A Tale of Two Cities, Volume II

Current City Council Rejected. Current City Council is Divided and Fighting. And this means no progress. Get out and VOTE. Bring back the stability to get Perris moving in the right direction.

Citizens Reaching Citizens

The Moreno Valley Jobs Coalition has created this initiative to forge progress in our great city. We are taking action and standing up to anti-progress bullies. We are Moreno Valley! If you want to be a part of progress in Moreno Valley, then join us! We stand for jobs. We stand for progress! We stand for education and the rights of our people to be able to find work in the city in which they live! We are tired of having to commute for work. We are tired of being called a bedroom community. We are no longer asleep! Wake up Moreno Valley! Join our fight for jobs and progress!

Moreno Valley Jobs Coalition

Developers of the Optimus Logistics Project in Perris and World Logistics Center in Moreno Valley have both consulted the same playbook and are using the same strategy, tactics, and language to convince residents of their respective cities that warehouse and distribution center jobs equate to progress. They have both created "citizen" groups to carry their message of progress and reform. And they have both been aggressively marketing those messages to the real citizens of the respective cities.

If these projects really equal "progress" then why is there a need for so much trickery? Why create such a ruse to convince the citizenry? If we don't agree that more distribution centers are the best use of the land in our communities, then why are we "anti-progress bullies"? Why do city council members who ask questions and make demands on developers on behalf of their constituents need to be replaced? Why are these same developers investing more money in those campaigns than all other campaign contributors combined?

The REAL citizens of these two cities must decode the campaign language that these fake citizen organizations are espousing, especially the trope of "progress" they seem so fond of using in their rhetoric, as if there is only one option...one direction...one choice...and all other options don't exist. In the world of politics, the term is "progressive rhetoric." The fake citizen groups use the rhetoric of revolution - dissatisfaction, discontent, and anger against a narrative of dreams, change, progress and improvement. In truth, the real motive is personal economic gain for those developing the projects.

If these campaigns are really "by the people & for the people" as one website touts, then why have they been created by developers and paid for by developers? If the citizens of these cities really want to "stand-up for progress" they must ensure that they are the authors of their own narrative. "Demand is the driving force for when and what gets developed," the Optimus developers explain on the project website. "The demand for logistics distribution centers has never been stronger." The demands and conditions of the market are not so much about progress as they are about economics. And as we have learned in the past, especially what we learned in 2008, those economics often benefit the wealthy few at the expense of the masses of middle and working class families.

In analyzing political campaign rhetoric I once read that "citizens can better cope with persuaders of any kind by recognizing the predictable benefit-promising behavior of persuaders." It is wise to focus not only on what is being said and how they are saying it, but WHO is actually doing the talking. Our communities must decide what we want for ourselves as well as future generations. We must decide what progress means to us.

Covered California Bus Tour to Stop in Riverside

Riverside

By Rory O'Sullivan
Staff Writer

Covered California will again roll through Riverside as open enrollment becomes available Nov. 1 through Jan. 31. The Riverside County Black Chamber of Commerce (RCBCC) will host two kick off events in the city beginning with the Covered California Bus Tour stopping on day four of its journey throughout California on Tuesday, November 3rd from 7:30 AM to Noon at the RCBCC office located at 2060 Chicago Ave., Ste. A13.

On November 4, the RCBCC will host an open enrollment event at Parkview Community Hospital Medical Center, Founders Center, 3865 Jackson Street, Riverside where walk-ins are welcomed, childcare provided and plenty of information and sign ups for Covered California. This event will begin at 4:00 p.m. and end at 8:00 p.m.

Leaders from Covered California, elected officials, and community partners will make appearances and encourage uninsured Californians to obtain health coverage during the open enrollment period.

This is the third year open enrollment for health insurance has been made available under the Affordable Care Act. This year Covered California will be offering dental coverage to consumers.

A U.S. Census Report, made available through Covered California, showed California's uninsured rate dropped to 12.4 percent in 2014, down from 17.2 percent in 2013. The reduction drop is the fifth largest decline among all states.

According to the Covered CA website, you don't change overnight from a culture of coping, where people think they can't afford coverage and make do without care, to a culture of coverage.

RCBCC president, Pepi Jackson, said Black and Latino communities have historically had lower rates of health coverage compared to their White and Asian counterparts. In response RCBCC has increased the number of insurance representatives with more than half being bilingual.

