Too Little Too Late?

When it comes to our region becoming a “warehouse empire” instead of the “Inland Empire,” in response to last week’s column (What Story Are We Writing?) one reader asked, “is it too little too late?” That question made me pause to consider if that perception has already sealed our future reality.

There were similar questions being asked in San Bernardino last Friday morning at an Assembly Select Committee on Small Business in the Inland Empire. The hearing committee chaired by Assembly member Cheryl Brown (representing cities including Fontana, Rialto and San Bernardino), included Assembly members Chris Holden (whose district includes Rancho Cucamonga and Upland) and Jose Medina (representing Riverside, Moreno Valley and Perris). They spent the morning listening to an overview of the small business climate in the Inland Empire, a growing sector of our region’s economy that gets very little publicity.

It’s clear that while Inland Empire city councils continue to approve industrial projects and re-zone land for industrial uses, there are emerging voices working across county lines including Brown, Holden, and Medina, who are asking the right questions: What are our other industry growth sectors? What are our regional strengths? What can we build on? What are our challenges? And, most importantly, as policymakers, how can we help shape a prosperous future for the entire region? “Our mission here,” Assembly member Holden remarked, “is shaping testimony into policies that are good for the people...”

Across the county line, a similar theme was heard that evening as UC Riverside officially launched the Master of Public Policy program at the School of Public Policy by welcoming its inaugural class. The first public policy school in the Inland Empire and only the third in the UC system, the school aims to be a national model for developing solutions to improve our quality of life and economic prosperity. “With fresh, bold thinking we will take a global approach to addressing regional and local policy challenges,” Founding Dean Anil Deolalikar told the 150 guests in attendance.

Special guest State Senate President pro Tempore Kevin de Leon, told the first class that “civic morality requires focus on equitable solutions to the problems society faces.” While social entrepreneur Joseph N. Sanberg charged the students to “effect systematic change” to revitalize middle class life in California. “We have a drought in California,” he said. “We also have a drought in original thinking in public policy. I expect you to be creative and original in your thinking.”

Sanberg, a member of the college’s advisory council, personally funded seven students in the inaugural class. He recalled his maternal grandfather, Abraham “Manny” Rice, for whom the scholarships are named. The youngest of 15 children born to Ukranian immigrants in Chicago, Rice moved to Orange County as a young man and led a successful life. Today, people in similar circumstances move to the Inland Empire, Sanberg said. Growing up in a working class family, he told the students, “so much had to go right

Sunday Sweet Day

Riverside

By Rory O'Sullivan

Family recipes, a cornerstone of familial history, whether passed down orally, physically taught, or consumed, becomes the blueprint and culinary backdrop of society's memory.

Serina Newborg, owner of Something Sweet by Serina, can remember her grandma's pumpkin cookies. She loved them growing up and is excited whenever she sees one of her customers enjoying them. Although over the years Serina has tweaked her grandmother's recipe a bit, she still makes sure she adds a cup of love to every recipe, just like grandma.

Depending on whether your taste falls between sweet or savory, the story of a family's history, remains present in the handed down recipes.

Ashlei McQueen, owner of Maiya Paiya Bakery in Riverside, said she can not wait to show her daughter how to make her GMO free, gluten free, vegan cupcakes. She had to invent her own recipes because of her daughter suffers from gluten allergy.

If you happen to be near the Riverside Convention Center Sunday from noon till 4 P.M. you can try their recipes and get your cupcake fix at the Inland Empire Cupcake Fair & Baking Expo. The fair will have tastings, decorating competitions, along with live baking and cake decorating demonstrations.

McQueen is one of only a handful of California bakers to make her treats that way. Some of her cupcakes, like "her triple chocolate cake" cupcake, taste "just like Reese's Pieces."

"You can't even tell the difference," said McQueen of her cupcakes. "People can't believe it, they're so excited because they can actually enjoy their cupcake."

