Labor Strikes on the Rise: UAW Negotiates with Big 3 for Better Working Conditions and Fair Compensation

The U.S. Department of Labor notes that 4.1 million work days were lost in August due to strikes—the highest since August 2020. (Image by Chris Allen, VOICE)

When the United Auto Workers (UAW) walked off the job at selected facilities recently, it was just the latest occurrence of workers putting their employers on notice that enough is enough.

There have been more than 287 labor driven actions at no less than 452 locations across the country this year as of September 25 and the Labor Department notes that 4.1 million work days were lost in August due to strikes—the highest since August 2020 according to a Wall Street Journal report.

Labor actions in 2023, however, are not an aberration. The number of workers involved in a major strike (involving at least 1,000 workers) increased by 50% in 2022 compared to 2021, Bureau of Labor Statistics' data shows.

As the UAW negotiates with the auto industry's Big 3 including Ford, General Motors and Stellantis, the union is calling its strategic approach to the action a "stand up strike". Currently only three plants in three different states are impacted but according to UAW president, Sawn Fain, however other locations could and are expected to strike at any time.

In addition to pay raises, the workers are seeking restoration of cost-of-living adjustments; a secure pension and increased retiree pay; in addition to the right to strike over plant closures; protection for temporary workers; and more paid time off.

It is a laundry list of requests that could be part of almost any union negotiation in today's economy.

Conflicts Over California's Rising Gas Prices Continue

Oil companies and distributors blame recent price hikes on events overseas or problems at local refineries but consumer advocacy groups disagree. (Image by Chris Allen, VOICE)

Phyllis Kimber Wilcox | Staff

Gas prices in California continue to climb, making the cost of filling up at the pump even more arduous.

Such high costs are creating tensions among consumers and reports of people siphoning gas from parked cars by drilling holes into gas tanks have increased.

Oil companies and distributors blame recent price hikes on events overseas or problems at local refineries but consumer advocacy groups disagree, they are blaming cost hikes on profit seeking. This is not the first time advocacy groups have accused oil suppliers and refiners of unethical practices. California pays some of the highest prices for energy in the country. As reported by KTLA News, oil companies, refiners, producers and suppliers also explain price differences as an outgrowth of several factors including California's stricter regulatory and environmental policies.

The California Energy Commission however, explains the state's high gas prices as follows, "Filling up the tank in California also costs more since gasoline prices are higher on average than the rest of the United States for a few reasons. These reasons include the isolated nature of the state's transportation fuels market, a special gasoline recipe that reduces air pollution, environmental program costs, and taxes."

When discussing the isolated nature of California's fuels market the California Energy Commission further explains the gas bought in the state, by law, must be refined here and the refineries and distribution centers are far from "alternative sources of resupply" in critical situations.

Consumer groups insist that greed is the issue. According to a report by Consumer Watchdog, a non partisan consumer advocacy group. "Five refiners—Chevron, Marathon Petroleum, PBF Energy, Phillips 66 and Valero—make 97% of the state's gasoline." They are in a position to restrict gasoline supply to drive up gas prices. They have consistently restricted supply and artificially driven up their prices significantly in excess of their costs."

Record Prices

According to the Automobile Club of Southern California, in Riverside, California, the average price for regular gasoline is $5.90 per gallon while in San Bernardino the average price for regular gasoline is a little over $5.94 a gallon.

Governor Gavin Newsom believes oil companies are price gouging. This after Californians paid the highest prices ever for gas in the state, last year—between the months of August and October, prompting the nonpartisan advocacy group, Consumer Watchdog, to make the case to the Governor's office for a windfall profit tax against California Oil refiners.

"The proof of the gouging is in the oil refiners own profits reported to investors," said Jamie Court President of Consumer Watchdog. He further noted that when the California gap with US gas prices was $1.25 per gallon in June, California refiners reported unprecedented profits in the West of more than $1 per gallon – up to ten times their return last year.

Now, according to Court, the California gouge gap with US prices has doubled to nearly $3 per gallon.

"California oil refiners' windfall profits have surely grown and could have doubled because their production costs have not increased," Court declared. "The truth will come out in third quarter investor reports released at the end of the month."

Historically, every gas price spike in California shows up as a profit spike as well. "The only way to rein in these outrageous gas

Trigger Warning: This article discusses the topic of suicide and suicide prevention.

