KEEPING IT REAL

Now, We Know Who's Next

They are mothers and fathers and children who are victims of extraordinary circumstances. They represent all races (though more minorities than others) and educational levels—many have merely fallen on hard times.

Counted among them are those with mental illness, veterans suffering from PTSD, those addicted to drugs, and more and more, those who are priced out of their dwellings as stagnant wages, a growing housing shortage and rising rental rates have coalesced to force citizens to the streets.

In recent years, counties—including both Riverside and San Bernardino—have worked aggressively against prevailing winds, in pursuit of answers to homelessness by taking innovative approaches to serving those impacted while also working to create affordable housing and address the issue of rising rental costs. Yet despite these efforts, as the economy begins to slow, it is possible the number of homeless may increase.

Regarding how to best serve the needs of this population in ways that will enable them to secure and maintain permanent housing will not come as a result of any meaningful/humane guidance from the White House.

When the president sent his emissaries to Los Angeles recently to assess the homeless issue, rather than him waiting for their insights and recommendations regarding the problem or expressing compassionate concern for those living on the streets—he telegraphed an outrageous solution instead. It's an approach that evokes his campaign mantra of “Lock her up,” by in essence floating an idea equivalent to “locking them up.”

Rumors that he is contemplating a strategy of that consists of rounding homeless people up and sending them to government run facilities is simultaneously alarming and highly probable.

As a nation, Americans seem unable to find their voices, to muster a meaningful resistance as the president tromps all over civil liberties with wanton and reckless abandon. We've watched incredulous, as he barred people of color from entering the country; locked children in cages, eliminated rights of LGBTQ citizens, described a Black community as a “rat infested mess, dehumanized Black female elected officials, threatens to pull dying immigrant children from hospital beds in order to deport them and stoked the flames of racial hatred to such an extent madmen are shooting vulnerable people down with hate filed intention. Now, we

Gigantic Tumbleweeds

Riverside - Specialists at the University of California Riverside (UCR) report a new species of gigantic tumbleweed once predicted to go extinct, is not only here to stay, it will very likely to expand its territory. The species, called "Salsola ryanii," is significantly larger than either of its parent plants, which can grow up to 6 feet tall. A new UCR study supports the theory that the new tumbleweed grows more vigorously because it is a hybrid with doubled pairs of its parents' chromosomes. Currently, Salsola ryanii has a relatively small but rapidly expanding geographic range. Given its potential for damage, the knowledge now available about Salsola ryanii could be important for helping to suppress it before it takes over. "Salsola ryanii is a nasty species replacing other nasty species of tumbleweed in the U.S.," said study co-author Norman Ellstrand, UCR Distinguished Professor of Genetics. "An ounce of prevention is a pound of cure," he said.

MWD Approves $5 Million to Capture Rainwater

Riverside

The Metropolitan Water District (MWD) of Southern California has approved five million dollars in its quest to identify the best and most efficient way of capturing the tens of billions of gallons of rainwater lost during rainstorms every year.

“A lot of hope has been placed in the potential of stormwater as a local water supply for Southern California,” said Metropolitan Chairwoman Gloria Gray. “We want to better understand that potential, and its cost, as part of our commitment to developing local resources.”

In 2016 for example, Los Angeles spent $29 million to expand an existing stormwater capture system. Although this doubled its capacity to 5 billion gallons of stormwater per year more needed to be done. For example, it is estimated nearly 163 billion gallons of stormwater washes off city streets and sidewalks into storm drains and out to the ocean each year. In 2018, voters in the city passed Measure W to fund infrastructure projects and programs to capture, treat and recycle additional rainwater.

MWD is a consortium of 26 cities and water districts. It provides drinking

September is Hunger Action Month

Riverside

American Airlines has demonstrated its commitment to help fight food insecurity in the inland region with a generous donation of 30,000 flight miles to Feeding America Riverside/San Bernardino (FARSB).

The generous and unrestricted grant will enable FARSB to use travel miles for business and/or fundraising to help fuel their mission of alleviating hunger in the inland region.

