Staff Members Recognized at Convocation

Inaugural winners of the first annual Staff Employee Recognition Program were recognized during this year's Convocation. Winners are (from left): Karen Eastman (Humanities), Karla Hallum (Education), Maria Lootens (Physical Planning & Development) and Bernie Moyeda (Custodial Services). Eastman and Moyeda received the Outstanding Employee award, while Hallum and Lootens were honored with awards denoting Excellence in Performance. "They honor us with their continued service," said President Evans in announcing the awards. "They are truly exemplary employees."

Convocation Highlights

As the university prepares to usher in a new academic year, President Evans greeted a large assembly of faculty and staff on Sept. 17 to note accomplishments of the past year, as well as to share the challenges ahead. For those employees who were unable to attend the annual convocation address, some of the highlights are summarized here.

President Evans complimented members of the campus community for a number of major achievements, including:

- * Commencement with 3,000 graduates and 17,000 guests;
- * Silver Anniversary Gala and the community support it received;

- * Coping with a difficult budget and going from a $480,000 deficit to a small surplus in June;
- * Library automation;
- * Implementation of Extended Education's Study Abroad for Yasuda Students (STAYS) program;
- * A banner year for grants: $3.2 million in awards and $16 million in applications;
- * Excellent progress toward accreditation of academic programs;
- * Health Center accreditation;
- * Increased Children's Center services;
- * New level of Student Life programs with emphasis on leadership, student government activity and improved residence hall programs;

Retiring Employees Bid Farewell

The end of September means a new beginning for many campus employees. A time to depart from the hustle and bustle of a growing university—a time to begin a new phase of their lives. The time to retire.

During their final days on campus, individuals opting for early retirement via the Golden Handshake program were asked to share their future plans. Their responses follow:

Loretta A. Campbell (Budget Office)

"I plan to devote more time to my home and travel to New Hampshire and Alaska where two of my nine children live. I'll also spend more time with my linen and silverware hobbies. I'm leaving with mixed emotions. I will miss the friends and the beautiful campus. It's (the campus setting) such an inspiration." This AOA has served the university for 23 years.

Richard Ceballos (Building Maintenance)

"It's very sad to leave," says this campus locksmith who has been employed at Cal State for 25 years. This December, Richard and his wife will enjoy a gift from their daughter—a trip to Hawaii. And, he plans to volunteer with Resurrection Academy in Redlands until his wife retires two years from now.

Walter C. Erskine (Housing Maintenance)

After 15 years with the university, this building maintenance worker shares his retirement goals. "I plan to go fishing, and I'm looking forward to a few trips to Las Vegas." Erskine adds that he will remain active with the VFW and American Legion organizations.

Richard Gilliam (Custodial Services)

"Rest and relaxation" currently top the list of retirement priorities for this lead custodian who is recuperating from a recent emergency surgery. Eventually, Richard says he'd like to do some volunteer work but doesn't have a particular charity or organization in mind. He served Cal State for 12 years.

Jorli R. Mast

(Computer Center)

"I'm going to relax for a month and maybe visit my daughter and two grandchildren in Virginia. Then I'll look for a part-time job in Hesperia, probably with a real estate development company. After my husband retires, we'll travel to Wyoming and Montana. I plan to come back and visit my campus friends." Jorli, a data control technician, has worked in the Computer Center for 17 years.

Art Nelson

(Library)

"After I rest for a few days, I'll do some library consulting in Southern California and then pursue personal hobbies," shares the bibliographer. "My life has been here, but I'm looking forward to retirement. I'm sorry to leave a large number of friends and so many good people." Art has served the university since 1963.

John Preston Miller, M.D.

(Health Center)

"My wife and I travel quite a bit, but we've never been to the Panama Canal," says Miller, who has directed the university's Health Center for the past eight years. "We're also big baseball fans and next year we'll attend the College Baseball World Series in Omaha, NB."

Lynn T. Moss

(Career Development Center)

"A lot more sailing" with husband, Dr. Richard Moss (Economics), is among retirement plans for this career development counselor, who recently completed 14 years of service at the university. Lynn also plans to work in her garden, play with her two-year-old grandson and open her own part-time career counseling business.