McQueen didn't want to deny her daughter a cake on her birthday or the occasional sweet reward after a job well done so she started

Domestic Violence Being Tackled in Moreno Valley

Moreno Valley

According to statistics, in the United States, a woman is abused every nine seconds and one out of four women have been or will be abused physically from a partner in their lifetime, and it's time for change. Loving Me 1st, Moreno Valley's newest and only non profit seeking to help change these numbers, its founder, Kama Burton having been one out of four women abused decided to take action and established Loving Me 1st, in April of 2015 with the goal to help educate, prevent, as well as lend a voice to those affected by domestic violence.

On October 23, 2015, Loving Me 1st will host a launch party at the Moreno Valley Cottonwood Golf Center located at 13671 Fredrick Blvd. Moreno Valley, Ca 92553 at 6:45pm. Tickets are $25. ## Riverside Public Utilities Salutes Water Workers With Pipefitter's Day Breakfast

Riverside

Riverside Public Utilities (RPU) saluted all of its Water Field workers this morning with a celebratory breakfast at its Utility Operations Center.

Assembly Member Jose Medina, 61st District, was on hand to read a resolution celebrating water pipefitters and the great job that they do to maintain, repair, and replace water lines, mains, pipes, and more that provides services to more than 65,000 metered customers in and around Riverside.

"We wanted to take the time to thank them for the great jobs they do each and every day for our customer-owners," said RPU General Manager Girish Balachandran. "Now more than ever, we need to make sure that our water delivery system is functioning with as few leaks and issues as possible," Balachandran said. "These crews do that and so much more for our utility, or city, and our customers."

Established in 1913, RPU's water utility oversees more than 50 wells, water treatment facilities, reservoir that can store over 108 million gallons, and hundreds of miles of distribution pipelines. RPU is "water independent," relying on its groundwater resources to serve all of its customers' needs.

baking for her. After several requests from family and friends who shared her concerns about processed foods, she decided to buy a food truck a few years ago and has been baking goodies as her full time gig.

Maiya Paiya is McQueen's daughter's nickname and she says "it feels good" to not only be able to give her daughter something that tastes good and is good for her but also her community. Her goal now is to spread the word that good food also can taste good.

Newborg, like McQueen has a chocolate peanut butter cupcake that is "delicious."

"I love peanut butter, who doesn't like peanut butter," said Newborg.

McQueen also said you can be health conscious and enjoy good tasting sweets while refusing to freeze her cupcakes opting to make everything from scratch.

"We are so excited to be in our third year of the Inland Empire Cupcake Fair (IECF) 'Cupcakes for a Cause.' The response from the community has been very encouraging," said IECF creator Su Pak.

Pak also runs IEShineOn.com, a lifestyle website sharing Inland Empire events, culture, attractions and things to do. She started the event to promote downtown Riverside and give the community some local family friendly fun. She is hoping people from outside the area get a chance to experience what downtown has to offer.

IECF will also give the opportunity for local bakers to show off their best recipes. Pak is hoping the exposure will give local business owners new fans from throughout Southern California.

At the expo, consumers can enjoy cupcakes that taste like strawberry ice cream sundaes, espresso and caramel apples with a hint of spice. There will also be cookies, macaroons, cake pops, and other treats to enjoy.

Proceeds from IECF will benefit Epilepsy Education Everywhere, a local non-profit organization whose goal is to educate the public about epilepsy and provide resources for those living with the condition.

2015 Inland Empire Annual Survey Results

By S. E. Williams
Staff Writer

This week California State University San Bernardino's Institute of Applied Research released its 2015 Inland Empire Annual Survey. Over 1100 San Bernardino County residents were randomly selected and participated in this effort.

The annual survey has been conducted in San Bernardino County (and, at times Riverside County) since 1996.

The survey provides policy-based research in relation to issues important to the Inland Empire and gives local decision-makers objective, accurate and current information for the evaluation of key public and private sector services and activities including retail services, education and transportation. The report describes public perceptions related to quality of life, state of the local economy, perceptions of the region as a place to live and work. Such regional focus is considered essential for the ongoing discussion of key local and regional issues.