September is recognized as National Suicide Prevention Month. In 2021, more than 48,000 Americans died as a result of suicide — that's one death every 11 minutes, according to the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC).

During the month of September, mental health and suicide prevention organizations

increase awareness and encourage discussion around the topic to destigmatize those who are struggling with this condition.

“It's important just to recognize and highlight the amount of people that we've lost, or people that are currently struggling, and ways to just normalize mental health and suicide prevention all together,” said Carmen Diaz, who is on the California board of directors for the American Foundation for Suicide Prevention (AFSP). Diaz has been volunteering and working with AFSP since 2012.

With National Suicide Prevention Month underway, the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) launched the addition of American Sign Language (ASL) services through the 988 Suicide and Crisis Lifeline.

The three digit number was launched last summer in order to support those who are struggling with mental health issues or who are in crisis by shortening the original 1-800-273-TALK phone number.

The new ASL features will now help millions of callers who are deaf, hard of hearing or have hearing loss by using a videophone which transmits both video and audio. Earlier this year, the 988 Suicide and Crisis Lifeline also introduced text and chat features for Spanish speakers.

“It is distressing to note that, in 2021, per the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration's (SAMHSA) National Survey on Drug Use and Health, roughly 12.3 million adults and 3.3 million adolescents had serious suicidal thoughts,” Xavier Becerra, secretary of the Department of Health and Human Services, said in a statement.

Diaz shared that this month is a time to learn different ways that people can get involved in supporting those who are struggling with mental health conditions and to remind those who are struggling that they're not alone.

In a recent meeting with the California Black Caucus, Governor Gavin Newsom shared his proposal to fully fund the Middle Mile Broadband Infrastructure Project (MMBI).

The MMBI, paid for by both state and federal funding, plans to create the physical infrastructure necessary to bring high speed high capacity internet to the entire state. The MMBI project will provide an open access network giving network providers "wholesale access to broadband infrastructure." In turn network providers can pass on these reduced costs to their subscribers. This is being done by utilizing a combination of the most "cost effective" approaches including leasing, purchasing and jointly building the needed infrastructure.

Adoption and income

Studies have shown for years prior to the pandemic that students' access to the internet has been tied to the socio-economic and educational attainment of their parents.

