Wells Fargo ups donations to more than $1 Million a day to charities

Wells Fargo & Company last year continued to invest in communities across the country through its philanthropy and volunteerism, donating more than $286.5 million in 2017 to more than 14,500 nonprofits, the company announced.

The company's plan to target $400 million in donations to nonprofits and community organizations in 2018 is an increase of approximately 40 percent from 2017. Wells Fargo already is one of the top corporate cash donors, ranking first among financial institutions and third among all U.S. companies in a 2016 report (most recent ranking) by The Chronicle of Philanthropy.

"We understand the important role we play in helping our communities, so we will continue to identify additional opportunities where Wells Fargo can make a difference," CEO, Tim Sloan said. "Wells Fargo's increased philanthropy will have a positive effect on the causes and communities we support and further enhance our Corporate Social Responsibility efforts, which will continue to focus on advancing diversity and social inclusion, creating economic opportunities in underserved communities, and accelerating the transition to a lower-carbon economy and a healthier planet."

Wells Fargo commits $3.5 million to increase financial capability across U.S.

Toncé Jackson was at a low point four years ago. In Chicago's Cook County Jail for a fourth time, she was struggling with substance abuse, had no job, a limited education, terrible credit, and was burdened with debt — she didn't even have a bank account. Caught in a painful cycle that was destroying her family, she resolved to change.

"I wanted to start my life over," said Jackson. "I just needed a little help with my beginning."

The Wells Fargo Financial Capability Grant program focuses on helping people, like Jackson, who are facing destabilizing economic challenges. Started in 2017, the program's grants help people from diverse populations who are underbanked by connecting them to income supports and financial training.

The program has just awarded $3.5 million to two nonprofits with thoughtful and focused financial capability programs — the Local Initiatives Support Corporation (LISC), and the Cities for Financial Empowerment (CFE) Fund.

The Wells Fargo grants will provide $1 million funding for the CFE Fund and $2.5 million funding for LISC financial capability programs in a total of 25 U.S. cities and regions over three years.

"All of the cities we are working with demonstrated that they are looking to make financial empowerment front-and-center in the work they can do," said Tamara Lindsay, a principal at the CFE Fund. "The long-term vision is to create a permanent home for this work, to help make sure it is sustainable."

City leaders collaborate with CFE Fund partners to open Financial Empowerment Centers, or FECs, for their residents. At FECs, professionally trained counselors help consumers with low and moderate incomes manage their finances, pay down debt, increase savings, establish and build credit, and access safe and affordable mainstream banking products. The FEC model integrates counseling into other social services, including housing and foreclosure prevention, workforce development, prisoner reentry, benefits access, domestic violence services, and more. First piloted in New York City under Mayor Michael R. Bloomberg in 2008, the FECs are a proven success — about 80,000 consumers have reduced individual debt by almost $94 million and increased their families' savings by about $12 million. A recent CFE Fund evaluation showed that this program works even for residents with very low incomes and other complex financial challenges.

"Offering financial counseling as a public service, though local governments, helps stabilize struggling households and communities. Local leaders know the importance of helping families and neighborhoods build financial stability and make better use of social services," said Jonathan Mintz, president and CEO of the CFE Fund.

Wells Fargo's grant to LISC will strengthen and expand the Financial Opportunity Center, or FOC, model across 15 target markets. Working through local nonprofits nationwide since 2006, FOCs offer services including employment and career counseling, one-on-one financial coaching and education, and connect individuals with low-cost financial products that help build credit, savings and assets. FOCs also have a remedial education component that provides participants with foundational reading and math skills that they need in order to get into job training programs that can lead to higher paying, living-wage careers.

"Promising talent exists in all our communities, and we have to invest to help people realize their full potential. That's where FOCs come in," said LISC CEO Maurice A. Jones. "By connecting people to the tools they need, they can compete for the quality jobs that employers must fill to innovate and grow. They'll be able to earn more, save more and access life-changing opportunities for themselves and their families."

During a conversation with her parole officer, Jackson found out about a local Financial Opportunity Center housed at Chicago's Jane Addams Resource Corporation, a nonprofit local community resource center. The FOC helped Jackson find additional education opportunities and got her into a job placement program. After she successfully landed her welding job, Jackson continued to receive guidance from a financial coach. She created a budget, reduced her medical debts, and established credit.

Mike Rizer, head of Wells Fargo Community Relations, said results like Jackson's are the goal.

Competition to Serve as the State's Top Educator

"When you have a voice, you also have a moral obligation to use that voice for good."

- Leandra Medine

In November, voters will have the privilege of going to the polls and selecting California's new State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

Votes cast during the June primary, whittled the original field of four candidates to two. Those left standing, candidates Tony Thurmond and Marshall Tuck, both Democrats, will face off in November.

Tuck has described himself as an education reformer whose experience is rooted in running charter schools and alternative district schools in Los Angeles. He ran for this same position in the last election cycle but was edged out by the state's current Superintendent of Public Instruction, Tom Torlakson. Not surprisingly, Tuck has strong backing from the powerful charter school industry.

