Disability Awareness Month

May is Disability Awareness Month at Cal State and several activities have been planned by the university’s Services to Students With Disabilities Office and the UNI PHI Club to recognize physical disadvantages, among other issues.

Helping the campus community focus on abilities rather than disabilities and making the campus aware of what the office of Services to Students With Disabilities offers are key objectives of the events, says Learning Disabled Assistant Pam Jackson (Services to Students With Disabilities). The activities will further break down barriers set up by the misconception that disabled people cannot function in the workforce, she adds. “But they can,” Jackson says. “That’s the purpose of the Simulation Fest.”

This activity will open the series of events on Wednesday, May 8, from 10:30 a.m.-1:30 p.m., beginning in the Oak Room of the Lower Commons. For an hour-and-a-half, interested faculty and staff will have a chance to simulate a disability, going through various exercises before returning to the Oak Room for a “Roundtable Lunch.” There, they will share their experiences.

A wheelchair basketball game will be played on Friday, May 10, from 5-7 p.m. in the gymnasium. The contest will pit a local wheelchair basketball team, the Rolling Bears, against a university team.

Larry Echols, who put together the Rolling Bears basketball team, will be one of three guest speakers at a brown-bag lunch on Wednesday, May 15. The lunch will be held from 11 a.m.-1 p.m. in the Panorama Room of the Lower Commons. Echols is the director of prosthetics at Jerry L. Pettis Veterans Administration Hospital. Also speaking are Toni Noel, a social worker at the hospital, and Bob Miller, director of programs for San Bernardino Easter Seals. Riverside Active Mobility, a retailer, will be displaying mobility merchandise throughout the lunch.

Artwork by disabled students, arts and crafts vendors, bands and music interpreters will be featured at the “Arts and Music Festival” being held on the library lawn on Wednesday, May 22. The event will run from 9:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m. A fashion show, “‘Awareness’ of Extravagant Fashions,” will be held the same day from noon-2 p.m. in the Recital Hall. University participants will model campus casual wear, active

Professors Honored at Annual Chamber Breakfast

Two Cal State faculty members will be honored as outstanding faculty by the San Bernardino Area Chamber of Commerce at the annual College Honors Breakfast on Friday, May 10.

Dr. Loralee MacPike (English), who earned the campus’ 1991 Outstanding Professor award in a CSU competition, has been with Cal State since 1978. MacPike earned her bachelor’s degree from Bryn Mawr College, her master’s from Cal State, Hayward and her doctorate from UCLA. “This is the most important award I have ever received for two reasons,” says MacPike. “The first is that I was nominated by students, which is very exciting, and secondly, my faculty colleagues said, ‘Yes, we agree with this choice.’

“I think it is very nice of the San Bernardino Chamber of Commerce to honor our faculty.”

Trustee Visits Campus

During her first visit to our campus, Trustee Gloria S. Hom, second from right, receives a tour of the new Classroom/Student Services/Faculty Office Building from William Shum, far right, (Physical Planning & Development). They were joined by Terrie Jo Snyder (Public Affairs) and Acting Vice President David DeMauro (Administration & Finance). During her April 19 visit, Trustee Hom had the chance to meet with several administrators, faculty representatives and student leaders.

Native American Students Association Launched

The cultural and social heritage of American Indians, Pacific Islanders and Native Peoples of the Americas are among the bonds that have created the campus’s newest group, the Native American Students Association (NASA).

The diverse group, currently numbering about 150 on campus, will benefit from having a new support network, notes adviser Dr. Rodney Simard (English), who is a Cherokee. "Three of my students, all in different classes, came to me with the idea for the group, so it really was a student impulse," he remarks.

Forming the group's steering committee, the initiators are Sharon Gray, a Blackfoot; Lualene Tapahe, a Navajo; and Carlos Bolanos, a native of Nicaragua.

Among the group's first agenda items are the desire to get in touch with the more than 900 Native American students who have attended CSUSB and to hold organizational meetings "along tribal lines rather than hierarchical," Simard says. Future plans may include events centered around a Native American Awareness Week and cultural gatherings, such as a special showing of the Academy Award-winning movie "Dances with Wolves."

NASA will benefit greatly from the depth of Simard's involvement and interest in Native American issues. In addition to teaching several courses in Native American studies, he is part of the six-member CSU American Indian Advisory Council, and he chairs the CSU's division of Native American curriculum and preservation of culture. Simard sits on a planning committee for a prospective CSU conference on Native Americans. He also has been part of Cal State's grant-writing teams that have assisted Sherman Indian High School in Riverside with its projects. More information is available from him at Ext. 5844.