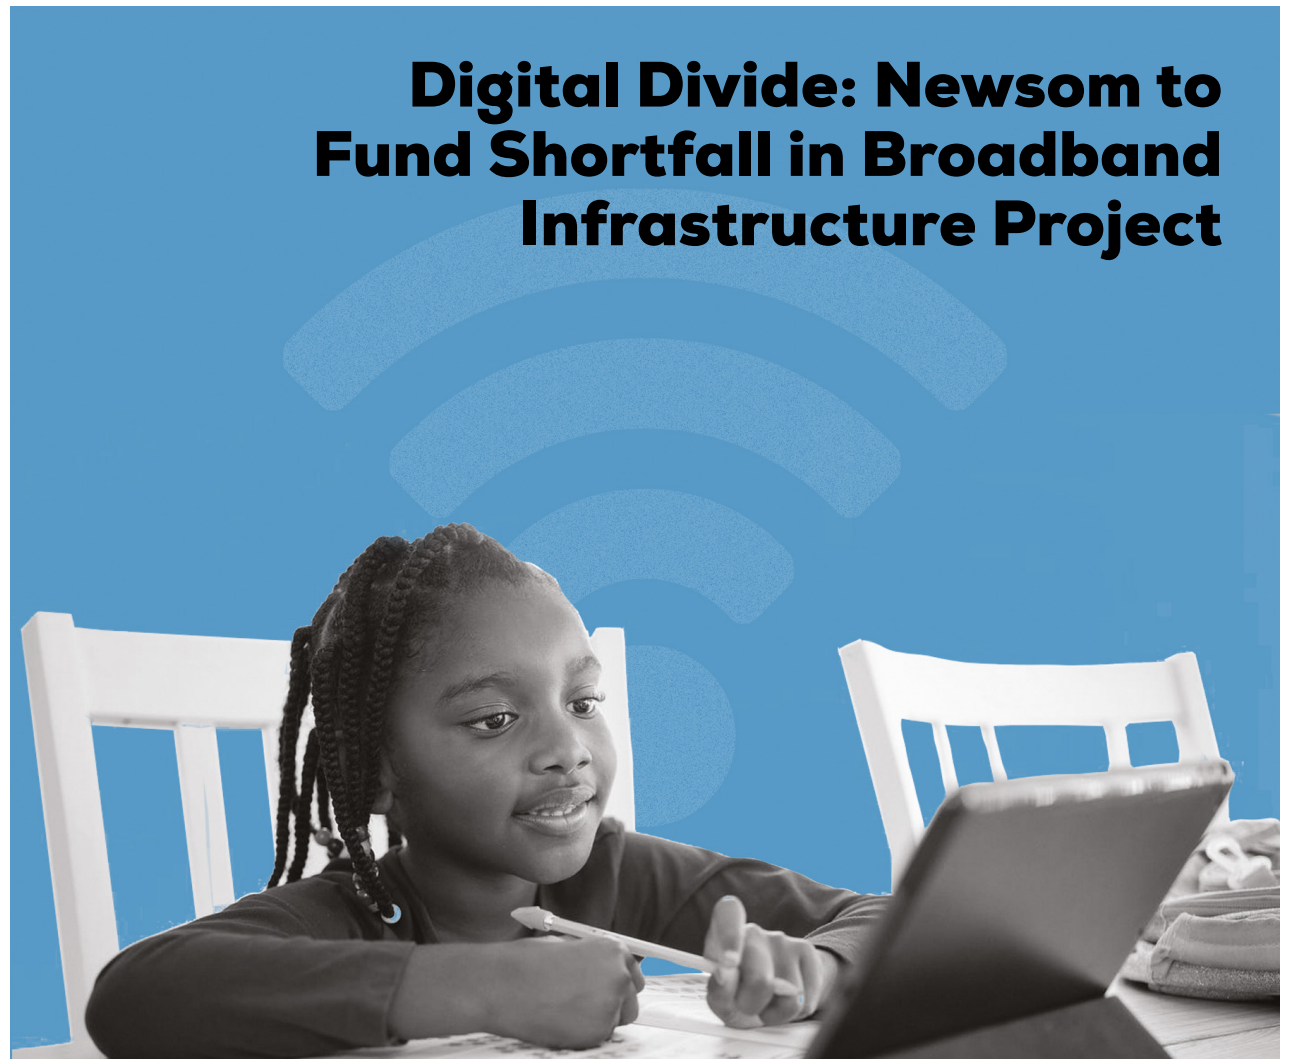

The effects of internet access on cumulative student achievement however, has been a mixed bag with some studies suggesting internet access for rural students is not proven to be determinative for overall educational attainment. While others have claimed the opposite effect. According to the National Association of Education Statistics using the National Assessment of Educational Progress, or (NAEP) as a metric, students without the internet scored lower on these assessments than those with the internet. The NAEP is a standardized test which measures grade level academic performance.

The Digital Access Achievement Gap is Larger for Older Students

What is known is that students' access to the internet increases with age; and pre-pandemic the internet was used as a study tool. Those without reliable access to that tool may have faced an additional obstacle to learning and achievement.

Pandemic Spurs Action

At the height of the pandemic instruction went online making the internet essential to student education. Those without computers or the internet or only had access to the internet through smartphones were scrambling for help. Some school districts either provided computers for students or provided internet access themselves.

The MMBI project is an outgrowth of the Governor and State Legislature's 2021, six billion dollar investment to make the internet accessible to all Californians. At the time Newsom stated, "California is committed to taking on the challenges laid bare by the pandemic, including the digital divide holding back too many communities across the state,"

Also according to the governor, "These projects are the first step to delivering on our historic investment that will ensure all Californians have access to high-quality broadband internet, while also creating new jobs to support our nation-leading economic recovery."

Reaffirmed Commitment

Until now, the size, scope and complex nature of the MMBI project has kept it from completion at its original rate of funding. Inflation and construction costs have left a shortfall which the Governor wants to remedy by proposing the MMBI be part of California's January budget. This would pay for the remaining infrastructure, some seventeen hundred miles of fiber optic

Top 5 Oil Refiners Control 96% of Gasoline In California

Source: California Energy Commission

According to the Consumer Watchdog organization, “Five refiners— Chevron, Marathon Petroleum, PBF Energy, Phillips 66 and Valero—make 97% of the state’s gasoline.” (source: consumerwatchdog.org) prices is to take back the oil refiners excess profits,” Court advised.

