Awareness is Key to Crime Prevention

With the fall quarter just underway and enrollment at an all time high, the Department of Public Safety encourages members of the campus community to be aware of a number of crime prevention techniques that can help ensure everyone's safety.

"We all need to be aware that there are many things each of us can practice to help make sure our campus remains safe," notes Ed Harrison, director of public safety. "Since last spring, the university really has made a concerted effort to implement a number of measures geared toward crime prevention." Many of these measures came as a result of the special Task Force on Campus Safety commissioned last spring by President Evans. (Although the task force is no longer convening, the Risk Management Committee continues to focus on campus safety issues).

"Currently, all patrol positions in my department are filled and two new officers are on board," continues Harrison. "I'm now in the process of hiring an evening supervisor, bringing the total of public safety officers to three."

Seven days a week, one patrol officer is on duty during the daytime hours. During the hours of 5 p.m.-3 a.m., three officers are on duty. On Friday and Saturday nights, a minimum of two officers will be on duty between 5 p.m.-3 a.m., Harrison notes, adding that his officers' shifts overlap to insure that the campus receives 24-hour coverage at all times.

In addition to a full staff of public safety officers, systematic efforts have been made to improve campus lighting, trim foliage and hedges and to beef up the campus escort service. Presently, two escorts are on duty from 6 p.m.-1 a.m., Monday-Thursday; 6-9 p.m., Fridays; and from 7 a.m.-noon on Saturday. This free service is available to all faculty, staff and students by calling Ext. 5165. When using the escort service, individuals are encouraged to wait inside of buildings until the escort arrives.

Other strides in campus safety revolve around the residence halls. For the first time in Cal State's history, alcohol has been banned from Serrano Village units, and a new lock system has been implemented. Two new staff members are on board in the Student Services Division

New Vitality for Residential Life Program

Norm Stlosed

More than just a roof over students' heads, Serrano Village is being transformed by the creative ideas and enthusiastic energies of two new staff members in the residential life program. This summer, Norm Stlosed and Byron Howlett, Jr. joined the Student Services Division. They are responsible for the day-to-day operations and residential programming in the village. Stlosed fills a new position as residential life coordinator and as assistant coordinator, Howlett serves as the new "live-in" professional.

Both bring a wealth of residential life and student activities experience to their new roles. Stlosed comes to Cal State from Azusa Pacific University, Azusa, CA, where he served as student activities coordinator, coordinator of the Student Center and as residence director. He holds a B.A. in psychology and an M.A. in social science, both from Azusa Pacific. Howlett hails from U.C.L.A. where he earned a bachelor's degree in geography. His former positions include residence hall coordinator, resident assistant and peer and orientation counselor.

who will focus on safety issues as part of their service to Cal State. (See related story in this issue.)

Harrison provides a number of safety tips geared toward crime prevention and reminds members of the university community that awareness is the key to crime prevention. Some of his tips include the following advice:

Protect Personal Property

1. Watch your personal property and be observant of those around you, especially when making short trips to a soft-drink or copy machine.
2. Don't leave valuables in plain sight. Lock purses in a desk drawer or file cabinet.
3. Always lock your vehicle and park in a well-lit area. Don't leave valuables inside your vehicle. If you must, do not leave them in a visible place.
4. Install an auto alarm system or steering wheel lock in vehicles.

Avoid Walking Alone at Night

1. If you have a night class or are attending an evening function on campus, plan to use the buddy system. Walk to and from your destination with co-workers, fellow students or friends.
2. If it is absolutely necessary that you travel alone at night, stay on well-lit and well-traveled pathways.

3. Use the campus escort service to assist you during the evening hours. Escorts are available by dialing Ext. 5165 from any campus phone.

4. Be aware of emergency phones located at over 30 campus sites. They are housed in red or gray boxes. Outdoor phones have a blue light above them for high visibility. These provide a direct link to campus police should you need assistance or wish to report a crime or problem. Simply open the box and lift the receiver.

