Enrollment A Continuing Crisis

(AFT Release)

In the early part of 1967, the Chancellor's office estimated that the FTE enrollment for 1968-69 would be 156,940. This figure was contained in the budget submitted to the Trustees and thus served as the base on which all requests for funds rested. Subsequently, after the Chancellor's budget request had been approved by the Trustees, the Chancellor revised his estimate upward to 5,080. The new higher enrollment figures were received too late to be built into the regular budgetary functions and left the Department of Finance in no choice but to present an augmentation figure ($6.8 million) as a single line item based on a computed cost of $1,350 per FTE.

The 1968-69 budget, as finally approved by the Legislature and signed by the Governor, was predicated on this revised enrollment figure. The Legislative Analyst noted that an augmentation budget placed the Chancellor in the difficult position of having to decide between the regular budgetary functions and the most general terms and it also pointed to the necessity of general administration, instruction, libraries, etc., to be in the amount of $6.8 million. The Legislature, however, in the form of the C. N. C. Committee, decided otherwise and increased the regular budgetary functions of general administration, instruction, and other activities.

Inasmuch as the listed budgetary augmentation figure ($6.8 million) was $4.4 million higher than the revised estimate of 1967, it was necessary to present the revised estimate in order to present the budgetary additions. The FTE enrollment for 1968-69 would be $160,480.

This was only the beginning of that augmentation. Subsequently, after the enrollment figures were received, the actual enrollments far in excess of the estimates and the regular budgetary functions and the augmentations.
Where's It At?

Inspite of their addiction to the visual palubm of televion, the adherence to monnmy's apoem strings, and the prevalence of the belief that the good of U.S.A. and its plastic, fantastic culture is God's gift to mankind, the most reactionary and conservative of college students today cannot escape the minimal awareness that we are NOW submerged in a cultural revolution. Students' life in a vertible petri dish which has changed. The student's initiative into the collegiate life, is smothered by slogans demanding his participation in the process of furthering student freedom and power. But lost somehow in this catastrophic interpretation of mass student mentality is an essential element necessary for total awareness: Where do our values conflict with those of our parents' generation?

What is itself the "new value system"? How does it differ from the Establishment's? These questions must be asked and answered by the students themselves to avoid this inimical sense of frustration and anxiety but who cannot readily articulate the social conflicts.

Listed below are some of the values which we have grown up with and in which our protest is aimed. Our parents did NOT grow up with these values influencing their social attitudes:

1) Liberalization of sexual attitudes and conduct... THE PILL
2) Emphasis among peer group on search for identity, self-awemeness, and individual expression
3) In the classroom, stress on a dialogue with an individual rather than a monologue from an authority figure
4) Alienation from our basic humaneness via our 65 mph, electrified, computerized, cybernetic culture
5) A larger percentage of the younger masses turning to the media of art and music as a means of escaping from the materialistic into a visual satirization of our society's fallacies (excuse me, Mr. Haney, for a layman's distortion)
6) The changing role of student voice from passive to active in curricular matters
7) Widespread, controversial criticism of our nation's involvement in an unjust war
8) Increasing interest in gut-level communication as one means of achieving self awareness and identifying conflict, anxiety and guilt.
9) The changing functional definition of the family unit away from that of a unified, interdependent economic bond...
10) Creation of the "generation gap"

A tremendous technical orientation and understanding of how we learn in high school to make the hydrogen bomb, when at the same age our parents were being taught that there were no more than 92 elements. We learn in school... We learn in society. We learn in the social conflicts.

Students Speak Out:

Last week the Faculty Senate meeting provided the groundwork for the implementation of the Ethnic Studies program into the future curriculum of this school. This program will be open to all CSUB students interested in the area of ethnic studies. The following question was randomly posed to students: "What do you think about future implementation of an Ethnic Studies program into the formal curriculum of this school?"

Lee Rutledge

Students Speak Out:

Opinion ... Ethnic Studies

Interviews by Harvey Friedman

Lee Rutledge (Senior, History): "As an ethnic studies program, I think this would be a good idea. However, I firmly disagree with the specific isolation of the studying of any one area of ethnic studies. To study a minority or ethnic group in isolation is to distort the actual historical relation to the whole. The main idea behind such a program should be to study not be studied separately but as part of an integrated whole in order to keep it in its proper historical perspective."

Bill Loof (Junior, Biology): "It would be useful to many students interested in the area of ethnic studies. At Valley College, there is a class currently offered in the History of Minority Groups. The implementation of an Ethnic Studies Program into college curriculum is valid because these groups have never been accorded their proper place in history."

Midge Rowley (Junior, English Major): "I don't see any point in initiating any ethnic studies unless the student is able to get a degree in such a program. The point of this program is to be come knowledgeable about other ethnic groups. Without being able to teach this understanding to others, it would be purposeless."

Leavers

Last week at the student's lounge, I attended a discourse on whether or not C.S.B.R.B. should drop foreign languages as a requirement. From the verbal exchange I discerned that Spanish was included in the foreign language taxonomy. But is Spanish really foreign, especially in the Southwest? I know that there are some culturally deprived, as verified by the meeting, that would reply in the affirmative. I also know that they are not confronting reality as certainly the constitution of California doesn't hold the same contention. At this very moment the people of San Diego are celebrating their 200 centennial commemorating their Spanish heritage, they don't think the written signs all around us appear exotic. Does the very name of this institution mean foreign? No. Spanish is not foreign in spite of those with the negative syndrome. It is not relative that which we don't understand, especially if it is part of ourselves and need understanding. It is positive to learn more about that which is an important part of our great American culture. In all aspects Spanish is on the same level of importance and just as American as the culture that stems from the Eastern seaboard. Some of us have been viewing Spanish culture through a biased New England outlook for too long and this philosophy has a large degree been responsible for some of the disdain in our society; a disdain which at the present time is causing great concern in our educational system and throughout the nation.

Is Spanish Foreign?