The ongoing battle to control the price consumers pay for energy in the state is extensive but a few of the highlights include hearings in past years before the California Energy Committee to address the concern that oil refineries are overpricing the gas sold to name brand gas stations who must by law purchase their gas from California state refineries. While independent gas stations on the other hand, are allowed to purchase their gas from another source,

Other efforts aimed at curtailing prices are culminated in a bill signed by the Governor Newsom allowing the state to assess penalties against gas refineries accused of overpricing. This was followed by what has been called an attempt to weaken the legislation.

These and other concerns have prompted the Governor to announce a lawsuit against several large oil companies over the negative effects of their business models on the climate. In his announcement of the suit made in September at New York’s Annual Climate Week, Newsom stated in part, “[T]he issue is fossil fuels and the issue is the deceit from these companies”

Spokespersons for the oil industry claim that the Governor’s lawsuit and others like it lack merit and are attempts to “politicize” as well as “demonize” an entire industry.

New California Watchdog

In order to address these ongoing issues, Governor Newsom has created a new position, that of an Oil Watchdog. Tai Milder, an appointee with the State of California’s Energy Commission, has been tasked with identifying illegal or irregular behavior, as well as structural or technical problems by oil companies and to refer them to the California Attorney General’s Office for prosecution.

“The proof of the gouging is in the oil refiners own profits reported to investors,” said Jamie Court President of Consumer Watchdog. (source: consumerwatchdog.org)

Due Process: Seeking Justice in Southern California's Inland Empire

"I Fear for My Life" Part 1 - Adam Garcia's Nightmare

Gail Fry | Contributor

From its beginning, the case against Adam Garcia was riddled with conflicting official documents.

Whether legitimate errors, sloppy work, intentional malfeasance, or a combination, the charges against Adam and the appearance of a haphazard judicial process, has created turmoil in Adam's life and raised serious questions about the integrity of the Riverside County criminal justice process.

Adam is accused of serious crimes by Riverside County District Attorney (RCDA) Michael Hestrin. They include being over the age of 21, and enticing a minor under 16-years-old to a location to engage in unlawful sexual intercourse.

Who is Adam Garcia?

Previously, a longtime Riverside County resident, Adam was 33 years-old when arrested and worked at a restaurant. He loves art, music, had dreams of owning an art gallery, and plans for his own signature hot sauce.

Adam claims he is innocent, doesn't know the victim, and says the alleged events described by RCDA in the case, never occurred.

Since his arrest, Adam has studied law and legal processes, representing himself (pro per) against what he views as "an illegal arrest and criminal charges." With the charges pending, Adam is unable to find employment, his life is on hold, and his future... uncertain.

Conflicts in the case from the start

Court records show the case against Adam began on March 23, 2018, when deputy district attorney (DDA) Samantha Paixao filed an electronic complaint. The court also shows Adam was arrested on March 9, 2017, however, Adam says no arrest occurred.

The alleged incident happened within the jurisdiction of La Quinta. Its police department captain, Misty Reynolds' email explained,

Adam Garcia poses at the Chevron Gas Station in Studio City, the first location he was taken in an unmarked vehicle on March 28, 2021, when he was kidnapped by a man who, according to Adam, claimed he was a sheriff. This is one of many incidents where Adams says he was targeted by the Riverside DA that have caused him to fear for his life. (Aryana Noroozi for CatchLight Local / Black Voice News) their department "signed the arrest warrant declaration [for Adam] on March 8, 2017," but, "did not make an entry about an arrest on March 9, 2017."

Adam is arrested, claims "not Mirandized"

Adam's life forever changed when the Newport Beach Police Department (NBPd) arrested him October 26, 2018. However, it remains a mystery how NBPd learned of the April 2, 2018, Riverside County arrest warrant.

Adam and his mother, M. Garcia, were inside the family recreational vehicle outside a Newport Beach hotel when two police officers contacted them claiming the hotel complained about their internet use. M. Garcia recalled denying the allegations, and moving the vehicle. Later, they were surrounded by 8 to 10 police vehicles, the officers held Adam, his mother, and brother at gunpoint, handcuffing Adam and placing him under arrest. Adam claims no advisal of being placed under arrest, no arrest warrant was presented, and no Miranda Rights were read.