Report Crime Immediately

1. Should you become a crime victim, report the incident as quickly as possible by calling the campus police at Ext. 5911 or by using an emergency telephone. If you observe the perpetrator, note the description of the individual or his vehicle and the direction in which he or she is headed.
2. When reporting the incident, tell the police where you are and wait in that location until the officer arrives.
3. If you are the victim of an assault or any offensive act, again report the crime IMMEDIATELY. Female victims have the right to speak with a female police officer. Don't be embarrassed to ask. Incidents of this nature should be reported to protect you and fellow members of the campus community.

Know that campus safety is a university-wide responsibility. Plan for a safe fall quarter by remaining alert and practicing crime prevention techniques.

Learning Center Has New Director

Cynthia Linton

Staff member Cynthia Linton is now serving as the interim director of the Learning Center, reports Dr. Dennis Hefner, vice president for academic affairs. She replaces Dr. Sandra Clarkson who now is teaching on the east coast.

Linton brings 15 years of experience in student support services to the Learning Center where she served as a tutor coordinator for the past two years. Before joining Cal State, she was assistant dean for the Office of Black Student Affairs at Claremont Colleges. At Pomona College, Linton served as the associate director of admissions and student affairs liaison. She holds a bachelor of arts degree in international relations from Pomona College and is completing a master's degree in linguistics from CSU, Fullerton this year.

Several goals have been identified for the Learning Center, says Linton, including taking a holistic approach to helping students learn. "We hope to increase computer instruction to assist all Cal State students with word processing and graphics. We want to increase campus computer literacy. We also want to design programs geared to network with other departments to maximize services to students. I don't want to see our services curtailed. We are working very hard to meet past standards."

Last year, Linton notes that the Learning Center staff made great strides in working as a more unified team. The center also was successful in initial attempts to network with other campus departments in servicing students and in upgrading the center's computer facilities. She credits her successor with taking the lead in these accomplishments.

Cal State's Learning Center assisted over 2,000 students last year. Tutoring is the main function of the center's four full-time staff members who are aided by student assistants. The center recently adopted an ESL (English as a Second Language) program and also functions as a referral and information center for the campus. Free services also include self-paced courses in criminal justice, anthropology, psychology, history and religion. VCRs and cassette players are available for use in the Learning Center, which also administers the Defensive Driving Test.

Commenting on her appointment, Linton says, "I was pleased with the trust and responsibility put on me. I appreciate this opportunity." As for the center's greatest challenge, she notes, "This will be to provide the level of service that the students need with the current and available staff."

Construction Update

Two new long-term facilities expansion projects are on the drawing board, reports William Shum, director of physical planning & development. A $25.6 million Social & Behavioral Sciences Building recently was approved by the CSU Chancellor's Office as was a $4.8 million Corporation Yard and Administrative Services/Public Safety Building addition. Both projects are contingent upon legislative approval.

The Corporation Yard project will provide additional square footage needs related to the ongoing and future campus growth and construction. The addition to the existing Corporation Yard complex will allow for the expansion of the Physical Plant, Public Safety and Parking Services, Duplicating, the Mail Room, Campus Stores and the Receiving Department.

More immediately, construction remains on schedule for the new Classroom/Student Services/Faculty Office Complex. Steel beams and a crane are due to arrive on campus within the next two weeks when the building's structural frame will be erected. Members of the campus community are urged not to enter the construction site which is a hard-hat area. The open trenching and heavy equipment in operation pose potential danger for site visitors.

Armed with this variety of experience, this "dynamic duo" imparts a sense of vitality and excitement--an atmosphere quickly evident by a trip to today's Serrano Village. Operating with a philosophy that campus housing can provide residents with much more than just a place to sleep, Stosted describes this new momentum as, "a whole movement to break the stereotype of 'the dorm.'" Beginning with the name itself, Serrano Village units now are more aptly referred to as "residence halls." According to Stosted, the term "dorm" conjures up an image of just a place to sleep, while "residence" indicates a place to live and to grow.

Opportunities for growth in Serrano Village will revolve around four major themes and will coordinate with the Student Services Division. Activities and programs in community development, personal growth, community service and academic support will be implemented and are based on research which indicates that nearly 80 percent of adult learning occurs outside the classroom setting.

According to Stosted, "We will focus on services and programs geared to educating through the learning experience. We want to get the rest of the campus involved in residential life. We want to provide an environment for the majority of our students to be successful at Cal State. Our mission is to provide a 'living learning' environment that is conducive to academic success, personal growth, and the development of personal commitments to living in 'community.'"