Hal Petersen

(Building Maintenance)

This maintenance mechanic retired Aug. 2. "I miss working on campus. There were a lot of good folks to work for and with. It was the best job I ever had." Hal served Cal State for 10 years.

Stephen Prouty, Jr.

(Academic Services/Evening Office)

"Getting out of my cast and throwing these crutches away" top the list of retirement plans for Associate Dean Steve Prouty, who says that a gardening injury last March that broke his leg and fractured an ankle prompted him to opt for early retirement. "I need to get back on both feet first, and after that, as everyone says, I'll do some traveling." Yes, he'll tackle his yard again, once he's able. An employee since 1964, he has worked in Admissions, Records and Academic Services.

Robert Tinsley

(Building Maintenance)

"It's going to be an adjustment not being a part of this campus," says this 24-year employee, who works as a campus carpenter. He'll be "taking life day by day" and says he has "no real retirement plans, yet."

Jo Ann Von Wald

(Records)

"I'm looking forward to moving to Sedona, AZ, next spring where I've purchased a home. In the meantime, I plan to spend lots of time with my six grandchildren and maybe travel to Yosemite or the San Francisco Bay area," says the campus registrar. If space is available, she'd like to take a language, art or philosophy course here this fall. "This campus has been the biggest part of my life for the past 25 years. I'm excited and happy with tears in my eyes."

Reginald Williams

(Heating, Air Conditioning & Ventilation)

"I've worked for 46 years, so this (retirement) is going to be a little different for me," notes the building services engineer. "I want to play with my six grandkids, sharpen my golf game and do some fishing and backpacking in the Sierras." An 18-year CSU employee, Reginald joined our campus five years ago.

- * Receipt of a new Alliance super computer and a $1.6 million pending award from Digital Equipment Company;
 - * Improved crime prevention efforts;
 - * Student loan default rates held to about half of the state average;
 - * Highly successful Food Services conversion;
 - * Good progress in a number of major and minor construction projects, including University Hall, Foundation Building, a new campus fire alarm system and campus marquee;
 - * $1.6 million in donor contributions and the attraction of major donors.
- In addition to recognizing these accomplishments, the President shared some of the challenges ahead:
- * Declining state budget support;
 - * Reclaiming public confidence in higher education;
 - * Strengthening a university-wide approach to preparing teachers to serve a growing region;

- * Providing a university that is a role model multiculturally and can assist the region in embracing and benefitting from the ethnic diversity of the area;
- * Producing "broadly educated" students who are intellectually equipped to pursue meaningful careers;
- * Improving student retention rates;
- * Maintaining a university that can adjust to hard times and cope with fewer resources without forfeiting its mission.

The California State University, San Bernardino Friday Bulletin is published twice monthly. The next issue is scheduled for Friday, Oct. 11. Items for publication should be submitted in writing by 5 p.m., Tuesday, Oct. 1, to: Terrie Jo Snyder, editor Public Affairs Office (AD-104), Ext. 5007 Vol. 25, No. 18 (Note that submission deadlines have been changed to 5 p.m., Tuesdays. See Fall Bulletin Schedule on page 3)

On a Personnel Note

Training & Development Opportunities...

The Training and Development Workshop Schedule for the 1991/92 academic year will be distributed to staff and faculty by the end of September. Our program offers a variety of workshops designed to keep you informed, enhance your skills and promote your professional growth. Workshops will be offered on such topics as leadership, health & safety, customer service, career/skill enrichment and university policies & procedures.

In an effort to keep employees up-to-date on our offerings, we have installed a new Training Hotline. By calling Ext. 3311, you can listen to a recorded message that lists upcoming training courses and wellness workshops and notes any modifications to the original training schedule. We hope this hotline will be a convenient way for you to stay informed about the university's training activities.

We encourage you to participate in these worthwhile workshops. If you have questions regarding classes, registration procedures or the program in general, please contact the Personnel Office at Ext. 5138.

October Training Workshops...

Personal & Property Safety - Thursday, Oct. 3
Purchasing Procedures - Wednesday, Oct. 9
Ethnic & Cultural Diversity in the Workshop - Tuesday, Oct. 15
Budget Office Procedures - Tuesday, Oct. 22
Standard First Aid (CPR) - Wednesday, Oct. 30

Courses are filled on a first-come basis, so remember to sign up early.