NBPd records show Adam was arrested before the warrant abstract (no arrest warrant) was received from Riverside County Sheriff's Department (RCSD). Adam's bail was set at $25K; his family raised the money, and bailed him out.

FEATURE STORY

The missing arrest warrant

Adam requested a copy of the April 2, 2018, arrest warrant from RCSD, RCDA, and the court. At the court clerk's office, they obtained RCSD Investigator Kenneth Willow's declaration, with a note acknowledging it was the only document available in court records related to the warrant.

Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI), Criminal Justice Information Services Division records, which reflect all arrests and warrants, show Adam's October 26, 2018, arrest occurred, but no warrant.

FBI and court records conflict. Black Voice News' examination of the court's register of actions found no arrest warrant on April 2, for Adam. A warrant abstract indicates an arrest warrant issued April 2, 2018, by Indio Superior Court Presiding Judge Becky Dugan. Willow's declaration shows Judge Villalobos approved $25K bail on April 1.

A copy of the April 2, 2018, warrant has not been located.

A questionable bench warrant

By March 2020, COVID-19 gripped the nation, its people, and its institutions, including superior courts where criminal cases are heard and decided.

Adam's case continued its journey through the justice system at a time when court hearings were sporadic and he was not receiving notice; Adam discovered that notices from December 2018, to January 2023, were mailed to an Aladdin Bail Bonds address in San Jose. Aladdin is the company that issued his bail.

After being made aware of a hearing by a district attorney receptionist, on August 3, 2020, Adam emailed DDA Molly Tucker advising he was enroute for his hearing, when Adam appeared at the Larson Justice Center in Indio, Allied Universal Security staff (Allied) prevented his entry over COVID-19 concerns.

An email from Allied Universal Security verifying that they had denied Adam entry to the court on August 3, 2020, due to exhibiting symptoms of COVID-19.

Adam, missing his hearing, petitioned Allied staff, who advised they would contact the bailiff, and recommended Adam return in the afternoon, after which Allied staff directed Adam and M. Garcia to the DA's office where they were kicked out.

Adam then called the court and was advised to file a request for a hearing, which court records show Adam filed the same day.

Despite Adam's efforts, on August 3, 2020, the court clerk issued a bench warrant and sent a Notice of Forfeiture of Bail to Aladdin Bail Bonds.

Adam subsequently filed a motion and declaration testifying to his August 3, 2020, court appearance and entry denial with emails from Allied, and requesting the bench warrant be recalled.

With the November 18, 2020, hearing on the bench warrant approaching, the court denied Adam's request for an emergency continuance due to family illness.

In Adam's absence, DDA Tucker held an ex-parte hearing, persuading judge Hopp to retain the bench warrant. Adam was not notified of the court's decision. A questionable arrest by an unauthorized agent

January 28, 2021, Aladdin Bail Bonds, directed by the court to arrest Adam, was granted additional time to locate and arrest him, based on the retention of California Surety Investigations, and their contracting with fugitive recovery agent a.k.a. bounty hunter Otto Carchi. Carchi provided a supporting declaration.

In Carchi's declaration, Carchi claimed he attended the Ventura County Sheriff's Academy, however, a written response to a request for verification of this claim indicates otherwise. Carchi also claimed to be compliant with the state's educational requirements, and bail companies hired him as an investigator.

On March 28, 2021, Adam, his mother and brother, unaware Carchi was after Adam, noticed an unmarked car following them.

Carchi, accompanied by three men, confronted Adam inside their Studio City parking structure, guns at Adam, his mother, and brother. Carchi displayed sheriff emblems on his clothes, declared he was a sheriff and demanded Adam exit the vehicle and surrender. Carchi told them his name was David.

Adam surrendered, was handcuffed, and placed in the unmarked SUV. Enroute to jail, Adam recalled, Carchi stopped at Starbucks leaving him handcuffed in the SUV for about 15 minutes. Upon returning, Carchi refused Adam water.

Carchi then traveled to the Los Angeles Twin Towers Jail, leaving Adam inside the SUV for about 45 minutes. "[I]t was just really hot inside, you know. [It] felt like torture, intentional torture, I thought I was going to die."

Records show it was 85 degrees that day. According to the journal, Pediatrics, a car's interior can heat up by an average of 40 degrees Fahrenheit within an hour, regardless of ambient temperature. It also noted 80% of the temperature increase can occur within the first half-hour.