"The Affordable Care Act presents historic opportunities for all individuals, especially African Americans and Latinos to get the health coverage and the care they need," said Jackson. "We offer free, confidential assistance to explore

"GMOs: All Facts, No Fiction" set for Nov. 4 at UC Riverside

Riverside

A free panel discussion featuring leading scientists from UC Riverside and UC Davis will be held at 6 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 4 at the UCR Extension Center, 1200 University Ave. Parking is free.

Moderated by Greg Jaffe of the Washington D.C. -based Center for Science in the Public Interest, this discussion is designed to illuminate and dissect one of the most controversial food issues of the modern era. This is part of the Global Food Initiative of the University of California.

"In the past few years, the debate around genetically modified foods has become more polarized than ever," said Jaffe, director of biotechnology for the Center.

"Are GMOs safe to eat? Do they increase or decrease pesticide use? Can they be used sustainably? Should there be mandatory labeling? What role will they play in future agriculture here in the US as well as in developing countries?" Jaffe asked. "The audience will encounter a civilized discussion between differing perspectives, something that has become all too uncommon with GMOs."

Panel members are Alan McHughen, a cooperative extension specialist and geneticist from UC Riverside; Norm Ellstrand, professor genetics at UC Riverside; Belinda Martineau, senior writer for the Institute for Social Sciences at UC Davis; and Josette Lewis, associate director of the UC Davis World Food Center.

The same panel discussion will take place Tuesday, Nov. 3 at UC Davis.

"These are all respected scientists, who come at the issue of GMO foods from somewhat different perspectives," said Jaffe. "We think it will make for a lively discussion."

This is the first subject of what could be an annual series with the theme "Healthy Students, Healthy Campus, Healthy Community." It was organized by the Global Food committee of UC Riverside.

Norm Ellstrand studies plant population genetics and is one of the country's foremost experts on plant gene flow, the movement of genes from one organism to another. His research has involved the study of the possibility of escape of genes from genetically engineered crops into their wild relatives as well as the potential consequences of that escape. He earned a B.S. in biology from the University of Illinois Urbana-Champaign. His research interest in plant evolutionary genetics started with his dissertation work at the University of Texas at Austin where he received his Ph.D. in 1978. He is the author of the book, "Dangerous Liaisons? When Cultivated Plants Mate with Their Wild Relatives." He is leading the effort to develop the California Agriculture and Food Enterprise (CAFÉ) at UC Riverside.

Josette Lewis came to the World Food Center after a distinguished career advancing agricultural innovation in both the private and public sectors. Josette spent 16 years at the U.S. Agency for International Development working in international research and development, then as senior biotechnology adviser and finally as director of the Office of Agriculture, where she played a lead role in developing the Obama administration's global hunger and food security efforts. She holds a bachelor degree in genetics from the University of California, Davis and a Ph.D. in molecular biology from UCLA.

Alan McHughen is a public sector educator, scientist and consumer advocate. A molecular geneticist with an interest in crop improvement and environmental sustainability, he helped develop US and Canadian regulations governing the safety of genetically engineered crops and foods. His book, "Pandora's Picnic Basket; The Potential and Hazards of Genetically Modified Foods," uses understandable, consumer-friendly language to explode the myths and explore the genuine risks of genetic modification (GM) technology.

RPU Receives Double Honors in APPA's Excellence in Public Power Communications Awards

Riverside

Riverside Public Utilities (RPU) received double honors from the American Public Power Association (APPA) at its Excellence in Public Power Communications Awards, presented recently at the association's Customer Connections Conference.

"We work hard to create communications materials that keep our customers informed and up-to-date on the work of their hometown utility," said RPU's Assistant General Manager of Marketing/Customer Relations Michael Bacich. "So we are very proud when our efforts are recognized by our public utilities peers like this."

The APPA holds the awards to recognize member utilities for their outstanding communications efforts with their customers. Twenty-four public utilities received recognition this year, with entries being judged within a newly expanded awards format featuring four separate entry categories: print, social media, video, and web.

Riverside Public Utilities received two Awards of Excellence – one in the "print" category for its in-depth Financial Report, and one in the "video" category for its "I Own It" video presentation, which features some of RPU's residential and commercial customer-owners talking about the many benefits a public power utility can provide a community.

Winning utilities this year showed ingenuity and creativity in copy, design, financial data, graphics, organization, social media interaction, video editing, web layout and interactivity, and how each utility communicates their special story.

