, Pepi Jackson, explained, "As a Chamber of commerce it is unusual because a Chamber of Commerce usually wants to talk solely about business. However, for the African American community, business and health are one in the same. If one is not healthy, one can't be productive. If one is not productive, one can neither sustain themselves and family, nor will they have discretionary money...We needed to help the development of economic power of the community. A key to economic empowerment is a healthy community."

According to the Campaign for Tobacco Free Kids, approximately 45,000 African Americans die from smoking-caused illnesses annually. They have also found that 85 percent of the Black smokers, smoke menthol cigarettes compared to 29% White smokers.

Historically, tobacco companies have targeted the Black community through aggressive advertising, and currently spend $26 million daily on advertising targeting the Black community.

The use of menthol in cigarettes reduced the harshness of cigarettes and allowed them to be marketed as a smooth alternative to non-menthol cigarettes.

"It all started from Prop 99 (a mandate for Tobacco Control), and Prop 56 (which increased the excise tax rate on cigarettes and electronic cigarettes)," recalled Dr. Bobby Sheffield.

"Back in 2009, they banned flavored tobacco, except menthol. They had flavored tobacco—strawberry, watermelon— all these exotic flavors which were appealing to younger demographics. They banned those, but

In November 2016, the Teamsters initiated a members-only program called the Teamsters Advantage to keep taxpayer funds within the local community by encouraging shoppers to choose locally-owned, small businesses over large businesses.

Teamsters is partnering with over 200 local businesses from A&R Tires, to X-Quisite Hair Salon. There is no cost for members to participate in this program.

Mario Vasquez, Communications Coordinator for Teamsters Local 1932 highlighted, "Teamster advantage is our initiative to encourage members to shop locally. Extensive studies have shown that the healthiest way for a local economy to grow is to keep our purchasing power local. By partnering with local businesses, we can introduce to these local business owners the reality that many of their customers are hardworking public employees like the members we represent. This is one of the ways we can ensure that there is a concentrated effort to build a sustainable economy by shopping locally."

The Institute for Local Self-Reliance, which researches and advocates for policies that strengthen independent businesses and reduce the influence of large corporations, released a list of 10 reasons to support locally owned business.

This list has informed the Teamsters Local 1932 with organizing the Teamsters Advantage. The reasons include (1) Increasing local character and prosperity, (2) Community well-being, (3) Local decision-making, (4) Keeping money in the local economy, (5) Better jobs and wages, (6) Encouraging entrepreneurship, (7) Public benefits and costs, (8) Encouraging environmental sustainability, (9) Competition, and (10) Product diversity.

The Teamster Advantage Director, Mark Orr, was installed for his three-year term as the new Redlands Chamber of Commerce Director in January. He is the only non-business owner on the Chamber's Board. Mark Orr elucidated, "Small business owners can relate to the fact that big corporations get tax breaks and they don't...When I meet them, whether out on a door-to-door visit or at a chamber event, I hear them understand our program and say, 'They took my business and you're trying to give me business.' They see that Teamsters care about the local economy."

The Teamsters Local 1932 continues to push the boundaries of the labor organizing community. "It's a very unique thing that we're doing within the world of organized labor," Vasquez explained. "We have joined about a dozen Chambers of Commerce throughout the

WHAT'S IN THE WATER? EVERYONE SHOULD BE CONCERNED...PT 2

S.E. Williams

Last week we opened this series by exploring the impetus behind the California State Water Resources Control Board's first-of-its-kind public meeting related to a critical emerging contaminant category, PFAS, that will impact thousands of industrial facilities and drinking water systems across the state over the coming years.

Part of what probably played a role in the recent surge in focus on this issue may be owed to a hearing held late last year by the U.S. Senate Subcommittee on Federal Spending Oversight and Emergency, of the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs.

The issue was raised by Senator Gary Peters of Michigan who stressed that many communities in his state have exposure to this chemical in addition to the lead trauma experienced in Flint.