Adam says Carchi then transferred his custody to a plainclothes man who exchanged Adam's handcuffs, and put on ankle shackles, placing him in an unmarked car. Adam was then transported to the Robert Presley Detention Center in Riverside and booked.

Enroute, Adam questioned the man in plainclothes. Who did he work for? What was his name and badge number? The man replied his name was Ricardo and all were part of a Riverside County District Attorney Special Unit, while withholding his badge number.

Adam, jailed, his relatives obtained $25K bail from Tenwick's All-Mobile Bail Bonds (Tenwick's), securing his release. Court records show the bench warrant remained active.

Court negligence and Carchi's interference led to a 2nd illegal arrest

On March 29, 2021, Carchi discovered Adam was released, Carchi contacted Tenwick's, convincing them Adam's relatives provided false addresses, that their use of a P.O. Box on their bail documents was suspicious, and raising doubt Adam would attend court.

Carchi alleges Adam and his family members used post office boxes as their home addresses, Jose Garcia of Tenwick's claims he did not know the family was using a P.O. Box. Tenwick's Co-Owner, Terry Tenwick, also claims in her written statement that Adam's family phone was disconnected on March 31, 2021, Jose Garcia claimed no one responded to phone/text messages left on March 29, that M. Garcia attempted to have Jose Garcia sign a declaration rather than be subject to future legal action.

In response, M. Garcia provided an authorized recording of their telephone service provider assuring the telephone lines were in service until July 7, 2021.

M. Garcia explained to Jose that Adam could decide that his testimony was necessary, which could be done through a declaration or through a subpoena issued by the court. Jose informed M. Garcia that Tenwick's does not allow its employees to provide declarations.

their agent Michael Casas that Adam was being rearrested and to hire Carchi to locate and rearrest Adam.

On April 26, 2021, Carchi located Adam in the City of San Fernando. The video reveals Carchi with an “Investigator” badge, guns, and handcuffs, accompanied by a similarly-equipped individual, demanded Adam surrender.

The Garcia family was staying at a relative’s home while mold was removed at their residence, a situation the bail company was aware of according to M. Garcia.

Again, Carchi transferred Adam’s custody to Ricardo of the “Special Unit” who again delivered him to the Robert Presley Detention Center about two and a half hours later.

Enroute Adam observed Ricardo receiving communications from an unknown person. Adam overheard, “Hey, don’t have [him] – book[ed] until the DA talks to him.”

“[I]t’s kind of weird that the DA wants to talk to me,” Adam wondered. “So, I thought that possibly some other intentional torture might come about if I met that DA,” Adam dreaded. With both arrests, Adam recalls how he felt unsafe until he was booked, testifying, “I was fearful throughout the entire time.”

Adam shared both times enroute to jail he was driven at speeds of over 100 miles per hour worrying, “That’s dangerous. We could die, going that fast.”

Adam further observed all individuals involved in both arrests with Carchi, looked like law enforcement, with guns, vests, handcuffs, and badges. In response to Adam’s questions, Carchi claimed to be both a sheriff, and part of the Special Unit of the Riverside District Attorney.

Adam admitted that during both arrests he prayed, “I just decided to pray and I decided to pray out loud.” Adding, “I had to do it because I feared for my life.”

Both times Adam was booked at the jail, Ricardo of the “Special Unit” did not provide jail intake with any arrest warrant or documentation from the bail companies authorizing his arrest.

At jail intake the second time, Adam recalled the Riverside County Sheriff Deputy remarking to Ricardo, normally we are given

On September 9, 2022, Adam and M. Garcia pose outside of their former Studio City apartment where in March 2021, Adam was forced to exit his mother’s car and surrender himself to a man who claimed he was a sheriff. Adam says he was then kidnapped for hours fearing for his life as he was trapped in a hot SUV twice, describing it as “intentional torture.” (Aryana Noroozi for CatchLight Local / Black Voice News) documentation.

A 10-fold bail increase

On April 26, 2021, DA Investigator Dennis Porras, along with Carchi, signed declarations recommending a bail increase to $500K to ensure Adam’s court appearances. Carchi signed his declaration “investigator.”