Raiders Light Up Chargers in Game 6

San Diego

By Dennis J. Freeman/News4usonline.com

The Oakland Raiders got their groove on early. The San Diego Chargers came to their own party late. The Silver and Black wound up going home with a smile on their faces. As for the Chargers, party-crashing when everyone else has left the building, will serve as a reminder to arrive on time on the next go-round. When you get to the party late, sometimes you miss out on all the fun.

The Chargers were a no-show for three quarters. The Raiders came, partied and left with a 37-29 win in San Diego's backyard. The Raiders' victory at Qualcomm Stadium turned out to be an afternoon of fun for the visitors from up north.

"It was a great day to play some football," said Raiders rookie wide receiver Amari Cooper.

Cooper had a lot of fun. He caught five of Derek Carr's passes for 133 yards in receiving, including producing a nifty 52-yard, razzle-dazzle touchdown catch and run in Oakland's 20-point scoring outburst in the second quarter. "It was just the perfect play," Cooper said. "When I caught the ball, I saw that I had a lot of room. I kind of started to stumble but I got my footing back. I saw the guys coming and I just made some moves on them."

It wasn't such a great a time for the Chargers, who scored 23 points in the final quarter to make the score look somewhat respectable. For the first three quarters of the game, the Chargers looked as if they were sleepwalking, while the Raiders feasted in their revelry with a 37-6 lead. By halftime, the Chargers had stood by and watched the Raiders put up 30 points on them.

"You still got 30 minutes to go out there and play," said safety Jimmy Wilson. "You got to Obamacare Open Enrollment is November 1st: Applying for Subsidies?

Open enrollment for Obamacare is just around the corner and that means it is time to start thinking about applying for coverage if you haven't already done so. If you don't have one of the many 'Life Events' that allow you to apply for coverage at any point during the year, you will have to wait until the 2016 open enrollment period, which lasts from November 1, 2015 to January 31, 2016. And if you are on the fence with regards to whether you will apply for coverage or not, I would encourage you to at least give it a try to see if you are eligible for any subsidies that may lower the cost of your monthly premium.

Many individuals who haven't already applied for health insurance aren't aware that they may be eligible for federal subsidies that will lower the cost of their monthly premium and/or additional savings on additional services like deductibles and co-payments when you receive services. Whether you are eligible for free (Medicaid) or subsidized coverage is dependent on the state you live in, your income, and number of dependents.

The best way to get started and see if you may be eligible for subsidies is by visiting the "Incomes that qualify for lower costs". Chat at the Healthcare.gov website. You will be asked to select what state you live in and enter the number of dependents you claim on your federal taxes.

Once you enter that information you will be shown information explaining if your state opted to form its own marketplace or whether the federal government operates yours states exchange. If your state operates its own exchange then you will be provided a link that takes you to your states marketplace exchange.

If the federal government operates your exchange then you will be shown a chart with four different financial brackets.

There are many variables that determine whether you qualify for a health insurance subsidy, but I stress that you will never know if you qualify for one or more subsidies if you don't apply for coverage. So mark November 1 on your calendar and apply for coverage then. Who knows? Maybe you will be pleasantly surprised.

Most households qualify for coverage and may qualify for reduced premiums. About 90 percent of the 1.3 million people currently in the program get subsidies and more than 200,000 of them spend less than $50 a month for coverage.

"The most important reason to buy insurance through Covered California are the subsidies," said Jackson.

Jackson said it's also important for people who already have coverage to update their insurance information. He said several insurance plans have made substantial changes to their coverage and price structure.

"If people aren't careful they could inadvertently lose their coverage subsidies," said Jackson. "It's a reminder that the changes in the Affordable Care Act are sweeping and complex and that we need to be sure everyone understands how Covered California works and that significant financial help is available for consumers."

Local insurance providers include: Anthem Blue Cross, Blue Shield, Health Net, Kaiser, Molina and IEHP.

Attendees will have an opportunity to sign up for Covered California insurance coverage and get their questions answered. Items needed to enroll for health coverage include: CA state issued ID, proof of income, proof of citizenship or residency and Social Security numbers for members of their household.

