“The Trainer”
Mike Elliott

Mike Elliott plays a pivotal role in the lives of his clients—he helps them become their best ‘physical’ selves.

Before Elliott begins training a client he sits down and gets to know them personally. “We have a heart to heart. We have to,” he explained. “It’s important because I need to see who they are.” He continued, “I’ve been in tears with people, listening to the struggles some have with their weight.”

According to Elliott, in order to customize a workout for a client, “You must listen to a client’s needs and goals along with understanding their determination and will.” He explained, “It is critical to determining the most effective workout regimen to attain the desired results.”

Formally educated in Kinesiology with a focus on Exercise Biology, Elliott’s understanding of the human body, its physiology, movement, and capabilities, made his career choice of personal trainer a natural and seamless fit.

Elliott’s impact in the Riverside community extends beyond the walls of Mike’s Fitness. He also makes time in his schedule to work with recovering alcoholics, drug addicts and the homeless. When asked about this outreach effort he replied, “It’s very rewarding, you know. It’s a way of giving back to the community.”

Elliott’s business model and methodology has produced success for his clients and his business. Since he opened for business in 2008, his client base has continued to grow.

#SupportingSmallBusiness &
The Merchants of Riverside

Several years ago I had the pleasure of meeting Kathy & Benoit Malphettes at Jammin’ Bread, my favorite lunchtime eatery. They had just moved to the city of Riverside after retiring from extremely successful careers in the fashion and portrait photography industries. I didn’t know it at the time, but I had admired their work for years. As a sought after fashion and portrait photographer, Benoit was responsible for photographing the images that graced some of my favorite issues of Essence Magazine. Kathy worked behind the camera as both art director and re-touch artist. Anyone who has been fortunate to witness them at work can clearly see why their work as a team is so exceptional.

Since that time we have become great friends and professional collaborators. I even convinced them to come out of retirement, of course for the good of the community. So after working on small projects for clients and portraits for VOICE newspaper covers, we are pleased to present our first exhibit, The Merchants of Riverside, large scale artistic portraits of 16 of our favorite small businesses in the city in partnership with the Riverside Art Museum & Rotary International Riverside and sponsored by Wells Fargo Bank.

I recently read a post on a friend’s Facebook page:

*When you support small business
You’re supporting a dream.*

Yes I agree most small business owners are dreamers, many are visionaries, and all have a fierce independence. They take their dreams and turn them into realities. But they are so much more.

Small business owners employ half of the private sector, create two-thirds of new jobs, and their companies account for more than 40 percent of the private sector’s contribution to the gross domestic product. When you support small businesses in your community you are contributing to its general health because studies have shown that local businesses put more money back into the local economy. When you buy from an independent locally owned business, rather than a large retailer, significantly more of your money is used to make purchases from other local businesses and service providers. Non-profit organizations in your community receive more charitable contributions from smaller business owners than they do from large businesses. Local businesses create more good jobs and local business owners are less likely to leave and more likely to invest in the community they call home.

While working on the Merchants of Riverside project, we discovered that while small business owners started their businesses for different reasons, they all share similar attributes. They are passionate about what they do, clearly understand why they do it, and find joy in sharing their special skills, talents, or creations with others.

I invite you to learn more about some of our favorite small businesses in Riverside by joining me May 1st at the Riverside Art Museum at 2 pm in celebration of Small Business Week. By supporting them you’re not just supporting a dream, you’re supporting a more prosperous community for us all.

“The Foodists” Pat & Cheryl Duffy

Almost twenty years ago Cheryl and Patrick (Pat) Duffy opened Jammin' Bread Bakery & Café. “I don't know what made me want to be my own boss,” Cheryl reflected. “I just wanted to.”

Jammin' Bread Bakery & Café in the Canyon Crest Towne Centre offers a menu with a wide variety of impossible to resist fresh baked goods, salads, sandwiches, soups and desserts.

Its delicious menu offerings, warm and friendly staff and welcoming, bohemian themed décor is what has kept local customers loyal and made regulars out of those who experienced it for the first time.

“I love making people happy,” Cheryl confided. “I would do it for free if I could.” She explained, “If I could make someone's birthday better because of a cake that I made or a feeling I gave to them, then that's why I do it, you know? Not for the money,” she concluded.

Anyone who has dined at Jammin' Bread Bakery & Café knows Cheryl's passion is infused in the items on the restaurant's menu as if it were an ingredient like flour, sugar or salt. “I would be here baking all the time if I could,” she admitted.