Assistive Device Program Proposal Deadline...

The CSU systemwide Assistive Device and Equipment Program has limited funding available for equipment or device accommodations to assist disabled employees with their jobs. In order to be considered for this fiscal year, employees must submit a proposal to the Personnel Office no later than Tuesday, Oct. 8. For more information, contact Twillea Carthen (Personnel) at Ext. 5138.

Discount Tickets...

Special discount tickets for the Los Angeles County Fair remain available from the Personnel Office. The fair continues through Sunday, Sept. 29. Also, discount tickets for Knotts Berry Farm's Oct. 12 Halloween event may be obtained in the Personnel Office. For details, contact Jenny Lizarde or Mia Martinez at Ext. 5138.

Fall Bulletin Schedule

The new academic year will bring a new look for the Friday Bulletin. Beginning with the next issue, the faculty and staff newsletter will be published with a new design format geared to enhance both readability and provide more visual options for the artistic treatment of stories. Due to these changes, it is necessary to alter the submission deadlines from noon, Fridays, to 5 p.m., Tuesdays. The only exception is the Dec. 6 issue. The complete fall production schedule follows:

Submission Deadlines	Publication Dates
(Copy due at 5 p.m.)
Oct. 1	Oct. 11
Oct. 15	Oct. 25
Oct. 29	Nov. 8
Nov. 12	Nov. 22
Nov. 22	Dec. 6
Dec. 10	Dec. 20

Faculty and staff are encouraged to publicize special events, personal accomplishments and organizational activities of interest to the campus community in the Friday Bulletin. Written submissions, story ideas and black and white photos are welcome for consideration. Please submit materials to Terrie Jo Snyder (Public Affairs) in AD-104 or call Ext. 5007.

CSU-TechNet Seeks Participants

Faculty from all disciplines are encouraged to take advantage of a free opportunity to market their expertise to a variety of California businesses as participants of the CSU-TechNet database program.

California businesses will receive information about CSU faculty members' research and consulting experience. Participants' profiles will be entered into the CSU-TechNet database, and the network will be marketed to subscriber companies. Individuals wanting to participate need to complete a profile form available through the Sponsored Programs office located in TR-10C. Additional information on the CSU-TechNet program is available from Karen Mullen, director, at (619) 594-2367.

How to Find a Parking Space (and Other Psychological Adventures)

by Sam Romero, public affairs assistant

Every year around this time I begin dreaming about parking, specifically parking for me, my parking space, a parking space with a sign reading, "THIS IS SAM'S PARKING SPACE AND NO ONE ELSE'S. DON'T PARK HERE." Invariably, the dream lapses into a flying dream, and I wind up in Barstow standing in an open field where hundreds of meter attendants are gathered for their annual convention.

It's weird. My driving therapist told me the other day that the dream has everything to do with my need for "validation."
"As in parking validations," I said naively.

"No," she answered. "As in your need to be validated psychologically. What you're seeking is validation via finding people parking spaces. It relates back to when you were a little boy and would go to the store with your parents, and you would point out an open parking space to them and say cheerfully, 'Hey, there's a space!' and they would ignore you and for 20 minutes would look for something closer to the door, only to park further away than ever."

"But ... I don't ever remember that happening," I said. I scratched my head.

