Budget Update

Referring to the current budget situation as "one of the most serious challenges we've ever faced," President Anthony Evans called a special meeting of key administrators on Tuesday, March 19, to report on the status of the 1991-92 budget.

The President reported that while the economy is expected to turn upward in mid- to late-summer, the State Department of Finance expects the state deficit to grow much deeper. Conservative estimates range from $7 to $9.9 billion. "We'll have to clearly look at all areas (on our campus)," said Evans. "Some services will be reduced and maybe some programs will be eliminated." Evans further indicated that "we will have to make selected reductions throughout the university" and mentioned the possibility of personnel reductions.

If this action is necessitated by a lean 1991-92 final budget figure, Evans indicated that the university will have to first explore reductions in temporary and probationary personnel. He noted, however, that he believes our campus will be "spared much of the bloodshed that's going to occur on other campuses."

This top-of-the-line gift, complete with color monitors and 40MB hard drives, recognizes Cal State's recent agreement with Apple to participate in their Higher Education Purchasing Program offering discount rates on Apple equipment. Jim Scanlon (Computer Center), who helped facilitate the agreement but is not pictured here, will provide personalized instruction on the "Macs."*

CSU Proposes Early Retirement Program

In light of the current budget environment, the CSU may soon announce the implementation of an early retirement program for all eligible faculty and staff members, reports Benefits Officer Marjorie Callaghan (Personnel).

"There has been a lot of discussion and considerable interest with respect to a possible 'Golden Handshake,'" says Callaghan. "As a service to our employees, the following information is being offered until a formal announcement of the program is made." She notes that the CSU's Golden Handshake program must be approved by the State Department of Finance and that a decision could possibly be reached within the next few weeks.

At this time, discussions assume that the Golden Handshake program will be offered to all eligible employees. The proposed window period will be July 1 through Sept. 30, 1991. The advantage to employees who choose to participate in this early retirement program is an additional two years of service credit in the calculation of retirement benefits. All employees who are eligible for retirement under either PERS or STRS will receive the extra service credit if the effective dates of both their separation and their retirement transactions fall between July 1 and Sept. 30, 1991.

The California Faculty Association tentatively has agreed that faculty members who participate in the Golden Handshake will be precluded from participating in the Faculty Early Retirement Program. The CSU previously implemented an Early Retirement Incentive Program (Golden Handshake) in 1980, 1983 and 1988. The most recent, however, was limited to employees in the faculty bargaining unit.

As soon as more information is available, it will be released. In the meantime, if you have any questions, please contact Callaghan in the Personnel Office, Room 151 of the Student Services Building, or call Ext. 5138.

Local Authors Present Science Trivia

Strange, true stories of nature's oddities, bizarre phenomena and scientific curiosities will come to life on Thursday, April 11, as local authors Philip and Nancy Seff offer anecdotes during a panel presentation based on their popular book and syndicated newspaper column titled "Our Fascinating Earth." This free event will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the Recital Hall of the Creative Arts Building.

Joining the Seffs as panel participants will be KVCR-TV's Chuck Palmer, co-host of "Dialogues," and Dr. William Aguilar (Library). Both the book and newspaper columns present scientific phenomena from anthropology to zoology and feature tales of curious cultural oddities plus historical anecdotes about people and natural phenomena.

"It's a fun book that's easy to visit and revisit," notes Johnnie Ann Ralph (Library). Originally published in 1990 by Contemporary Books, Inc. of Chicago, "Our Fascinating Earth" was named last month to the New York Public Library's 1991 "Books for the Teen Age" list, and the book is now in its fourth publication.

The Seffs' fun approach to science and subsequent newspaper column originated over 10 years ago when, as a college geology professor, Phil Seff found he was "routinely perplexed by the reluctance of many students to take laboratory science." He adds that, "I wanted to portray science as entertaining and this being an era of science and trivia, I was, without knowing it, combining these ingredients into scientific trivia. I want to make people aware of the world around us. You could say we preceded Earth Day by about 10 years."