Throughout the year, residents will be encouraged to participate in a new tradition: a "Battle of the Halls" geared to solicit greater involvement in Serrano Village. Points will be awarded for recreational competitions, community service projects, attendance at special events and for faculty and staff involvement in the halls. For example, tentative plans include a "Homeless Night" this spring--an event in which residents will volunteer to sleep under the stars in conjunction with a canned food drive for the needy. Or, an all-male hall may sponsor a program to show women how to make basic car repairs like changing a tire. A perpetual trophy and a free pizza party for the hall having the greatest number of points will be awarded at the end of each quarter.

This new vitality for the residence halls will not exclude academics. "We see ourselves as a support service to the academic side of life," says Stosted. "We have coordinated with the Learning Center to have in-house tutors during the school week."

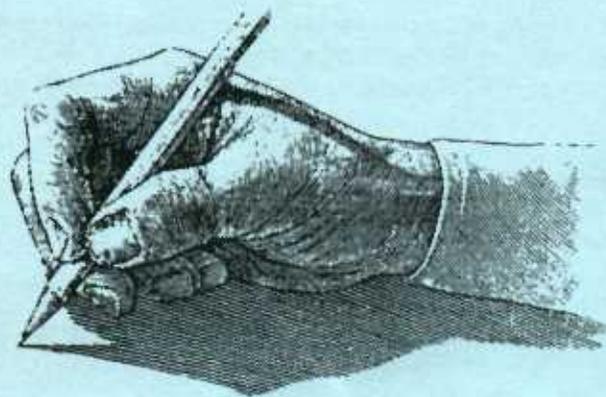

Another major change in Serrano Village is the new policy that prohibits alcohol on the premises. "This was a difficult decision. We knew it would not be popular," states Doyle Stansel, assistant vice president of student services, who serves as the housing director. "Fifty percent of the residents are freshmen and 75 percent are under age 21. Since most residents are not of drinking age, our main objective is not to impose our own moral values, but to reduce the problems due to drinking, such as noise, vandalism and attempted assaults."

Looking ahead toward revitalizing the residential life program, Stosted notes, "One challenge will be to market the unique student population we have at Cal State--one that is generally commuter in nature. We are literally competing with the convenience of commuting to home."

His assistant, Howlett, views the challenge as a learning experience. "The biggest challenge I see is reeducating the campus community to all of the changes. Norm and I are the new kids on the block. We are trying to get this program growing in the right direction."

On a Personnel Note

Welcome to the second issue of "On a Personnel Note," a new column of The Friday Bulletin designed specifically to enlighten university employees on a wide variety of events and topics affecting today's workplace. In this issue, we'd like to focus on a service geared to help disabled faculty and staff members.

Once again, the CSU has allocated resources to implement a special Systemwide Assistive Device & Equipment Program providing limited funding for equipment or device accommodations to assist disabled employees with their jobs. Program funds cannot be used to purchase personal-use items, such as walking canes, hearing aids or glasses. However, equipment items that have been funded in the past include electric carts, telephone hearing devices and type-enlarging readers. Likewise, requests for funds to support student assistance for disabled employees have been approved in the past. To be considered for the program, permanent employees must submit a proposal to the Personnel Office.

"Our goal is to increase employee awareness of this on-going program and to provide assistance to interested individuals," says Twillea Carthen, personnel management specialist. Employees needing assistance in preparing the proposal request or exploring equipment fees can contact the Personnel Office. According to Carthen, Dr. Theron Pace, director of the university's Services to Students With Disabilities, also is available to help employees explore the program. His office can provide catalogs, brochures and other information.

Proposal requests must be submitted to the Personnel Office no later than Tuesday, Oct. 9. Requests then are forwarded to the Chancellor's Office for committee review and final approval.

Benefits Question . . .

Q. When does a family member lose eligibility for health coverage?

A. Eligibility and health coverage terminates at midnight of the last day of the month in which:

1. A family member dies;
2. A family member enrolls in this program as an employee;
3. A child marries;
4. A child reaches age 23 (disabled individuals excepted);
5. A final decree of divorce is granted.