California Senator Kamala Harris who participated in the hearing reported, “Multiple water systems across California have tested positive for PFAS concentrations above recommended levels with our military bases experiencing especially high concentrations of PFAS from foams that have been used to put out aircraft fires.”

She added how chemicals associated with PFAS can accumulate and stay in the human body for long periods of time with potentially devastating impacts. Studies show that PFAS can increase cholesterol levels, lead to low infant birth weights, thyroid hormone disruption, and to an increased risk of cancer.

“As we learn more about the toxic nature of these chemicals,” Harris cautioned, “it is critical that the government take steps to protect public health, improve data gathering and transparency, increase public awareness and education, and make decisions based in fact and hard science.”

Harris then turned her attention to the president and his administration. “I am very troubled by reports that administration officials sought to block publication of a report on this PFAS contamination crisis because they feared ‘a potential public relations nightmare.’ Our government should not pretend that PFAS contamination is not happening, and we should do something about it.”

She further advised those in attendance at the hearing of how California had taken a leadership role on this issue earlier in the year by being the first state to begin a process toward considering carpets and rugs containing PFAS chemicals a priority product under the California’s Safer Consumer Products Program.

During the testimony of panelist Peter Grevatt, PhD, Director of the Office of Ground Water at the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), he reviewed the history of PFAS noting they are manmade chemicals in use since the 1940s, found in a wide variety of consumer products—noting they are also an ingredient in firefighting foam. “PFAS manufacturing and processing facilities, airports, and military installations are some of the contributors of PFAS releases into the air, soil, and water,” he added.

Next, he zeroed in on a sobering reality, “Because of their widespread use, most people have been exposed to PFAS, and there is evidence that exposure to certain PFAS may lead to adverse health effects.”

Grevatt went on to highlight actions already taken by the federal government to gain control over this issue. Under the Toxic Substances Control Act (TSCA), the agency has issued various significant new use rules for certain PFAS chemicals to guard against their reintroduction or new use without prior EPA review; under the Safe Drinking Water Act (SDWA), the EPA has also monitored for six PFAS to understand the nationwide occurrence of these chemicals in drinking water systems; and, as far back as 2016, the EPA issued drinking water lifetime health advisories for two of the most well-known and most used PFAS—PFOA and PFOS (as discussed in Part 1 of this series). The advisory was set at 70 parts per trillion.

The agency is currently working to accelerate research on the contaminant to not only better understand their health impacts, but also to identify and define options for treatment. In addition, the agency is committed to using what they know about PFOA and PFOS to help inform them about the potential impacts of other PFAS in the environment and potential impacts on human health.

During his testimony, Grevatt committed to the EPA’s focus on what he described as “four significant actions.” They included evaluating the need for a maximum contaminant level for PFOA and PFOS; moving toward the designation of PFOA and PFOS as “hazardous substances;” developing groundwater cleanup recommendations for PFOA and PFOS at contaminated sites; and finally, developing draft toxicity values for two other PFAS of concern—GenX and perfluorobutane sulfonic acid (PFBS).