Evans added that our university's current growth is a positive asset for our campus. "The Chancellor and Trustees (made it) quite clear that they could not stifle growth at all campuses and regions, particularly smaller campuses that are serving minority and underrepresented students.

"If you're feeling bad about being in a growth situation, talk to 'steady state' campuses like Chico," Evans told the assembled group. "Everything we do—about 86.4 percent is associated with personnel—so, when you're taking heavy hits, you've got to touch personnel."

Evans made it clear, however, that no layoffs will be initiated without broad consultation throughout the university and reported that "we can't make personnel reductions without consulting with the Chancellor's Office." Vice President David DeMauro (Administration and Finance) shared insights on the possible personnel reduction process by explaining that division vice presidents would make recommendations to the president and they would be evaluated through the Personnel Office. He

Today, the Redlands husband-and-wife team continues to share responsibilities for their syndicated column which appears in over 170 dailies and weeklies nationwide. indicated that in many cases situations including seniority, specific skills, program needs and affirmative action goals will be considered before targeting any layoffs. DeMauro added that "several positions are being held open in each division" and emphasized that "we are trying to avoid layoffs, but it may come to this."

Without a final budget figure for 1991-92, planning is difficult at best. "We wish we knew exactly what our budget might be for next year," said Evans. "We could plan more concretely and respond more forthrightly to employees like you. The situation, frankly, changes daily."

The California State University, San Bernardino Friday Bulletin is published twice monthly. The next issue is scheduled for Friday, April 19. Items for publication should be submitted in writing by noon, Friday, April 12, to: Terrie Jo Snyder, editor Public Affairs Office (AD-104) Bxt. 5007 Vol. 25, No. 7

On a Personnel Note

"Don't Hesitate, Nominate" will designate the call for staff personnel to participate in the university's first annual Staff Employee Recognition Program. Beginning this academic year, Cal State implemented an awards program to recognize outstanding performance and exemplary achievements by staff personnel.

All university employees may nominate staff personnel who have demonstrated a significant contribution to the university and/or outstanding performance. The nomination period begins Monday, April 15, and continues through Wednesday, May 15. Nomination packets now are available in the Personnel Office located in Room 151 of the Student Services Building. Two employees will be selected for each of the following awards:

Outstanding Employee Award - Presented to two employees who have displayed proficiency and dedication in job performance on a consistent daily basis;

Excellence in Performance Award - Presented to two employees based on a significant contribution to their department, division or the university.

The Staff Training and Development Committee is charged with program coordination responsibilities and will evaluate all candidate qualifications for the awards. Final selections will be forwarded to President Anthony Evans for presentation at the annual Convocation ceremony next September. The committee is comprised of the following personnel: Catherine Carlson (Computer Center), Twillea Carthen (Personnel), Randy Harrell (Student Life), Dr. Craig Henderson (Student Services), Carolyn Rose (Personnel), Kathy Tremayne (Physical Plant) and Dale West (Personnel).

Additional information is available through the Personnel Office.

Career Opportunities Fair Returns to Campus

Nearly 70 Southern California employers representing businesses in both the public and private sector will be on campus Wednesday, April 17, from 10 a.m.-3 p.m. in the university gymnasium for Cal State's 13th annual Career Opportunities Fair sponsored by the Career Development Center.

Although no interviews are conducted at this free event, job seekers are encouraged to bring several copies of their resumes because many participating companies will provide employment applications.

Paul Esposito (Career Development Center) describes the fair as "an excellent opportunity to network with potential employers" and notes that a real effort is made to attract a wide range of organizations so that attendees can obtain an extensive variety of information on today's job market. He adds, "In the future, networking will become even more important in the job search."