This year's survey, sponsored by California State University San Bernardino, Mojave Water Agency, Omnitrans, and City of Rancho Cucamonga, analyzed the county's public opinion on the economy, crime, ratings of the county as a place to live, private and public services, commuting and confidence in elected officials.

Every five years, the US Census Bureau releases a report on migration within the US. The most recent report, released in February, 2014, showed the largest migration in the country, nearly 42,000 people, was from Los Angeles County to San Bernardino County. Although economists believe the movement was largely because it is cheaper to buy a house in San Bernardino County than in LA. Further, people also consider the central part of the county as being a place that is close to everything—an hour from the mountains, an hour from the beach, and hour from the desert. Both of those issues have been mentioned in previous survey reports as positive factors about living in the County

This year, nearly two-thirds of responding residents rated San Bernardino County as a “very good” or “fairly good” place to live. This year's rating was slightly higher than last year's rating. Collectively, about two-thirds of respondents or 66 percent believe the County is a “very good”

Free Health Screenings Under Obamacare

Thanks to the Affordable Care Act (ACA), or Obamacare, many preventive screenings are now available for free. Save on out-of-pocket expenses. Start small with these four screenings.

Blood Pressure

Nearly one in three Americans has high pressure, also known as hypertension. Blood pressure should be tested every two years after age 18, and more often once you reach 40-and the ACA makes this screening free to all. Women who are pregnant or considering getting pregnant should be especially wary of high blood pressure - this and other issues including free mammogram screening, can be addressed at a well-woman visit, which is also free under the ACA.

Type 2 Diabetes

If you have high blood pressure, you should also have a free type 2 diabetes screening performed. Type 2 diabetes is the most common form of diabetes and often occurs in overweight people. Diabetes occurs when the blood sugar levels are too high, which can lead to nerve damage, kidney disease, blindness and other disabilities. Lowering blood pressure, weight and cholesterol can help to control and manage type 2 diabetes.

Cholesterol

Too much cholesterol - a waxy, naturally occurring substance in the body - can build up in the arteries and restrict blood flow. If cholesterol screening indicates high cholesterol, your doctor might recommend medicine or lifestyle changes such as eating food with less fat and cholesterol, exercising more and avoiding tobacco smoke. Screening for cholesterol is recommended every five years for men over age 35, and women who have, or are at risk for heart disease.

HIV

The human immunodeficiency virus (HIV)

can develop into acquired immunodeficiency syndrome (AIDS). No cure for HIV currently exists. If it is caught in early stages, however, HIV can be controlled through the use of antiretroviral therapy (ART), which can help one live a relatively normal life. The only way to know if you have HIV is to get tested; therefore everyone aged 15-65 should get tested at least once. Pregnant women should also get tested, as the virus can be spread from mom to baby during delivery and in breastfeeding, unless the mom uses (ART).

A typical HIV screening is performed by taking a blood sample or cheek swab, which can be placed through a rapid test (10-20 minutes) or a lab test (two weeks).

for me to achieve this level of success. We can't leave our future to luck or chance...systematic change doesn't happen by chance, it happens through good policy and a focus on revitalizing the middle class."

So while developers continue to push warehouse projects in cities throughout the region, I am optimistic that change is lingering in the particulate matter-filled air. Giving her own testimony at the Assembly Select Subcommittee hearing San Bernardino Supervisor

Josie Gonzales remarked, "If we want a better identity we must use our combined demographics to our advantage." And starting with our region's state legislators, it seems as though the leaders of both counties are starting to work together to develop policies that shape that "new narrative" of a vision for our future before it truly is too late.

Best Choices for San Bernardino Elected Leaders (at this time)

Hardy L. Brown

Over the past few years, San Bernardino County and San Bernardino City's elected officials have taken their citizens through some trying times through their decisions on policies affecting and embarrassing the city (i.e. corruption and bankruptcy trouble) while the population of under achieving students continues to grow.