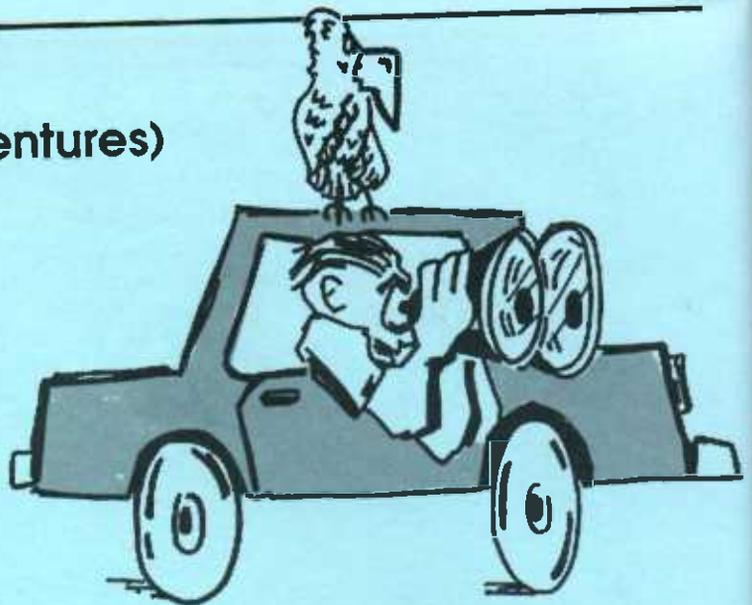

"Of course not," said the driving therapist. "You're in denial. No one ever remembers anything when they're in denial."

I leaned back in my chair, folded my hands across the back of my neck and thought about it. "Ohhh ..."

"What you could do," she suggested, "is, in some way, help your fellow drivers find parking spaces. This would be a good tool in working through the denial and would help you feel validated again."

I thought it was a good idea. So, I've decided to devote the rest of this article to jotting down observations I've made about the parking methods used by drivers. While I don't personally endorse any of the following methods—an information advancement officer must always remain impartial in such matters—I believe passing along the "info" falls within the purview of my position. (I'm feeling better already.) Plus, another good reason... let's see... yes, another good reason is that knowing this information will help heighten understanding and awareness of our diverse parking methods. Here goes.

By now you've probably noticed that finding a parking space on campus is highly tricky. Just look at the numbers. There are exactly 3,692 parking spaces and roughly a whole lot of people. At this point, I will identify four basic types of driver/parkers for your consideration.

The "creepy-crawler driver" is described as such because he/she/it slithers and creeps quietly behind people who are innocently walking out to their vehicles. The creepy crawler sometimes makes the departing driver feel like a victim in one of those driverless-car Stephen King horror films. People subjected to this experience, it has been reported, often have a compulsive need to go home and watch "The Love Bug" repeatedly.

Then there is "Mr. Inertia," a driver who is quite content to sit in one spot waiting for a space until hell freezes over or another parking lot is built. This category of driver also is known as "The Zombie" or "The Space Cadet" as some seem to go into a trance after several minutes. Fumes, perhaps.

The "mad driver" is just the opposite of Mr. Inertia. Constantly on the move, the mad driver zips up one row of parked cars and down the next, spots a space 16 rows off and does a flying leap into it without regard to life, limb or insurance coverage. These drivers should not be judged too harshly, psychologists say, because most of them lived in Los Angeles at one time, and this is all they know. I shall depart here—only slightly—from my impartial synopsis to say that this method is not recommended. (I'm really feeling good about myself.)

This brings us, finally, to the "vulture." The vulture is the most commonly found parking-lot practitioner. The name is used to describe the general circling pattern created by the driving driver, and is not intended as an aspersion or to imply that these people are reprobates or social carnivores... Still, many of these people spend hours looking for parking spaces when there's a perfectly good one only a few rows over, and they often ignore the suggestions of their little sons who are only trying to help and just want to know that they're loved and time-efficient. These people could learn a lesson from their namesake, the vulture. Admittedly, the vulture has the advantage of an aerial view. But, it isn't so darn picky and usually takes what it can get!

(There. Now I feel validated ... very validated.)

Two New Faculty Head List of Department Chairs

Drs. Parviz Asheghian (Economics) and Richard Eberst (Health Science) have traveled from New York to assume chairships in their respective departments.

Asheghian, a specialist in international economics and business, formerly taught at St. Lawrence University, a private college. He has published one book and has another in progress. He also serves on the editorial boards of several economic journal publications. With a B.A. degree in accounting from the Iranian Institute of Advanced Accounting, Asheghian eventually earned his Ph.D. in economics from Georgia State University.

Eberst received his Ph.D. in health education from the University of Maryland and his B.A. in biology and chemistry from Park College in Missouri. An active writer and speaker, he has authored dozens of articles and frequently makes presentations at conferences, seminars and workshops. Eberst is currently the president of Eta Sigma Gamma, a national health science organization, containing 110 chapters.