When speaking about her husband and business partner Pat, Cheryl affirmed, “My husband is my support, it's not like I do this by myself. We're a team,” she added. “I can't do this without him and he can't do it without me.”

Cheryl's passion for baking, Patrick's passion for Cheryl and a mutually held work ethic and commitment to the business have combined to make Jammin' Bread Bakery & Café an enduring success.

“The Fashionista” Toni Moore

For more than thirty years Toni Moore has offered the women of Riverside a clothing selection best defined as ageless, cultured and trendy.

The Toni Moore Clothing selection is versatile enough to be interpreted one way by a woman in her sixties and another way by a college student in her twenties. This approach to style has successfully contributed to Moore’s business longevity which is largely the result of her fashion intuition.

“When I see something I think is just a beautiful piece of work, I feel it here,” she said as she clenched her chest near her heart. “When an item is added to the dress shop inventory and a customer walks in and feels the same way, that’s the part that makes you feel amazing, you know? It just does. That’s what drives you,” she explained.

Moore depends on her fashion instinct to guide her inventory selections just as it guided her career choice.

“Choose something you love,” she encouraged. “That’s the beginning of it. If you go into anything thinking only about the money, you’re going to know a lot more disappointment.”

Moore shared the story of a customer who entered the shop one day and commented, ‘It must be hard for you to stand here and smile even when you don’t feel like it.’ Moore responded, “I don’t know when I don’t feel like smiling—whenever there’s an opportunity to smile, I take it.”

“Choose something you love,” she stressed again, “So that every time you think about it, it makes you smile.”

“The Brewmaster” Ryan Wicks

When Ryan Wicks brewed his first beer about seven years ago, it not only sparked his interest and passion for brewing, it eventually inspired him to open his own brewery.

In 2013, Ryan and his father Brad opened Wicks Brewing Company and became the world's first distributing brewpub and Brew-On-Premise (BOP) facility. “Not only do we brew and distribute our own beer,” Ryan shared. “We also allow our guests to craft a batch of their own beer using our equipment and ingredients.”

Wicks Brewing has earned respect locally, throughout California and the nation. In the rapidly expanding craft beer industry, Wicks Brewing stands shoulder to shoulder with the most respected breweries in the country and according to Ryan, makes them look at what is going on in Riverside. As Vice President of the Inland Empire Brewers Guild, Ryan is working to make Riverside and the Inland Empire a mecca for craft beer connoisseurs.

Wicks Brewing is truly setting the standard. Its Paladin Hoppy Pale Ale was awarded the Gold Medal at the Los Angeles International Beer Competition for the second straight year.

Although Wicks Brewing has attained business success, Ryan's most rewarding experiences in recent years are more directly related to the people and organizations in the community he's been able to help as the business has grown.

“It's easy to get caught up in your own personal or professional hurdles and struggles,” he said. “But, when you can make a difference in the local community, that is rewarding in a way that no other achievement can compare.”

“The Bookseller” Linda Sherman-Nurick

When Linda Nurick opened Cellar Door Books in 2012, she created a rare and sacred space for book lovers not only in Riverside but throughout the Inland Region.

In 2012 Riverside had its share of large chain bookstores and electronic readers, tablets and smart phones had already changed the way literature, news and magazines were consumed. So, when Nurick decided to open her independent bookstore she knew it was a gamble; however, books mattered to Nurick and she believed they mattered to others just as much. There is something about the smell and feel of books that true bibliophiles cannot resist. It is a place where patrons take time to peruse the shelves; to discuss the latest work by a favorite author; or to be the first to crack the spine of an intriguing tale.

Although Nurick was raised in a family of entrepreneurs she was initially hesitant about taking the risk—and then, she was given a glimpse of her family’s history. Nurick read a non-fiction book written by one of her cousins. It told the story of their Russian grandparents, immigrants during the Russian Revolution. Part of the story focused on Nurick’s grandmother and how she persevered through those difficult years despite the loss of one of her two children. The narrative was historically tragic and yet movingly triumphant. It was her grandmother’s story of overcoming that most inspired Nurick—it moved her from contemplation to action and Cellar Door Books was born.