We have seen and continue to see the influence of unlimited financial contributions to city council candidates as a major problem to better government. Any time an elected official's campaign is fully funded by all public employees who live in other cities but work for in San Bernardino, leads to unfair financial policies being adopted against taxpayers and other employees.

In addition when those same employees pool their high-income salaries and flood the voting citizens with materials full of half-truths during an election season, to influence voters on whom they should vote for. Therefore, it is important for all voters to look at who is funding campaigns and WHY. I emphasize "WHY" because there are many influencers in the election process: including people and organizations who contribute to campaigns for good and noble reasons while others for their own selfish motives. So question local candidates why and how they gained support and eventual funding from certain organizations and groups.

We need good citizens on our school board because in order for our society to ever thrive we need a highly educated and trained labor force to provide us a good community. It is very important for every child to reach their highest potential and achieve their dream in society. That can only be achieved when we elect trustees who in policy-making decisions include every student.

The government has earmarked millions of dollars to local districts with no restrictions on what this money will be used for. So in essence, many different groups and organizations with ideas on improving student achievement will compete with one another to secure and procure these funds. As taxpayers and citizens, it is imperative to become involved in not only your child's education but your neighbor's children, and the children within the entire community when electing the best candidate to do the right thing for the right reason.

For "Better Government in San Bernardino," this coming November, I recommend you vote for the following candidates:

School Board Members

Gwen Dowdy Rodgers
Margaret Hill
Mike Gallo

City Government Positions

Roxanne Williams 6th Ward
Scott Beard 5th Ward
Gigi Hanna City Clerk
Gary Saenz City Attorney
David Kennedy City Treasurer

The GOP Debate and The Cowardly Mr. Trump

Citizens of America: While you were distracted last week by, among other things, the Republican Party's marathon, second primary debate, the U.S. military, acting on orders from President Obama, completed its takeover of the American Southwest – suspending the Constitution and imposing martial law, taking residents' guns, and throwing those who resisted into secret detention centers.

Oh, wait: that's the bizarro-world version of the military's Jade Helm 15 "war games" exercise the conservative echo chamber hysterically claimed this spring was part of the president's plan to ultimately take over the country, dissolve Congress and declare himself president for Life.

In the real world the rest of us live in, the two-month exercise ended September 15th as quietly as it had begun. Military officials pronounced themselves satisfied that it had given members of the military's various special operations forces war-games training in an environment whose terrain approximated that of the world's Middle Eastern and African hotspots.

It's worth recalling the fierce controversy that engulfed the Jade Helm 15 exercise for months before it began for two reasons. One is to understand how similar the tone of the lunatic claims made about it were to such other right-wing-generated Obama-era scares as: the supposed "death panels" of the Affordable Care Act (Obamacare); the claims last fall that the death of one individual in Dallas who had been infected with the Ebola virus while in Liberia was the harbinger of an Obama-created epidemic about to sweep over America; and, my personal favorite, that President Obama's September 2009 nationwide speech to be piped to public school students in their classrooms was really his attempt to indoctrinate them in the tenets of socialism, or communism, or Islam – or all three simultaneously.

Adding up the mix of right-wing extremism, pathological idiocy and cynical fear-mongering in those conspiracy theories provides an excellent framework for analyzing the GOP's behavior in Congress and on the campaign trail today – be it Congressional Republicans' plans to force another shutdown of the federal government or their staging purely symbolic votes against the Iran nuclear deal.

The "Gang of 16" Republican presidential primary candidates have left no doubt they're committed to this lunacy, too. Sampling the comments the contenders' made on such issues as immigration, foreign affairs and vaccinations for children during the debate at the Reagan presidential library, the New York Times editorial of September 17 described them as "a collection of assertions so untrue, so bizarre that they form a vision as surreal as the Ronald Reagan jet looming behind the candidates' lecterns." The editorial's title: "Crazy Talk at the Republican Debate."