Thurmond, on the other hand, is a second-term state assemblyman with a background in social work. Before entering politics, he founded and/or managed nonprofits in the Bay Area which served low-income foster children, truant students, and children involved with the criminal justice system. Thurmond enjoys support of the Democratic Party establishment and both teachers' unions.

Tuck barely edged Thurman out of first place in the June primary. Tuck received 37.2 percent of the vote compared to Thurmond's 35.6 percent.

There is not much space, if any, between the two candidates on critical education issues in the state which seems to change very little from year to year. Such issues include student achievement in general, closing the achievement gap between groups of students, in addition to issues related to funding and the teacher shortage.

This year's battle for State Superintendent of Public Instruction is symbolic of the epic and ongoing battle in recent years between those who support traditional public instruction versus those who support the public charter school industry—data has shown there is very little difference in student achievement between the two.

The Supreme Court's June decision on "Janus," has hobbled the teachers' unions' ability to provide funding support to political candidates/issue due to their now reduced revenue stream; while few doubt contributions will continue to pour into Tuck's campaign from the charter school industry.

Regardless of the dollars that pour into either candidate's campaign coffers, in the final analysis, it is the voters of California who will have the final say. In November, citizens will do more than elect a new Superintendent of Public Instruction, their votes may well determine the future of public education in the state.

Of course, this is just my opinion. I'm keeping it real.

Community Celebrates Grand Opening of Valencia Head Start

Redlands

Members of the community joined the San Bernardino County Preschool Services Department as they celebrated the Grand Opening of the Valencia Head Start Center in Redlands on Friday. The celebration included a tour of the facility and a chance to meet the teachers in addition to refreshments, activities, and music.

President Lyndon Johnson established the Head Start program more than fifty years ago to help break the cycle of poverty by providing preschool children of low-income families with a comprehensive program designed to help meet their emotional, social, health, nutritional and psychological needs.

The Head Start preschool classes are free to qualifying families. In addition to school readiness, the Head Start program includes nutrition, health, mental health and disability programs. In addition, the program offers several programs for parents including a job training apprenticeship program that can lead to employment opportunities and an online high school diploma program for those who did not complete high school.

“We are excited to be able to offer our services to additional families in Redlands. We look forward to our youngest county residents learning in our Head Start classrooms,” said Diana Alexander, Director of San Bernardino County Preschool Services Department. “By joining the Head Start family, parents will have the chance to learn and grow with their children through our education and work experience programs for Head Start parents.”

In addition to the new Redlands site, Preschool Services has Head Start locations throughout San Bernardino County and are enrolling for the 2018-19 school year. Contact the Preschool Services at (888) KIDS-

025 for more information and access applications online at <http://hs.sbcounty.gov/psd/>. Head Start Centers are also located throughout Riverside County. To learn more visit www.rcoc.us/children-family-services/head-start-early-head-start-programs/head-start-and-early-head-start/faq/.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The Importance of Recess and Play to Students' Mental Health

Boston, MA— California is one of only eight states that require daily recess in schools, yet a new report in the publication EdWeek stressed that recess helps students develop their physical, emotional, academic and social skills. Over the past fifty years, recess and free play with other children has declined dramatically. Boston College research professor, Dr. Peter Gray, drew a correlation between the declining number of states that require recess in schools and the increasing number of kids who show symptoms of a mental health disorder, “I believe there is one noteworthy reason that has contributed to this mental health crisis like no other, recess and play are on the endangered species list in our public schools.” Gray believes children should have at least one or more hours of recess and self-directed play every day.

Warning About Dangers of Fake Marijuana

Federal and state officials issued a warning this week about a version of synthetic cannabinoids (fake marijuana) laced with rat poison that’s caused uncontrolled bleeding in hundreds of people and led to dozens of deaths. In multiple reported cases, severe health effects occurred after individuals used synthetic cannabinoids, which are colloquially known as “fake weed,” “K2,” “AK-47” and “spice”.

Despite the perception that synthetic cannabinoids are safe and a legal alternative to marijuana, many are illegal and can cause severe illness according to warnings issued by the Food and Drug Administration and Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

Use of synthetic cannabinoids can lead to serious illness or death, according to the CDC. These products can affect brain function, causing agitation and irritability, confusion and concentration problems, seizures, and sleepiness and dizziness, as well as hallucinations, delusions, suicidal thoughts, and violent behavior. Other health effects caused by synthetic cannabinoids can include breathing problems, gastrointestinal problems, heart attack, stroke, hypertension, kidney failure and muscle damage. The CDC has also warned that many synthetic cannabinoids are addictive, and individuals who suddenly stop using them have reported adverse effects of withdrawal, including vomiting, headache and severe anxiety.

According to the FDA, the term synthetic cannabinoids refers to hundreds of different chemicals that act on the same brain cell receptors as the main active ingredient in marijuana. Synthetic cannabinoids are various manmade chemicals that some people use as an alternative to marijuana. They can be smoked, vaped, or swallowed, typically when mixed with food or beverages.