Under items 3, 4 and 5, family members are eligible for a group continuation plan. Employees are responsible for reporting changes in family member status to the Personnel Office by completing form HBD-12. Forms and information are available from Marjorie Callaghan, benefits officer, at Ext. 5138.

Suggestions for "On a Personnel Note" are welcome. Submissions may be forwarded to the Personnel Office or to Terrie Jo Snyder in the Public Affairs Office. We'd like to hear from our readers.

Library Exhibit Chronicles Cal State's Development

A library display depicting Cal State's growth during the past 25 years remains on exhibit through December. It's located on the first floor of the John Pfau Library.

Take a visual trip down memory lane with a new library display entitled "CSU Celebrates 25 Years." Currently on display on the first floor of the John Pfau Library, this eight-case collection of photos and mementos echoes the university's history from the early years to present.

Assembled by Johnnie Ann Ralph, associate university librarian, the exhibit provides an historical perspective and overview of the growth and development of the campus. "I deliberately chose the word 'celebrate' for the display, because I believe we

Voter Registration Deadline

Members of the university community are reminded that Tuesday, Oct. 9 is the registration deadline to vote in the November 6 primary election. According to Dottie Ray, outreach coordinator for the County of San Bernardino's Registrar of Voters Office, there are three main criteria for voter registration. Applicants must be U.S. citizens, cannot have a felony conviction and must be 18 years old. Voter registration forms have been distributed by the California Faculty Association. Additional forms also are available from the University Relations Office, AD-104.

Proposition 143, a $450 million general obligation bond measure, will appear on the November ballot. If approved, it will provide funds for upgrading, renovating and constructing facilities at the California State University, University of California and California Community College campuses. Prop 143 is the companion piece to Prop 121 that was passed by voters last June.

Here at Cal State, passage of Prop. 143 would fund several potential facilities expansion projects. These include: construction funds for the Pfau Library addition; working drawings for the Health/Physical Education/Classroom and Faculty Office Complex; working drawings for a new Visual Arts Building; preliminary plans for the Social and Behavioral Science Building addition and renovation; and preliminary plans and working drawings for the Administrative Service and Corporation Yard expansion and renovation project.

Fail Bulletin Schedule

Spread the word about your special events, organizational activities and personal accomplishments through upcoming issues of The Friday Bulletin, a bimonthly newsletter for staff and faculty published by the Public Affairs Office. During the fall quarter, the Bulletin will be published the first and third Fridays of each month. Written submissions are accepted by noon the Friday preceding each publication date. Black and white photos, as well as suggestions and comments on the publication always are welcome for consideration. This fall, the Bulletin will be published according to the following schedule:

|---------|---------|---------|
| Oct. 19 | Nov. 2  | Dec. 7  |
|         | Nov. 16 | Dec. 21 |

Please submit materials to Terrie Jo Snyder, editor, AD-104, or call Ext. 5007 with your story ideas and information.

Men's Basketball Team Receives Gift

A major merchandise sponsorship has been awarded to the Coyote men's basketball team courtesy of the Asics Corporation, an apparel manufacturer whose primary line is athletic shoes. The gift is valued at approximately $8,000.

"We are extremely happy to welcome Asics as a sponsor for men's basketball," says David Suenram, director of athletics. "Their support expresses the many ways to help our athletic program. We are very grateful to Asics for their gift."

Fun Run/Walk Kicks Off Recreational Sports Season

The motto of Cal State's Recreational Sports Program, "Don't Spectate, Recreate" comes to life this fall with a Lief Eriksson Day Fun Run/Walk slated for Tuesday, Oct. 9, from 12:10-1 p.m. The course covers the inner campus service roads. Sign-ups will be held at noon at the following locations: west end of the P.E. Building, north of the library, east of the Student Services Building, by the book drop and mail box near the front of campus and in front of the health center. More details are available from Joe Long (Recreational Sports) at Ext. 5235.

Financial Planning for Retirement

As a service to the campus community, two free seminars on "Financial Planning for Retirement" will be held on campus this month. Information will include: financial management and estate planning; estate conservation and life income plans; long-term health care planning; wills, trusts and other tools of estate planning; income tax development and social security and retirement income.