Unfortunately for the country, "crazy talk" has become a chief requirement of Republican Party politics – the result of the GOP having so debased the honor of the practice of politics and having so denigrated "Washington" all these decades, and especially once the nation's first Black president took office. The great irony is that, in part because of Obama's skill at out-maneuvering Republican attempts to undermine him, those chickens have come home to roost most sharply within the GOP itself: None of its current leading contenders for the nomination – Donald Trump, Ben Carson and Carly Fiorina – have ever held elective or appointive office; while the GOP Base is ignoring or punishing those contenders who have.

This is what happens when you debase

the honor of politics – which, after all, is the art of the possible, of compromise, of trying to work through opposing, or just complicated, points of view, of tolerating difference. When you debase "politics," you open wide the door of the cesspool of intolerance.

Fittingly, Donald Trump, whose callousness and racism have propelled him to the top of the Republican pile, has now shown in the most dramatic way the moral swamp that is the demagogue's true character. For all his promises to, as president, stare down this and that world leader to get what he wants, the cowardly Mr. Trump couldn't even stand up to a two-bit bigot in New Hampshire who demeaned the Office of the Presidency and called for the ethnic cleansing of all Muslim Americans.

What made Trump's cowardice stand out even more was its coming just days after the shameful ordeal endured by 14-year-old Texas high schooler and technology whiz Ahmed Mohamed served to underscore the vast potential for "making American great again" that undoubtedly lies within America's newest immigrant groups – and a vast number of native-born children who now stand outside the gates of opportunity.

So, while we all calculate which of the Republican candidates won or lost from last week's debate, the broader question we should also be considering is how long will American society be living with the virus of right-wing extremism let loose by the moral collapse of the Republican Party.

TARNISHED H.E.R.O.

Part 2 of 2

A closer look at Western Riverside Council of Government's P.A.C.E. program

By S. E. Williams
Staff Writer

Since its inception in 2011, the Home Energy Renovation Opportunity program has expanded rapidly in California. To date, more than 514 million dollars in financing has been extended to homeowners and more than 30,000 residential projects funded.

The program is managed by the Western Riverside Council of Governments (WRCOG) in partnership with San Diego based, Renovate America, who provides the Residential Property Assessed Clean Energy (P.A.C.E.) funding for the projects.

This week, in exclusive interviews with The Voice, Barbara Spoonhour, Director of Energy and Environmental Programs, Western Riverside Council of Governments and Ellen Qualls, Spokesperson for Renovate America, answered a number of pressing questions regarding the program, its benefits and potential pitfalls.

The H.E.R.O. program provides funding for clean-energy home improvement projects and homeowners have welcomed the opportunity to participate.

Many of these homeowners escaped the fate of foreclosure experienced by so many of their economic peers during the Great Recession. They survived the worst downturn in home values in recent history and joined a collective sigh of relief when property values began their slow, upward swing. Having overcome such challenges they looked expectantly toward the future, embraced the promise of clean energy and welcomed the ability to participate its revolution by making environmental friendly improvements to their own homes—an opportunity made possible by the H.E.R.O. program.

Why wouldn't they choose to participate? The program offers opportunities to enhance their quality of life at home; help create a cleaner environment for their community; and, increase the value of their property in the process.

H.E.R.O. can make all of this possible usually without any upfront investment. Also, there is no credit requirement as FICO scores are not considered in the approval process. (According to Qualls, although it is not used to qualify borrowers—the average FICO score of H.E.R.O. borrowers is 720). Also, for homeowners who do not have a monthly impound account, monthly mortgage payments do not increase.

“Eligibility requirements are based on the property not the property owner,” Spoonhour stressed. The H.E.R.O. program only requires the property owner be current on his/her mortgage payments and property taxes and not have any bankruptcies or property liens. The homeowner's employment status is not considered. It appears little, if any consideration given to an applicant's ability to repay the loan.

It appears the most important qualifier for a H.E.R.O. loan is a minimum of ten percent equity in the property.

Interest rates on H.E.R.O. loans are tied to the Swap Index. “It's the general index that most set their interest rates to,” she explained. “The term and interest rate are based on the life of the product being installed.” Interest rates are fixed and currently range between 6 and 8.35 percent. The term can be 5, 10, 15 or 20 years.