Although synthetic marijuana has been sold for years at gas stations, convenience stores and smoke shops, federal health officials and law enforcement said this version is particularly alarming.

Synthetic cannabinoids are unsafe, and it is difficult to know what is in them or how an individual will react. Health officials say synthetic cannabinoids can be toxic, unpredictable, harmful, and life-threatening.

Synthetic cannabinoids are widely available, however, many are also illegal. Federal state and local governments have banned many specific synthetic cannabinoids, according to the

Successful Summer STEM PULL Academy Benefits Local High School Students

Riverside

Dozens of Riverside high school students recently participated in several days of intensive, hands-on training with the Riverside Public Utilities Department to learn about potential careers in the utilities industry.

The Science and Technology Education Partnership (STEP) initiative provided 70 students with Science, Technology, Engineering and Math (STEM) training through experiential learning and gave them the opportunity to apply those skills in the Riverside Public Utilities Learning Lab (PULL).

Employees of the various divisions of Riverside Public Utilities (RPU) provided the curriculum for STEM PULL. The curriculum included lineman demonstrations with bucket trucks and equipment; the role STEM plays in the utility industry; field trips to the Riverside Energy Resource Center, Wastewater Treatment Plant, and Customer Service Locations.

The training also focused on team skills development, 3-D computer design and printing, laser cutting and engraving, welding and woodworking, electronics and soldering, engineering and water reuse processes and water quality testing, Brick Pi Robots; advanced utility technologies, IT, cyber security; public benefits, community engagement and crisis communication workshops.

At the end of the week, students developed and presented their innovative STEM PULL projects during the design challenge competition. Riverside Public Utilities Board members attended the presentations and judging.

Twelve teams of 4-5 students presented their concepts to a panel of judges. The top three teams won scholarships of $1000, $750 and $500. Even more valuable however, is the students' ability to participate in a year-long mentorship opportunity with Gordon Bourns, Bourns, Inc. and graduate students from both the UCR and CBU Bourn's College of Engineering.

The first-place winners for their project "Line Down," an app that would detect problems with utility poles and utilize GIS technology to locate the exact location of the faulty poles. Included team members Samuel Green, Jordan Whiting and Brett Hile of Martin Luther King High School and Leonardo Acosta of STEM Academy High School.

Second place winners were recognized for their project "Leak Master," a sensor that would be placed on all new pipes as they are installed, which would notify RPU of pipe leaks that are too small to be detected from above ground included Isaac Garcia and Caleb Van Haster of Woodcrest Christian High School and Iliana Lazaro, Leslie Zamora and Jose Ibarra of Arlington High School.

Finally, placing third for their project P.A.T. (Public Alert technology), a sensor that would be used with GIS technology to immediately identify and specifically locate outages and problems in transmission lines were Molly Dewitt and Shevani Patel of Arlington High School and representing La Sierra High School, Shahnawaz Lateef, David Polach and Angela Figueroa.

City Council Provides a Temporary Way Forward for the Boys and Girls Club of San Bernardino

Hardy Brown, Sr.
Contributor

The San Bernardino City Council has voted unanimously to extend an opportunity for the local Boys and Girls Club to continue operating for the next 60 days under a new name while the organization explores options since the National Boys & Girls Club of America has suspended its charter.

Several members of the community, including School Board member Danny Tillman, attended the city council meeting and spoke in support of the Boys & Girls Club of San Bernardino (BGCSB). In the process, speakers highlighted the good work that is being done by the organization.

In February, BGCSB received notification from the Boys & Girls Club of America that its charter was being revoked for what it stated was BGCSB's, "inability to maintain compliance with Boys & Girls Clubs of America membership requirements."

The violations cited, included SBCBS's failure to provide the required benefits to eligible employees; the untimely submission of annual audits, annual reports and certificates of liability insurance; and, the late payment of annual membership dues. In addition, the national organization subsequently alleged SBCBS was not completing staff background checks in alignment with the national organization's background check policy. Although the checks were completed by Live Scan, the national organization did not concur with this approach.

In March 2018, BGCSB filed a letter of appeal with the Boys & Girls Club of America where it explained a history of challenges that had previously plagued the organization and outlined its progress since a change in leadership was implemented in 2008.

BGCSB's current President/CEO, A. Majadi, took the helm of BGCSB near the end of fiscal year 2008. The previous Board of Directors reportedly left the club in an "extremely dire situation and on the brink of closure." The appeal noted, "there was no board leadership activity, engagement or fundraising." The appeal further stressed how the organization had no community partners and the community had lost all confidence in the organization and withdrawn its support. Since that time, Majadi has worked to mitigate the damage that was done.

After several years of outreach and fact-finding, by 2011, BGCSB was beginning to restore its reputation and attendance increased. The organization has continued to partner with public entities and local groups and in the process, re-established strong ties of local support.

Despite the shortcomings of the Boys and Girls Club of San Bernardino's previous leaders, since the early 1970's, the club has provided educational and recreational services to the community and partnered with multiple outside organizations in collaborative efforts to deliver a variety of programs and services.