Book-clubs are hosted at the store for a variety of ages ranging from small children to adults. Nurick’s customer base includes everyone from Turkish immigrants to the parents of little boys who hate to read. She loves to tell the story of a customer who came in one day with his young son. “My son hates to read,” the father told her. “The little boy looked up at me,” she explained, “And when I asked what kind of things he liked, he replied, I don’t like to read books.” Nurick said she smiled and reached for the children’s book Dragon Breath by Ursula Vernon, a book she knew was perfect for the child.

“As we were reading,” she said. “I noticed his eyes sort of open up and I thought to myself, ‘Gotcha!’ The boy’s father whispered, thank you.”

Clients travel from as far as away as Indio and Pasadena for the warm experience of the independently owned, Cellar Door Books.

“The Bakers”
Joe & John Perrone

For more than sixty years the family-owned sandwich shop D'Elia's Grinders has remained one of the community's most popular eateries.

“It's the bread,” owners and identical twin brothers Joe and John Perrone mutually agree when asked about the business' secret to success. Be careful, however, not to ask about the bread's recipe.

“If we tell you, we'll have to kill you,” is a long-running family joke and traditional response.

Very little has changed about the business since it opened its doors in 1955 beyond the transition from a drive-in to a sit-down restaurant.

Joe and John assumed the business from their parents in 1987. Today, although the twins remain regular bakers, for the most part they are retired and have passed the day to day responsibilities of managing the business to their children. They include Joe's son, Brian Perrone and his daughter, Amy Stanfield; and John's son, Johnny Perrone Jr.

For three generations the authentic grinder shop has served-up six and twelve inch subs on delicious, secret-recipe rolls known and loved for their flaky, crunchy crust. D'Elia's sandwich selections include popular favorites like roast beef, ham and turkey.

“The Metal Artist”
Mike Grandaw

Specialists in welding and metal fabrication, Studio Steel is both an art studio and creative workshop.

It is a family owned business that specializes in custom gates, fencing and railings for modern, classic homes and commercial applications.

While the artists and designers at Studio Steel produce products that serve a functional purpose, the company also endeavors to develop products with an artistic value. Nature is a recurring theme in the company’s work. The designs often include images of succulents, suns and birds in addition to one of the owner’s specialties—the Riverside Raincross pattern. The products created by Studio Steel are designed and built exclusively for its individual customers.

Studio Steel is also sensitive to the environment and committed to giving back to Mother Earth. It accomplishes this by creating unique, one of a kind furniture pieces from reclaimed items. This approach enables the company to create new things from reclaimed material that are not only functional, but simultaneously innovative and original.

Studio Steel business owner Mike Grandaw is known locally as Metal Mike. Grandaw also enjoys making metal art pieces and has produced huge creations for the Coachella Valley Music and Arts Festival. Although Grandaw loves creating gates, rails and doors for his customers, it is the art projects that truly fuel his passion for creativity.

Mike is supported in the business by his wife Tania who helps with bookkeeping, scheduling and assisting customers.

“The Creator of Fantasies”
Martin Sanchez

What started out as a hot dog cart and morphed into a taco stand years ago; through struggle, hard work, determination and authentic Mexican food, Martin and Concepcion Sanchez successfully grew into a popular restaurant in the heart of Riverside.

As the restaurant Tio's Tacos grew, Martin's artistic passion began to flourish. He created sculptures from recycled objects—each creation reflective of his humble beginnings, his various stages of personal growth, and his life in general.

Although the eatery's delicious Mexican food has given them an opportunity to peruse Martin's creations, the restaurant; Martin's creations attract a number of collectors.

Martin has created eye-catching pyramids, fan-like structures, and figures, filled with shells, shoes, toys and a plethora of other items. His owners—and that is just the beginning. Martin's fo

“The Acupuncturists” Edward Choi & Aaron Hwang

Aaron Hwang, founder of Inland Empire Acupuncture and Herbs and his business partner Ed Choi believe that Western and Eastern medicine need each other and must work together in order for patients to get the best results.

“The core of Eastern medicine is that it has to be personalized, not generalized,” Hwang shared when speaking about the healing process of Eastern medicine. He approaches his work with an empathy that is fueled by personal experience. Hwang admitted he is a very emotional guy and has been since he was very young—it is this sensitivity he sees as foundational to his work.

As an acupuncturist, Hwang admits he has difficulty separating his job from his personal life, because he believes his profession is a natural extension of himself. “This is not a business,” he said. “It’s just a place where some people gather for help. It’s a community. When I see patients,” he added. “I want to listen to them. I want to hear what’s going on.” Hwang strives to connect with each of his patients as another human being rather than in the usual way doctors tend to interact with their patients.