Loan payments are only billed as a line item on the homeowner's property tax bill. Unless the homeowner has an impound account and advises the lender to adjust their monthly impound payments to cover the projected increase in the property tax bill, he/she will likely face sticker-shock when the first property tax bill comes due.

For example, the average H.E.R.O. loan in Riverside County is $22,000. If that $22,000 is amortized over the maximum allowable term of twenty years at a mid-range interest rate of 7 percent, the homeowner's property tax bill would Renovate America requires all contractors to call in their pricing for the products and improvements on each contract. “We use a deviation system so they can be within one or two percentage points of what the costs are for those particular products and improvements in the area.” Both the contractor and the homeowner are advised of any deviations. “Sometimes the contractor will lower the price but it is the consumer's choice.” In other words if the contractor will not lower the price to within the range of deviation, the homeowner can agree to pay the higher price or consider another contractor.

Qualls expounded, “One advantage of how the program has grown is the agency is now contracting with more than 5,000 companies.” She also claimed the agency only approves projects for amounts within the range of deviation.

“ In August, the H.E.R.O. program announced the launch of a new service that provides information about contractor performance, dispute resolution and legal issues to law enforcement if required. The service is only available for water projects in communities where H.E.R.O. is available.”

be increased by over a thousand dollars every six months.

It is important for homeowners to understand that unpaid H.E.R.O. loan payments morph into delinquent property taxes. If they remain unpaid for a maximum of five years, the property will be sold at a public auction for delinquent taxes.

Another area of significant consideration is how contractors are paid through the H.E.R.O. program as well as how conflicts between homeowners and contractors are resolved. “There is a list of registered contractors that have gone thru training for the H.E.R.O. program,” Spoonhour explained, “Customers are free to select contractors from this list or use their own, provided the contractor is licensed, bonded, insured and authorized to work within the jurisdiction.”

Some customers have complained about what they perceived as price gouging by some contractors. According to Spoonhour, WRCOG/

Contractors are paid after the property owner has signed-off that the work was completed and they are satisfied with the project provided. This part of the process is clear; but, it does not explain what happens when a homeowner is dissatisfied with the work and refuses to sign a completion certificate. Are WRCOG and/or Renovate America, accountable for helping homeowners seek resolution to contractor conflicts? Critics believe the agencies have protected themselves with the equivalent of a “weasel clause” on this issue. It is easy to understand this perception.

According to Spoonhour, “Property owners enter into a separate agreement with the contractor. We are the financing mechanism,” she explained and continued, “If the completion certificate is not signed [by the homeowner] the contractor is not paid and the property owner must work it out with contractor.” She added how her agency works to help find resolutions with contractors; and for the most part, has succeeded in finding them—but, not always.

According to Qualls, “It is up to the homeowner and the contractor to reach resolution.” Accordingly, if the contractor is wrong, WRCOG/Renovate America has a compliance program under H.E.R.O. “It is not in the contractor’s best interest to resist.” She said, “We will suspend them if they are not resolving problems with homeowners; but, she qualified, there are also instances when the homeowner is at fault.” Qualls further explained if a resolution is not reached, the contractor could (but not always) be compelled to fix the problem or change the bill to reflect what should have been billed. Occasionally, a representative from Renovate America team will actually go out and inspect the home.

WRCOG/Renovate America offers both dispute resolution and investigative services.

fiscal obligation recorded against the property can assume first position. When the homeowner wants to refinance or sell the property, lenders often require the H.E.R.O. loan be resolved. Resolution could include paying the loan in full from the proceeds of the sale/new financing or authorization must be secured from the lender to subjugate the H.E.R.O. loan.

Despite all the program’s safeguards, concerns continue to simmer regarding the long-term impact the program might have on vulnerable segments of the population who participate. Critics are concerned about the risks these individuals take when they transform a sacred asset—the equity in their homes, into a property tax lien that can leave them with a property tax bill beyond what they can reasonably afford to pay.