Do The Right Thing

Hardy L. Brown

According to a press release sent from the office of James Ramos, Chairman of the San Bernardino County Board of Supervisors, the Director of San Bernardino County's Human Resources, Andrew L. Lamberto

James Ramos
Chairman, SB County
Board of Supervisors

Andrew L. Lamberto
Director, SB County
Human Resources

was arrested, charged, and cited in Orange County on a misdemeanor count of engaging in prostitution in March of 2015. Andrew pleaded guilty and was convicted August of 2015. He was charged and served 10 days of community service in lieu of jail time and ordered to three years of unsupervised probation. As of today nothing has happened to Mr. Lamberto with his employment in the county of San Bernardino but will be discussed by the Board with Greg Devereaux, CEO of the county on November 3rd 2015.

The position of Director of Human Resources serves as the face of San Bernardino County to all employees and prospective employees and sets the standard for employee behavior. That position also upholds and implements all policies that are adopted by the policymakers. One of the questions requiring answers from the supervisors and CEO should be: is this the person you want to continue to represent you and the county citizens?

When I worked in corporate America, I witnessed and fought against systems of injustice when it came to administering discipline. The saying "boys will be boys" held true for a certain group unless you belonged to the minority. Although I may not have all of the facts, Lamberto is allegedly still on the public payroll without any disciplinary action taken thus far.

Maybe this is why Chairman Ramos is taking up the issue now that it has come to his attention. As Spike Lee stated in his movie -- "Do the Right Thing" -- by the citizens and taxpayers of the county.

Jim King for City Council In Palm Springs

One name I overlooked in doing my endorsements was that of Jim King who is seeking a seat on the Palm Springs City Council. I have known Jim for a long time from his civic involvement throughout the Inland Empire where he worked for The Gas Company. Jim was a go-getter and creator of many projects that generated jobs for a diverse population while giving out educational scholarships to deserving students seeking higher education.

Since his retirement Jim has been active in Palm Springs and will serve that city well with his great reservoir of contacts and wealth of experience he learned by working with all levels of government in the Inland Empire.

Jim is honest and will keep his word once given, which is what voters are looking for from their elected leaders. Please vote Jim King for Palm Springs City Council.

To The Editor

Kudos For The Good News

Pick up the newspaper and you will read that San Bernardino is one of the cities with the highest crime rate in the nation. I turn on the TV and Internet and see that San Bernardino is one of the 10 worst cities to raise a family. The city of San Bernardino continues to be portrayed as the worst this, and the worst that. Unfortunately, the same so-called news will broadcast for three days straight as if there are no other events taking place in the world. Particularly in the sports world, negative behaviors make the headlines.

I want to share some good news about San Bernardino. Good things are happening in our city. San Bernardino has an unbeaten Minor League football team that just defeated unbeaten Las Vegas to maintain San Bernardino's undefeated record of 9-0.

The San Bernardino California Raiders, a group of young men from assorted backgrounds and temperaments, molded into a winning machine that brings positive notoriety to the city. They should be recognized and lauded for their efforts and achievements. A minor league football team that is affiliated with the National Developmental Professional Football League (NDPFL), The Raiders play teams from all over Southern California and Las Vegas, Nevada.

These young men come from different gang related neighborhoods and nobody asks about gang membership or turf. They come from law enforcement, from the corporate world, and on Saturday night the players all wear the California Raiders colors and share the one common thrill of winning a championship. This is reportedly the longest running, winningest, minor-league football team in the Inland Empire.

The Raiders have been located at San Bernardino High School, engaged in the same sport, for 10 years. On Saturday nights you will find them on the football field rather than on the street corners. How about a pat on the back and some kudos for these positive thinking football players. The detrimental elements of our society can so easily entice our young people to go astray. Consequently when we have young people in school and organizations, that are engaged in positive endeavors, we should praise and support them as much as possible.

Hats off to owner, Dwaine Radden, Sr., the coaches, the players, and supporters of the San Bernardino California Raiders. Full speed ahead to another championship!

Nursing Homes' Health Risks From

Residents Face Antibiotics' Misuse

By Lisa Gillespie

Antibiotics are prescribed incorrectly to ailing nursing home residents up to 75 percent of the time, the nation's public health watchdog says.

The reasons vary — wrong drug, wrong dose, wrong duration or just unnecessarily — but the consequences are scary, warns the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. Overused antibiotics over time lose their effectiveness against the infections they were designed to treat. Some already have. And some antibiotics actually cause life-threatening illnesses on their own.

The CDC last month advised all nursing homes to do more — immediately — to protect more than 4 million residents from hard-to-treat superbugs that are growing in number and resist antibiotics.