“Our patients are our greatest teachers. I’m always learning and I’m grateful they choose us,” Hwang confided. “What drives me every day is my love for biology and also for myself. “Just like I love myself,” he added. “I want to encourage others to do the same and I want to teach them to love their bodies.”

“The Travel Consultant” Ina Schweitzer

Ina Schweitzer’s father dreamed of leading groups of travelers to South Africa and South America to such an extent, his dream became an obsession; until in 1978, her parents opened Travel Network of Riverside, the forerunner of European Travel International.

Schweitzer’s parents owned Der Feinschmecker (aka German Delicatessen), on the corner of Brockton and Central, and decided that their European clientele would be well-served by a local travel agency to issue airline tickets back to their homeland.

A freshman in high school when the agency opened, Schweitzer worked at the office every day after school. “After I graduated from UCR,” she shared. “I came to the office on a full-time basis, and finally became Manager in 1994.”

The agency booked cruises, tours, and rail vacations. “Our office had several airline contracts, even acted as an airfare wholesaler for other agencies in the area,” she explained. “We booked so many clients with British Airways, that my mother was asked to fly along on the Concorde from Ontario Airport to JFK to experience supersonic flight.”

The travel business changed over the years but agencies did not change with it. The advent of the Internet, 9-11 and the devastating financial effects of the Great Recession wreaked havoc on the industry. “We wanted to stay in business and were forced to re-invent ourselves to keep the doors open,” Schweitzer explained.

She decided to change the agency’s marketing strategy. “I became very active with social media. I became more active in the community and made it clear that I was accessible to my clients—regardless of the time, day or night.

For Schweitzer being an advocate became more important than just being a

“The Barber” John Jefferson

Cold Cutz owner John Jefferson has a philosophy that your business is only as good as your relationship with the community—Cold Cutz values this relationship.

Jefferson opened his first barbershop in downtown Riverside on University Avenue in 2001. In 2006, he relocated to his current location on Market Street. From the very beginning Jefferson was determined to create an environment reflective of the pivotal space barbershops hold in African American culture.

Historically, barbershops have served as meeting places as well as grooming places. Jefferson defined a true barbershop as an open forum for all people to debate, share and build relationships—a collective dynamic, focused on male-centric issues and grooming.

Jefferson was destined to be a barber. In 1986 he cut his first head, his own. “It was a terrible job,” he admitted. He tried again on his brother’s head and while he still didn’t do a great job, that attempt was much better. In 1988 he cut his first head in a make-shift barbershop in a garage. “A flat top,” he shared. “With the name “Jazzy” inscribed on the back, right above the fade.” From that day forward Jefferson was a hit in his community.

Jefferson’s mother encouraged him to open his first shop and yet, it was his reputation, talent, and professionalism that drew clients to his location.

“Barbering is a cultivated combination of leadership and insight,” Jefferson confided. “You need to understand what type of hairstyle the client wants, and quickly. If you don’t,” he explained. “They’ll start to question their original vision, and that’s not good for business. The artistic challenge is to find a way to marry your artistry with the expectations of the client.”

Jefferson views his vocation as a combination of cutting, barbering, and artistry. “Cutting is a mixture of art and science,” he explained. “No head is perfectly round. You have straight lines and geometric lines—you have to take into consideration the shape of their head and their face, that’s where the art comes in. When you balance the art and the science together,” he concluded, “you get esthetically pleasing cuts that really look good. You don’t even know why it looks so good, you’re just drawn to it.”

Jefferson also offers a line of organic, apothecary products to nurture the scalps and hair of his clients. The product line, ColdLabel, uses ingredients that date back to ancient Egypt. A number of shops now carry it as their house brand and it has engaged buyers internationally.

Cold Cutz is honored to provide barbering services to the Inland Empire’s diverse community and to customers who come from as far away as Hollywood and Palm Springs.

CeeAnn Thiel

Thirty-eight years ago CeeAnn Thiel opened Mrs. Tiggy-Winkle's at the Mission Inn. The whimsical and eclectic shop started as a children's store. It is named for the character, Mrs. Tiggy-Winkle who appears in the 1905 Beatrix Potter children's book of the same name.