This year's event will include four free workshops offered according to the following schedule: 11 a.m., "Networking," by Patricia Rodgers-Gordon (Career Development Center); 11:30 a.m., "Job Search Strategies," by Esposito; noon, "Affirmative Action, Yesterday and Today," by Smiley Paredes, affirmative action manager for TRW; and 1 p.m., "Career Choice," by Lynn Moss (Career Development Center). More information on the fair is available by calling Ext. 5250.

column, Phil continues to work as a consulting geologist in both California and Arizona. He holds a Ph.D. in geology from the University of Arizona, where Nancy earned her master's degree in education.

A reception and book-signing ceremony will follow the panel presentation in the patio area of the Creative Arts Building. Copies of "Our Fascinating Earth" will be available for purchase or guests may provide personal copies for autographs. Book sale proceeds will benefit the Pfau Library Associates, who are sponsoring the event in conjunction with the School of Natural Sciences. ## Registration Riddles

by Sam Romero
Public Affairs Assistant

Among the great and deep mysteries of the university is one that orbits the offices of Records and Admissions, where inhabitants occasionally wonder why more graduate students than freshmen wind up in walk-through registration.

Consider this: Graduate students generally have more dough than freshmen and so can afford to pay their registration fees on time, plus they don't have to wait for transcripts to be sent. And it isn't as if they don't know the registration process; 63 percent of all Cal State graduates were also undergraduates here. What gives? Do graduates take some kind of masochistic pleasure in long lines? Or are they just looking for love in all the wrong places?

Who can figure it? Maybe no one. But inspiring more students—graduates and undergraduates alike—to use C.A.R. (computer-assisted registration) has been the pursuit of the Admissions and Records staff ever since the technology debuted four-and-a-half years ago. Last fall, the two offices succeeded in registering 75 percent of the student population through C.A.R.

"After C.A.R. is over," said Registrar JoAnn Von Wald (Records), "everything else is technically late registration. However, a late fee isn't charged until the first day of classes. It's actually the priority drop-add line," she noted, "that takes (more) time." But "since they opened the class-checking and advising room, our process has gone much faster."

There was a time, said former Assistant Registrar Mary Hansen (Records), when walk-through was fun. This, too, seemed a mystery until she explained that walk-through used to be held in the large gymnasium, where the students, staff and advising faculty would converge.

In two days of walk-through registration last fall, university staff processed some 3,000 student forms.

There was some added camaraderie then, she recalled.

But it's not quite as much fun now, which makes Von Wald and others involved in the process all the more appreciative of the work done by faculty and staff, and of the patience shown by students who may think of walk-through registration more in terms of a crawl.

"C.A.R. is easy for the students," said Hansen, "but it's very labor intensive for us." Staffs are only finishing up registration paperwork from the previous quarter, she explained, when it's time to mail C.A.R. packets for the next.

In the fall of 1992, many of the mysteries surrounding C.A.R. will turn to irony. Just about the time all the wrinkles are ironed out of the system, the university will implement touchtone registration, and, assuming students push the right buttons, the only lines they'll have to concern themselves with will be the phone company's.

Multimedia Presentations Commemorate Silver Anniversary

Cal State's Silver Anniversary celebration continues with three special showings of a 10-minute multimedia presentation created for last fall's Silver Anniversary Gala, reports Dr. Judith Rymer (University Relations). Join your colleagues for a visual trip down memory lane with this special presentation depicting the key events and individuals who have helped mold our university's 25-year history.

Based on a number of employee inquiries, the shows have been scheduled during the following times in an attempt to accommodate varying work schedules so that interested individuals may attend outside of their normal work hours:

Date	Time
Monday, April 22	4:30 p.m.
Wednesday, April 24	7:15 a.m.
Wednesday, April 24	3:30 p.m.

All shows will be held in the Sycamore Room of the Lower Commons and will include a continental breakfast or other light refreshments, the 10-minute presentation and an opportunity to visit informally with President Evans and the division vice presidents.