Antibiotic-resistant infections threaten everyone, but elderly people in nursing homes are especially at risk because their bodies don't fight infections as well. The CDC counts 18 top antibiotic-resistant infections sicken more than 2 million people and kill 23,000. Those infections contribute to deaths in many more cases.

The CDC is launching a public education campaign for nursing homes aimed at preventing more bacterial and viral infections from starting and stopping others from spreading. A similar effort was rolled out for hospitals last year.

“One way to keep older Americans safe from these superbugs is to make sure antibiotics are used appropriately all the

a year

– Dr. Victoria Walker

Evangelical Lutheran Good Samaritan Society Chief Medical Officer

time and everywhere, particularly in nursing homes,” said CDC Director Tom Frieden in announcing the initiative.

Studies have estimated antibiotics are prescribed inappropriately 40 percent to 75 percent of the time in nursing homes.

Here’s why that worries the CDC: Every time someone takes antibiotics, sensitive bacteria are killed but resistant bacteria survive and multiply – and they can spread to other people. Repeated use of antibiotics promotes the growth of antibiotic-resistant bacteria. Taking antibiotics for illnesses the drugs weren’t made to treat – such as flu and common colds – contributes to antibiotic resistance.

Antibiotics also wipe out a body’s good infection-fighting bacteria along with the bad. When that occurs, infections like Clostridium difficile can get out of control. C. diff. leads to serious diarrhea that each year puts 250,000 people in the hospital and kills 15,000. If precautions aren’t taken, it can spread in hospitals and nursing homes.

Health care facilities already have infection control procedures in place, such as providing private rooms and toilets for infected individuals. But the CDC is pushing them to do more on the prescribing side, advising nursing homes to track how many and what antibiotics they prescribe monthly and what the outcomes were for patients, including any side effects.

Other recommendations include placing someone, such as a consulting doctor or a pharmacist, in charge of antibiotics policies and training other staff in following them.

Some of the CDC’s suggestions could challenge nursing homes’ culture and how staffs, residents and their families interact. While nursing home residents and staff are among the people most at risk for the flu, annual shots aren’t mandatory. Nor do homes always track who gets them.

That’s starting to change at Evangelical Lutheran Good Samaritan Society, a nonprofit that provides a spectrum of senior care services in many states. Starting this year, it will collect data on staff vaccinations at one of its 167 nursing homes and share the pilot project’s results with other homes, said Victoria Walker, chief medical officer.

But better handling of antibiotics in nursing homes may also require tactful communication with residents’ families and nursing home doctors accustomed to treating antibiotics as a default remedy.

“There’s a real fear of under-treatment and that it is better to err on the safe side, and that means treating with antibiotics but forgetting about all the harms. But giving antibiotics can be just as harmful as not,” said Walker.

Family members may push for an antibiotic treatment when they visit a loved one in a nursing home who seems sick, even if they don’t know precisely what’s wrong. Doctors and nurses may go along because they don’t know either and it’s easier to treat than not. “The family will check in and ask what the doctor did and the nurse will say ‘nothing’ because they don’t see monitoring as doing anything,” said David Nace, director of long term care at the University of Pittsburgh, who contributed to the CDC guidelines.

“Practitioners are guilty of saying, ‘it’s just an antibiotic’ ... We don’t appreciate the real threat,” he said.

Antibiotics are routinely prescribed to treat urinary tract infections, which are common in nursing homes, but too often when a UTI is only suspected, not confirmed, studies have found. The Infectious Disease Society of America is developing guidelines to help institutions implement programs to better manage antibiotics.

In addition to fostering antibiotic resistant bacteria and causing C. diff infections, antibiotics also can produce allergic reactions and interfere with other drugs a nursing home resident is taking. Those risks aren’t always fully considered, says researcher Christopher Crnich, who has published articles on antibiotic overuse. He is a hospital epidemiologist at William S. Middleton Veterans Hospital in Madison, Wis.

“Bad antibiotic effects don’t come until weeks or months later, and frankly all we [prescribers] see is the upside when we’re dealing with a sick mom or dad,” Crnich said.

Lawsuits and Logistics

Moreno Valley Faced With Several World Logistics Center Challenges

S. E. Williams
Staff Writer

Environmental groups and conservation organizations joined forces recently and became the latest to take legal action against the City of Moreno Valley for its mid-August approval of the controversial and massive World Logistics Center facility.

The organizations also named the World Logistic Center's developer, Highland Fairview, in their complaint.