As the world’s largest airline, this grant is an example of American Airlines commitment to give back to communities where their team members and customers work and live.

“We are so thankful to have received such a generous gift during Hunger Action Month,” said Lori Butler, Philanthropy Director at FARSB as she thanked American Airlines for its continuing support of the organization’s hunger relief efforts.

FARSB’s is committed to providing sustenance for the more than 400,000 residents at risk of going hungry in the Inland Empire by working diligently to ensure that every dollar donated can provide up to 9 meals to community members in need.

FARSB is leading the fight against hunger in the Inland Empire by providing food access, emergency relief, education, and advocacy to families in Riverside and San Bernardino Counties. It is the primary source of food for over 300 local nonprofit organizations, distributing over one million pounds of food monthly to emergency food pantries, homeless shelters, soup kitchens, high-need elementary schools, halfway houses, senior centers, residential treatment centers, shelters for the abused, after school programs and group homes.

FARSB spokesperson Carolyn Solar stressed how in alliance with these charity partners, make up the largest hunger relief organization in the Inland Empire, making food security a reality for over 1.2 million people every year.

Stop Vaping! U.S. Health Officials Issue Warning After Deaths

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention and Food and Drug Administration have again warned consumers about a mysterious lung disease that has sickened hundreds and killed at least four people. Health officials have urged people to stop vaping until they figure out why some are coming down with serious breathing illnesses.

Officials have identified about 450 possible cases, including as many as five deaths, in 33 states. The count includes newly reported deaths in California, Indiana, and Minnesota.

No single vaping device, liquid or ingredient has been tied to all the illnesses, officials said. Many of the sickened — but not all — were people who said they had been vaping THC, the chemical that gives marijuana its high. Many are teens.

Health officials have only been counting certain lung illnesses in which the person had vaped within three months. Doctors say the illnesses resemble an inhalation injury, with the body apparently reacting to a caustic substance that someone breathed in. Symptoms have included shortness of breath, fatigue, chest pain and vomiting.

According to health officials, it's too early to pinpoint what exactly is making people sick. In many cases, people vaped both nicotine and THC, the marijuana compound that produces a high, the CDC said. Some reported using both THC and e-cigarettes while a smaller group reported using only nicotine.

Signs of a Slowing Economy

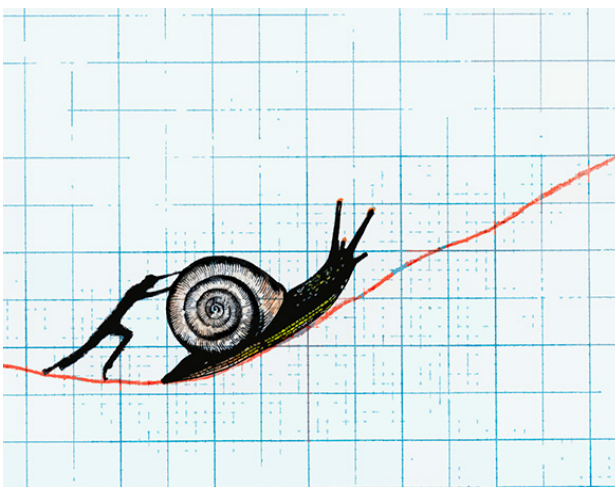

Orange County

Analysis by the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis created economic indexes for 68 major metropolitan areas across the nation has indicated an economic slowdown and the inland region is experiencing the impact.

According to a dozen indexes analyzed by the Orange County Register the economy of the inland region grew at a nominal 1.6 percent annual rate during the 12-month period ending in March 2019 down from a 4.5 percent the previous year.

In addition, of the 68 major metropolitan areas included in the assessment, the inland region rated number 47 in economic growth down from number 9 the previous year.

The median growth across the 68 metropolitan regions was 2.3 percent, down from 2.7 percent growth the previous year. Overall it appears the California economy is cooling at a faster pace than other places in the nation. Seventy-Five percent of the markets tracked in California showed signs of economic slowdown compared to 60 percent of other areas tracked across the country based on the indicators used for this report.