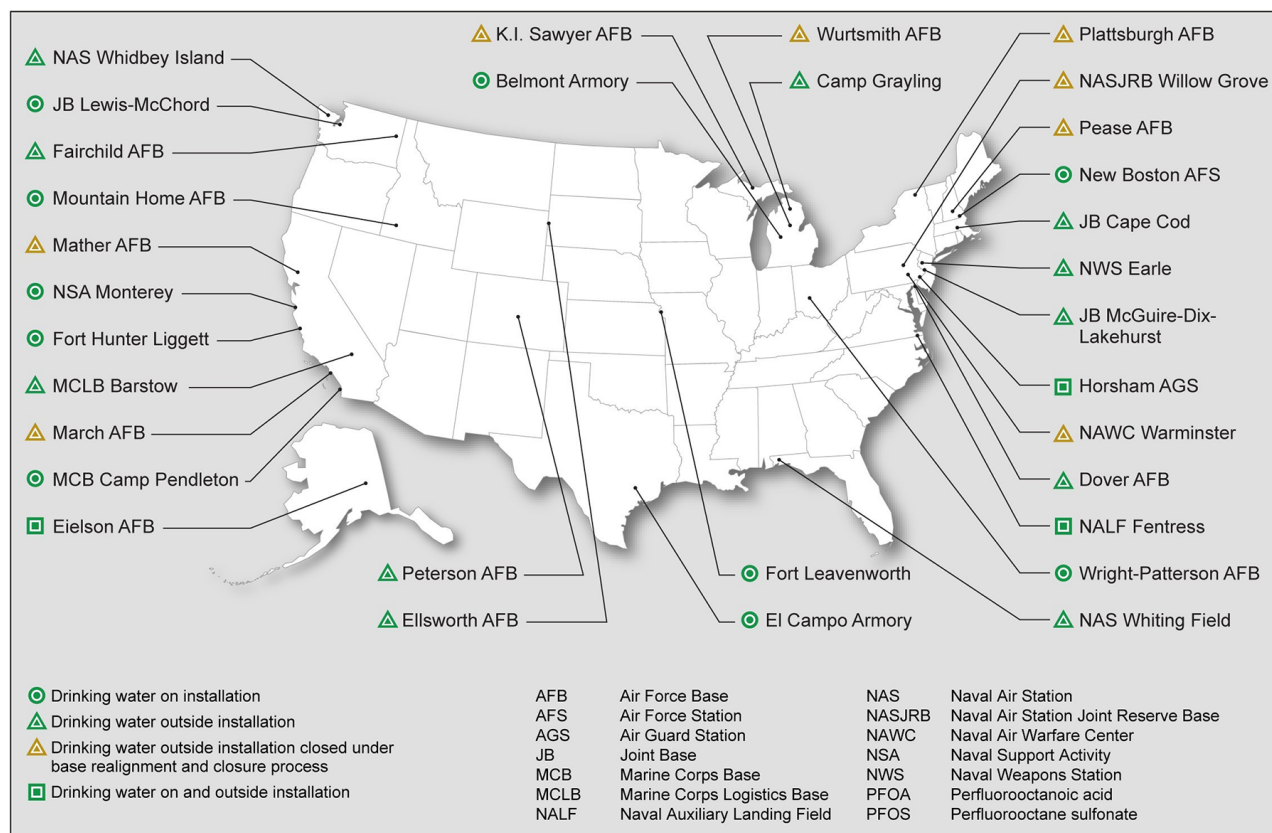

Grevatt pledged the continued support of the EPA to states, tribes and communities on this issue while also committing to continued cooperation with the Department of Defense and the Department of Health and Human Services as the government tackles this issue.

Department of Defense (DOD) Deputy Assistant Secretary Maureen Sullivan began her testimony with the following statement, “Ensuring the health and safety of our servicemembers, the families living on our installations, and the surrounding communities is one of our top priorities.

She went on to explain how firefighting foam containing PFAS has been used by DOD, commercial airports, local fire departments, and the oil and gas industry. But, qualified its impact by claiming, “[I]t only accounts for approximately 3 to 6 percent of the PFAS production in the calendar year 2000, and DOD is just one of many users.”

Sullivan testified how in recent years, the Defense Department committed resources and responded to PFOS and PFOA concerns. The agency voluntarily tested the 525 drinking water systems at military installations worldwide. The first step was to identify the source of known or suspected releases; determine whether there is exposure through drinking water and, if so, cutoff human exposure where drinking water exceeds EPA’s lifetime health advisory; and finally, prioritize the worst first, for mitigation.

In August 2017, the agency reported acting to address PFOS and PFOA levels exceeding those recommended in EPA’s health advisories for drinking water on 13 military installations and outside the boundaries of 22 military installations—two of which are in the inland region. See Map.