Additionally, BGCSB has performed building renovations which included interior/exterior paint, internet wiring, new flooring throughout the building, electrical upgrades, irrigation system, landscaping, new plumbing, new heater, re-plastering of the pool and the addition of a Teen Center with audio and video production, a recording studio, and a dance studio.

Majadi notified city staff of BGCSB's intent to separate from the Boys and Girls Club of America and become a stand-alone organization known as "The Center for Youth Enrichment & Family Empowerment".

The newly named organization will continue its partnership with the San Bernardino City Unified School District to provide before and after-school care through three, before-school programs and thirteen, after-school programs, while also continuing to collaborate with other organizations. BGCSB plans to provide the same level of service with the same staffing level of 120 individuals.

City officials reached out to both the County of San Bernardino and the San Bernardino City Unified School District and discussed their plans for the continued partnership with the newly named organization.

San Bernardino City Unified School District officials confirmed that its relationship will remain unchanged for the duration of the existing agreement. San Bernardino County officials began consulting with their real property agent assigned to the lease on July 30, 2018 and will also seek direction from county counsel.

A Rare Form of Breast Cancer Impacts Young Women and Men

Gail Fry
Contributor

The California State Legislature recently declared October 3, “Inflammatory Breast Cancer Awareness Day” encouraging public knowledge of a deadly, aggressive and rare breast cancer which does not produce a lump in the breast like most forms of breast cancer. It is relatively unfamiliar to the medical community, and largely impacts younger women.

“The larger problem is that too many primary care providers are not very familiar with this disease,” said Dr. Massimo Cristofanilli, an expert in the field, explaining many women and/or their healthcare providers don’t recognize the symptoms as breast cancer. This is largely because instead of a lump, inflammatory breast cancer appears to be a rash causing doctors to treat the patient with antibiotics thinking it is an infection when the patient should be given a biopsy.

“Most inflammatory breast cancers are invasive ductal carcinomas, which means they developed from cells that line the milk ducts of the breast and then spread beyond the ducts,” Cristofanilli explained and warned when the cancer is misdiagnosed it delays “proper treatment.”

Inflammatory Breast Cancer (IBC) progresses rapidly, often in a matter of weeks or months resulting in many diagnoses being made when the cancer is at an advanced stage. IBC is incredibly, physically disabling and can also occur in men.

Fighting 4 the Tatas Breast Cancer, Inc. is a hardworking organization that has diligently worked, “to increase awareness of the disease in the public and medical communities.”

Fighting 4 the Tatas Breast Cancer, Inc. Co-founder and CEO, Joshlyn Earls, explained she founded the nonprofit 501(c)(3) in October 2011, after she was diagnosed that May as having high-grade infiltrating ductile carcinoma, Stage 3B and was given two and a half years to live; and, also because of the lack of available information regarding the deadly breast cancer.

“Inflammatory breast cancer cannot be detected through a mammogram,” Earls explained “because there is no lump” sharing her chiropractor performed thermography, digital infrared imaging. This led him to suggest she may have cancer and urged her to seek medical help. Earls explained thermography senses heat much like an MRI, however, it is not covered by insurance while MRI’s are an expensive procedure which hospitals are reluctant to provide.

“One of the other problems is physicians are misdiagnosing because most have never seen a case,”

Earls explained crediting the surgeon who conducted her examination as knowledgeable on the subject—he had seen several cases.

Earls described the symptoms of IBC as swollen angry red and very heavy breasts that hurt like “someone is just stabbing you with a knife” with an “itch that will not go away no matter what you put on it.” It also looks like a rash and is the fastest recurring form of breast cancer.

“There are 17 or more different types of breast cancer and there are four stages,” Earl shared warning, “The medical world doesn’t know what they are looking at” and shred her belief it is killing time when the conditions is misdiagnosed as an infection.

“Inflammatory breast cancer is in the skin, it’s not a lump, it’s like a rash on your chest wall, it could be on your stomach, it could be on the side of your arm, it could be anywhere, but it’s a rash and most people are looking for a lump,” Earls stressed.

Earls explained it is also important for breast cancer patients to have a Muga test, “to see if your heart is strong enough to take the chemo they are going to give you in the very short term.”

The Inflammatory Breast Cancer Consortium estimates 15,000 to 20,000 new cases of IBC are diagnosed annually involving both women and men, representing about 3 to 6 percent of all breast cancer estimated at about 274,000 cases annually.

Earls has devoted her life to getting some answers to save her life as well as other people’s lives by surrounding herself with the best experts in the country as a result of her participation as a Peer reviewer.