Nationally, at 7.5 percent Las Vegas, NV experienced the most expansive growth rate during the report period while at 1.9 percent, Tulsa, OK experienced the least growth. Click here to view the full report.

Although the U.S. economy was strong throughout 2018, last November economists forecasted a slowdown beginning in the third quarter of 2019 as impacts from the massive 2017 tax cuts began to fade.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Rent Control Awaiting Newsom's Signature

Sacramento - On Thursday, September 12, 2019 California legislators sent a bill to the governor's desk that will cap rent increases across the state at five percent plus inflation—the measure would sunset in 2030. The bill does however include some restrictions/exemptions. Among them, any housing built within the last 15 years, single-family homes not owned by corporations or trusts as well as duplexes where the owner lives in one unit. In a statement Newsom said, “They sent me the strongest package in America. These anti-gouging and eviction protections will help families afford to keep a roof over their heads, and they will provide California with important new tools to combat our state’s broader housing and affordability crisis.” Although the governor is yet to sign the legislation it seems almost certain that he will.

SOMETHING HAPPENED ON APPIAN WAY

A FORMER JUDGE COMPLAINS, CARS ARE TICKETED, RACIAL SLURS ARE MADE - PT. 2

S.E. Williams Contributor

On Saturday, June 29, 2019 several people gathered for a celebration at 6601 Appian Way located in a very upscale section of Riverside.

During the event and for the second time in two weeks, neighbors summoned police officers to the location. On June 22, 2019 neighbors called the police claiming they were disturbed by the sound of loud music coming from the home and the number of cars parked along the roadway—neighbors made the same complaints to police this time.

What happened when officers arrived at the home on June 29 is now a matter of pointed disagreement between one of the party's guests, Carlos Smith and homeowner, Debbie Shelton-Love versus the officers who responded to the call.

Part 1 of this story (September 12, 2019 edition of (The IE Voice/Black Voice News) described in detail the initial interaction between Smith, police officer E. Johansen, and retired judge William Bailey who lives on the street and was among the neighbors who complained While Johansen was interacting with Smith, Bailey—who also happens to be the father of the City of Riverside's Mayor, Rusty Bailey—inserted himself in the discussion. According to Smith, the senior Bailey allegedly assaulted him from behind as he approached himself and Johansen.

Smith also alleges while officers were on the scene Bailey used derogatory racial epithets to describe his guests and directed the officers to ticket the party goers, possibly even providing officers with the California Vehicle Code to use in writing the citations.

Forty-Six-year-old Smith is a single father of two children ages 8 and 14. He holds a bachelor's degree in creative writing and a master's degree in business administration. Smith is a Spoken Word artist and Executive Producer of High End Productions. He also manages a new start up production company in Las Vegas, NV, is the author of "The Elements: Love, Truth, Knowledge and Inspiration," and is involved several other national and international artistic endeavors.

Whether what happened that day on Appian Way was a case of "Partying While Black," or an abuse and misuse of perceived authority by a purportedly belligerent, retired justice, further exacerbated by what may be an abuse of authority by police officers on the scene who possibly acquiesced to the retired judge's commands and then worked to cover-up what actually happened; or, a disturbing coalescence of all of this—remains in dispute.

Getting to the bottom of this story should be easy. After all, the officers on the scene wore body cameras and/or voice recorders however as might be expected, a public records request by this publication was quickly denied by the Riverside Police Department. The public records request called for release of, "All officer documents, witness statements, police department emails, investigation results, body camera recordings and all 911 call recordings related to the police response to an incident that occurred on June 29, 2019 at 6201 Appian Way, Riverside sometime around 5 to 5:30 p.m."

The Riverside Police Department provided the following response, "Your request for police reports must be denied in that the information is expressly exempt from disclosure under Government Code section 6254(f) as information compiled as part of a criminal investigation and contained in an investigatory record maintained by a law enforcement agency. See, Rivero v. Superior Court (1997) 54 Cal.App.4th 1048; New

The response did however provide a high-level overview of what occurred as documented by officers and ended with the statement, “During the incident officers also investigated a possible battery.”