The DOD also issued a policy requiring Military Departments to prevent uncontrolled, land-based releases during maintenance, testing, and training activities.

In early March, the Environmental Working Group reported it had identified and mapped 106 military sites in the country where drinking water or groundwater is contaminated with PFAS and stressed—“this is only the tip of a toxic iceberg.”

Linda Birnbaum, PhD and Director, Department of Health and Human Services advised those in attendance at the hearing, “The use of PFAS is growing, and they are being incorporated into more processes and products than ever before.” She continued, “PFAS are now ubiquitous and have been identified in even the most remote environments.”

Speaking about the health effects of PFAS Birnbaum stressed, “Research conducted to date, reveals statistically significant associations between human PFAS exposures and specific adverse human health outcomes. These include potential effects on children’s cognitive and neuro-behavioral development, immune system dysfunction, endocrine disruption, obesity, diabetes, lipid metabolism, and cancer.”

Birnbaum noted that although further human studies are necessary, “[S]tudies in animals support our understanding of the biological underpinnings for these associations.”

In the meantime, the Environmental Working Group has estimated PFAS is in the drinking water of no less than 110 million Americans.

During the Senate hearing, Andrea Amico, co-founder of a community action group near a military base in New Hampshire, summed up the concerns of citizens across the country when she declared, “Communities need action now. For far too long, our government has not taken swift and meaningful action to address PFAS contamination. Although a large amount of contaminated communities has been identified in the last few years, the reality is that these communities have been exposed to these harmful contaminants for decades and are already suffering the consequences of this exposure. We need action now, and we cannot wait any longer.

On November 10, 2017, two PFAS—perfluorooctanoic acid (PFOA) and perfluorooctane sulfonate (PFOS)—were listed by the State of California as “known to cause reproductive toxicity” under California’s Safe Drinking Water and Toxic Enforcement Act, Proposition 65, originally enacted in 1986. As a result, companies must comply with the “clear and reasonable warning” standard for all products that expose people to significant levels of PFOA or PFOS.

Allen Chapel AME Church Kicks-Off Inaugural Palm Sunday Celebration

Kicking off Holy week, the Allen Chapel AME Church of Riverside hosted its inaugural Palm Sunday Celebration with an afternoon of praise, worship, dance, and spoken word.

A little history of Palm Sunday, which is also called Passion Sunday, commemorates the first day of what Christians call Holy Week. It is the Sunday before Easter, said to have ushered Jesus' triumphant entry into Jerusalem.

According to scholars, "During the Middle Ages the ceremony for the blessing of the palms was elaborate: the procession began in one church, went to a church in which the palms were blessed, and returned to the church in which the procession had originated for the singing of the liturgy.

The principal feature of the liturgy that followed the procession was the chanting by three deacons of the account of the Passion of Christ (Matthew 26:36-27:54). Musical settings for parts of the story involving a crowd were sometimes sung by the choir.

After reforms of the Roman Catholic liturgies in 1955 and 1969, the ceremonies were somewhat simplified in order to emphasize the suffering and death of Christ."

The sanctuary was decorated with palms throughout and some of the attendees were offered blessed palms to take with them.

The Allen Chapel Choir sang inspirational selections throughout the program opening the celebration with "We Come to Give Him Praise," by mid-program, "The Blood Still Works," and closed out the celebration with "Hallelujah Amen."

The celebration continued with dance performances by the Allen Chapel AME Praise Dancers, and spoken word performed by Ajamn Elijah Lee Johnson with his poem titled, "That Donkey."

Other guest performers were Bethel AME Church of Perris, Women in Praise Dance Ministry, of Ward LA, and a duet performed by First Lady Settle and their son, Jeremiah Settle, on guitar, "In Christ Alone."

Dr. Barry Settle, Pastor of Allen Chapel AME, shared how he had a vision a few months ago, to put together a program, as he wanted the church family to do something "different" than what they did in years past, to prepare for Easter Sunday.