The Declaration for Increased Bail, revealed on April 26, at allegedly 7:07 p.m., in the DDA’s presence, RSC Judge David Gunn increased Adam’s bail ten-fold to $250,000 based on Porras’ and Carchi’s declarations. Court records show no April 26 entry, only an entry for the Declaration for Increased Bail, and Affidavit for Undertaking of Bail filed on April 28.

Porras’ declaration confirms, “Deputy District Attorney Tucker has been in contact with Otto Carchi.”

Adam obtained Terry Tenwick’s statement from Tenwick’s bonding company, Banker’s Insurance where Tenwick stated, “I did not fully understand the purpose of the call from an unknown investigator; I was left with the impression that Carchi was working with the Riverside DA’s Office to apprehend the defendant.”

DDA Tucker emailed Adam a 12-page Declaration for Increased Bail with attachments alleging to be the document filed with the court, however, when pressed, Tucker provided only a 2-page filed-stamped copy of the Declaration referring to Carchi’s Declaration and Tenwick’s statement.

KEEPING IT REAL

“The only thing workers have to bargain with is their skill or their labor. Denied the right to withhold it as a last resort, they become powerless. The strike is therefore not a breakdown of collective bargaining-it is the indispensable cornerstone of that process.”

- Paul Clark

Unions, once deemed the savior of working people, began to lose their power and popularity in the 70s but as the economy globalized, technology expanded and the service sector became most prominent in the world of work shifting the workforce and the way labor unions needed to operate in response.

Even as technology and the global economy has changed the world for workers, some things remain consistent---people have a right to safe working conditions, a harassment free environment and fair compensation.

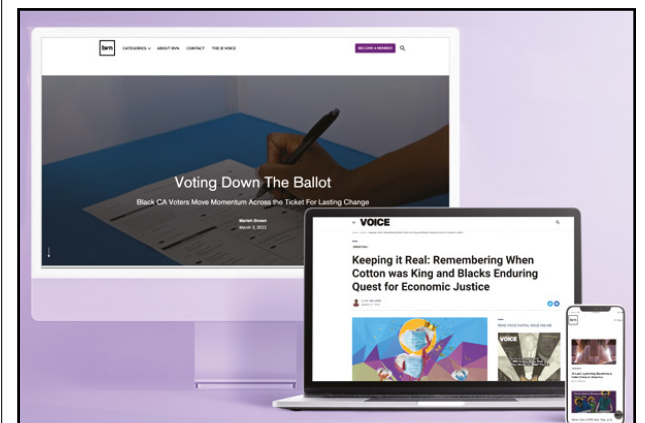

COVID-19 taught hard lessons about work place safety and when it come of fair compensation it is disturbing to see corporate profits skyrocket along with executive compensation while workers continue struggle to afford housing or pay far too large a share of their income for housing, gasoline prices are skyrocketing, healthcare costs are expected to spike, and food prices remain high.

In my estimation what workers are asking for is reasonable but I also know the corporations will never absorb the cost(s) of whatever agreements are made nor will any executive give up a dime from next year's compensation and/or bonus. What normally occurs is that these costs are passed along to the consumer in even higher prices and of course, once again the wages will not keep pace. This is capitalism where those who have will always win and everyone else will pay for their games and their gains. There must be a better way.

Of course this is just my opinion. I'm keeping it real.

A Bureau of Security and Investigative Services (BSIS) email confirms no investigator license for Carchi while claiming to be an investigator in several declarations, claimed to work as an investigator by multiple bail companies, and had an investigator badge.

Carchi's firearms permit application from BSIS reveals a 1998 arrest and conviction for an unpermitted concealed weapon in a vehicle. BSIS records show Carchi's firearm permit was canceled.

BSIS records confirmed Carchi is not authorized to carry a firearm, and is not a licensed investigator.

Tenwick's authorized Carchi through a contract with LA Fugitive Services to arrest Adam. Certificates from the California Department of Insurance (CDI) confirm no license under LA Fugitive Services.

Email response to request for public records confirms no documents showing any license for LA Fugitive Services, L.A. Fugitive Services, and Los Angeles Fugitive Services with the California Department of Insurance.

LA Fugitive was not found as a business entity at the California Secretary of State (SOS), or in business records at Ventura or Los Angeles Counties.

California Surety Investigations, the company hired by Aladdin Bail Bonds that contracted with Carchi, has a canceled license at CDI.

