No Myth in Germany Says Quelle

by Dennis Hatcher

The West German Consul for Public Information, Herbert Quelle, spoke to a large assembly on CSCSB on the topic of post War Germany.

Addressing the audience in a room filled to capacity, Quelle focused the first half of his discussion on the question, “What makes the Federal Republic of Germany (F.R.G.) different from the Third Reich?” After explaining the fundamental differences in Germany’s Basic Law and political structure, Quelle turned the discussion to some of the more critical issues facing the U.S. and the F.R.G.: American soldiers in Germany and the stationing of nuclear missiles there.

The subject of soldiers and missiles is a highly charged and emotional issue for Germans. While the stationing of American troops in Germany, as part of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO), has long been viewed by some as merely an extension of the occupation immediately after WWII, nuclear weapons in their homeland is seen by most Germans as intolerable. To them, the missiles represent a total disregard for the safety and existence of Germany by NATO, and the U.S. in particular. This view is shared by other Europeans who see the situation as using Europe as a battleground for the superpowers, leaving the U.S. and U.S.S.R. untouched by nuclear holocaust. This view is given much credence by the fact that the missiles, according to Quelle, are of short range—approximately 25 miles—and not the far reaching type capable of striking targets deep within Soviet territory. Any war involving nuclear weapons would be fought on German soil, destroying German resources, cities, and lives.

Mr. Quelle has been assigned to the West German Consulate in Los Angeles for 2 years. In his early 30’s, Quelle has a beautiful wife, Corina, who, like himself, has an excellent command of the English language. Although they enjoy Southern California, they admit to dismay at the stereotypical German portrayed in Hollywood movies.

Cal State Chronicle: What did you hope to convey to the students by your presentation tonight?

Quelle: I wanted to tell people that today, the FRG is a democratic state that is open towards the world. This openness shows we are not afraid of opening our own borders and showing everybody that we can be proud of our political system.

Chronicle: Do you think most Americans are unaware of Germany’s importance in the world today?

Quelle: There is some prejudice against the Americans in general, would not

New Theatre Arts Building Given Low Priority

by Emily Hanisko

It has been predicted that by 1994, $687.3 million will be needed to build new and modernize, maintain and repair old facilities on the campuses.

What does this mean to us at CSCSB? For the moment, not much. Cal State will probably be using some of that fund but not real soon. A request for funds was made by Cal State’s acting Executive Dean and Director of Plant Operations, James Urata, for $220,000 to begin preliminary plans and working drawings for a new Theatre Arts Building. This request has tentatively been turned down by the Governor’s office for the next year, 1984-85. The reasons for the building being given low priority is the state’s funding list is because of its low utilization. Mr. Urata explained.

The proposed building provides a 500-seat assembly area for Drama and also has auxiliary areas including thirty faculty offices and departmental offices. The building will have an “assignable area” of 17,050 square feet and a “gross area” of 25,300 square feet. Because most of the area would not be used for much other than drama presentations, it would be often cont. on page 3

The procedure for obtaining free counseling is simple. The client must call Dr. Teyber's message phone number, 887-7477, to request a call back. He will then contact the three counselors on call the following day to set up an appointment.

The councilors are graduate students in the master's degree program in counseling psychology at Cal State. They are supervised by one of the six clinical psychologists on the college staff.

Dr. Teyber stressed that all counseling sessions are kept strictly confidential.

Police Officer-Entry Level

The City of Santa Ana Police Department has several job openings for entry level Police Officers. The City will hire you as a Police Recruit, send you to a sixteen-week training academy and pay you $1064 per month.

Upon successful completion of the training academy, you will be promoted to Police Officer and receive a salary of $2027 per month.

Requirements: Must possess high school diploma or G.E.D.; must be 21 years of age by Sept., 1984; no felony convictions; vision 20/100 correctable or 20/20; be in good physical condition. Must apply by Thursday, Feb. 16, 1984 to City of Santa Ana Personnel, 20 Civic Center Plaza, Santa Ana, Ca., 92701, 834-4154.

The auditions will be held in Rehearsal Hall A, MGM Studios, 2027 W. Washington Blvd., Culver City. Contenders for "Fame" should enter at the Western Gate, Sony across from Motor Avenue. "Fame" is produced by Ed Brill Productions in association with MGM Television. William Blinn is the executive producer and Kenneth Johnson is the production manager.