With the help of his wife, First Lady Rochelle Settle, and a few members of the church, they planned and organized a program, that they hope, will grow bigger and bigger in the years to come. Pastor Settle informed his congregation and guests, to set their calendars for next year's celebration on April 5, 2020 for what will now be an annual celebration for Allen Chapel AME Church.

The celebration concluded with acknowledgements, thanks, and benediction from Pastor Settle who was pleased with the amount of support, participants, and attendees that were present and engaged. The anticipation for next year's event is high and all community members who are interested in attending are welcome to come.

Next Sunday, April 21, 2019, they will be worshipping during their Sunrise Service at 6:00 am, with a community breakfast at 8:00 am, and their regular worship service at 10:00 am. All are encouraged to "Come as You Are!"

The Allen Chapel AME Church Riverside, is located at 4009 Locust Street, Riverside, CA 92501.

HAROLD N. MYERS

Case Number PRRI 1900516

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of: HAROLD N. MYERS. A Petition for Probate has been filed by KATHLEEN COTTON in the Superior Court of California, County of: RIVERSIDE. The Petition for Probate requests that KATHLEEN COTTON be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent. The petition requests the decedent's will and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The will and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court. The petition requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority. A hearing on the petition will be held in this court as follows: Date: 5/21/2019 Time: 8:30 A.M. DEPT 11, SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA, COUNTY OF RIVERSIDE, 4050 MAIN ST, RIVERSIDE, CA 92501. If you object to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

If you are a creditor or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code. Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law. Superintendents would have the ability to coordinate and collaborate with financial institutions, financial services providers, and nonprofit community organizations in collecting and distributing financial literacy materials. They would also be expected to organize financial literacy materials to ensure they are matched to the appropriate grade level.

"We need to educate our students on topics like budgeting, managing debt, and uses of credit—so they are prepared for life," Cunningham concluded.

left menthol because, to them, menthol was not a flavor. Menthol is a flavor; it is derived from a mint leaf."

Currently, with the rise of electronic smoking devices like the Juul, these products are becoming easier for younger demographics to attain. Dr. Sheffield commented, "Two years ago, we had a decline of young people smoking. Since 2016, it has gone up for young people between the ages of 12- to 20 years—an increase of 641 percent." The increase was largely driven by those smoking electronic smoking devices.

The RCBCC is one month into their five-year fight with Big Tobacco and were afforded a $1.9 million grant from the California Tobacco Control Program. "We believe that anytime an individual or industry comes into our community and is not supporting but killing the community—we must fight back. We believe that it is our moral authority and responsibility to stand up to them because we're the voice for small businesses...Ultimately, we want to be like the city of San Francisco, where they have a total ban on mentholated products. Our overall mission is to ban mentholated products in the African American communities."

Ignite Leadership Academy

The Society of Extraordinary Women's mission is to empower teenage girls to discover their extraordinary selves through education, and mentoring for a lifetime.

Our premier program is the Ignite Leadership and STEM Academy for Girls. This program provides specific skills that support personal and academic success. The skills taught in our uniquely designed program focuses on enhancing the development of the total person.

Our leadership module emphasizes on building personal esteem, teamwork, goal setting, social, and cyber etiquette, financial literacy, community engagement, and preparation for college and careers. Students also have the choice to partake in one of our several elective activities such as creative arts, aviation, and exploratory field trips.

Through a collaboration with the Mapping Black California Initiative, and Esri, a world leader in technology worldwide, we are able to provide a comprehensive STEM program in GIS technology which includes robotics, community mapping, special analytics, and coding. The classes provide critical thinking skills that allow our students to develop applications that provide change in their communities or the world.

We work to have a lasting impact on the lives of girls in our local region, but we are not satisfied. Statistics tells us that the need is great, and we see it firsthand. In this age of globalization and technology, it is critical that we prepare our students to become great leaders, scientists, engineers, mathematicians, and innovators prepared to take their role in this new and evolving global market place.