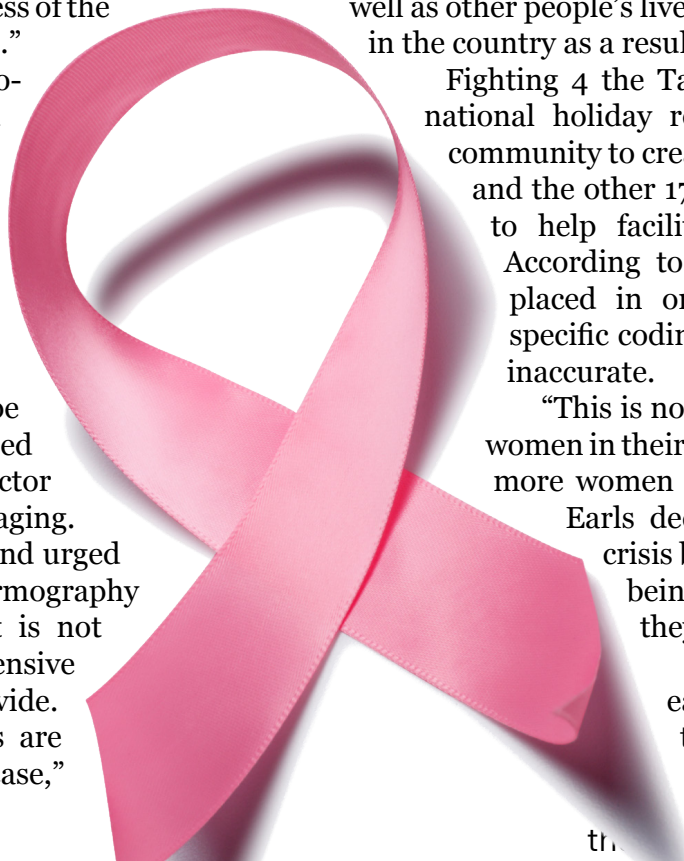

Fighting 4 the Tatas Breast Cancer, Inc. continues to seek a national holiday recognizing IBC while pushing the medical community to create a “definitive diagnosis” and coding for IBC and the other 17 specific types and subtypes of breast cancer to help facilitate appropriate diagnosis and treatment. According to Earls, currently breast cancer is all being placed in one bucket. She is concerned that without specific coding, the diagnosis, treatment and statistics are inaccurate.

“This is not your Momma’s breast cancer; it is attacking women in their 20’s or 30’s, no one knows why. We are seeing more women in their 20’s, that is why this is so urgent,”

Earls declared, describing IBC as a national health crisis because young women of child bearing age are being impacted. “They are going around thinking they are invincible,” she noted.

Earls emphasized the importance of early diagnosis as IBC spreads rapidly and by the time it reaches Stage 3, 30 to 35 percent

As Students Prepare for a New School Year—Officials Reflect on 2017 Graduation Rates

S.E. Williams
Contributor

Included among the millions of American students preparing for the 2018-2019 school year is a cohort of young people entering high school across the state of California as freshmen.

The quintessential question that will follow these freshmen for the duration of their high school careers is—how many of them will ultimately become graduating seniors?

The California Department of Education answered that very important question regarding students who started high school as ninth graders in 2013-14 and graduated on-time four years later in 2017. According to state’s just released 2017 High School Graduation Rates report, 82.7 percent of those students graduated successfully and on time.

This percentage represented a slight decline in the state’s graduation rate as compared to the 83.8 percent who attained graduation in 2016. State Superintendent of Public Instruction Tom Torlakson attributed the decline to a new methodology that was adopted by the state in response to a federal audit.

“As part of this new methodology,” Torlakson explained, “three significant changes were implemented for calculating 2017 high school graduation rates.”

The changes eliminated the inclusion of two groups from the cohort calculation. The groups no longer included in the calculation of high school graduates are those who receive an adult education high school diplomas and students who pass the California High School Proficiency Exam. Although these two groups are no longer calculated in the high school graduation totals, students who transfer to adult education programs or a community college will remain in the denominator for the cohort calculation.

Despite these changes and their impact on the state’s graduation rates, Torlakson remarked, “California continues to make excellent progress in education.” Adding, “The percentage of our graduates eligible for the University of California and the California State University is soaring. In addition, more of our students are passing Advanced Placement ® exams and the number demonstrating proficiency in a foreign language has quadrupled since 2011.”

Torkalson also admitted, however, that the data also revealed what he defined as—a significant challenge. “As in previous years, disparities in graduation rates continue.” Torlakson said admitting that much work needs to be done to narrow what he said is a “pernicious, persistent” achievement gap between students. “We have a long way to go and need help from everyone—teachers, parents, administrators and community members—to narrow these gaps.”

The 2017 graduation rates among students in the Inland Empire reflected the following results: In Riverside County the 2017 graduation rate was 88.0 percent and although it represented a decline from the 89.4 percent rate attained in 2016, it was above the statewide average. In San Bernardino County the results painted a slightly different picture. The 2017 cohort graduation rate was 82.6 percent, down slightly from the 83.0 percent attain in 2016 and below the 82.7 percent statewide average.

Responding to an inquiry from The Voice/Black Voice News, about this year’s results, San Bernardino County Superintendent of Schools, Ted Alejandro said, “Progress has been made by San Bernardino County students and schools in increasing graduation rates.”