Sessions are slated for 5:30-8:30 p.m. on Wednesday, Oct. 17, in the Sycamore Room and from 9 a.m.-noon on Saturday, Oct. 20, in the Upper Commons. For more details and an enrollment form, contact the University Relations Office at Ext. 5006.

A Look at Campus Life

Soccer Clinic Draws Community Support

CSUSB's Second Annual Soccer Clinic, hosted by the Athletic Department on Sept. 23, drew a record crowd of over 300 youths and more than 50 adults who attended a coach's clinic. Instruction, a free lunch and complimentary admission to a women's soccer game rounded out the agenda. A special guest appearance from CSUSB alum Jerry O'Hara of the California Emperors drew questions from the crowd and provided autograph opportunities. Pictured above are two members of Cal State's men's soccer team, Jeff Vanderveen (#5) and Lars Shevalier (#7), who point out the beginning basics to the six-year-old and under group.

Future Leaders Hold Inaugural Luncheon

Commemorating "Leadership in the 21st Century," this year's Future Leaders Program held an inaugural luncheon Sept. 21 to welcome new participants and meet with key administrators and school deans. Dr. Juan Gonzalez, interim vice president for student services, served as the keynote speaker. "You are headed in the right direction," said Gonzalez. "We expect the highest level of excellence from you, and we are here to help you. Youth is our future." Dr. Tom Rivera (seated in center), associate dean for Educational Support Services, serves as the prime coordinator of the Future Leaders Program.

Convocation Honors Silver Anniversary

Convocation was sparked with a festive flair as the annual event officially launched Cal State's 25 years in the community. Following remarks by President Evans and Dr. Ward McAfee, professor of history, several founding faculty and community members instrumental in the development of Cal State were recognized. The event was topped off with a special cake complete with the silver anniversary logo. On hand for the cake-cutting ceremony were (from left): Dr. Dennis Hefner, vice president for academic affairs; Dr. John Pfau, president emeritus; Dr. Ward McAfee; President Anthony Evans; Dr. Judith Rymer, vice president for university relations; and Dr. Juan Gonzalez, interim vice president for student services.

Campus Picnic Kicks-Off Fall Quarter

Food, fun and family festivities combined to attract a record crowd to the annual old-fashioned picnic held last Sunday. The event featured volleyball, softball, increased student participation, live music and plenty of activities for young children.

Farewell Reception Honors Administrator

Dr. Amer El-Ahraf, former associate vice president for academic resources, proudly displays a set of gold cuff links he received as a farewell gift at a recent campus reception. After serving our campus for 17 years, El-Ahraf is now executive vice president at CSU, Dominguez Hills.

Vehicular Traffic Policy Update

In an effort to promote pedestrian safety, a new policy restricting vehicular traffic on campus was implemented this summer, reports Art Butler, director of administrative services. All members of the campus community are reminded that the inner campus core is now closed to vehicular traffic. This ban extends to motor vehicles, bicycles and skateboards. In addition to the walkway closure, a portion of the inner campus roadway between the Visual Arts Building and the Commons has been closed to non-state vehicles.

Short-term, 20-minute parking spaces have been constructed adjacent to each building to facilitate loading and unloading. Please note and observe the signs marking these new parking stalls; some are restricted to employee and service vehicle parking only. Again, these measures have been implemented to promote pedestrian safety. Questions regarding this new policy may be directed to the Public Safety Department at Ext. 5165.

should celebrate the growth of 25 years," said Ralph, who personally has experienced much of this development. "It's amazing to see how things have changed."

Although Ralph developed the display from university archives, she gives full credit for its contents to Library Bibliographer Art Nelson. "He made sure that many of the materials were saved."

"CSU Celebrates 25 Years" remains on display through Dec. 14. Library hours are: 8 a.m.-11 p.m., Monday-Thursday; 8 a.m.-5 p.m., Friday; 9 a.m.-5 p.m., Saturday; and 1-11 p.m., Sunday.

A Note of Thanks

Sincere appreciation is extended to the campus community from Dolores Demeritte (Records), her husband, Tyrone, and daughter, Dawn, for all the support and prayers for her daughter, Samone Tarver, who died Aug. 8.