This was the battery complaint filed by Smith against retired judge Bailey. An interview with Riverside PD Public Information Officer Ryan Railsback confirmed, “The criminal side of the case was closed-out due to unfounded allegations of assault by retired judge Bailey,” Railsback’s claimed, “[T]he body camera refuted the complaint.”

Although the Riverside PD closed their investigation into Smith’s complaint. Smith was never interviewed by investigators, never had an opportunity to review audio/video recordings of the event, and when he requested copies of this case when she filed a complaint against Riverside Police Sergeant Collins who was called to the scene at the request of retired Los Angeles Sheriff Deputy Alicia Williams—a guest at the party—who grew concerned over the police officers’ actions that day.

In the complaint Shelton-Love said she was threatened with retaliation by Collins if Smith continued to insist on filing battery charges against the retired judge.

During an exclusive interview Shelton-Love, herself a retired sergeant with the Los Angeles County Sheriff Department, provided further information regarding her allegations against Collins and other officers on the scene that day.

“Everything that Carlos (Smith) said, I didn’t see any of that, I did not witness any of that,” she began. Shelton-Love explained she had left the residence for a short period that day to take her daughter to another event so was not home when the interaction between Smith and Bailey occurred.

saying. They showed me parts of the video that would put Riverside [PD] in a good light.”

When discussing her own complaint Shelton-Love said, “I was threatened with further action by Sargent Collins if Carlos was to pursue any actions toward the judge...any prosecution...or anything like that.” On the day of the event she said, “I didn’t even get to discuss that with Carlos before the sergeant said, ‘Ok, call Carlos over. Let me see what he has to say.’”

She continued, “They called Carlos over and he was insistent that he wanted to move forward with an assault charge. Therefore, they went on with the report and I was served with a cease and desist order regarding any party I may have at my home. I felt it was unfair. My niece wants to get married here in May 2020 and I’m almost reluctant to let her have her wedding here.”

Recalling a small segment of body camera footage, the officers did allow her to review, Shelton-Love shared, “Because I had launched my own complaint [against Collins] they played documents related to the case, after first being stalled in his request, when he finally did receive the documents it did not include a witness statement from Bailey even though there were statements from the other neighbors interviews by officers that day and Bailey played a key role interacting with officers.

Railsback further confirmed although the battery complaint was closed, there was still an ongoing internal investigation into actions by officers on the scene that day based on concerns raised by Shelton-Love.

The department’s response to the public records request also noted that “One suspect, (homeowner Debbie Shelton-Love) was referred to the Riverside City Attorney’s Office for further review for violating city noise ordinances.”

“[The] Issue was referred to the city attorney’s office city attorney’s office,” Railsback also confirmed as he acknowledged, “The city attorney had sent a knock-it-off letter to the complainant regarding the noise violation.”

Shelton-Love became a complainant in

“The only thing I witnessed,” she added, “was that Officer Hill (one of the other Riverside PD officers on the scene) told me when he was giving citations that they wouldn’t be out there giving citations if this [retired] judge Bailey hadn’t threatened to call the chief of police and hadn’t said he was the father of the mayor.’ That’s what Officer Hill told me directly.” Also, according to Shelton-Love Smith, the judge purportedly claimed he and his son run the City of Riverside.

Shelton-Love was later summoned to the police station and provided an opportunity to view some of the body cam footage in relation to her complaint against officer Collins and the scenario involving Smith and Bailey. She told the officers she did not witness the Bailey interaction.

According to Shelton-Love, “They refused to show all ten hours of video (a collection of footage from all officers on the scene) because they said they did not have time to do that. It seemed like they only wanted to show me anything that would disprove what Carlos was it [that section of the video] for me.” During her interaction with Collins the video portion of the interaction where she alleges Collins threatened her with retaliation, “For some reason is muted and you can’t hear him talking . . . you can’t hear him say anything to me and I know what he said.”

Shelton-Love continued, “I saw the expressions on their [the officers in the room] faces like. ‘oh shoot, maybe something was manipulated.’”

She believes about eight to ten officers on the scene that day. “They told me there was bout ten hours of video, but they only showed me about 40 minutes.