Scholarship Presentation

From 11:30 a.m.-1:30 p.m., the "Grand Finale Barbecue" will be held in the Lower Commons Plaza. Tickets for the barbecue will be $2.50, and all proceeds will benefit a scholarship fund for disabled students.

More than 20 members of the campus community are now signed up to participate as volunteers during Disability Awareness Month. Others interested in volunteering may call Jackson or Dwight Lusk (UNI PHI Club) at Ext. 5238.

wear, business wear and "after 5" wear.

On Wednesday, May 29, a faculty and staff workshop, a special guest speaker and a barbecue will close out the month of activities.

Beginning at 9 a.m., faculty and staff will meet in the Panorama Room for a workshop titled, "More Alike Than Different." A talk by George Greco, varsity basketball coach for Hesperia High School, will follow the workshop at 11:30 a.m., also in the Panorama Room.

Commerce to do this... I think it says that education is important, that good educators are important."

Political Science Department Chair, Dr. Edward Erler, also will be honored by the chamber. Erler, who has been with the university since 1975, served as director of the Office of the Bicentennial of the Constitution, National Endowment for the Humanities, Washington D.C., from 1983-1984.

"Although I do not normally go looking for honors such as this one, the fact that students nominated me makes this award special," says Erler. He received his bachelor's degree from San Jose State University and his master's and doctorate from Claremont Graduate School.

The awards breakfast honors outstanding faculty from San Bernardino Valley College, University of Redlands, Crafton Hills College and Cal State. Also to be honored is the outstanding Chamber businessperson in higher education. Additional information on the breakfast is available by calling the Chamber at (714) 885-7515.
Open Enrollment...

Open enrollment continues through the end of May. During this period, eligible individuals may enroll, change plans or add eligible family members not currently enrolled without regard to pre-existing medical conditions. The open enrollment period will not be available again until the fall of 1992, so employees wishing to change plans or add members are encouraged to visit the Personnel Office during the month of May to sign new HBD-12 documents.

Health Premium Rates...

New health premium rates begin with the July, 1991 pay period with an effective date of Aug. 1, 1991. The new rates are as follows:

Call for Commencement Volunteers

Staff, would you like to see the culmination of all your hard work for the year and see joy in the eyes of 15,000 students and guests on our campus all at one time? Then come help at Cal State's 25th Commencement ceremony on Saturday, June 15. As you may know, staff in the Schools of Education, Business & Public Administration, Humanities, Natural Sciences and Social & Behavioral Sciences assist every year at the receptions for their students. Many other departments, including plant operations, are involved as well.

Additional volunteers are being recruited this year. At least 65 individuals are needed to staff information booths, help with parking, work the registration tables, serve as ushers, assist faculty and guests in the gym and direct the estimated 15,000 students and guests from the parking areas to the ceremony and five school receptions.

Staff volunteers may be awarded compensatory time off (CTO) from their respective departments for helping from approximately 3-8 p.m. Some volunteers will be needed fewer than these five hours. Interested individuals should check with their immediate supervisor and then register with Mary Colacurcio (Alumni Affairs) at Ext. 5008.

Three 30-minute commencement training sessions will be held in Panorama Room A according to the following schedule: 10-10:30 a.m., Monday, June 3 and Tuesday, June 4; and 2-2:30 p.m., Wednesday, June 5. All volunteers will be required to attend one of these sessions.
Employee Receives Promotion

A recent promotion to supervising public safety officer means varied duties for Nigel Smithers (Public Safety). As supervisor of the swing shift schedule, Smithers wears many hats.

“I supervise uniformed police officers, and I’m responsible for training and professional development activities,” explains Smithers, who joined the university in March, 1990 and rose to the rank of police sergeant in record time.

“Our job is to protect and preserve the academic environment, and we attempt to protect the university from outside elements,” says Smithers, who notes that crime prevention is an important duty for all members of the public safety staff. “We look to the campus community to assist us with crime prevention.”

For Smithers, the rewards of law enforcement lie in the opportunity to serve the public and the opportunity to do a hard job in a professional manner.” He says he enjoys the campus setting since it provides him the chance “to work in an environment where law enforcement can be more service oriented as opposed to punitive and reactive.”

Prior to joining Cal State, Smithers served in the U.S. Army Military Police Corps for 11-and-one-half years. This background includes a number of public safety positions, including patrol supervisor, criminal investigator and most recently, military police station commander. After leaving the military, he spent two years in the private sector supervising criminal investigations for a major security consulting firm where he directed investigations into substance abuse and employee misconduct for Fortune 500 companies.