When asked about this concern Spoonhour sales. “We’ve done projects in more than 38,000 homes in California and there have been less than 10 instances where there was a tax default,” Qualls shared. “It is like any other financing. You have to plan for it.”

However, H.E.R.O. was introduced in 2011 and the five-year-clock that marks time until a property can be sold for back taxes is still ticking for loans initiated that year—2016 and beyond may provide startling revelations regarding the program. In the meantime, borrowers without impound accounts can face exorbitant property tax bills every six months that for some, may be difficult to manage. For example, a homeowner in Riverside County with an average H.E.R.O. loan amount of $22,000 at 7 percent interest amortized over 20 years could face an increase in their property tax bill of over $1,000 every six months. For many, such an amount can be easily managed; but, for others who live payday to payday—it can be a difficult payment to make.

Again, an applicant’s credit rating and income are not considered in the loan application process, neither is the extent of their existing debt or by default, their ability to repay the loan. If the equity is there; if the mortgage is current; if the property taxes are current; if there is no bankruptcy; and, there are no liens—the loan is approved. Only time will reveal the true impact of this creative approach to financing home improvements.

In the meantime, the newly announced Hero Protect initiative may go a long way toward helping to mitigate some of the concerns described here. According to reports, program administrators have already suspended contractors with inactive licenses from participating in the program and more than 60 individuals or contracting companies have been suspended for violations of the program’s Code of Conduct.

Renovate America has a hotline, (888) 720-HERO, staffed Monday through Friday from 9:00 AM to 5:00 PM to respond to complaints related to financing and/ or contractors. Complaints can also be forwarded by email to the agency’s Investigative and Dispute Resolution team via internet at heroprotect@heroprogram.com.

For more information on the H.E.R.O. program visit www.heroprogram.com.

Financing of HERO Protect, a process designed to provide resolution and investigative services. It will also escalate offered at no charge to all homeowners with energy and able.”

“Because of the size of the H.E.R.O. program we have a lot of leverage to make the customer happy and the program’s size and scope is an incentive for contractors to stay with it.” Yet, despite these efforts, there are still instances where homeowners have been forced to seek resolution in the courts.

In situations that cannot be resolved and the contractor is not paid through the program, the agency still appears to be off the hook, “We haven’t financed anything so it is not a H.E.R.O. project,” Spoonhour claimed. Sadly, in these instances contractors can file suit against homeowners who will be left holding the proverbial bag so to speak possibly without any support from the agency.

Another issue that has cast some dispersion on the H.E.R.O. program is related to the loans. The program is structured so the loans stay attached to the property in first position requiring the H.E.R.O. loan to be paid in full before any other replied, “People need to do their due diligence. They are financing a large ticket item. The H.E.R.O. program is not always the best option for financing for everyone.” She continued, “We currently talk to property owners during the application process regarding terms and financing amounts and they also receive their financing summary so they can see the impact before the finance process is completed.”

Extra precautions are also taken with any applicant 62 years of age or older. Seniors receive a follow-up telephone call from Renovate America after the application process is completed to insure they understand the terms of the agreement and to be sure they are not being taken advantage of. There is also a three day right of cancellation that is not available with other financing options.

With the H.E.R.O. loans payments tied to property tax bills, the agency is not overly concerned about the potential for tax default

All right, title, and interest conveyed to and now held by the trustee in the hereinafter described property under and pursuant to a Deed of Trust described as:

More fully described in said Deed of Trust. Street Address or other common designation of real property: 81850 Golden Star Way , La Quinta , CA 92253 A.P.N.: 764-500-040-4
The undersigned Trustee disclaims any liability for any incorrectness of the street address or other common designation, if any, shown above.
The sale will be made, but without covenant or warranty, expressed or implied, regarding title, possession, or encumbrances, to pay the remaining principal sum of the note(s) secured by the Deed of Trust. NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS: If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on this property.

NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE
Note: Because the Beneficiary reserves the right to bid less than the total debt owed, it is possible that at the time of the sale the opening bid may be less than the total debt.
NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call (866)-960-8299 or visit this Internet Web site <http://www.altisource.com/MortgageServices/Default/Management/TrusteeServices.aspx> using the file number assigned to this case 2014-08848-CA. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. “Despite the report’s positive economic assessments and strong ratings of San Bernardino County as a very good or fairly good place to live, the perception of high crime rates in some parts of the county resulted in the report’s assessment that citizens’ general fear of crime has remained unchanged year over year.”

or “fairly good” place to live—an increase from 2013’s 62 percent (which was the lowest since the inception of the survey in 1997) and slightly above last year’s 65 percent. Although this number is trending in the right direction, it is still below pre-recession levels.

In 2013, evaluations in this category were broadly based, and there were no significant differences noted based on age, ethnicity, income, or education; however this year, Hispanics rated the County as “very good” or “fairly good” in higher numbers than non-Hispanics (71 percent of Hispanics vs. 66 percent of non Hispanics). Beyond that variance, other ratings of the county were relatively consistent by subgroups of age, income, or education.

There were, however, differences in evaluations based on the city of residence of the respondent. A closer look at city-specific analysis revealed Ontario and Rancho Cucamonga/Alta Loma residents gave the highest ratings of the County as a place to live and people in San Bernardino gave the lowest.

In the area of economics, the number of residents who rated the county’s economy excellent or good improved significantly over last year but still remained lower than pre-recessions levels. In addition, the number of respondents who reported they are better off financially than they were a year ago has also increased. Interestingly, younger people appeared more optimistic about their financial futures than older people; renters were more optimistic than home owners; and, Hispanics were more likely than non-Hispanics in thinking they will be better off financially in the coming year.

Despite the report’s positive economic evaluation assessments and strong ratings of San Bernardino County as a very good or fairly good place to live, the perception of high crime rates in some parts of the county resulted in the report’s assessment that citizens’ general fear of crime has remained unchanged year over year. However, since 2007 there has been a slight upward trend in the fear of crime even as actual crime for the most part has trended downward.

During an exclusive interview with the report’s author, Dr. Barbara Sirotnik, she concurred results in this category are partly based on reality and partly on perception. “All you see on the news is death and destruction,” she explained. “People are very sensitized to that; but, they also see the broken windows in their communities and that brings up fear.”

According to the report, fear of crime does not always change in lock-step with actual crime statistics. Indeed, even when crime statistics decrease significantly, it often takes many years before people’s fear of crime subsides. The level of fear of crime has remained stable in the annual report for the past three years.

Many more Hispanics than non-Hispanics expressed that they are “very” or “somewhat” fearful of being the victim of a serious crime. There were no statistically significant differences in such fear based on age although younger people were slightly more fearful than older people. In addition, people 65 or older expressed the least amount of fear overall.

Between the first half of 2012 and the first half of 2013 crime declined in five out of six of San Bernardino County’s most populated cities. This year’s data is not as encouraging—crime decreased in only three out of the six cities. Included among them are Rancho Cucamonga, Victorville, and Rialto. Unfortunately violent crime increased in San Bernardino, Ontario, and Fontana.

According to the report, “The costs of fear are both individual and collective. Fear can confine people to their homes, and it undermines their trust in their neighbors and, especially, in their neighbors’ children. Fear is a key “quality of life” issue for many people. Research has also indicated that concern about crime has bad consequences for the neighborhoods in which we live. Fear leads to withdrawal from public life. Fear undermines the value of residential property and thus the willingness of owners to maintain it properly. When customers, and even employees, fear entering a commercial area, the viability of businesses located there is threatened.”

This year’s respondents also gave good marks to selected private and public services in the area rating libraries the highest among all evaluated services followed by police/sheriffs, shopping and parks and recreation. Also, as might be expected, street and road maintenance services received the lowest marks.

The entire report can be viewed on line at http://iar.csusb.edu/reports/ie\_annual\_survey.html.