She went on to explain how during a wedding at her home a week earlier the police came out and although people were parked in the same places—no parking citations were issued. On June 29 however, “The judge was insistent on them issuing tickets to everyone. Officer Hill said the judge told them [the officers] to cite

Adelanto by Calif

S.E. Williams
Contributor

On the heels of his August 2018 report on the Adelanto Detention Center in Adelanto, Calif., Sen. Tom Takano (D-Calif.) sent a letter to the U.S. Customs Enforcement and Border Protection (CBP) in Albany, N.Y.

Takano's letter raised concerns about the procedures he observed at the center and requested CBP to provide responses to a series of questions about the center's operations.

The Adelanto Detention Facility is a 1,000-bed facility operated by the controversial GEO Group. It is an ICE site during a scheduled visit to inspect the conditions for detainees at the facility.

Takano's observations are indicative of what has been noted at other similar facilities across the country.

During his visit Takano saw several behaviors that require ICE's attention, including (1) unsanitary conditions, (2) failure to adhere to any medical protocols, (3) quarantine of numerous detainees, (4) detention of these individuals in overcrowded spaces, (5) detainees to miss scheduled court hearings, and other mandatory requirements of the detainees' length of stay.

According to the congressional report, Takano heard from several detainees about the unfolding there. Among those concerns was that an inadequate level of justice was being provided to the entire custodial staff residing at the center that houses almost 900 detainees.

According to Takano detainees, the facility consistently failed to maintain proper hygiene. There were cited instances of mold in the living spaces that Takano noted he was told were painted over the mold rather than removed.

Adelanto Detention Center Visit Sparks Inquiry California Congressman

On Oct. 30, 2019, Rep. Mark Takano visited the Adelanto Detention Center in San Bernardino, Rep. Mark Takano (D-Calif.) sent a letter to Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) Acting Director Matthew Albence.

Rep. Takano expressed concerns about conditions and overcrowding at the facility and called on Albence to address the issues of probing questions about the facility.

The facility is privately-owned and operated by GEO Group. Takano visited the facility with senior officials to verify conditions and better understand how the facility operates.

Rep. Takano detailed in his letter, were shared with others who have visited the facility.

Rep. Takano said he observed two troubling issues that require immediate attention. They include overcrowding and an apparent failure to follow protocols apparently led to the illness of detainees; and (2) the undue burden on detainees have allegedly caused certain court appearances, bond hearings and other engagements to the detriment of detainees at the facility.

Rep. Takano said while at Adelanto he learned about an alleged health crisis at the facility. The complaints were allegations that seven janitorial staff comprise the majority responsible for maintaining the facility for detainees.

Rep. Takano said detainees were concerned the staff were unable to clean properly. As a result, detainees were forming in communal shower areas, “personally able to witness.” Rep. Takano said a case of haphazardly looking at the facility staff had simply failed to take steps to mitigate any growth.

In addition, according to Takano, the facility appeared understaffed in other areas as well. “The Adelanto operators have created a volunteer program through which detainees can help perform facility management tasks.”

This approach is not too dissimilar from the tactics of using inmates as workers in prisons across the country—always for exploitative wages. It appears GEO pockets the exorbitant compensation it receives from the federal government at the expense of taxpayers to operate the facility and rather than hiring the adequate staff has opted to pay detainees about a dollar a day to assist with tasks like cooking, cleaning and other facility maintenance. According to ICE’s FY 2018 budget, taxpayers are billed an average $133.99 a day to maintain one adult in immigration detention; however, immigration groups claim the number is closer to $200 a day. At these rates GEO can afford to hire adequate staff.

However, as described by Takano not even the volunteer program is adequately supported by the facility operators. For example, “[W]hen detainees asked for proper cleaning supplies to disinfect the restrooms, they were provided extra shampoo rather than actual cleaning products. Not only do I find it particularly egregious that the facility operators are turning to detainees to perform work for which they were contracted by ICE to perform—the volunteers are not even being provided the adequate support to carry out those volunteer duties.”