Carchi received a $2,500.00 check from Tenwick's payable to the U.S. Clandestine Fugitive Operations, LLC., referencing payment to Otto for Adam's arrest.

Certificates from CDI confirm no license as a fugitive recovery agent under Otto I. Carchi, LA Fugitive Services, or U.S. Clandestine Operations, LLC.

The Franchise Tax Board suspended U.S. Clandestine Fugitive Operations, LLC. on April 2, 2019, according to SOS records, with agent, Otto I. Carchi, using a post office box. Suspended corporations are prohibited from conducting business.

California law required fugitive recovery agents complete 40-hours of instruction certified by California Police Officer Standards and Training, and 20-hours of pre-licensing classes, and if they have a felony conviction, be licensed by CDI. Effective July 1, 2023, bounty hunters are required to be licensed with CDI.

Carchi, without legal authority, without a license, arrested Adam and transported him to another county. California law defines kidnapping, in part, as when a person, by means of instilling fear, arrests any person, carrying them into another county.

"I am afraid for my life," Adam confided, "I am afraid I may get kidnapped again by Carchi or by the DA."

Adam hopes sharing his story may help others and those with similar experiences will come forward with their stories. Adam would like to have the State Attorney General to look into his case.

Adam Garcia, is facing serious felony charges before the Riverside Superior Court. Conflicting official records in this case call into question the validity of the charges against him. Watch for Part 2 of Adam's story in the coming weeks.

Students' access to the internet has been tied to the socio-economic and educational attainment of their parents. (source: news.usc.edu)

cable. The announcement was made public in a tweet by the California Legislative Black Caucus after the meeting in which the Governor renewed his comment to the project

The importance of the MMBI project to homes and schools in vulnerable communities which lack internet access, is an ongoing concern for the California Legislative Black Caucus and part of the MMBI's mandate.

Health. Telework and the Pandemic

During the Pandemic not only did students rely on the internet for instruction, adults relied on it for keeping track of the public health crisis, telecommuting and online work, making internet access important to keeping the economy going. However, there were differences in how the internet was used based on one's economic status.

In a study by Nature magazine, internet usage during the pandemic was compared by zip code and findings highlighted disparities in the search terms most frequently used showing that higher income individuals were more concerned with the health implications of the ongoing crisis while lower income individuals were more concerned with unemployment and meeting basic needs. "We isolate the percent change in health condition query proportions introduced during the pandemic where the differences between high- and low-income groups start to emerge. We observe that low income zip codes experienced almost 200% less change in health condition queries compared to that of the high-income groups right after the US national emergency is declared," the study noted.

It also described the digital divide as the most basic form of digital inequality. It stressed how, "the so-called first-level digital divide, manifests itself as the difference between adequate and inadequate digital infrastructure and devices," in other words with the access to technology or the quality of access to technology.

Riverside and San Bernardino Counties

The MMBI is being built using existing CalTrans right of way. Riverside and San Bernardino counties are both in region five of the MMBI project. The proposal is to build three hundred and eighty miles of internet infrastructure in Riverside County. Currently three hundred and eighty miles are in the pre-construction phase with one hundred and thirty miles planned for phase two. None of Riverside County's construction is complete. In San Bernardino County six hundred and seventy six miles are in the pre-construction phase with one hundred and seventy miles planned for phase two. None of San Bernardino County's construction is complete.

The project continues to provide important employment opportunities in the Inland Empire and throughout the state. The California Department of Technology's MMBI Advisory Committee has created partnerships with local community leaders such as legislatures, tribal governments and local officials to determine the quickest, most efficient ways of building broadband infrastructure.

In addition to the 988 crisis line, there are several other resources for those who need support or who want to support others.

AFSP's Inland Empire and Desert Cities Chapter hosts "Healing Conversations" for survivors and those who have lost someone to connect with experienced volunteers. These conversations are available in person, on the phone or by video chat.

Additionally, AFSP is hosting several "Out of the Darkness" community walks as a way to remember those who lost their lives and to support others. On Sept. 30, AFSP is hosting the Riverside County Walk at Fairmont Park. There are other planned walks in other regions across the Inland Empire.

"The purpose is to bring together people from all backgrounds who want to prevent suicide, or friends and families who have lost someone to suicide, including vulnerable individuals, mental health professionals, educators, students, community and business leaders, and many others to join together and help fight the suicide rates and just to have that sense of community," Diaz explained.