Free Counseling

New clients are now being accepted by the Community Counseling Center at Cal State. People who are experiencing personal, social or emotional problems may receive free counseling from the center's staff. Each year, several hundred people visit the center.

"We've seen people who are having trouble finding work and others who are going through and completing plans they make for themselves," said Dr. Edward Teyber, director of the center.

"Other people receive help dealing with their language skills or interacting with others making decisions and reducing stress. Many are in the process of changing careers, are recently divorced or having marital problems," Dr. Teyber said.

The procedure for obtaining assistance is simple. The client must call Dr. Teyber's phone number, 887-7477, to request a call back. He will then contact the three counselors on call the following day to set up an appointment.

Trustees Endorse A- Constitution for CSU Constitutional Status

CSU Trustees last week endorsed a Senate Constitutional amendment that would grant state constitutional status to the CSU if adopted by the Legislature and then approved by the voters in the November, 1984 election. The amendment was sponsored by Sen. Alfred Alquist (D-San Jose).

The constitutional amendment would officially recognize that the state university and its lay Board of Trustees are ready to assume full responsibility for the operation of our campuses," said Chancellor W. Ann Reynolds.

"The amendment was proposed by Dr. Reynolds and Board Chairman John O'Connell, former president of the Bechtel Construction firm and CSU Chico alums, urged the state legislators to give their full support to the operation of the proposed. If passed by a two-thirds vote, it would become law on the November, 1984 ballot.
Serrano Village Council is Back in Action

"We're back and open to new ideas. The main goals of the Village Council are to be involved and plan activities that are suggested by YOU!!" said Steve Crandell, President of the Village Council.

"In order to be successful, we need everyone's participation and ideas. We need to work as a team and not like the Redskins did," added Crandell.

The Serrano Village Council is Back in Action

"...we need everyone's participation and ideas." said Steve Crandell, President of the Village Council. The Village Council meets every Tuesday at 5 p.m. in the Commons, Rm. 219. Everyone is invited to attend. The Village Council moderates grievances, plans activities, and funds projects. The Village Council officers are Steve Crandell, Mojave 228, President; Greg Logan, Waterman 206, Vice President; Theresa Kasick, Arrowhead 131, Treasurer; Marianne de Boss, Morongo 205, Secretary.

"I would recommend the Village Council earned $250 from fund raisers last quarter. "Let's get involved in more bake sales and support those Munchy Baskets" and increase our revenues," stated Kasick.

Get Control of Your Time

by Carol Leah

"Are there enough hours in the day that you control and get a full benefit from?"

On January 25 at 1 p.m. in the SUMP Dr. Martha Kazlo from the Counseling Center spoke and showed a video on time management. She referred to time management as an effective measure to help in stress management. "How do you spend your time?" asked Martha Kazlo. She then discussed the importance of having priorities and keeping a schedule "to keep track of how you spend time," she said. Which is a priority? Watching t.v. or studying?

According to Allen Lincoln's "How To Get Control Of Your Time and Life," you can 'master your time and master your life.' According to Allen, by having priorities and goals within the context of a daily to do list or you can live your life and not spend it (waste time). By realizing whether the day or night time is best for you, you can schedule yourself and increase productivity.

Remember, if you want a better understanding of coping with stress, come to the SUMP on Feb. 1 at noon to learn how stress is a manifestation and that ultimately, relaxation techniques will help you cope with stress.

CSU students are usually older than students elsewhere; none of the campuses in the chain have a limit to how many students they will let come through the doors and regularly turn away large numbers of them. Because of an increased success of programs designed to attract minorities to baccalaureate institutions, Cal State expected to be enrolling more of these students.

Mail-Art Show In The Dark

What do Buzz Blur, F. Stop Fitzgerald and Gail Allen have in common besides funny names? They all currently exhibit work in the Mail-Art show "In The Dark" at Gallery 2 in the Visual Arts building.