Following is a rundown of deans and chairs who will provide administrative leadership during the 1991/92 academic year:

Community Leader Joins University Advisory Board

Vivian L. Nash Dukes, vice president and senior urban planner of Dukes-Dukes and Associates, Inc., recently joined the ranks of community leaders who help guide the university as a member of the University Advisory Board.

New Faces on Campus

by Dave Beyer, sports Information director

"It's exciting! So far, it has been a lot of fun!" So begins the collegiate baseball coaching career of Don Parnell (Athletics), who is charged with guiding Cal State's highly successful program into NCAA Division II and the California Collegiate Athletic Association for the 1992 season.

"If we get in the people who have shown an interest, we should be tough right away," says Parnell. "I think we will have a chance to be competitive from the outset if we can get the players we need."

Parnell inherits a program that has a 132-57-2 record in its five-season history. Likewise, CSUSB won back-to-back NCAA Division III West Region titles in 1990 and 1991. But that ominous reputation doesn't weigh too heavily on Parnell's mind.

"(CSUSB's past success) doesn't have any affect on me," explains Parnell. "The difference between Division III and Division II is a whole other game. You just can't compare the two. It's unfair to compare next year to previous years."

Despite his "rookie" status as a collegiate head coach, Parnell has plenty of experience and familiarity with the Inland Empire, as well as at the national level. He came to Cal State from U.C., Riverside's powerful baseball program. During his three seasons as an assistant with the Highlanders, UCR was an aggregate 101-69-2. Last year UCR was 38-25-1 and advanced to the NCAA Division II semi-finals. His other collegiate experience came in 1981 as an assistant to recently retired John Scolinos, the legendary coach at Cal Poly, Pomona.

Cal State's baseball team is now under the leadership of head coach Don Parnell.

Parnell's ties to the San Bernardino area run even deeper. He was the head baseball coach at nearby Bloomington High School for five seasons (1984-88)—where he still works as a teacher—and assisted at his high school alma mater, San Geronimo, during the 1982 campaign.

Parnell is bringing that "local" aspect to his roster, as well. "We're going to be a much more 'local' program. We won't field a lot of 'transplant' kids. To me, having local athletes feels good. I've received a lot of help from local coaches, as well, in my first recruiting class."

His own collegiate playing career saw him earn four varsity letters at the University of Redlands between 1977-1980. He received the Bulldogs' "John Moore Award" for outstanding achievement in baseball.

Parnell graduated from U. of R. in 1980 with a double major in psychology and physical education. He earned his master's degree in administration from National University in 1990. He and his wife, Valerie, reside in Yucaipa with their two children, Eric and Andrea, along with his nephew, Alfonso.

Another new Coyote coach is probably one of the most familiar faces in the Inland Empire...especially, if you follow golf.

The CSUSB golf team—long recognized as a strong contender at Division III—has landed Bob Smith, formerly of nearby San Bernardino Valley College, as its new head coach. Smith will be charged with the task of taking the program up to the Division II level for the 1992 season.

"As Cal State, San Bernardino's new head golf coach, I am both pleased and excited to join the university at such a pivotal time in the history of our athletics program," says Smith. "Cal State's move this season to NCAA Division II promises our fine golf program many opportunities and challenges."

The Coyotes have gained a person who is regarded as somewhat of a "fixture" in the community. And rightly so. Smith was born in Beaumont and attended Banning High School. In 1955, he was hired by San Bernardino Valley College (SBVC) to coach football, wrestling and baseball. In 1975, he began a highly successful 16-year coaching stint with the Indians' golf team. He also taught physical education for SBVC.

Smith's golf teams at SBVC never finished below third in the conference, and he claimed league titles in 1980 and 1985. He also has had several golfers go on to win the San Bernardino County Amateur Championship.

"I feel that Bob Smith is the ideal person to take over our golf program," says David L. Suenram (Athletics). "He has, without a doubt, strong ties to the local and regional communities. That should be a great asset to our already strong program. Likewise, I think his knowledge of the game speaks for itself. He has a record of gaining success, both from individuals and from his teams."

