Trustee Ted J. Saenger To Visit Campus

In an effort to become better acquainted with the California State University system, board of trustees member Ted J. Saenger will make his first visit to campus on Tuesday, Feb. 27. Trustee Saenger will meet with administrators, faculty and student leaders throughout the day and will tour the campus. The agenda also includes a special lunch meeting with community leaders.

According to Dr. Judith Rymer (University Relations), "We are delighted to have Trustee Saenger make his first visit to campus. We try to bring three or four trustees to San Bernardino each year as part of our ongoing effort to acquaint them with the special strengths and needs of the university. These campus visits also provide opportunities for students and faculty to discuss current issues with trustees."

A partial schedule of Trustee Saenger's visit is as follows:

10:30 a.m. Meet with senior executives, school deans and associate vice presidents.
AD-102.

1:30 p.m. Meet with student leaders. Sycamore Room, Commons.

2:30 p.m. Meet with faculty and other campus representatives. Sycamore Room, Commons.

Saenger was recently reappointed to a second term on the CSU Board of Trustees by Gov. George Deukmejian. He was first appointed to the board in January, 1989 to fill a vacancy. Pending Senate confirmation, his second term will expire March 1, 1997.

He is the former president and chief executive officer of Pacific Bell in San Francisco. He began his career with Pacific Telephone and Telegraph in 1952.

In addition to his service on the CSU board, Saenger serves as a commissioner of the California Postsecondary Education Commission. He serves on the board of trustees for Occidental College, San Francisco Theological Seminary and John Muir Medical Center. He is currently a member of the Associates of the Los Angeles Area Chamber of Commerce. Saenger is the former chairman of the California Economic Development Corporation. He is a graduate of the University of California, Berkeley.

School of Education & Fontana School District Receive Major Grant for New Teacher Induction

A $264,000 state grant has been awarded to the Fontana Unified School District and Cal State's School of Education to fund a program designed to track the progress of 80 district teachers new to the profession. The Fontana district is the only district in the Inland Empire and one of only 10 in the state to receive the grant this year.

The California New Teacher project grant, awarded jointly by the State Department of Education and the State Commission on Teacher Credentialing, immediately provides $124,000 to implement the program through June. Another $140,000 in grant monies will be available for renewal after June.

A major aim of the grant is to create a strong support network for new teachers so they will remain in the profession. The grant will pay for continuing education opportunities such as seminars and workshops for first- and second-year teachers. It also will provide new teachers with mentors and extra supervisors geared to making their transition to the classroom easier.

According to Dr. Margaret Atwell (Education), "This is an innovative program because it will help us refine our program to develop a new model for teacher preparedness. We will redesign how we educate our teachers. It will allow us to develop a program which is more effective in educating teachers to analyze the classroom situation and to effectively integrate into that situation."

Atwell adds that the university also will benefit by having a better system of tracking its teacher graduates. She notes that "many teachers leave (the profession) within the first two to three years" due to complex demands placed on today's educators. Atwell notes that the program also will be beneficial because it provides a "continuing relationship with the university for the first two years."

"Our program is the third largest teacher education program in the state," continues Atwell. "On the average, we graduate over 600 teachers each year."

The highly competitive grant was the result of a close collaborative effort between School of Education faculty members and representatives of the Fontana Unified School District who worked together in developing and writing the grant proposal. The team beat out 40 other applicants.

"Teaching is a tough job, a very tough job, especially in a very diverse society," said Cal State alumna Jane Smith who serves as assistant superintendent for instruction with the Fontana Unified School District. She said the grant will show the district how to make their new teachers "be the best they can be."

Emergency Loan Program Seeks Campus Support

In an attempt to keep pace with the growth in student population, Cal State's Emergency Student Loan Program is seeking to increase its operating fund and attract new donors.

Described as the "fund of funds," the emergency loan program is one of the major campus sources of short-term loans designed to assist students seeking financial aid, explains Ted Krug (Financial Aid). During the 1989-90 academic year, nearly 1,300 students will receive emergency loans. Typically, an average loan amount is about $200 and funds are used for books, supplies, auto repairs, medical care and groceries.

Last October, the program experienced a $12,000 shortage of funds and had to be suspended for four weeks. Various campus organizations including the Associated Students, the Alumni Association and Cal State Associates joined with administrators, faculty and staff to donate funds to help the program through the crisis.

"Over the next five years we will need about $125,000 in new capital to operate the program due to the growth of the campus," explained Krug. "We are looking to the future in trying to secure approximately $27,000 in new capital for the 1990-91 year."

Members of the campus community can assist. One way to help is through a donation to Cal State's Annual Fund. Information regarding the Annual Fund recently was sent to university employees.

Pamela Langford (Development) notes that, "Anyone interested in assisting the Emergency Student Loan Program can do so with a designated gift to the Annual Fund." For details, contact Langford at Ext. 5006.

Library Receives Newspaper Donation

A collection of extinct local newspapers was donated to the John M. Pfau Library in early February by San Bernardino Mayor W. R. "Bob" Holcomb. One gift, a bound collection of San Bernardino's Independent Press, dating from April 1 - May 15, 1964, is devoted mainly to local water issues. Five bound collections of the San Bernardino Free Press dating from Dec. 3, 1964 to Aug. 29, 1969, provides a look at local history in San Bernardino. Both papers were published weekly.

According to Marty Bloomberg (Library), "Unique gifts of this kind from local people help develop the library's collections with materials that are not generally available." Bloomberg added that the newspapers could possibly be used for a local historical display.

David Bourquin (Library) noted that the collection is probably rare in that it is not commonly available. He said it will be put in restricted circulation. Those interested in viewing the collection may inquire at the circulation desk.