Takano was clear in his assessment regarding how these unsanitary conditions coupled with inadequate resources are perpetuating a cycle of illness within Adelanto. For those who have contracted illnesses within the facility, a separate room was designated to house those respective detainees. This room was described as the quarantine section, mandating detainees who had succumbed to illness to be held for a period of 21 days total per cycle.

“During my visit,” Takano explained, “I was able to enter the quarantine section without any precautions and was not informed until after my departure from the room that the area was in fact quarantined for the purposes of containing an outbreak of mumps. No visible signs had indicated these individuals were under quarantine. No gloves or masks were provided to staff or detainees, and no procedures were followed even during my personal visit with these individuals in quarantine.”

According to Takano, the quarantine minimum hold policy poses challenges of its own. While individuals are forced into quarantine, detainees are obliged to reschedule appointments with their lawyers or miss court appearances and bond hearings altogether. Should an individual develop new symptoms or not improve within the 21-day period while under quarantine, they are subjected to another cycle of containment for 21 days.

“While it is imperative to ensure diseases do not spread,” Takano declared, “it should be equally important to ensure that qualified medical staff are treating detainees to better their conditions and ease ailments. Furthermore, deliberate steps should be taken to ensuring that inmates who are forced to miss mandatory hearings have the soonest available opportunity to meet those obligations at another time.”

With all of this in mind, Takano has solicited responses to a series of questions from Acting ICE Director Albence. They

Use of Facial Recognition Software Temporarily Banned

Sacramento

Last week California legislators placed a temporary ban on the use of facial recognition software in police body cameras by police agencies at both the state and local levels. It does not however apply to the FBI.

Assembly Bill 1215—the Body Camera Accountability Act—is designed to limit/deter the use of this technology as critics continue to express concern over the technology’s impact on privacy and issues related to accuracy.

The legislation is now being considered by Governor Newsom who must decide whether to sign it into law—a decision must be made by October 13. If signed into law the measure becomes effective January 1, 2020—the measure would expire in three years.

The ACLU supports the bill which forbids police from using biometric surveillance technology, including facial-recognition software, in police body cameras. And, the restriction does not end there. It further prohibits the police from running body-camera footage through facial-recognition software at another time.

The legislation however is not all encompassing as officers can still use the technology in other ways like on stationary cameras from example.

water to nearly 17 million citizens across parts of Los Angeles, Orange, San Diego, Riverside, San Bernardino and Ventura counties. The agency is responsible for reselling imported water from the Colorado River and Northern California. Water imported from these sources comprises about 60 percent of Southern California’s water supply.

During an era of changing climate including cycles of drought and/or erratic storm bursts, capturing stormwater is considered a viable option to recharging aquifers, etc. Yet, capturing storm water is not without concerns that include the need to filter out nitrogen, phosphorus and at times even heavy metals and other pollutants that are often carried along with the runoff of rainwater.

Facial recognition technology identifies people from live or recorded video or still photos and compares their facial features with those in a database of faces—police mugshots account for many of the images in the database.

Admittedly, the technology offers numerous crime-fighting benefits, but it also harbors the potential for bias and misuse as research has shown the technology is not as accurate regarding the identification of women and people of color.

Currently, there are no federal regulations establishing guardrails for the use of artificial intelligence including facial recognition.

PBIS is a schoolwide discipline system for creating positive school environments through the use of proactive strategies that define, teach and reinforce appropriate behaviors. PBIS is based on the principles of applied behavior analysis and is a proactive approach to establishing supports that improve the social culture needed for all students in a school to achieve social, emotional and academic success while also challenging behavior less effective, efficient and relevant.

PBIS is also defined as the only approach addressing behavior that was mentioned in the 1997 reauthorization of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act. It has a three-tiered system of support designed to improve the daily school lifestyle of everyone on campus.

Tier 1 consists of universal supports that are taught and reinforced with the whole student population; Tier 2 supports are designed for students that need further explanation and reinforcement of desired behaviors; and Tier 3 supports are provided at an individual level for students that need tailored instruction and reinforcement to meet their personal learning needs.