Alejandro discussed the changes enacted by the California Department of Education as detailed above and noted how students in the county nearly matched statewide averages for graduation rates. “I applaud our students, families, schools and districts for the efforts that have been made to increase our countywide graduation rates, but there remains work to do to ensure that every student is college and career ready by the time they graduate from high school.”

Alejandro also addressed the disparities in graduation rates identified by Tokalson as a significant challenge across the state. For African American students in San Bernardino County the 2017 graduation rate was 75.9 percent versus 84.6 percent for Whites. Although this reflects a 8.7 disparity, Alejandro noted it is nearly three percent above the statewide average of 73.1 percent for African American students.

Name	Cohort Students	Regular HS Diploma Graduates	Cohort Graduation Rate
Riverside County	32,932	28,981	88.0
San Bernardino County	32,697	26,992	82.6
Statewide Total	493,795	408,124	82.7

During the 2016-17 academic year in San Bernardino County, there were 3,036 African American students among the cohort. At 8.4 percent, African American students are the third largest ethnic subgroup of students in San Bernardino County behind Hispanic/Latino (64.6 percent) and White (17.3 percent) students.

Commenting on the graduation rates of African American students in San Bernardino County Alejandro said, “During the past eight years of the state using the California Longitudinal Pupil Achievement Data System (CALPADS), African American students in our county have made 15.6 percent growth in high school graduation rates while closing the achievement gap with White students from 10 percent to 6.7 percent.”

Alejandre concluded, “Having instituted a countywide African American Student Achievement Task Force in 2016, we know that districts are sharing best practices to improve academic achievement for African American students.”

African American students in Riverside County demonstrated greater success regarding the numbers that graduated in 2017. The 2017 graduation rate for Black students in the County was 85.9 percent versus

	Graduates Meeting UC/CSU Requirements	Graduates Earning a Seal of Biliteracy	Graduates Earning a Golden State Seal Merit Diploma
%	13,887	2,486	6,349
%	203,648	44,594	97,907

those following the push and pull between Charter and traditional public schools will be interested to learn the 2017 graduation rate for California charter schools, excluding alternative schools, was 82 percent. By comparison, non-charter schools, excluding alternative schools, showed a graduation rate of 91.5 percent.

Alternative schools include, but are not limited to, continuation, juvenile court, county-run special education schools, alternative schools of choice These schools serve high risk students who are already at the greatest risk of dropping out, compared with the broader population at traditional high schools.

Tokalsen highlighted other important changes in this year’s cohort data when he noted, “Since 2007, there has been more than a 30 percent increase in high school graduates eligible for UC and more than a 53 percent increase in CSU eligibility.”

Among other changes to the graduation report is an upgrade which includes the number of high school graduates who earned a State Seal of Biliteracy. The seal recognizes graduates who attained a high level of proficiency in speaking, reading, and writing one or more languages in addition to English. In 2017, for example, 44,594 California graduates earned the State Seal of Biliteracy.

Tokalsen has advocated for vastly expanding the teaching and learning of world languages and is committed to more than tripling the number of students who receive the State Seal of Biliteracy by 2030. Tokalsen’s Global California 2030 initiative reflects his commitment to this goal.

In conclusion, it is important to note that since prior graduation rates used a different methodology, the 2017 graduation rates should not be compared to prior years.

“For America’s students, the new school year is a time for learning lessons, making friends, and setting goals. For America’s parents, it is a time to focus on the role education plays in their children’s lives and future. And for our Nation, it is a time to strengthen our efforts to improve the quality of education and to make America’s schools safe, nurturing places where children can reach their full potential.”

Trump Signs Bi-Partisan Education Policy

Washington D.C.

After nearly nineteen months in office, President Trump has signed his first major piece of education legislation titled, Strengthening Career and Technical Education for the 21st Century Act.

The legislation is a reauthorization of the Carl D. Perkins Career and Technical Education Act. The $1.2 billion program has not been overhauled by Congress since 2006. The new version of the legislation gives states the freedom to establish their own goals for career and technical education programs. Under this new version of the law, such programs will no longer require approval by the U.S. Secretary of Education among other changes.

The measure will now allow school districts to use federal funds to provide all students, not just those enrolled in career and technical education (CTE) programs, a chance to participate in career exploration and development activities in the middle grades and for comprehensive guidance and academic counseling in the upper grades.

Upon signing the legislation, the president proclaimed, “More than 11 million students and workers will have greater access to better training and more jobs.”

The bi-partisan legislation was passed with strong support from both parties in both houses of congress. One of the bill’s legislative co-sponsors, Congressman Glenn Thompson of Pennsylvania, said last week, “Given the dramatic evolution of our nation’s workforce, it is imperative that we create clear pathways to education and training for students interested in pursuing careers in high-demand industries and technical fields.” He added, “As Co-Chair of the Career and Technical Education Caucus, I am proud of this bill.”

Thompson described the legislation as a, “well-engineered, bipartisan reauthorization aimed at permanently closing our nation’s skills gap. This law will work to restore rungs on the ladder of opportunity for every American regardless of age or background.”