Although a changing business climate in the intervening years since the shop opened nudged Mrs. Tiggy-Winkle's toward a more adult focused-theme, the fanciful boutique has never lost its sense of magic.

For nearly four decades CeeAnn has fostered meaningful connections with the customers she serves. “It's just the sharing of life's events,” she responded when asked about those relationships. “The fact that they trust me enough to feel comfortable telling me stuff,” she added has been her most rewarding experience in all the years she has served the community as a small business owner. During those years CeeAnn has been privileged to enjoy customers who once frequented her shop as children, grow up, move away and return to visit her years later, sometimes with children of their own.

The boutique moved from its original Mission Inn location to its current shop on Main Street years ago. CeeAnn considers Mrs. Tiggy-Winkle's as another part of the entertainment on Riverside's intimate town center mall. “People either want to buy something or they just want to be entertained,” she explained. Riverside is not a mall in the sense of today's mega

“The Jeweler”

Jim Sweaney

When Mardon's Jewelers opened for business in 1961, Marilyn and Don Harris were determined to serve the Riverside community by providing the best fine jewelry services available.

Over the years the company built a reputation for unique and unusual fine jewelry; for honesty and fair business practices; and for expert services that include custom jewelry design, appraising, and jewelry repair.

In 1999 the business changed hands and since that time, new owners Jim and Kaye Sweaney have carried on the Mardon tradition. The company is proud of a 40-year tradition of going the extra mile to seek out the best in fine jewelry.

Owners Jim and Kaye are confident there is nothing like the special memory that a gift of jewelry creates, “A memory that will shine with the fire of diamonds, the vibrant color of gemstones and the shimmer of platinum and gold.” The owners also believe, “Whether it's an engagement, an anniversary, a birthday, or just to say I love you, fine jewelry is one of the best ways to communicate your inner feelings.”

Jim and Kaye encourage residents not to think of Mardon's as just as a jewelry store, but instead to consider it a personal jeweler, ready to assist customers with all of their fine jewelry needs.

booking agent. Her message, “without your travel agent, you are on your own,” has worked. “People young and old are coming back to the brick-and-mortar travel agency to seek travel advice, to book resort vacations, dream cruises and yes—even a trip to Buffalo.”

European Travel International has strong roots in the community. “The benefit we bring is knowledge,” she stressed. “When potential clients call us they should know that we have many years of experience in this industry and they can trust the advice we give them when it comes to their travel plans.” According to Schweitzer, this holds true whether it is a corporate flight to San Francisco, a family reunion on the high seas, or a honeymoon to the South Pacific.

Schweitzer considers herself lucky she was able to travel to remote places beginning at a very young age. “This love, I hope, translates to the services I provide my clients. The daily challenges, the memories I help create, the joy of traveling and discovering new places—those are the things that keep me going every day.”

According to CeeAnn, creating the displays is her creative outlet. “I love picking colors and themes,” she said. “At this point in my life it gives me a big kick. I really enjoy it.” And, she especially loves creating scenes for the store’s Christmas window displays. Years ago,” she explained, “A friend gave me an Italian-made baby Jesus with glass eyes. “I try to do something unusual and different with how I display it each year.”

Not surprisingly, perhaps Mrs. Tiggy-Winkle’s most celebrated and widely admired artistic arrangements are found in CeeAnn’s window displays. Hardly a passerby can resist their promises of fanciful treasures and whimsical surprises that lie within—those who enter are never disappointed.

“The RainCross Maker” Bill Gardner

The skill and artistry of metalworking dates back nearly nine thousand years. The beating of a hot-molten piece of iron requires extensive knowledge and skill.

For more than twenty years Bill Gardner of Creative Metalwork has leveraged his skill and artistry in metalworking to the benefit of the City of Riverside and its residents. Actually, Gardner’s service to the community has spanned two careers. “I used to be in the city’s Public Works Department,” Gardner shared. “I was responsible for street improvement projects.” According to Gardner it was during the years he worked for the city that he started to focus on the RainCross symbol as emblematic of the City of Riverside. “I started realizing it was a nice symbol and I wanted to incorporate it into street projects.”

The RainCross symbol was inspired by the mass bell of Father Junipero Serra, founder of the California missions; and the double-cross, an ancient symbol used by Navajo and Pueblo Indians for the dragonfly which emerged each year after the summer rains. In Native American culture the dragonfly represents water, life, fertility and sacred power.