In August 1990, Smithers graduated from the San Bernardino Sheriff’s Officer Academy and currently is pursuing a degree in criminal justice at Cal State. He is a member of the American Society for Industrial Security.

When he’s off duty, Smithers, who resides in Moreno Valley, admits he’s an “avid baseball fan.” And when questioned about his favorite team, Smithers smiles and says, “You cut me, I bleed Dodger blue.”

ASI Election Winners

by Jeff Angelo,
public affairs intern

Junior Michele Miller was resoundingly elected as Cal State’s new ASI president during student elections held April 15-17. “One of my main goals is to improve students’ services, such as health services...to see that along with increased fees comes increased benefits,” she says.

Miller, a liberal studies major with a concentration in public administration, will be working with junior accounting major David Timms, who was elected vice president with 62 percent of the student vote.

ASI treasurer for the 1991-92 school year will be junior Sheri Major, a business administration major. Major ran unopposed. All six candidates for board of directors’ positions ran unopposed as well. The new board members and the constituencies they represent are: Kofi Tawiah, School of Business and Public Administration; Deena White, School of Social and Behavioral Science; Richard Chen, School of Natural Sciences; Debra Hinshaw, School of Humanities; Helga Rothaupt, Coachella Valley Center; and Marcel Poma, board-member-at-large.

Candidates for the Review Board—ASI’s judicial branch—were all reappointed by wide margins. Review board members are Scott Anderson, Joseph Kirschbaum and John Fierro.

Search Underway for Permanent V.P. of Administration, Finance

Candidates for the position of vice president for administration and finance will be invited to interview on campus within the next two weeks, reports search committee chair, Dr. Dennis Hefner (Academic Affairs). A list of suggested candidates is being forwarded to President Evans this week, he adds. There were 114 applicants for the post, which currently is being held by David DeMauro on an interim basis.

In addition to Hefner, the 13-member selection committee is comprised of Dr. Milton Clark (English), Beverly Dyer (Foundation), Dr. Joseph English (Secondary/Vocational Education), Ed Harrison (Public Safety), Dr. Barry Knight (Accounting and Finance), Jan Lemmond (Purchasing), Lydia Ortega (Admissions), Fred Roybal (Building Maintenance), Monica Salember (Grounds Maintenance), Don Sapronetti (Accounting), David Suenram (Athletics) and David Timms (Associated Students). Hefner expects an appointment to be made by mid-June.
Tito’s Tips for Catering Success

Spring banquets are abounding, important lunches are looming and you’ve been assigned to organize that special office or department event. If you’ve never had to arrange catering for a special reception or ceremony, the prospect can seem a little overwhelming, considering the many details on your “to do” list. But don’t panic. Help is only a phone call away.

Cal State’s catering manager Hector “Tito” Calderon (Foundation) is available to provide personalized service based on type and time of event, audience mix, special dietary needs and budget. He can offer menu selections, suggest serving styles and share seasoned catering advice.

Here are a few tips from Tito:

* Make sure you have a guaranteed room location for your event. All room reservations can be made by calling Events Scheduling at Ext. 5236.

* Know the audience for your event and begin planning menus with Calderon a minimum of two weeks in advance. He may be reached at Ext. 5916. The type, length and location of the event will influence menu selections and serving styles.

* In organizing your event, build enough lead time into your schedule to provide food services with a guaranteed number of guests 48 hours prior to the event. Clients will be billed based on a guaranteed number; service will be provided for five percent over this figure. The final cost is based on the guaranteed number or number actually served, whichever is greater.

* Don’t shy away from being too specific when selecting menus or in seeking menu suggestions. The more details, the better your chances for success. Always provide a contact name and extension number.

* Be sensitive to new dieting trends. Many campus functions are moving to a lighter cuisine with heightened awareness of low-fat cooking, lower cholesterol and smaller portions. Vegetarian meals and special dietary requests can be accommodated.

* Make sure to communicate any last-minute changes or requests with the university food service and place a follow-up call to Calderon two days before an event to verify details and avoid errors and embarrassments.

Calderon says that selecting your cuisine can be a fun and unusual assignment. “We are willing to work with all budgets and can accommodate various group sizes from three to 500.” After your event, feel free to provide Tito with any feedback you’d like to share. He maintains a client file and can note special details helpful in planning your next event.

So, keep your catering cool and let Tito help you make your next event your best event.

New Faces on Campus

by Sam Romero, public affairs assistant

It was at the age of 14 that the new manager of the Student Union Pub, Mike Nery (Foundation), was first introduced to the food business. That’s when he worked as a truck loader and caterer.