IN THE DARK

What started out as a project for the advanced Photography class ended up as an important cultural exchange. The class sent an invitation to four hundred-sixty persons who had participated in mail-art exhibitions before, as well as advertising in "Artweek." One hundred-sixty-two artists responded with three-hundred-ninety individual pieces of art. Some worked the theme "In The Dark" into their pieces, others personalized the work with their own themes. Some of the envelopes are as fanciful and unique as the artwork itself and are displayed on the airconditioning ducts of the small gallery. Gallery 2 is located in the Visual Arts Building across from the Admissions and Records Building and is the first room on the right as you enter from the north end. Gallery 2 is open Monday through Friday from 11 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. The exhibition ends Feb. 20.

service in the eastern sector was dead. By the light of dawn all of Berlin awoke to see windows being boarded up, ditches dug, and Soviet tanks stunned Berlin, an outraged Mail-Art Show West via Bern. By August, 3.5 million had managed to cross the "iron curtain." For the Soviets to control in desperation, they erected the wall to seal off Berlin and stop the exodus. It worked, although through the years, thousands have managed to escape to the west.

Handy showed slides and personal photos, depicting how the wall looked when first built, and of the "improvements" made since then, such as dragon teeth and ditches to prevent automobiles from bursting through the wall. Glass, and sharp, jagged steel have been poured into the concrete along the top of the wall to discourage jumpers and climbers. Mines and machine guns, as well as sophisticated electronic devices that can hear the sounds of tunnelers have also been added.

Since 1971, when a new law greater freedom for the inhabitants of East Berlin, the east has seen a great deal of improvement. Although much of East Berlin still contain ruins from W.W.II, shops seem to have flourished and shortages were, for awhile, disappearing. Since 1979, however, with the advent of the crisis in Poland, East Germany and Berlin are once again experiencing food shortages.

Of his personal beliefs or the Berlin wall today, Handy stated, "I am surprised it (the wall) has stayed up this long." He explained that the Soviets maintain and modify the wall at a great cost, implying the Soviets can hardly afford the wall.

Whitson explained the reasons for the Soviet action. Prior to August of that year, there had been great unrest in the Soviet zone of Berlin and East Germany. Millions of Germans were entering the West via Berlin. By August, 35 million had managed to cross into Western hands. Soon, there would be no more people for the Soviets to control in desperation, they erected the wall to block them.

1. After eating too much, does taking laxatives help me to lose weight?

People with binge-purge syndrome (bulimia—vomiting after taking large amounts of laxatives. Research studies show laxative purges do not prevent the body from gaining weight. A study done to find out that people who took 25 over-the-counter laxatives following meals absorbed virtually all of the calories consumed (90%). Comparing this to people who took no laxatives, researchers found that 96.4% of the calories were absorbed. Laxatives offer no advantage in taking off weight. Weight control is best accomplished by maintaining a low calorie diet and exercise. There are no shortcuts!

2. When a gynecologist asks, "Are you sexually active?" Does this mean only activities involving a penis, or other activities?

When this question is asked by a doctor, it is not taking a medical history. I refer to specific activities involving both the penis and vagina. The answer given by the patient can greatly influence the care when missed periods, infections, surgical procedures, trauma, etc. are concerned. During the child bearing period of a woman's life, being sexually active may be the cause of a missed period. This may result in a diagnosis of either intrauterine or extraterine pregnancy. An extraterine pregnancy may be serious and life threatening if it ruptures; therefore, the truth about sexual activity is vital in diagnosis and treatment.

Genital infections have created an entirely new field of Sexually Transmitted Diseases. The knowledge of sexual activity is a must to assure an accurate diagnosis and successful treatment of both parties involved.

For the successful outcome of vaginal reconstructive surgery, a surgeon must explore the sexual activity preoperatively. The extent of the surgery and the type of surgery depends on the sexual activity of the patient.

From the above brief discussion, it is evident that the knowledge of sexual activity is important in the care of patients. It does not only involve the penis. Remember, it takes two to make a night to remember.

3. I have problems with ingrown toenails. Is there anything I can do to prevent this?

Infected ingrown toenails are a common problem that can usually be prevented by proper trimming of the nails. What usually happens is the nail gets trimmed or broken back on the side. This opens the tissue and an infection gets started. At this point, hot water soaks ten minutes three times daily will help clear the infection if you are lucky. This must be continued until the toenail grows out. If infection persists, then removal of the nail or other minor surgical procedures are necessary. The proper way to trim the toenail is straight across so that you can feel the end of the toenail with your fingernail.

This Desk Can Reach Mach 2.

Some desk jobs are more exciting than others.