Proposed Legislation to Teach California Students How to Interact with Law Enforcement Inches Forward

Sacramento

In today's America, most students have their first interaction with law enforcement at an early age, usually on their school campuses. This is because officers are now a staple on campuses everywhere.

Despite this exposure however, most young people still do not know what to expect from an encounter with police, or what they should or should not do when such encounters occur. Equally important is the need for students to understand their rights and responsibilities during such interactions.

AB 185, the School/Law Enforcement Partnership—Stakeholder Workgroup measure, introduced by Assemblyman Patrick O'Donnell (D-Long Beach), will ensure students across California are better prepared to handle a situation when and if they are approached by law enforcement officials.

The state's School/Law Enforcement Partnership (SLEP) is comprised of the Superintendent of Public Instruction and the state Attorney General. AB185 would require the SLEP to convene a stakeholder workgroup to identify and develop resources for use by high school and middle school students. Such resources would detail a minor's rights and responsibilities during interactions with police. The bill would require SLEP to post those resources on specific internet websites.

The stakeholder workgroup would include representatives from all of the following organizations—teachers, school administrators, students, parents, law enforcement, civil rights advocates and immigrant rights advocates.

of the cancer has already spread to distant lymph nodes and/or organs. "There is so little information about IBC," Earls acknowledged warning, "Because IBC spreads so rapidly the patients don't have a lot of time."

As the CEO of Fighting 4 the Tatas Breast Cancer, Inc., Earls described members of the organization as all volunteers helping patients understand the type of cancer they have, providing access to experts in the field and information about the different tests available. The organization needs funding to cover the cost of a grant writer, of administrative services, of a resource center, of printing updated educational materials, of holding educational events and to pay emergency expenses that IBC patients may struggle to pay due to the debilitating disease.

Earls would like to help the children of IBC patients and/or those who lost their parent to IBC by providing them with either a STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering and Math) program or a camp for children as they are mostly overlooked.

On Saturday, October 6, 2018, Fighting 4 the Tatas Breast Cancer, Inc. is holding a "Breast Cancer Awareness Festival" at the Rialto City Park from 10:00 am until 6:00 pm. It will feature entertainment, vendors, a decorate the bra contest, a wall of ribbons representing those who died of cancer, an auction, a kid zone, a 50/50 raffle and free water and is seeking volunteers, interns (with intern credits), auction items and vendors for the event.

Earls believes cancer cannot survive in a high-alkaline water suggesting cancer patients need a lot of water, Vitamin D and exercise. Fighting 4 the Tatas Breast Cancer, Inc. can be reached at (909) 820-1206 and additional information can be found on its website at: www.fighting4thetatas.org

NEWS IN BRIEF

Message to Parents--Prepare to Spend More Getting Kids Ready for School

Riverside - Compared to 2017, parents may spend on average as much as $65 more per student than they spent last year preparing their children for school. To help prepare parents for this year's sticker shock, a recent report by the organization Retailmenot, revealed the average estimated increase in costs parents can expect to spend this year to purchase seven of the most popular back-to-school items. It estimated the average amount spent on school cloths will increase from $153 to $189, electronics from $121 to $186, the cost of new shoes will increase an average of $14 from $71 to $85, backpacks from $33 to $45, art supplies (including crayons, etc.) will increase from $17 to $24, pens and pencils from $13 to $15, and the average amount spent on notebooks and folders will average $15 versus the average of $12 spent on these items last year.

Debate Over WVWD Ordinance Changes

S.E. Williams
Contributor

Customers of the West Valley Water District prepared to make their voices heard on Thursday when they address the Board of Directors during a public hearing. The board is considering a series of ordinance changes that will modify existing compensation and other policies to the benefit of board members.

Don Griggs, who leads the WVWD Rate Payers Association (RPA), said his organization is not opposed to the call for a five percent increase in compensation for board members to offset costs associated with the state's mandated increase in gasoline taxes and automobile registration fees which became effective last November. They do however oppose making it an annual automatic increase because that would impede the board's ability to control the budget during periods of economic downturn.

RPA also supports the codification of specificity regarding what is considered non-reimbursable expenses for members of the board including, political contributions, alcoholic beverages, tips greater than 18 percent, parking or traffic violation fines, laundry services, child care, and entertainment expenses such as tickets to sporting events or theaters, in-room movies and access to Wi-Fi for personal use, and first-class airfare travel.

"It is too bad we need such language in a public ordinance," Griggs said, explaining he happened to be at a meeting last year, when the WVWD treasurer identified this as a problem regarding alcoholic beverages.

Other proposed ordinance changes are strongly opposed by the RPA, including a proposal by the board requiring the district to pay 100 percent of all costs associated with directors' benefits after serving and retiring from the board.

Members further stand in opposition to a proposal requiring the district to pay the premiums for Long Term Care coverage for the president, his family and other members of the board. According to Griggs, costs to the district would be about $527.91 per person per month or $6,334.92 yearly.