Cal State is the fourth university Nery has been on staff with since entering the food service industry some 25 years ago. He has been manager of Cash Operations at Cal Poly Pomona. He also has managed the Town and Country Banquet Hall and the Commons Cafeteria, Deli and Sidewalk at USC, and the V.I.P. Room at the University of Dayton.

Because the Cal State campus is growing, Nery says he feels that “There is a need to upgrade all the services.” Since arriving in late February, he has introduced prewrapped salads, the Pub’s own potato salad, a once-through, all-you-can-eat breakfast buffet and a self-serve soft drink tap.

College and university food services never compete with each other for business. So, admits Nery, “It’s not beneath any of us to steal an idea or give one away.”

For Nery, being in food service is essentially a labor of love. “I like working with the students a lot,” he says. “I enjoy what I’m doing. It’s like additional money in my pocket to enjoy what I’m doing. I’m not making as much money as a rocket scientist, but I wouldn’t enjoy being a rocket scientist.” He also enjoys watching baseball, football, hockey and basketball, or reading a book a week, mostly mysteries.

Creating a more lively atmosphere around the Pub is one of Nery’s key goals. Many of the students, he says, play in music groups and right now, he is exploring the possibility of tapping into those abilities with a talent show.

Whether it’s fun or food, Nery says he is open to suggestions from the campus community. “I’m not tied to any one item,” he says in talking about what foods appear on the Pub menu. “I like to talk to as many people as I can. I like to talk to people who come in here and find out why they patronize the Pub, and, and even more importantly, I like to talk to people who don’t come in here and find out why not.”

Only five days after Carolyn Rose (Personnel) took up her duties as the new assistant director of personnel, her boss, Dale West (Personnel), went on vacation. (No, she (continued on page 6) wasn't the cause). Rose calls it the "sink-or-swim training method," and in seeking to keep her head above the waters of change, one of her first projects is to automate the office. That means computer equipment.

In her first few days here, she was working on the job classification system, putting together a new employee training session calendar for the upcoming fall and winter quarters, and working on the employee recognition program. Other than that, she doesn't quite know what challenges to expect because it's still too early to tell, she says.

With six years of experience in the personnel field, Rose came to Cal State after working for almost three years as a management analyst for the City of Fresno Personnel Department.

Not many assistant directorships in her field are offered, says Rose. "I think the level (of the position here) was a major attraction, and you have to take these opportunities when you can get them."

A Fresno native, Rose earned her bachelor of science degree in business administration from Cal State University, Fresno. She has been in Southern California only a month-and-a-half and is "just settling in and trying to get to know the area." Now living in Loma Linda, she wants "to do a lot of exploring."

Rose sings. The number of weddings she has done now stands at 45. She also is a fitness enthusiast, likes to ride bikes, loves baseball and roots for the Giants, not the Dodgers.

COMMUNITY SERVICE

Dr. Gene L. Andrusco (Accounting & Finance) addressed "Financial Analysis" at the April 22 meeting of the Crestline Chamber of Commerce.

Denise Benton (Upward Bound) presented "The Recruitment Process for Upward Bound" to over 100 counselors and teachers at San Gorgonio High School's Inservice Day on April 22.

Dr. Robert Blackey (History) gave two presentations on April 19 to Hemet High School's European and U.S. history advanced placement classes on "Essay Test - Taking Skills."

Dr. James A. Bush (Social Work) conducted two two-hour workshops for the Adolescent Medicine Department of Children's Hospital in Los Angeles on April 11 and 15. Both presentations were titled "Mentoring Ethnic Minority Adolescents."

Professor Emeritus, Dr. Arlo D. Harris (Chemistry) presented "Breakthroughs in Chemistry, Part II" to the Dayton, Ohio Chapter of the World Future Society on March 20 at the Engineers Club in Dayton. On April 12, he presented "Unusual Aspects of Biological Chemistry" to the combined departments of Biology, Biochemistry and Chemistry at Wright State University in Dayton.

John Hatton (Counseling Center) served as the moderator for the San Bernardino School District's Challenge Bowl Academic Competition held on April 4. This was Hatton's seventh consecutive year to serve in this capacity.

Dr. David O. Porter (Business & Public Administration) is serving as one of nine judges for Ernst & Young's Entrepreneur of the Year awards.

Soncia Reagins (Student Union) presented a campus workshop on "Acquaintance Rape" on April 18 in the Lower Commons. She was assisted by Jan Simpson of the San Bernardino Rape Crisis Center and New Student Orientation Leader Katrina McDowell.