As a Navy pilot or flight officer, your desk can be a sophisticated combination of supersonic jet aircraft and advanced electronic equipment. But you can handle it. Because Navy flight training gives you the navigation, aerodynamics and other technical knowledge you need.

In return, Navy aviation demands something of you as an officer: Leadership.

Your path to leadership starts with officer training that’s among the most intensive leadership and professional schooling combined with rigorous Navy flight training. And it’s all geared to prepare you and other college graduates for the unique challenge of Navy aviation. The program is tough but rewarding.

One important reward for Navy officers is decision-making authority. In the air, and on the ground, you have management responsibility from the beginning. And your responsibility grows as you gain experience.

No company can give you this kind of leadership responsibility this fast. And nothing beats the sheer excitement of Navy flying.

The salary is exciting, too. Right away, you’ll earn about $16,500 a year. That’s better than the average corporation will pay you just out of college.

And with regular Navy promotions and other pay increases, your annual salary will soar to $31,100 after four years. That’s on top of a full package of benefits and privileges.

Before you settle down to an earthbound desk job, reach for the sky. Reach for the coupon. Find out what it takes to be part of the Naval Aviation Team. You could have a desk that flies at twice the speed of sound.

CHANGE IN GRADUATION CEREMONY NEEDED

After four, or maybe five or six, years of college graduating seniors have two things to look forward to in June: their diploma and a sweltering overcrowded commencement ceremony.

Graduates deserve more for their efforts than sitting for hours under the hot June sun. The graduate's family and friends deserve to be treated better than overcrowded bleacher seats.

There are alternatives to the dreadfully hot and overcrowded ceremonies of the past.

Splitting up the masters and baccalaureate degree conferrals would help. The bachelors ceremony could begin in the morning and the masters degree could be given out in the late afternoon. If timed correctly no lights would have to be installed.

Another alternative would be to have each school conduct separate ceremonies. The ceremonies would then be small enough to hold in the recital hall.

Both of these alternatives require more than one ceremony, but this is not only inevitable, but desirable. Those students receiving master of arts degrees should be given special recognition in their own ceremony. Making them sit in the hot sun for two or three hours while baccalaureate degrees are conferred does not confer the proper respect for their accomplishments.

At the very least, if the ceremony's format cannot be changed this year, refreshments and canopy should be provided during the ceremony.

Andropov, Soviet Policy and the Succession Crisis: Staying the Course

by P.A. DeBiasco
Pol. Sci. Instructor
This is the first half of a two-part series. The second half of the article will follow in next week's issue.

The prolonged public absence of Soviet President Yuri Andropov is providing Western commentators yet another opportunity to delve into the implications of his policies and the political ramifications of a change in leadership might entail. Setting aside for the time our inability to know precisely the condition of Mr. Andropov, of what significance is a change in leadership to the policies followed by the Soviet Union.

Following the death of Leonid Brezhnev reports abounded concerning a new and moderate direction in which Andropov might take Soviet military and foreign policy. To this end the memoirs of Brezhnev and Andropov's liberal inclinations. (Inclinations he acquired no doubt initially as Ambassador to Hungary where he oversaw the Soviet invasion of that country in 1956 and later as long time head of the KGB secret police). Western self-delusion has taken over into the world's largest military power casts a shadow over Soviet international political behavior.

In the area of nuclear arms, uninterrupted and extensive production reaffirms the doubtful ability of leaders to control these weapons in military strategy. For the last five years the Soviet Union has been producing annually: 200 ICBMs, 200 SLBMs, over 600 theater and short-range nuclear missiles.

Who Has Musical Tunnel Vision?

Mr. Ellis,

Before you accuse me of having musical tunnel vision, I suggest that you inspect your own vision. Your viewpoints on music sound extremely biased to me. Your use of the phrases "White Anglo-Saxon Protestant," and "Rock-N-Roll" prove that your viewpoints are far more limited than you claim to be.

You stated that the students on campus do not listen to rock-n-roll music. Have you done research into this area? If you have, I would like to see it. Furthermore, just because I am reviewing albums that are considered to be rock-n-roll, what gives you the right to say that is all I listen to. The Cal State Chronicle does not buy the albums I review. I borrow them from friends, or buy them with my own limited resources. If you would like to buy albums for me I will be more than happy to review them for you. Also for your information, I listen to Jazz, Fusion, Blues, Classical, and even Country Music from time to time.