"It is my understanding that any employee of the district who wants Long Term Care Insurance has to pay for it out of his or her own pocket. The same should be true for the Board of Directors," Griggs stressed. Therefore, he added, "we are opposed to this action as currently written and we believe it could be counted as a Gift of Public (federal, state taxpayers and ratepayers) funds because it is of no benefit to the public."

In addition, Griggs hared his organization's reservations about supporting an ordinance to give the board president broad discretion to attend all outside meetings pertaining to the water industry that is in the president's "good faith belief" to be in the best interest or of benefit to the district.

"While that proposal sounds great," Griggs asserted, "the board should know with whom and why the president is meeting on behalf of the district."

According to Griggs, the RPA is concerned over the possibility of some future board president who might have his or her own personal agenda and do something contrary to the district's values. "The ordinance would make it impossible to reign in that authority until you hold a public hearing in order to change it."

recently, she served as President of Lone Star College Cy-Fair in Cypress, Texas.

When the appointment was announced, San Bernardino Community College District (SBCCD) Board of Trustees President Joseph Williams said in a press release, "As the first in her family to achieve a college degree, Dr. Audre Levy brings to Crafton Hills College a strong commitment to student success and distinctive expertise."

Williams continued, "With her serving in this interim role, I am confident that Crafton Hills College will keep moving forward expanding educational and career training opportunities for students in Inland Southern California."

In the same press release Levy stated, "I am thrilled and honored to have the opportunity to serve as interim president for Crafton Hills College, a forward-looking institution that has rightly earned regional and statewide recognition for student success. I look forward to engaging with faculty, students, staff, the SBCCD Board of Trustees, along with the communities we serve, to advance the social and economic mobility of the Inland region."

Levy's appointment however, does little to answer questions that continue to surround the sudden departure of the college's former President Dr. Wei Zhou and Vice President of Instruction Dr. Kathy Bakhit. In early March, San Bernardino Community College District's (SBCCD) Chancellor, Bruce Baron, announced both Zhou and Bakhit had been placed on administrative leave effective immediately. Specifics regarding their sudden departure were not revealed at the time and remain a mystery today.

At the time of their departure Baron stated, "We thank them for their service at Crafton Hills College. However, it is SBCCD's policy not to comment on matters relating to personnel." SBCCD's "no comment" position remains unchanged.

SBCCD continues its search for a new president and will continue to accept applications until October 1.

"When the students got up and presented their projects, I was floored with how knowledgeable they were in such a short period of time and the amount of effort and out-of-the-box thinking the projects entailed," said Jo Lynne Russo-Pereyra, Chair of the Board of Public Utilities. She continued, "Their parents were in the audience, and they're learning not only about RPU, but also infrastructure needs through the eyes of their children. It really shows the value of a public utility to the community."

Through the mentorship program students will have the opportunity to continue to work on their projects and further refine their ideas. At the end of the mentorship process, some teams may even be on their way to having a marketable project and/or a patent on their idea.

Students in the mentorship program will also have many opportunities to participate in community activities, such as presenting at a City Council meeting or other events.

"Land, Water y Comunidad"

San Bernardino

The Hispanic Access Foundation and Mojave Desert Land Trust will host a film screening and roundtable discussion on Tuesday, August 14, at the Harkins Mountain Grove 16, located at 27481 San Bernardino Avenue in Redlands. The screening will begin at 6:00 p.m. The event is free, open to all, and will feature a short film titled, "Land, Water y Comunidad."

"Land, Water y Comunidad," explores the relationship Latinos across the nation have with Land, Water and Conservation Fund (LWCF) sites, what it means to them, how they enjoy them and the impact it would have if these lands were not available. The screening will be followed by a roundtable discussion that will feature both national and community experts.

The federal Land and Water Conservation Fund has supported more than 41,000 parks and projects and has also been critical in ensuring that underserved and urban communities have places to connect with nature, spend time with family, enjoy outdoor recreation and/or explore their cultural heritage. However, LWCF is set to expire this September, unless Congress agrees to reauthorize it. To learn more about LWCF visit <https://www.nps.gov/subjects/lwcf/index.htm>.

The nonprofit Hispanic Access Foundation (HAF), works to improve the lives of Hispanics across the country. They accomplish this through civic engagement by educating, motivating and helping members of the Hispanic community access trustworthy support systems.

HAF also designs and implements data-driven initiatives that combine the strength of grassroots outreach efforts with new and traditional media to transform information into action. HAF does all of this while building bridges that connect members of Latino communities with both the information and services they need for a better life. To learn more about HAF visit <https://hispanicaccess.org/who-we-are>.

The Mojave Desert Land Trust has conserved more than 70,000 acres of prime desert habitat, weaving together National Parks, wilderness areas, and wildlife linkage corridors. The organization works closely with a broad range of desert community members and visitors, as well as with local, state, and federal agencies. To learn more visit <https://www.mdlt.org/about/>.

Additional information about the screening of "Land, Water y Comunidad," is available online at www.facebook.com/events/215514179162941/.