Talk with Your Kids

Many people think vaping is less harmful than smoking. While it’s true that e-cigarette aerosol or vapor doesn’t include all the contaminants in tobacco smoke, vaping still isn’t safe.

You can influence your children’s decision about whether to use e-cigarettes. Even if you have used tobacco yourself, your children will listen if you discuss your struggles with nicotine addiction. Be clear that you don’t approve of them smoking or using e-cigarettes, and that you expect them to live tobacco-free.

Use CDC’s Parent Tip Sheet <https://e-cigarettes.surgeongeneral.gov> to help you talk with your children. This tip sheet offers facts and practical ways to start conversations with young people about the risks of e-cigarette use.

wait for his next overt violation of human rights as he appears poised to round up and potentially lock up the homeless.

America is filled with an over-abundance of brilliant minds so it becomes more confounding that those we sent to Washington to act in the best interest of their constituents cannot determine a way to curtail the civil abuses of a madman.

Trump’s attitude toward the homeless in this nation reminds me of a quote from Daniel Quinn’s “Beyond Civilization: Humanity’s Next Great Adventure” which reads in part, “A castaway in the sea was going down for the third time when he caught sight of a passing ship. Gathering his last strength, he waved frantically and called for help. Someone on board peered at him scornfully and shouted back, “Get a boat!”

Of course, this is just my opinion. I’m keeping it real.

- Are there preventive steps in place to make sure an individual under quarantine does not miss a court-ordered hearing?
- How many quarantined individuals in the Adelanto facility have missed their court mandated appointments and hearings?

Takano’s questions did not end there. Probing further he asked, “How many detainees have been prevented from meeting with their legal counsel? Are there any separate or additional protocols ICE staff must follow when dealing with detainees with disabilities? Does ICE policy dictate a certain ratio or number of medical staff be present to care for large groups of detainees? And, finally, what additional procedures can be adopted to ensure ICE will be able to prevent and mitigate the spread of diseases within detention facilities?”

In conclusion Takano declared, “While I understand that this facility is owned and operated by the GEO Group, it is imperative that the facility—at a minimum—adhere to ICE’s Performance-Based National Detention Standards in order to maintain a culture of safety and suitability for detainees.”

The Adelanto Detention Center is the largest immigrant detention facility in the State of California. According to Takano, “It is crucial that its operators adhere to strict standards while operating the facility and ICE has an inherent oversight responsibility to ensure that detainees are being treated with dignity and respect under the law.”

them. He gave them the penal code section to use to cite them.”

“The thing that riled me,” Shelton-Love continued, “was the simple fact that they seem to listen more to the [other] homeowners than to talk to me. There were statements like I was running a brothel here... that I was renting out rooms by the hour. I feel like they were influenced by what these people who have never spoken to me, who have never been to my home.”

The police report shows one neighbor—last name Amicone—told police, “[T]he residence was listed on Air B&B in 2018 as Love Manor and rented by rooms by the hour for sexual use until being shut down by the police department. Amicone felt the residence attracted a negative atmosphere and created ongoing community livability problems.” Shelton-Love adamantly disputes these allegations. Although the property is listed on the internet as an AirBNB—it is an old listing from previous owner(s)—the listing does not belong to Shelton-Love.

Shelton-Love said she was not at home when the officer first arrived, and they never got permission from her to enter the property. “They hadn’t met me. They were going by what this judge and his friends were saying.”

According to Shelton-Love the officers also took gratuities. We are not supposed to do that.” One of the guests at the event had t-shirts on display and when the officers entered the property while Shelton-Love was dropping off her daughter when she returned the guest advised her, “I gave them a bunch of t-shirts and shooed them away.”

“We are not supposed to take anything as gratuities. This is not supposed to happen. I raised this during the interview,” Shelton-Love confirmed. “They say they are looking into it as part of the ongoing internal investigation.”

Shelton-Love expressed her frustration with Riverside PD’s closing the claim against Bailey without interviewing Smith and with no one having an opportunity to see all ten video hours of the incident. “I was called in because I filed a complaint against Sergeant Collins.”
