Students endorse athletics fee

Students voted two to one in favor of a fee increase which could help bring an intercollegiate sports program to campus.

Cal State, San Bernardino currently is the only campus in the CSU system without an intercollegiate sports program. The college, since its founding in 1965, has stressed intramural activities.

The purpose of the referendum vote, which was held Nov. 15-16, was for students to decide whether they wish to raise their Instructionally Related Activities fee $10 per academic year to support a sports program. President Anthony Evans called for the referendum vote at the request of the Instructionally Related Programs Committee. He now has requested Chancellor W. Ann Reynolds for authorization to begin the fee in the spring quarter of 1984. These funds are needed to implement the first sports program in the fall quarter.

A special task force on intercollegiate athletics, after research and hearings on campus, recommended to President Evans last June that the college participate in NCAA, Division III athletics. The sports programs would be phased in over a five-year period, beginning in fall, 1984.

First year sports would include soccer (men), volleyball (women), cross country, basketball and tennis (continued on page 8)

Fall enrollment figures show 7.6 percent increase fall term

Cal State, San Bernardino's record-setting fall enrollment of 5,450 students represents the highest growth increase in the CSU system. Fall enrollment figures show a 7.6 increase over the 5,060 student count last fall. All class levels on campus show increases.

The first-time freshman total for this year is 344 as compared to 276 the previous year. The total freshman class is 679, a substantial growth over the 596 last year.

The sophomore class showed an increase from 593 last year to 599 this year. At the junior level, the numbers rose from 1,038 to 1,210. Last year there were 1,324 seniors and there are 1,430 this year. The graduate student count also Many cultural activities scheduled in winter quarter

A wide array of cultural activities will be found on campus during winter quarter, 1984.

In the theatre arts department, the winter quarter production will be Cal State's second performance of "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" Dr. Ronald Barnes, chair of the theatre arts department, will direct the play which opens Feb. 23 and continues Feb. 24, 25, 29 and March 1-3. It was first performed on campus winter quarter, 1974. All performances are in the Theatre at 8:15 p.m. Members of the Alumni Association are eligible for special admission rates of $2.

Also in that department there will be a student production of "The Wool Gatherer" Feb. 9-12 at 8:15 p.m. in the drama laboratory. Senior theatre arts major Mary Manthis will direct the production. General admission for all seats is $2.

The Gallery in the Visual Arts Building will be used to display a high school faculty arts show and a contemporary glass show.

The industrial arts and art departments of the 65 high schools within Cal State's service area have been invited to submit work from their faculty for the show which begins Jan. 14 and closes Feb. 4. The "Aspects of Contemporary Glass" show runs from Feb. 13 through March 11.

The music department will again host the Italian Opera Festival from Jan. 2 through 29. It is a joint production of the Inland Art Society and the music department. Several opera classes, workshops and performances are planned, including Mozart's "Don Giovanni" and "Marriage of Figaro."

The Music at Cal State series continues with the Sunday, Feb. 19 performance of Dr. Loren Filbeck, baritone, and Dr. Larry McFatter, piano. Filbeck is the chair of the music department and McFatter, new to the college this year, is a lecturer in piano, theory and composition.

Carol Cheek, violin instructor at Cal State, will present a recital Sunday, March 4.

The guest artist performance in the series will be Diane Lang Bryan, clarinetist, Wednesday, Feb. 29. Active as a recalist in California, she will present music written for clarinet by women composers. All series performances are in the Recital Hall on campus at 8:15 p.m. increased from 1,509 last year to the current 1,532.

Gender figures changed minimally. There are 2,314 (42.5 percent) males on campus and 3,136 (57.5 percent) females. There was a one percent increase in males this year.

San Diego State, the largest campus in the system, showed a larger increase in the number of students than Cal State, but because of its size, the percentage of increase was only 3 percent.

In addition to student growth, the college this year welcomed 41 new faculty members and administrators who came from across the United States and one from Scotland.

This includes 19 full-time lecturers, 15 assistant professors, three associate professors, one full professor with a dual appointment, and three administrators.

In continuing with the college's growth, a special M.A. program in National Security Studies has been added. The program is a professionally oriented interdisciplinary graduate program within the School of Social and Behavioral Sciences, designed for men and women in the military and in defense-related industries.

Courses will explore the principles of strategic planning, arms control and national defense in relation to the contemporary international environment.

Dr. Richard Ackley, professor of political science and a former U.S. Navy officer, directs the program.
Alumni records updated, membership soars in 1983

Attaining the goals of updating the graduate history file and increasing the membership by 50 percent were detailed in the 1983 annual report of the Alumni Association.

Both goals were set by the board of directors in fall, 1982.

The report, prepared by Alumni Affairs Director Richard Bennecke, stated three approaches were used to update the graduate history file. The first was a form sent to campus departments with the request that all updated addresses be forwarded to the Alumni Affairs Office. This approach netted some 102 corrections.

The second approach is the processing of transcript request forms to check the current address of the requestor against the history file.

About 1,000 address corrections were collected through the spring, 1983 mailing of the Panorama to more than 7,000 graduates. The information was forwarded to the college’s history file.

During the 1982-83 academic year, association membership went from 324 to 655, a 101 percent increase. Bennecke attributed the increase to the distribution of the Panorama and increased communication with members by the Alumni Affairs Office.

He also cited the development of special interest chapters as having a positive influence on overall membership growth.

Three new chapters have been added to the Association. They are the Business and Public Administration, Black and Chicano chapters. The association plans to work with other special interest groups in the development of additional chapters.

The association scholarship fund reached $10,000 which was deposited in a money market account. The interest will provide two $300 scholarships for continuing students and a $400 scholarship for an entering freshman. Established in 1969, the fund is comprised of life membership fees and special donations.

Association-sponsored programs, doubled from the previous year, included chapter receptions for new President Anthony Evans. Events included the annual awards brunch, the Nursing Chapter-sponsored graduation, and a reception for black graduates after commencement and the co-sponsorship with the Nursing Department of the lecture presentation of U.S. Sen. Daniel Inouye, D-Hawaii.

Association Goals

The Alumni Association Board of Directors has established the following goals for 1983-84:

— to reach an overall membership goal of 1,000 alumni,
— institute a dental insurance program as the first step toward providing a comprehensive insurance benefit package,
— develop an intramural league for alumni members,
— provide full-time administrative staff support for the alumni affairs operation,
— continue to work with the college in its recruitment efforts,
— work with the college in providing the alumni affairs office with an on-line computer for access to the history file,
— increase alumni involvement through committee assignments and chapter development,
— host an annual dinner/dance fund raising event,
— continue to work with the college in providing support for non-state funded programs and services.

(men and women). Added in the next four years would be: golf, swimming, water polo, basketball and track and field or wrestling.

Projected costs are $150,000 for the 1984-85 year and rising to $190,000 by the fifth year, 1988-89.

Students endorsing the fee increase totaled 946 (66.4 percent) with 478 (33.4 percent) voting against the measure.

Dean of Students Peter Wilson said 1,434 students (26 percent of the student body) cast ballots. He credited ample publicity, convenient polling places and a high level of student interest for the higher-than-average turnout.

Students presently pay $10 per year for IRA fees. The additional $10 for intercollegiate athletics would be collected in the same manner as the original fee — $4 for fall quarter, $3 for winter and $3 for spring. The funds would be used for operational costs (such as insurance, travel, lodging) which cannot be supported by state funds.