Gardner’s idea was accepted by city officials. Since then, those who look closely around town can find the RainCross symbol embossed on street-well covers and various railroad underpasses and overcrossings in addition to skate board barriers and elsewhere.

Gardner has also used his metalwork artistry to create trivets, bookends, key rings, garden stakes, door-knocks, wind-chimes, walk gates and railings, embossed with the RainCross symbol—most are made of steel and some of brass.

The RainCross symbol is unique to Riverside and its use is spreading largely due to Gardner’s vision and commitment. Gardner was honored for his work with the Chairman’s Award by the Riverside Downtown Partnership. It is largely because of his diligence the RainCross is now synonymous with the City of Riverside.

The passion and creativity evidenced in Gardner’s work was sparked when he took his first machine shop class in high school. Whether he is raising the visibility of the RainCross symbol; donating hand-crafted gates to auction for the benefit of organizations like the Rape Crisis Center; or, holding one day workshops on welding and sculptural metal work for those with a liberal arts focus who are also interested in welding, Gardner has beautified the City of Riverside not only with his art but also with his compassion.

“Le Chef Francais”

Jean Pierre Serre & Emanuel Serre

Le Chat Noir opened a little more than a year ago in downtown Riverside on Ninth Street. The upscale French restaurant is both elegant and chic.

The bistro whose name means the black cat, is owned by Chef Jean-Pierre Serre and his wife Isabelle Serre of Riverside. The couple previously owned the popular Le Rendez-Vous on the north end of San Bernardino—a bistro highly acclaimed for its preparation of such French classics as filet au poivre, escargot and coq au vin.

In the tradition of Le Rendez-Vous, Le Chat Noir adheres to its traditions. It offers the kind of French cuisine that has nearly gone out of style in a lot of regions. Although Riverside had previously struggled to support a French restaurant, Le Chat Noir is an excellent fit for the community.

Its menu is filled with a variety of favorites that include pepper steak, duck breast and chicken in wine sauce along with an assortment of fresh fish preparations. Its appetizer list includes escargot flavored with garlic butter, mushrooms stuffed with Roquefort Cheese and a cheese fondue infused with cognac. Dessert offerings include a wonderful dark chocolate soufflé, Napoleon pastry and crème brûlée.

Le Chat Noir’s decor is characteristic of a modern and intimate Parisian bistro with red and black table linens, banquettes with a metal tread plate backslash, modern light fixtures with clusters of dangling glass teardrops and a subtle placement of the feline theme is present throughout. The restaurant also features outdoor dining.

“The Framer”
Robert Gohlke

JMW Moulding Company is a family owned business that has served the Riverside community since 1976. The company specializes in custom picture frames and moldings, custom sport shadow boxes, stretch wraps, picture frame assembling, custom matting and picture frame design. “No frame to big or too small,” is the company’s motto.

Customers have returned to JMW Moulding Company again and again over the years because of its great customer service and quick turn-around time on projects.

There are many factors to consider when framing a picture including the medium, the composition of the piece, whether it is a photograph, a painting or even an object such as a t-shirt or jersey, etc. According to the experts at JMW Moulding, each decision a customer makes about the framing is critical—it will either enhance what is being framed or take away from it in some way. The right choices will determine the impact a piece will have on those who view it.

With nearly forty years’ experience in the field, JMW Moulding’s work is widely respected throughout Riverside and the Inland Empire.

Whether customers are completing framing projects themselves and need the right framing or moulding supplies to complete it or they are seeking an expert framer with just the right touch, JMW Moulding Company can provide the insight, supplies, faming and/or moulding services desired.

WELLS
FARGO

Wells Fargo wants you to feel confident managing your finances. Here are just a few ways we can help.

A conversation about financial needs

We'll spend time understanding your financial needs and discussing your accounts and options. And you'll leave with a printed summary of what you and your banker did that day, including what was discussed and the choices you made.

Welcome email

Within about an hour of opening a new checking or savings account, you'll receive an email confirming what you chose, some important information about your deposit products and services, what to expect next, and how to easily get in touch with us if you have any follow-up questions.

Monthly service fee summary

Online banking and monthly statements both include a section that explains how you can reduce or avoid the monthly service fee for checking and savings accounts. This is available in English and Spanish.

Low balance alerts

You can avoid surprises by setting up balance alerts. You will receive a text or email whenever your account balance goes below an amount you've set.