The plaintiffs in this action include the Center for Community Action and Environmental Justice, the Center for Biological Diversity, the Sierra Club, the Coalition for Clean Air and the San Bernardino Valley Audubon Society.

These environmental and conservation organizations coalesced in the filing because they are united in their disapproval of the World Logistics Center's probable impact on the environment particularly in relation to human health and threats to nearby animal habitats. The organizations are also united in their allegation that the city failed to adequately mitigate all of the impacts identified in the Final Environmental Impact Report.

The World Logistics Center is designed to be a 40-million-square-foot warehouse complex estimated to be equivalent in size to 700 football fields. The developer projected (though detractors doubt) on completion it could bring as many as 20,000 jobs to the area.

In the months leading to the project's approval by the Moreno Valley City Council many residents, environmental organizations, conservation groups as well as government agencies like the South Coast Air Quality Management District, the County of Riverside, the Transportation Commission among others expressed concerns related to the project's potential impact on human health, the environment and traffic as it relates to road capacity and increased vehicles.

There was also particular concern expressed regarding the San Jacinto Wildlife Area (SJWA) as it is located in near proximity to the development site on the southeast end of the city. The SJWA is approximately 19,000 acres (including 9,000 acres of restored wetlands) and serves as a refuge to several species of birds.

When the project was approved by the council in August, Mike Millsbaugh, spokesperson for the Moreno Valley Group of the San Gorgonio Chapter of the Sierra Club, expressed his organization's concerns to the VOICE regarding the potential health implications that might result from the increased traffic the project would draw to the area—the increase will certainly come with more diesel pollution. According to public estimates, the project could draw as many as 14,000 additional trucks to the community.

The suit initiated by the environmental/conservation groups was just one more in a plethora of legal actions initiated against the City of Moreno Valley since the project's approval in August.

Legal actions against the city began in earnest on September 15th when the Riverside County Board of Supervisors voted to take legal action against the City of Moreno Valley for its failure to mitigate potential traffic issues. Those issues related most specifically to Gilman Springs Road. The road is currently two lanes and falls primarily within the county's jurisdiction.

The Final Environmental Impact Report recommended the road be widened to between four and six lanes. Since most of the road is within the county's jurisdiction, Moreno Valley allegedly offered no provisions, nor did it provide any guarantee as to whether the recommended road modifications would ever be made.

Two days later, the city was hit with a second law suit initiated by the South Coast Air Quality Management District. This suit alleged the city failed to adopt adequate air quality protections when it approved the project.

The state agency claimed the project could, due to traffic projections, increase the levels of nitrogen oxides and the city had failed to authorize appropriate mitigation to combat the potentially harmful health impacts.

Also on September 17, the Riverside County Transportation Commission and the Southern California Environmental Justice Alliance filed similar suits against the City of Moreno Valley, both related to traffic.

In at least two of the cases filed against the city, plaintiffs claimed to have made repeated attempts to reach a purposeful solution with city officials before filing suit. Their efforts purportedly failed—this limited their options. In addition, plaintiffs asked the court to set aside the World Logistics Center's Final Environmental Impact Report and mandate the City of Moreno Valley complete adequate mitigation initiatives before the World Logistics Center Project is allowed to move forward.

3rd Annual Salute to Labor Unions Awards

This year marked the third year that the NAACP Riverside Branch honored labor unions as they saluted local heroes during the third annual “Salute to Labor Awards Red Carpet Dinner and Dance”. The event was held at the Riverside Convention Center with this year’s theme being Two Movements One Goal—United We Win. For over 70 years, the Riverside NAACP has sought to reaffirm and honor people in the community who have exhibited outstanding traits of leadership as well as a belief promoting diversity and equality. At this salute to labor event, over 300 union loyalists and “Friends of Labor” came together to honor and say thank you to the countless men and women who served as the very fabric of our great nation and whose contributions to their communities are endless. “We can’t thank them enough for their years of outstanding service to our communities,” said Labor Union Awards Chair and NAACP Second VP Sharron Lewis-Campbell.

NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE

WILL SELL AT PUBLIC AUCTION TO HIGHEST BIDDER FOR CASH, CASHIER'S CHECK DRAWN ON A STATE OR NATIONAL BANK, A CHECK DRAWN BY A STATE OR FEDERAL CREDIT UNION, OR A CHECK DRAWN BY A STATE OR FEDERAL SAVINGS AND LOAN ASSOCIATION, A SAVINGS ASSOCIATION OR SAVINGS BANK SPECIFIED IN SECTION 5102 OF THE FINANCIAL CODE AND AUTHORIZED TO DO BUSINESS IN THIS STATE:

All right, title, and interest conveyed to and now held by the trustee in the hereinafter described property under and pursuant to a Deed of Trust described as:
More fully described in said Deed of Trust.
Street Address or other common designation of real property: 43-472 Bordeaux Drive, La Quinta, CA 92253
A.P.N.: 609-620-062-1

The undersigned Trustee disclaims any liability for any incorrectness of the street address or other common designation, if any, shown above.

If the Trustee is unable to convey title for any reason, the successful bidder's sole and exclusive remedy shall be the return of monies paid to the Trustee, and the successful bidder shall have no further recourse.

The beneficiary of the Deed of Trust has executed and delivered to the undersigned a written request to commence foreclosure, and the undersigned caused a Notice of Default and Election to Sell to be recorded in the county where the real property is located.

NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS: If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on this property.

NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE

Note: Because the Beneficiary reserves the right to bid less than the total debt owed, it is possible that at the time of the sale the opening bid may be less than the total debt
NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call (866)-960-8299 or visit this Internet Web site <http://www.altisource.com/MortgageServices/DefaultManagement/TrusteeServices.aspx> using the file number assigned to this case 2014-03098-CA. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. Raiders, continued from page 6

step up and go out there and make the best out of it. We knew they were going to run the ball, so we tried to get as many three-and-outs as possible, give our offense a chance. Our offense started scoring the ball. Maybe, if we had two more minutes on the clock it would have worked out, but that's not the way it goes. Anytime you give up 30 points at half, the game is over."

To win in the National Football League consistently, there are two basic concepts that never seem to fail: run the football and play defense. The Chargers struggled with both on Sunday. Another game has gone by, and the Chargers' run game has become all but nonexistent. While the Chargers rank first in yards from scrimmage (430 yards) and first in passing (343.6 yards), they rank 29th out of 32 teams in rushing (87.1 yards) the football.

Unfortunately for the team's sake, the imbalance of the Chargers' offense against the Raiders was on display again. Quarterback Philip Rivers attempted 58 passes, completed 38 of his throws and passed for three touchdowns. On the dark side of things, Rivers also threw two interceptions. Meanwhile, the rushing attack became none and void, generating less than 100 yards (90 yards total) between Danny Woodhead, Melvin Gordon and Brenden Oliver. At 2-5, what do the Chargers have to do to get back on the winning track?

"We don't have a choice," Wilson said. "We are about as low as we can get. We've got to figure it out, come to work on Monday. Everybody needs to have thick skin. Got to watch the film, correct ourselves, and get back to it, get back to the grind. We're men. We can't run from it. We have a whole season to play."

There's always a bright side to any situation. The bright side for the Chargers Sunday was showing off their prolific offense in their 23-point fourth quarter. Another positive sighting was that quarterback Philip Rivers ripped off another 300-yard game (327 yards). Wide receiver Keenan Allen (9 catches, 89 yards) continues his offensive rampage. But this is where the train stops.

Those 23 points came too little, too late for the Chargers.

We've got to learn from it, first of all," Allen said. "It's still a learning process. Obviously, when the offense gets rolling, we can score points. It's just a matter of doing it early and finding ourselves and having a vision of making plays and winning the game."

Winning starts at kickoff. The Chargers waited a little late to turn their game juices on. Meanwhile, the Raiders came ready to play.

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF RUSSELL PALMER

Case Number RIP 1501107
To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of: RUSSELL PALMER aka RUSSELL O'NEAL PALMER. A Petition for Probate has been filed by: JANICE CERRA in the Superior Court of California, County of: RIVERSIDE. The Petition for Probate requests that: JANICE CERRA be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent. The petition requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority. A hearing on the petition will be held in this court as follows: Date: DECEMBER 9, 2015 Time: 8:30 A.M. Dept.: 08, 4050 MAIN STREET, RIVERSIDE, CA 92501. If you object to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney. If you are a creditor or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within four months from the date of first issuance of letters as provided in Probate Code section 9100. The time for filing claims will not expire before four months from the hearing date noticed above. You may examine the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk. Attorney for Petitioner CHARLENE L. USHER, ESQ. USHER LAW GROUP, P.C. 7056 ARCHIBALD AVE. #102-315, CORONA, CA 92880