Bob Smith joins Cal State as the new head golf coach.

Not only is Smith responsible for overseeing the Coyotes' golf team, but he is the tournament director for the annual "Coyote Golf Classic," which benefits the golf scholarship fund. This year's tournament will be held on Oct. 22 at the Shandin Hills Golf Club.

"If anyone on campus would like information about our team or the golf tournament, I encourage them to contact me at extension 5011," invites Smith.

COMMUNITY SERVICE

Dr. Derk Bruins (National Security Studies) presented "Current & Future Events in the Soviet Union" at the Sept. 21 meeting of the Galleons of the First Presbyterian Church of San Bernardino.

Professor Emeritus Arlo D. Harris (Chemistry) addressed "Drugs From the Environment" at the Sept. 10 meeting of the Downtown Kiwanis Club in Dayton, OH. His presentation was made in conjunction with the Speakers Bureau of the Dayton branch of the American Chemical Society.

Dr. Linda Norman (Political Science) discussed "Will Judge Clarence Thomas Be Confirmed?" at the Sept. 24 meeting of the San Bernardino Rotary Club.

Cynthia Fringle (Public Affairs) was master of ceremonies for the Sept. 15 kick-off of the San Bernardino Public Library's Centennial Celebration at the Feldheym Library. She also welcomed participants in the International Literacy Day Celebration in front of San Bernardino City Hall on Sept. 6.

Editor's Note: Faculty and staff are encouraged to submit information regarding their local community service activities for inclusion in this column. With the decentralization of the Speakers Bureau this summer, the Public Affairs staff no longer maintains these records. Your assistance and continued support are appreciated.

Call for Volunteers

Faculty and staff are invited to serve as judges for the Eighth Annual Coyote Invitational Speech and Debate Tournament on Saturday, Oct. 12, and Sunday, Oct. 13. Organized by the Communication Studies Department, this year's event is expected to attract over 300 high school students from throughout Southern California.

According to Professor J. Scott Rodriguez (Communications Studies), who serves as Cal State's forensics director, individuals with any public speaking experience or those who have taught communications classes are encouraged to volunteer for a minimum of two hours. Judges need to register by Thursday, Oct. 10. More details are available from Rodriguez by calling Ext. 5815.

Enrollment Update

According to statistics released on Sept. 23, 1991, 12,298 students have enrolled through walk-through and computer-assisted registration (CAR) for the fall quarter. This represents a 5.87 percent increase over last year at this time when 11,616 students were registered. To date, the full-time equivalent (FTE) enrollment count is 9,086.9. Late registration continues through Wednesday, Oct. 2. The official fall enrollment figure will be finalized on Wednesday, Oct. 16, the last day to drop classes.

For the Record

In the Construction Update story that ran in the Sept. 13, 1991 Friday Bulletin, it was incorrectly published that a 660,000-square-foot addition to the Animal House is underway. The project will add only 660 square feet to this facility.

Also note that Lenora Venturina (Computer Center) will serve as one of the instructors for lunchtime aerobics, beginning on Monday, Sept. 30, in the small gym.

Wedding Bells

Members of the campus community extend congratulations to Kelly Crum (Financial Aid) on her Aug. 31 marriage to Harlan Mitchell in Lake Tahoe, NV. The groom is the son of Gail Brewington (Records). The couple resides in Yucaipa, CA.

Wedding congratulations are offered to Beverly Dyer (Foundation) on her Sept. 7 marriage to Marland Smith, a retired Somona, CA, high school teacher. The wedding was held at Edwards

Mansion in Redlands, CA. The couple will reside in Rialto, CA.

Best wishes also are extended to Patricia Owens (Natural Sciences) and Owen Owens (Computer Center) on the Sept. 7 marriage of their daughter, Beth Christine Hanson, to Barry Robert Schieferstine. The wedding was held at the Norton Air Force Base Chapel and the couple will reside in Twentynine Palms, CA. The groom is a member of the U.S. Marine Corps.

EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES

Current job vacancies can be seen on Channel 3, the community access station in San Bernardino. Information also is available on a 24-hour hotline at Ext. 5139 which is updated at 2 p.m., Fridays.
